WHY SECRETARY RESIGNED JOB

SIR JAMES SAYS THAT MAISONVILLE'S SERVICE WERE DISPENSED WITH.

Because He Had "Leaked"—Premiers Statement "Amazes" the Young Man, Who Makes an Explanation.

Toronto, Oct. 15.—H. C. A. Maisonville, private secretary to Hon. Dr. Reaume, minister of public works last evening admitted to the press that he was responsible for the publication of Hon. W. J. Hanna's letter to the minister of education, regarding the former's conversation with Bishop Fallon on the bilingual school question in Western Ontario. He seeks to justify his indiscretion in the course of a carefully prepared statement.

THE PREMIER'S STATEMENT.

Sir James Whitney's explanation of the affair is brief and to the point.

"I believe Hon. Mr. Hanna was invited by Rev. Father Kennedy to meet Bishop Fallon, and thought it well to send an account of the interview to the minister of education. Afterwards he (Mr. Hanna) gave a copy of the letter to the Hon. Mr. Reaume, minister of public works. The latter placed the letter on his private file, from which it, or a copy of it, was taken surreptitiously by his secretary, H. C. A. Maisonville, and given out by him to a friend in Walkerville. Mr. Maisonville confessed his guilt to two members of the cabinet and his services have been dispensed with."

MAISONVILLE'S EXPLANATION.

Mr. Maisonville voluntarily explained the whole matter to Dr. Reaume and the provincial secretary at the same time proffering his resignation. It appears that the letter reached the French-Canadian press through the inadvertence of a third party.

DOWN THE RIVER.

Quaker Oats Hunt Club Enjoy an Outing.

On Saturday afternoon last the Quaker Oats Hunt Club made a trip down the river in their fine launch. The members, in anticipation of a lively time, were armed to the teeth having on board quite an arsenal of firearms, consisting of double and single barrelled shot guns, revolvers, ancient and modern, and ammunition galore. When the party arrived at Smithson's Landing they dis embarked and threw out skirmishers while the main body, which guarded the canteen, followed. After an hour's tramp through the heavy undergrowth of shrubs, the advance guard fell back in great disorder all out of breath, and announced that a ferocious wild animal, that looked like a panther or wild cat had been aroused and showed fight. After a hurried consultation, it was decided to advance in a body, and boldly charge the animal, after firing a volley. A difficulty at once arose. There was no one to lead the heroic dash, as it was felt that those in front were in danger of being winged by their friends in the rear. At last another council of war was ordered, and after partaking liberally of refreshments from the canteen, Mr. J. K. agreed to lead the advance. Again creeping forward on tip toe the animal was once more discovered and at once the fusilade began. When the smoke of battle cleared away George E. ran forward and recovered a dead skunk. The animal bore no signs of having been shot, and undoubtedly died of fright.

The party returned to the launch in due course, and at once headed for home, where they arrived weary and footsore, but nevertheless pleased with their little outing.

THE SUFFERERS IN THE RAINY RIVER DISTRICT.

The destruction of human life and of property by fire in the Rainy River district is of such proportions as to cause every thinking mind to realize the inadequacy of language to express the suffering which has been caused and the devastation which has been wrought. The descriptions of the progress of that devastation in the fire-swept region bring home to us a realization of the powerlessness of man before the mighty forces of destruction there are in Nature, when those forces once get headway. Many lives have been lost, whole families perishing; and property to the value of many millions have been destroyed.

The plight of the survivors is pitiful in the extreme. The experiences of terror and distress through which they have passed have been such as to arouse the sympathy of every feeling heart, especially for the women and children. It is satisfactory to know that the work of providing relief for the suffering multitudes who are the survivors of the catastrophe was promptly begun and has pushed forward without delay, the international boundary line proving but an imaginary line, indeed, between Canadians and Americans in their ready response to the appeal made to their humanity by the situation.

LITTLE PINK CLOUDLET.

(Published by Request.)

"Little Pink Cloudlet, born in the west,
Moving so swiftly, yet seeming at rest,
Pretty wee Fleeceling, formed of the dew,
Quickly advancing through Heaven's deep blue,
Spice-laden, breeze-laden creature of air,
Tinted with sunshine, and fashioned so fair,
What is your mission,—and what is your quest?
What is the secret your bring from the west?"

Softly the answer descends from on high,
Wafted by zephyrs from out of the sky,—

"We clouds live as you do, dear Brother of Earth,
Through alternate cycles of death and of birth;
We ask not God's purpose—we know not the 'why,'
'Tis enough that each birth brings us back to the sky!
Descending in showers we water the earth,
Re-ascending, with powers advanced by each birth,
Like souls newly freed from their forms in the sod,
Arising in beauty, we speed back to God;
Glad to be living? Glad to be free!
Glad to return to the sky's azure sea."

"Thanks, little cloud, for your words from above!
Thanks, for your message of service and love!
Your words are like balm to the earth-prisoned soul,
For—like you, we are part of the Infinite whole!
Like you, we descend to our labor through birth,
Like you, we ascend through each contact with earth.

In grateful thanksgiving we kneel at your feet;
No question,—no doubt,—mars the joy that you give,
'Tis enough for your soul, just to love, and to live.

Let us learn that each earth life, tho' weary and long,
Is a full, precious chord in Eternity's Song,—
The deep diapason of sorrow and grief
Throws the flute-tones of joy into brilliant relief;
By descending through gloom we awake to the light;
And the Glory of Sunrise is born of the night!

The Sun's kiss is warm,—and the Sky's bosom blue
To the Little Pink Cloud newly born of the dew,
But the parched Earth is calling for Heaven's sweet showers,
And the cloudlet that lingers,—brings death to the flowers;
So forgetting its fear—and accepting its pain,—
The cloudlet dissolves in the tears of the rain!

RASCAL'S FRAUDS.

Long List of Crimes Get Swindler Three Years' Penal Servitude.

London, Oct. 15.—An extraordinary story of fraud, in which Mr. Birrell was said to have been one of the victims, was told at the London sessions recently against John Howard Clark, aged 31.

One night he telephoned ostensibly from Newmarket to Mrs. Wellesley, Portman square, said he had met her son in Paris, and asked her to give the son his (Clark's) address on his return, so that they could renew their acquaintance. Next he called at the house, and apologized for coming, referred to the telephone communication. He remained for lunch, and talked of the excellent time he had had with the son in Paris. Like him, he said he was interested in missions, and Mr. Wellesley, jr., had promised to show him over the Eton Mission when he returned.

Some hours later he telephoned that he had had his pocket picked, and although Mr. Wellesley was suspicious, and asked him to call, he was then so plausible that he obtained 30s.

As a matter of fact, said counsel, the accused had never known the son referred to, but he learned something about him in an ingenious manner. Before telephoning to Portman square he called at the Eton Mission, Hackney, Wick., where he was shown around the premises. He stayed to lunch and promised to send a subscription to the funds.

It was during his stay that he noticed a portrait of Mr. Wellesley, jr., and was told that he was then in Paris—information which he used to advantage.

Late in the same evening he met Mr. Harold Anderson, who had entertained him at the Mission, and Clark declared to him that he was in an awkward position, as he had been robbed. Mr. Anderson gave him 4s.

On another occasion he called upon the Rev. Charles S. Donald, in charge of Rugby Mission, and represented himself as a brother of an old Rugby boy, who was subsequently stroke in the Harvard eight against Cambridge. He was entertained to tea and supper, playing billiards with a member of parliament, and stayed the night at the mission, as he said he had lost his last train.

He obtained a sovereign from Mr. Donald on the plea that he had been robbed at St. Paul's Cathedral.

The prisoner also obtained half a crown from Mr. F. A. Fowle, a secretary on the staff of the Royal Society.

After the prisoner had been found guilty, Detective Sergeant Morgan continued the story of the young man's frauds. By means of a card belonging to Mr. Wellesley, jun., he ordered £30 worth of cigars, with the intention of intercepting the messenger, but they arrived at Portman square and were returned to the firm.

Afterwards prisoner went to Eton as a wealthy Canadian, and dined with one of the masters. Mr. Birrel, son of the secretary for Ireland, was present, and on his return to London he was visited by accused who said he had lost his purse. Mr. Birrel persuaded his mother to give him over £3.

Clark also obtained £1 from an Eton master, and he then went to the gentleman's brother, who was connected with the Fresh Air Fund, told him he had made the master's acquaintance, and received a further £2.

Subsequently he visited Regent street Polytechnic, promised to present the swimming club with a trophy going to a west end jeweler with several members to arrange details, and on the strength of his mythical gift induced several students to part with money.

He had six times been convicted of fraud, and was last released on May 11th. While the accused was in prison a clergyman interested himself in him, and allowed him £1 a week after his release. In the clergyman's absence the prisoner defrauded his wife of a sovereign by a false story, and obtained a suit of clothes in which he appeared in the dock from the clergyman's tailors.

Sentence was passed of three years penal servitude.

FROM A MONARCHY TO A REPUBLIC.

Montreal, Oct. 15.—The general controversy with the people at the present time on the recent occurrence in Portugal is of a divided nature.

Many argue that the change from a monarchy to a Republic in Portugal does not make much difference; her people may be as happy and prosperous under one form of government as under the other. But our view is apt to be colored by our own experience. We, in Canada, live under monarchical institutions, next door to a republic. We feel that we enjoy as much liberty as our neighbors. We are apt to forget the essential difference between life in Europe and life in North America.

Portugal is about half the size of Manitoba, or of North Dakota. Yet it has its royal family, whose fortunes are linked with those of other royal families, and excite interest in every European capital; its courts, its army and its navy, its colonies in Africa and Asia. It is under the influence of the feudal and military spirit of Europe. When it desires to effect a change in its government it must resort to arms and shed blood; while a Canadian Province or an American State would simply put out a Grit or Tory premier, as the case might be, and appoint a good live manas minister of agriculture, to encourage a more profitable use of the soil.

What happens in Portugal on a small scale happens in Germany and Austria on a large scale. These countries swarm with royal and aristocratic personages who lacking useful employment, yearn for military glory, and whose quarrels and selfish ambitions keep all Europe in a state of nervous tension. Were the armies of Russia, France, Germany, Austria, and Italy disbanded tomorrow, every [illegible] would be as safe from invasion as he is today, while he would be freed from the burden of conscription and military taxation.

The upsetting of the toy throne of Portugal is of no great importance in itself, but as an indication of the growth of liberal and democratic ideas it is worthy of note. Between peace and self-government there is a close relation. The powers that have consented to have their differences settled peaceably at The Hague are the British Empire and the United States, the two greatest examples of freedom and self-government in the world. On the other hand there is a close relation between the German Emperor's ideas of divine rights in kings and his desire for military supremacy. A German republic would speedily make peace with the French republic, and greatly reduce the military burders of both countries, and of Europe.

It is true that there have been warlike democracies, such as the first Republic of France, but the citizens of these were influenced by traditions centuries old, by the ideas implanted in ages of feudalism and oppression. When they desired to achieve certain objects they sprang to arms, because they were acquainted with no other method of redressing grievances. But free institutions gradually and surely undermine militarism.

No Preferred Stock. No Bonds or Free Stock. No Bonded Indebtedness Lease Runs 40 Years All Stock in Treasury for One-fifth Royalty. Benefit of Holders. Incorporated Under Laws of State of California.

160 acres of absolutely proven oil land on Sulphur Mountain, adjoining and between the Liberty and Puritan Oil Companies' property. Two miles from Santa Paula, Ventura Co., Calif.

FACTS—The property is absolutely proven territory, lying as it does with the UNION OIL CO. producing on the south, the LIBERTY OIL CO. producing on the west, the HARD OIL CO. producing on the north, which only recently struck its 30th rig, and Puritan Oil Co. to commence drilling on the east. Also it is located in a district of BIG PRODUCING COMPANIES, such as Oil Fields, Pyramid Oil Co., Canadian Comm. Central Oil Co., Hard Oil and Asphalt Co., and others. THERE'S NO QUESTION ABOUT THE COMPANY GETTING OIL. It is possible that Liberty Oil Company's new well will be a gusher, which would make the ATLANTA OIL COMPANY stock worth par. Mr. Cornell, our Superintendent, knows every foot of the ground, and having had long years of Liberty property, which adjoins our land, and an experienced OIL MAN and two sinking contracts fortunate in obtaining his services. VENTURA CO. OIL represents the cream of the industry. It is the home of HIGH GRAVITY OIL. VENTURA COUNTY OIL, [illegible] a barrel at well. Costs from 3c to 6c to produce it. THE GREAT UNION CO. got its start in VENTURA CO. and has paid over twenty-two millions in [illegible]. These GREAT ASSETS had a small beginning in the WILD HILL GUSHER. EIGHT OF ATLANTA OIL CO. property. The demand for refining oil for [illegible] THEIR SUPPLY. The 35 refineries in California are crying for the product. [illegible] eastern high gravity fields are diminishing. The OHIO FIELDS, FOR INSTANCE, have fallen off one-third. The demand is caused by the increased market for gasoline. Throughout the world the number of automobiles and internal combustion gasolines engines is forcing up the price of high gravity crude petroleum. Eastern operators are now looking to VENTURA COUNTY, which are held to be the most extensive known. THIS IS THE FIRST ANNOUNCEMENT of ground floor offering of ATLANTA OIL CO., and may be overwhelmed at any time. One day's delay may mean you are too late. ACT NOW. WRITE FOR LATEST NEWS OF VENTURA OIL FIELDS.

The lumber for the derrick is on the ground and machinery has been ordered. Well No. 1 will be started as soon as drilling is installed. It should not take over six months to complete first well. Well No. 2, by conditions of lease, must be in operation by February 16th, 1911.

ADVANCES TO 30c AUGUST 30th.

Typesetting Machine of Marvelous Ingenuity

Without Changes of Matrices It Reels off Full Page Ads Set in Body and Display Type or With Equal Ease and Simplicity Turns Out Newspaper Stories With Scare Headlines—It Casts and Sets All Sizes of Type From 5 to 42 Point—Up to 180 Picas Wide.

There is now being exhibited in New York a new multitype typesetting machine that has aroused comment of printers throughout the country. It is a typesetting and typecasting machine, which casts and sets any style of type from 5 to 42 point, delivering the matter direct into the galley, and attains speed never before equalled.

The machine is so ingenious in its work and construction that it appears to do its work guided by its own thinking powers. According to the experts in the printing trade, this new multitype is bound to revolutionize the work of typesetting, not only in the great newspaper plants, but also in the printing of books and magazines and in job printing offices. It is as far ahead of the present lynotype machine as is the electric locomotive ahead of the old wood-burning engine.

From the earliest history type inventors have striven to produce a cheap and simple machine to enable printers to make their own type. Crude hand machines were devised in the early days and every printer was his own type founder. The growth of the printing industry and the invention of the expensive automatic type casters led to a separation of the type founding industry and printing offices.

Then followed the invention and perfection of the present linotype machine, the Mergenthaler wonder itself in the work it performs. The linotype, however, did not obviate the necessity of the expenditure of large sums for display type for ad. composition, heads, etc., or the installation of type casting machines. The Multitype does both.

With the linotype machines in general use today in the newspaper and printing shops complete lines of type are cast in single lines on what are slugs. The linotype sets and casts only two styles of type and a good operator can set about 6,000 ems an hour. Where several styles or different points or sizes of type are called for by the work in hand it is necessary to change the magazine on the machine. That occasions delay and added to this the linotype can set only one style or point of type at a time. The cost of a magazine is about $216, and if a printer has sufficient magazines of different styles of type the linotype machine, by the shifting of the magazine, can set type as high as 36-point. There is a "double-decker" linotype now being tried for setting display advertisements that sets as high as 44-point. This machine feeds from two magazines.

Another typesetting machine in use—more especially for job work—requires two men to operate it. It is a double machine consisting of one keyboard perforating machine and a typecasting machine. This machine casts only one size of type at a time, and where different styles of type are required several machines are necessary. The range in work of this type of machine is 18 points and about 3,508 ems an hour is its capacity.

With these facts in mind, it can be readily understood how ingenious is the perfecting in typesetting and typecasting attained by the newest multiple machine, which goes by the name of Multitype.

The machine now being used in New York is a typecaster and also a composing machine, and it can be used as are other sorts casters—to found type for the case. Owing to its speed it can produce more pounds of type an hour than any other typecaster now in extistence or ever made.

But the distinctive feature of this casting and composing machine is that it can produce display type in the order of composition, changing matrices without stopping the machine, and it delivers composed lines direct into the galley in any length from 1 to 30 inches and in type ranging from 5 to 42 point.

The matter is corrected from a galley in the same manner and as easily as type-foundry type is corrected, and the printer is saved the cost and time of distributing the type into cases. The cost of leads and leading by hand is entirely eliminated, as the Multitype leads automatically.

A machine now on the market and sold for about $2,000 and used in large plants casts all thicknesses of leads in place of the brasses generally used by printers. The same work is done quicker by a small device placed on the Multitype—costing possibly $15—and the leads are cast in any thickness or length. This makes the Multitype the ideal machine for newspaper work and magazines. In fine book work air holes in the type are the bane of the printer. By a simple process the Multitype avoids this annoyance and produces a perfect type. It will cast and set about 6,000 ems an hour under ordinary operation, but that record can be far exceeded by expert operators.

This machine will cast and perfectly justify into lines of any length up to 30 inches, something no machine has ever been able yto do. To change from one style of type to another it is merely necessary to press a key and the change is made in a second. There is no shifting of expensive magazines, with the attendant delay. The machine is operated from keyboard the same as the linotype machine, but no spacing register before the operator is used.

With newspaper stories in the rush of going to press and the other crushes that are unavoidable in newspaper offices, the Multitype has the advantage of being a great time-saver. It will set the body of the story and the headlines at the same time, something that will be most appreciated in the newspaper offices of the country.

Mr. Allen A. Canton, who is the inventor of the Multitype, has perfected many devices in the mechanical and electrical field. The multiple control system used in the control of electric trains of the trolley lines between Milwaukee and Waukesha, Wis. is his invention. The motor controls and starters used on the large motors in the big steel mills generally throughout the country are his inventions, and also the automatic telephone exchange systems owned by the Bell Telephone Company interests.

Mr. Canton has placed many labor-saving devices on his Multitype machine that will be greatly appreciated by the operators of those machines. By the depression of a single key, for instance, any commonly used word or combination of letters is cast. It sets type around cuts automatically and an automatic indicating register indicates the character or words cast the same as on the visible typewriter. A centreing device automatically inserts any line or fraction of a line into the centre of a galley and casts a space equal length on either side of the line.

The construction of the machine is simplicity itself, and anyone who can operate a keyboard can run the Multitype. A great item for the small printer is the fact that these machinesines are not expensive and the cost of maintenance is low. It is also a fact that a linotype machinist is not needed to keep them in running order, so the printer in the small town far away from the larger city can use them with perfect peace of mind and not be always in fear of the big bill for repairs.

Many attempts have been made to improve upon the linotype machine now generally used by newspapers and printers in all lines of the work. Some years ago there was a linotype machine brought out which, while it proved a wonder, was altogether too complicated for commercial purposes. Each machine cost more than $12,000 to build, so, with the manufacturers' profit, the price was prohibitory to the printer.

The machine was called the Page linotype, and it now reposes in the museum of Cornell University. It cost the Government $35,000 to get out the patent papers covering it, and most of the patent examiners and attorneys who had anything to do with this complicated but wonderful machine went insane.

RAILWAY REGULATIONS.

Although there was little novelty in the railways' presentation of their case for the advance of their rates, there was much that was novel in the shippers' contentions. It Chicago it was testified by one railway that forty million dollars of earnings had been put back into the property. In this city it was testified that some thirty-five millions of dollars of earnings had been expended upon the new Pennsylvania terminal. This was in accord with the formerly approved rule of practice by the best roads—"a dollar for dividends and a dollar for betterments. It was this principle of plowing the earnings back into the property which has kept down the capitalization of American railways at the same time that their rates have not risen with other prices for services and goods.

Onthis formerly approved principle the shippers' consel joined issue, taking their cue, it must be admitted, from certain rulings of the Inter-State Commerce Commission. These improvements made from earnings were regarded as grievances, and in themselves a proof of extortion. It was asserted as a right that the roads should reduce their rates by whatever sums of earnings they have been accustomed to devote to improvements. Even the misfortunes of the railways were imputed to them for a fault. For example, it was alleged that because one road had lost large sums by equipment frauds, and had prospered nevertheless, therefore it had overcharged by the amount it had lost by embezzlement, and should be held to reduce its rates by the amount of its losses The broad position of those assuming to act for the general public is that the railways should be allowed to chargeno more than would just prevent their setting up a defence of confiscation. And, in estimating the permissible income the railways are held by these spokesmen to be entitled to no more than a reasonable income upon the amount of their own funds which they have devoted to the public use.

These gentlemen seem in some danger of winning a battle and losing a campaign. It is conceivable that they may prevent an advance in rates, and come to regret the consequent lack of vitality in the railways. American roads are far from having attaind their growth. They are in need not only of income enoughto sustain their life but to stimulate their growth. There is a certain justice in having the funds necessary for their growth contributed by those whose patronage of the railroads is a source of profit, rather than by the general public whose gainfrom the railways is less direct. If the railways are held to capitalize their betterments, and must borrow the money, interest must be paid on the money borrowed, and the rates must be adequate to pay the interest and providing a sinking fund for the establishment of the debt. As interest and sinking fund must come from earnings, it would seem to come to the same thing in the end.

Whatever the merit of this argument on either side, it is plain that a new light is thrown upon what is thought to be regulation of rates. Heretofore it has been thought that the function of government was merely to assure that rates were reasonable and just, that is, neither extortionate nor discriminatory, toward either persons or places. If the position assumed on behalf of shippers is sustained there is no detail of the management of the railroads too trivial for examination and control

COLORED PUGLIST TO SUE THEM FOR CANCELLING HIS DRIVING LICENSE.

The Olympia Auto Show—British Motor Exhibition to Begin November 4.—Auto Wins Test Case With Wagon.

New. York, Oct. 14.—Jack Johnson says he is going to have the law on the contest board of the American Automobile Association for cancelling his license as an automobile driver. He sent this reply to the board last night:

"I return herewith the one dollar which you returned to me, same in payment of license fee. I conformed to all conditions named on the application blank furnished me by your office, and will not accept cancellation of my license. You are in error when you state that I obtained the license by trickery or misrepresentation. You cannot blame me for your lack of office system. I will go into the courts if necessary to secure my rights and privileges.

Both Johnson and Barney Oldfield, who are scheduled to race at Sheepshead Bay on October 20, say that the race will be run regardless of the board's action.

More Barnardo Home Children Arrive.

Yesterday morning two coaches of little orphan girls from England for the Barnardo Home arrived via the G.T.R. They did not alight at the station but the train took them up to Hazel Brae. The new arrivals number between 75 and 80.

Rev. Mr. Pogue at Y.M.C.A.

Yesterday afternoon Rev. Robert Pogue, the eloquent and earnest pastor of St. Paul's church, gave one of his characteristic, straight from the shoulder addresses to men at the Y.M.C.A. There was a good attendance of men, each and every one of whom thoroughly appreciated and was eagerly intersted by Mr. Pogue's words. The Singing by the men made the meeting bright and, if possible., more interesting.

Girls Have Paper Chase.

The Girls' Athletic Association of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute had a paper chase on Saturday afternoon. At about 2.30 some forty girls left the institute and had a run into the country. Refreshments were served in the laboratory on their return. Those taking part thoroughly enjoyed the exercise and got back with sparkling eyes and rosy cheeks.

Fred Sullivan Remanded.

At Saturday's session of the police court Fred Sullivan, a boy charged with stealing a quantity of goods from Jas. Edgar, on the 6th this month, was remanded until the 26th October. Mr. G. N. Gordon appeared for the prisoner, but was not ready with his defence, hence the remand. Mr. Wood, county Crown attorney, acted for the prosecution. Bail was fixed at $1000, in two sureties of $500 each.

Prayers for Mr. James Stevenson.

During the morning service at St. John's church yesterday, the rector asked for the prayers of the congregation for Mr. James Stevenson, ex-M.P., "a former member of this church, who for the past week has laid at the point of death." In this connection it might be remarked that at a late hour last night Mr. Stevenson's condition, whilst low, was no worse than it had been for several days.

This will save the time, trouble and expense of the water samples going to Toronto for analysis.

Work in Progress at Auburn.

Now that the extensive work on the power house at Auburn is to be actively prosecuted in the near future it might be noted that Mr. Monds, of Clarke & Monds, has arrived in the city to go ahead with the work. The operations will occupy about a year, giving employment to a large number of men. The work consists of a new canal on the west bank off the river, and a new power house just above the railroad bridge on the Lakefield branch. Work has actually begun on this part. The old woolen mill is being torn down.

Local Man's Nephew Dead.

A despatch from Edmonton tells of the death there last week, of Rev. Edmond Hayes, pastor of the Methodist church of that town. The late Mr. Hayes was a nephew of Mr. Sam Hayes of the Windsor Hotel staff. The deceased was born in Napanee and was about 35 years of age. It is not known here yet whether the burial will take place in Edmonton or Napanee. Rev. Mr. Hayes revisited Napanee a year ago, after some years' absence. At a reception held in the Methodist church there, Mr. Gibbard, a leading Napanee manufacturer, paid high tribute to Mr. Hayes, remarking that he hoped other young men of that town would follow in the footsteps and emulate the example set by Mr. Hayes.

More Donations to Chimes Fund.

The Chimes Fund seems to go merrily on. On Saturday it was noised that Peterborough Lodge, Independent Order of Oddfellows, very liberrily on. On Saturday it was noted was the society's own idea and the response was most spontaneous. The staff and guests of the Oriental Hotel, through the head waitress, Mrs. Smith furnished a pleasant surprise to the committee by sending in forty dollars. Dr. Ernest Hammes, of St. Paul, Minn., sent a donation. Many of the old subscriptions have been paid and are now coming in every day, most of them having been due on October 1. The fund at noon on Saturday stood at $4,911.72. A meeting of subscribers will be held on Thursday evening.

The Grand Trunk Railway System have recently placed in commission on their northern division, two telephone train despatching circuits as follows:—One circuit between North Parkdale Junction and Burlington Junction via Allandale, a distance of 145 miles, and another circuit between Allandale and Nipissing Junction, a distance of 165 miles. Train despatchers on each of these circuits are located at Allandale.

On the circuit between North Parkdale Junction and Burlington Junction there are twenty-one way stations, and on the circuit between Allandale and Nipissing Junction, twenty way stations. These circuits are constructed of No. 9 guage hard drawn copper wire, transposed at intervals of every half mile through the open country and as much more frequent as it is necessary in the vicinity of high voltage power lines in order to avoid inductive influences and to render the telephone circuits absolutely quiet. The station equipment is of the latest and most perfect type on the market and consists of a swinging arm transmitter and head band receiver for each way station, thus giving the operator the free use of his head, hands and body while using the telephone; the apparatus is swung to one side out of the way while not in use. The train despatching office is equipped with a selector system for calling offices and the duration of the ring in each way station is controlled by the despatcher, who plainly hears the ring through his receiver. Any office on the line can be signalled within eight seconds and as the signal bell in each office consists of a four inch gong there is little doubt but what the operator will hear his call, even though outside of the office and at a distance from it. The despatcher has absolute control of the circuits and way stations must obtain his co-operation when desiring to communicate with one another.

The telephone is considered as being superior to the telegraph as a medium for despatching trains both as a factor of safety and a saving of time. By telephone each station and and numeral is first pronounced and then spelled out latter by letter by the despatcher for verification when an order is issued, and repeated in like manner by the receiving operator; while by telegraph stations and numerals can only be spelled out in Morse characters.

During the past three years the telephone has made rapid strides on trunk line railways in the United States and Canada, for train despatching purposes and today over thirty thousand miles of railway is being so despatched. While the expense for constructing and equiping telephone circuits, greatly exceeds that of constructing telegraph lines the railways have obtained so much better results with the telephone that they feel justified in spending the money.

We understand that it is the intention of the Grand Trunk Railway System to extend the use of the telephone over its more important and operators, the transmission belines in the near future.

The new system has met with the immediate favor of the despatchers ing so excellent that the work is transacted in fully fifty per cent less time and in a more personal and satisfactory manner, than is possible with the telegraph.

Times Interviews a Noted Evangelist

REV. J. BENNETT ANDERSON IN THE CITY.

Yesterday The Times had the pleasure, and, it is not too much to say the honor of a somewhat prolonged interview with Rev. J. Bennett Anderson, 136 Robert street, Toronto, who has recently been assisting at All Saints' church, in this city. The Times representative hearing this talented divine speak, recognized that in the speaker was a man outside the ordinary run of general humanity. The talk The Times was honored with yesterday fully justified this prognostication.

Rev. Mr. Anderson was recently appointed diocesan evangelist by the Synod of Toronto on a motion by his Lordship Bishop Sweeney, seconded by Rev. E. A. Langfeldt, rector of St. Luke's church, of a nise little district in the diocese of Toronto. The little plot Mr. Anderson is appointed to look after includes ten thousand square miles ! ! !

In response to a question respectfully put by The Times as to his age, with a twinkle in his grey Irish eye and the saving truth of his puritan maternal relative, Mr. Anderson replied "Now you newspaper men mean well. You are always friends of the church, but you sometimes ask embarrrasing questions. Well, I'm over fifty. My father was Irish and my mother was English Puritan, her name Priscilla Armitage, thus assuring the latter statement.

To begin to quote the history of this earnest and strictly human evangelist, would take much space, provoke tears over his experiences, all over the world, bring roars of laughter at his witty stories and, above all invoke the most heartfelt respect for the deep religious feelings that characterize every thought of the man and prove that there is at least one man who can, keep his fellow man in laughter over story after story replete with mirth but still convince his hearer that he, the latter, like the speaker is, should above all be a follower of Jesus Christ. Whilst this is not a critical analysis of personal character, it is worthy of note that never did the writer meet a man with more true modern humanity coupled with deep seated religion than this man with a parish of 10,000 square miles.

Now to relate some of the parson's experiences. It was he who started the agitation that eventually saved Mrs. Maybrick from ending her life behind the bars. This alone would entitle one man to fame.

During the great dock laborers' strike in Liverpool, where Mr. Anderson was then stationed, and where he held meetings among, and gained the confidence of the dock men, a meeting, the big meeting, attended by over twenty thousand men was held. This meeting was to be addressed by some of the leading men of England. Rev. Mr. Anderson, as a religious worker among, and friend of, the dockmen, was included among the speakers. The reporters for the Liverpool papers tried to gain access to the hustings to get the speeches. This was objected to by the strikers fearing that the press would report adversely. Mr. Anderson, recognizing one or two of the reporters, said "Come with me boys." To The Times this world-wide divine naively said "You know I knew none of the strikers would hurt or stop me, so I just told the reporters, "Come along boys," and when I was met with black looks and threatening actions, I just said to them, "Now look here you chaps, these reporters are only making their living the same as you want to. If they don't get the news they don't get paid. They have families to support just as you have. Any how, it's likely they will hear just as much to say on your side as against you, in fact more. Well those big fellows stood aside and the reporters, following me got full reports that practically resulted in ending the strike.

Mr. Anderson was in Australia in 1890 to 1895, chaplain of Sidney Bethel Union, and also chaplain of the "Sailors of All Nations." He showed The Times a large silver medal, handsomely embossed, presented him by the John Bennett Anderson Lodge of Westminster, London, thirty-eight years ago.

As a slight proof, if one could call it slight, of the cosmopolitan and extraordinary experience of this jolly evangelist, it might be noted that, possibly never in the history of Peterborough, was there in this city such an autograph album as that shown The Times yesterday by Mr. Anderson. It contains some 4,200 names of great, and a few lesser celebrities, all personally known by Mr. Anderson, and most of whom are are well known the world over. The actual signatures include such names as her late majesty, Queen Victoria, on the Windsor Castle paper, the twin sons of Rev. Mr. Spurgeon of London, Lord Radistock, Ned Wright the converted burglar. In this connection it might be shown that this reformed burglar, whose name is a household word all over the world, first put his signature down in pencil. Mr. Anderson traced the signature over in ink with a fountain pen. When this addition was shown to Wright, he wrote "God is Love," and several similar sentiments. The list also included Frances E. Clarke, founder of the Christian Endeavor Society; Bishop Chavasse; Arch Deacon Madden; Prof. Macklem; Ian Macklaren (John Watson), author of Bonny Brier Bush, etc.; Rev. Crossley, the evangelist; Gen. Wm. Booth Rev. Parker, of the Temple, London, Eng.; E. A. Langfeldt, D.D.; Sir Geo. Williams, founder of the Y. M.C.A.; Sir Wilfrid Lawson, "Father of the House of Commons"; Philip Philips, "the singing pilgrim," whose hymn book was originally adopted and used by the celebrated evangelists Moody and Sankey; S. H. Blake, and others too numerous to mention.

It seems a pity, in the cause, not only of religion, but of society, education and humanity that Peterborough does not get more cosmopolite, educated witty parsons, like Rev. Mr. Anderson, who, six years ago, took a course at Trinity College, Toronto.

Things Lively in Lindsay.

A Lindsay despatch received last night says: For some times past there have been rumors current here in regard to alleged irregularities in the town clerk's office, which have culminated in the resignation of Town Clerk Fred Knowlson. The council has appointed Mr. Williamson of Toronto, to make a special audit of the books, and his arrival today added to the sensation caused by this official's resignation, which it is understood was on the advice of his solicitor, Mr. Hopkins. Startling rumors are afloat as to the amount of the shortage, etc., but nothing definite is known.

An International Marriage.

New York, Oct. 15.—A special train conveyed the guests from this city today to Hempstead, L.I., for the wedding of Miss Anna Dillon Ripley and Count Pierre de Viel Castel of Paris. The ceremony took place at the Crosswayes, the country estate of the bride's mother, Mrs. Sidney Dillon Ripley.

Bishop Fallon Says the Bi-Lingual School System is a Failure

BISHOP FALLON HURLS DEFIANCE AT HIS CRITICS—EXONERATES PROV. SEC. HANNA.

He Resents the Inference that Catholicity and Ignorance are Convertible Terms—A Strange Faith That Would be Preserved by the Kinds of English or French Taught in Bi-Lingual Schools of Essex.

The following statements are taken from the report given out by Bishop Fallon on Sunday at Goderich, in regard to the bilingual school system of his diocese:

AS TO MR. HANNA.

"I desire to fully and entirely exonerate Mr. Hanna from even the suspicion of dishonorable conduct."

AS TO MAISONVILLE.

"I informed the Hon. Dr. Reaume privately over four months ago, and shortly after the stealing of the Hanna memorandum, that his private secretary had sent a libellous attack on me to the Detroit Free Press . . . . . I knew that Sir James Whitney would not tolerate for an instant that any man should draw a salary from the Province and, at the same time receive pay from newspapers for fomenting racial and national strife."

AS TO BI-LINGUAL SCHOOLS.

"The alleged bi-lingual system of education . . . . is absolutely inimile to the best interests of the children, both English and French."

Separate schools bad, public schools worse. Neither English nor French properly taught or decently spoken.

French-Canadian pastor said of class of boys between 11 and 15 "Half can neither read nor write."

In one district in 25 years not a child has passed the entrance examination.

"One could almost be inclined to believe in the existence of a well-contrived conspiracy among the enemies of the French-Canadian people to keep them in a position of self-perpetuating intellectual inferiority."

An alleged bi-lingual school system, which teaches neither English nor French, encourages incompetency gives a prize to hypocrisy and breeds ignorance.

Julia Ward Howe Dead

Boston, Mass., Oct. 17.—Telephone reports here say that Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, author of the "Battle Hymn of the Republic," died today at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Maude Howe Elliott, at South Portsmouth, R.I., where Mrs. Howe had been seriously ill for some weeks.

Walter Wellman Has Travelled 470 Miles

WITH HIS FIVE INTREPID MEN BELIEVED TO HAVE BEEN IN AN ELECTRICAL STORM

Only One Message Since the Word "Yes" Was Flashed Faintly as as America Passed Out of Her Wireless Coast Zone Yesterday.

Paris, Oct. 17.—Count de Vaulx, who took a prominent part in the construction of the dirigible balloon America, announced this afternoon that he had just received a cablegram stating that Walter Wellman had covered 470 miles in his flight from America to Europe.

Siasconnset, Mass., Oct. 17.—Fear that lightning has struck and destroyed Walter Wellman's airship, the America, was caused here today when the steamer Findland, bound for New York, communicated with the Marconi Wireless station that there had been a heavy storm early Sunday evening with sharp lightning and heavy rain over that section of the Atlantic which Wellman was supposed to have passed.

At 9 o'clock the weather cleared but the vessel received no communication from the America.

Kitchener Appointed

(Special to The Times.)

London, Oct. 17.—Lord Kitchener has been appointed a member of the Committee on Imperial Defence.

The early hours of the day brought no word by wireless or otherwise of the Wellman airship America, which is believed to be hanging over the Atlantic ocean somewhere off the coast of New England or Nova Scotia.

The last message received was at 12:15 p.m. yesterday, when the faint "Good bye" came as the airship passed beyond Nantucket Island. The wireless stations all along the coast had nothing further this morning. The steamer Kromprinz Wilhelm, 700 miles seaward and on the regular steamer line, reported by wireless, but had no tidings of the airship. The steamer Barbarossa, 501 miles out, similarly reported without news of the airship.

With no word from the airship, its location is entirely conjectural and subject to the fluctuation of wind, in direction and velocity and the workings of the motors.

French in Essex and Quebec Resent Statement Made by Bishop Fallon

Resent Insult to Pope

(Special to The Times.)

Montreal, Oct. 17:—A resolution condemning the insulting remarks of Mayor Nathan of Rome in reference to the Pope was passed at an open-air meeting here of 25,000 people on the Champs de Mars yesterday.

Archbishop Bruchesi presided and Mayor Guerin and Bourassa were among the speakers. Parts of Mayor Nathan's speech were read by the archbishop and the people cried "Down with the Jew."

Iowa Presbyterians in Session.

Iowa City, Ia., Oct. 17.—A large attendance and an attractive programme combine to give promise of an unusually successful meeting of the Iowa Presbyterian synod here this week. Following preliminary meetings today the sessions of the synod proper will be opened tomorrow evening with a sermon by the retiring moderator, Rev. Dr. C.M. Steffens of Dubuque. Other prominent clergymen who will address the convention are Rev. G. L. Fritch of Des Moines, Rev. G. L. Robinson of the McCormick Theological Seminary, Rev. W. H. Wilson of New York and Rev. R. C. Hughes of Madison, Wis.

STORM OF PROTEST COMING FROM PRESS OF MONTREAL AND QUEBEC.

Bourassa's Paper Mildly Criticises—But Real Blast Will Come Later—Bilingual System Must Stay.

Windsor, Oct. 17.—Bishop Fallon's castigation of the system of bilingual teaching in the schools of Essex published in the morning papers today, in which he labels a large section of the children as illiterate and the system as the breeder of ignorance, is met here by an almost solid broadside of opposition on the part of the French-Canadians, although in interviews this morning a press representative was advised by prominent Irish Catholics that his lordship's specific condemnation of the Essex schools will find a friendly echo with educated French-Canadians and all Irish laymen.

Dr. H. R. Casgrain, a son of Senator Casgrain, and a leading French-Canadian physician of Windsor, in an interview with a reporter at his home this morning, outlined a position which is in essential agreement with that of Bishop Fallon. Since his lordship made his first attack on the Essex seperate schools during a priests' retreat at Sandwich last year, the absence of detail in the charge has led many French-Canadians to misinterpret his utterances.

REMOVING HOSTILITY.

Many French-Canadians were found who were inclined to accept the bishop's stand since he has come down to specific instances to support his argument. The figures proving illiteracy which are in the document no one hesitates to accept as accurate and this is doing a great deal to modify hostility in the anti-Fallon camp. Dr. Casgrain applied the word "inefficient" and "lamentable" to the bilingual schools of Essex in much the same manner as Bishop Fallon, but is at variance with his lordship in his suggestion for cure.

But the complete turnover of that system is easily at hand and can very simply be applied. It would be a Godsend to the people of the north Riding of Essex if all the Seperate Schools were taught by the sisters of the three orders of St. Joseph, St. Mary's or the Ursulines. These are most excellent teachers, competent in all branches and inspired by a higher motive than the amount of salary or the likelihood of moving in to some other branch of work. Give the Seperate schools into the charge of these sisters, and in five years the present lamentable condition would disappear and Bishop Fallon would have no cause whatever to find fault with the education of Essex children.

LANGUAGE IS SACRED.

"There is as much danger of abolishing the teaching of French in the Seperate schools of North Essex as there is of changing the spots on a leopard. The language is indispensable to the religion. That has been demonstrated on thousands and thousands of occasions." Dr. Casgrain further offered this solution of the French school difficulty. "Let both parties to the contract be reasonable Bilingualism will work efficiently, if gone at in the right manner. Let the French child upon entering school be taught to read, write, spell and converse in French. Then when that is done as a foundation, let all such subjects as history, geography and similar subjects be taught in English. At present they are taught largely in French. But above all the language must not be allowed to go. The French-Canadian attaches almost as much importance to his mother tongue as to his religion."

As an illustration of successful education along bilingual lines the Assumption College at Sandwich can be cited as one of the most noteworthy. It is a first-class institution in every respect, although the impression has got abroad among the clergymen of North Essex, that they do not teach French there. That is false. The result, however, has been that last numbers of our young men are sent each year to the Quebec colleges from which they return but poorly prepared to meet the requirements of Ontario business or professional life. The atmosphere in which they live is totally at variance with the needs of Ontario or other English-speaking Provinces.

THE FALL ASSIZES.

Two Criminal Cases to Be Tried and One Interesting Electrical Power Case.

A week from today the fall assizes of the High Court will open before Chancellor Sir John Boyd. There are two criminal cases and five civil actions to be heard. James Gorham will be charged with shooting and killing his mother in May last, and Hugh Deline will face a charge of wife murderer. Mr. E. D. Meredith, K.C., of Toronto, will be the Crown prosecutor and Messrs. O'Connell and Gordon will defend the prisoners.

In the first civil case before a jury, Mary Ann Vinette, wife of the late Isadore Vinette, is suing the Otonabee Power Co., Limited, to recover $5,000 and costs. It will be remembered that on or about the 9th day of July, 1910, the defendants and their foreman, entrusted to him a job in a position which it is claimed, was in a highly dangerous position, and that Isadore Vinette was an inexperienced man. The plaintiff claims that the death of Isodore Vinette, was caused by negligence of persons engaged by defendants, and by such negligence, the plaintiff and her children have been deprived of support and protection. O'Connell and Gordon for the plaintiff; Hall, Medd and Davidson for defendants.

Lord Lovat Takes a Bride.

London, Oct. 15.—Quite the most fashionable wedding of the season so far was that of today in which Miss Laura Lister, youngest daughter of Lord Ribblesdale and a niece of Prime Minister Asquith, will become the bride of Lord Lovat, the chief of the ancient and important Scottish clan of Fraser. The ceremony will be performed at St. Margaret's, Westminster, and will be followed by a large reception at the Downing street home of Prime Minister Asquith.

HE FEARED BLOOD POISON.

But Zam-Buk Saved His Thumb.

Once again a case is reported in which the popular balm Zam-Buk has saved a worker from the terrible effects of blood poisoning. Mr. Alfred Hy. Orth, of Shipley, Ont., says "While at work I had the misfortune to run a rusty nail under my thumb nail, to the depth of one and a half inches. The pain was terrible and what I feared was that the nail, being so dirty and rusty, would set up festering and blood-poison. I knew from previous experience how good Zam-Buk was so I cleaned the thumb melted a little Zam-Buk, and ran it into the wound. The result was wonderful! It soothed the pain and the thumb actually did not swell. Zam-Buk kept away all inflammation. I was able to go on with my work all the time, and in a few days the thumb was as good as ever. A balm which can do this should be every working man's home.

Zam-Buk is the finest form of "insurance" for all workers. Its antiseptic power is so great that no disease germ can live in it; and if immediately applied to a sore or injury, or diseased patch, all danger of blood-poisoning is averted.

Being composed of pure vegetable essences, Zam-Buk is an ideal balm for babies and young children, and mothers will find it far superior to the ordinary salves, some of which contain harmful mineral poisons, rancid animal fats, etc.

Zam-Buk is a sure cure for ulcers, abscesses, eczema, ringworm, blood-poison, scalp sores, chapped hands, cold sores, inflamed patches, bad leg, varicose veins and ulcers, piles, cuts, burns, bruises, and all skin diseases and injuries. Sold by all druggists and storekeepers at 50c a box, 3 for $1.25. Post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Avoid harmful imitations and substitutes.

30,000 People Saw Big Game Yesterday

(Special to The Times.)

Constantinople, Oct. 17.—The Turkish Government is facing a financial crisis. Three members of the Cabinet resigned today because of complications over the army budget.

THE ATHLETICS WIN FIRST GAME OF WORLD'S CHAMPIONSHIP SERIES YESTERDAY.

Manager Chance of Chicago, Took Overall From Box in the Fourth Innings and McIntyre Went in to Do Duty—All Moving Picture Men Ordered From Field—Bender the Slab Artist for the Philadelphia Aggregation.

Philadelphia, Oct. 17.—It was a frenzied crowd of baseball fans that watched the first game of the world' championship series between the Chicago Cubs and the Athletics of Philadelphia here this afternoon.

Twenty thousand howling fans were at the Shibe Park when the Cubs came on the field for practice at 12.55. They had been flocking in from the time that the gates were opened at 11 a.m., and the early applause was for the Athletics during the morning practice. But a mighty cheer went up as Manager Chance of the Chicago team, walked through the gate, arm in arm with Orvie Overall, who had been chosen to twirl for the Cubs. At the same time the 9,000 reserved seats began to fill up. The bleachers were already crowded and 3,000 fans flanked the field.

TROUBLE OVER PICTURE MEN.

Just as the battle was about to begin with 30,000 spectators in attendance, Frank Chance ordered a moving picture man off the field and the order was countermanded by President Johnson of the American League.

A conference was called, and Chance had his way, refusing to let the game go on until the picture man was moved over alongside the home bench. The National Commission ruling that spectators may get no closer than 252 feet from the home plate gave all a magnificent view of the park.

There was later another interruption on account of the moving picture man, who was now entirely eliminated from the proceedings.

BATTERIES AND UMPIRES.

The battery for Chicago was Overall and Kling and for Philadelphia Bender and Thomas.

The umpires were Connolly and Sheridan, Americans; Oday and Rigler, Nationals.

The umpires were distributed as follows Connolly behind the bat, Hank Oday at first base, Rigler in right, and Sheridan in left. The regular ground rules of two base in the crowd prevailed.

FIRST INNING.

Scheckard, the first man up for Chicago struck out. Shulte was caught stealing second on a hit and run play. Thomas to Collins Hoffman out. Collins to Davis.

Strunk, of Philadelphia, out, Stein feldt to Chance. Lord bit the first ball pitched and was out on a fly to Hoffman. Collins singled; Collins out, Kling to Tinker. No runs, one hit, no errors, none left.

The game was won by Philadelphia by a score of 4 to 1. Overall was replaced by McIntyre in the fourth. The game was witnessed by 30,000 people. The batteries were:

Chicago— Overall, McIntyre and Kling.

Philadelphia—Bender and Thomas.

Hotel Men Oppose County Option.

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 14.—Leading hotel men from all parts of the State, members of the Indiana Hotel Keepers' Association, met at the Claypool hotel here today to discuss plans for aiding the movement for the repeal of the county option law. The hotel men declare that they have experienced a great falling off in their patronage and profits as a result of the operation of the law.

PLOT BY WHICH HE PLANNED TO ESCAPE FROM ASYLUM FAILED.

Expected That He Will Be Taken From Asylum Within Two Months On a Writ of Habeas Corpus.

New York, Oct. 17.— Harry Thaw continues to make elaborayee preparations to fight for his liberty. The slayer of Stanford White is working several hours every day in Matteawan Asylum with a staff of legal experts, and within two months, it is expected he will be taken from the asylum on a writ of habeas corpus. Mrs. William Thaw is doing all she can to assist.

It is stated that recently a plot to carry Thaw away was almost carried out. It was arranged that Thaw should jump into a motor car which was to be driven at high speed to the Connecticut line, where Thaw would be out of the jurisdiction of the New York courts. Thaw's lawyers denied the story. It is known, however, that the hospital officials, when they heard of the alleged plot, placed the prisoner under a special guard, and he has not been allowed since to pass through the main corridor of the asylum.

A man, who accompanied a recent party, said he was instructed by his guide to gaze through a door window.

He saw Thaw sorting a bundle of papers with his lawyer. At times he jumped from his seat and thumped the desk with his hand as if trying to press an important point.

The many friends of Mrs. Walter Paterson are welcoming her and her daughter after their absence for over five years.

THE RECIPROCITY PROPOSES.

Those who contend that Canada ought not to show any anxiety for reciprocity with the United States ought to be satisfied with the course of the Canadian Government. Negotiations are proceeding in a very leisurely way. There was at one time a fear that President Taft might hurry them on in order to have something to offset the campaign for tariff reduction, and to be used in November Congressional elections. But it is clear that when the elections are held early in November, the negotiations will have hardly begun. And it is not likely that the reciprocal arrangement, if made, will be of so extensive a character as to offset the demand for tariff reform.

The contention which we are answering is concisely put by the Hon. George E. Foster in an article in the Canadian Century. He says that the Democrats call for a lowering of the tariff, that the American government are afraid of this movement and of insurgency within the Republican party, and that "from this situation the administration see a way out if they can persuade the government of Canada to "a measure of reciprocity which will lower the high duties of the United States somewhat and enable them to exhibit enlarged market prospects in Canada or United States products." But such men as Mr. Whitney and Mr. Foss, who are carrying on a campaign for reciprocity, want something which it is certain that the reciprocity negotiations will not accomplish. They speak of removing the tariff barriers between Canada and the United States. Such a sweeping measure might act as an offset to tariff reduction. But from Ottawa we hear nat of unrestricted reciprocity or anything approaching it, but of reciprocity in natural products, and possibly in agricultural implements.

Canada, of course, ought not to play the game of either party in the United States. But a reasonable measure of reciprocity, beneficial to both countries ought not to be rejected because it may indirectly affect the fortunes of a party in the United States, or delayed until the presidential elections of 1912 show what our neighbors intend to do with the tariff.

DEVELOPMENT OF CANADA.

Great Strides Being Made By This Country.

If you want to get a close line on the development of Canada you cannot do better than to study the annual statement of the Canadian Pacific Ry. Company just recently issued. No business barometer can be more accurate in the recording of ebb and tide of commercial, manufacturing and agricultural prosperity from this report, touching as it does in its ramifications every part of the Dominion from the extreme west to the extreme east.

As indicating the forward movement in western settlement, it is shown that during the year 950 acres of the company's agricultural land holdings were sold at an average of $14.84 an acre. Add to this the lands secured by settlers from the government along with those passing from private holders to newcomers, and it must be evident that the vacant spaces are filling up fast in the west. And yet little more than the fringe ofCanada's land heritage in the west has so far been touched, there being still millions of acres of good arable soil waiting for the coming of the pioneer.

During the year the C.P.R. carried about two million more passengers than were carried in the previous year, and there was a jump of over four million tons in the amount of freight handled. These figures speak for both east and west, and prove conclusively that the talk about Canada's development is something more than mere empty boasting. The people and the goods are back of the railroad's figures, and without them such a record as has been shown by the C.P.R. for this year would have been impossible. This surely is Canada's growing time, and it is difficult to see how there can be any checking of the pace for many years to come.

Woman's World

No More Flossie's Fair — Miss Libbey's Stopped Writing Novels.

MISS LAURA JEAN LIBBEY.

Terrible calamity!
Girls, it's something awful!
Positively her last!
Her press agent says so.
Georgiana, the beautiful silk spinner, will never again clasp Alexander Algernon Du Bois Vere de Vere in her strong young arms while the liquid starlight flames in the burning depths of her lapis lazuli orbs. Alas, how perfectly horrible if true! No more marriages of garfered dukes to the sweet singing little canary in the chambre de cuisine. Never no more will the proud earl discard his son and heir and cut him off with a shoe button for marrying the lodgekeeper's magnificently pulchritudinous adopted daughter who eventually turns out to be a lost duchess and heiress to all the coffee lands in Brazil.

L. J. Libbey's threat must carry consternation to every kitchen in the land, and 10,000,000 factory girls will tear their hair with pitiful wails when they get the stupendous news.

And what will the distinguished authoress-vaudevillian turn her pen to now?

Hist! She o'en will become a playwright. The playwright hanker gripe her soul and mayhap she will strip the brows of Theodore Kremer and Owen Davis, vaudeville playwrights, of their tollfully won laurels.

What Women Are Doing.

There is to be a lady chapel in the new Liverpool cathedral, for which is planned a scheme of stained glass windows commemorating the deeds of good women. On one the inscription reads, "Queen Victoria and All Noble Queens," and others are inscribed: "Grace Darling and All Courageous Women," "Catherine Gladstone and All Loyal Hearted Wives," "Elizabeth Barrett Browning and All Women Who Have Seen the Infinite In Things."

Mrs. Alice Stebbins Wells, it is reported, will be appointed policewoman of Los Angeles, Cal. It was Mrs. Wells' efforts, backed by the ministers and clubwomen, that caused the ordinance to be passed creating the office of policewoman in Los Angeles.

"My work is to be chiefly where young people gather for entertainment in parks, penny arcades, moving picture shows and dance halls," Mrs. Wells explained when asked to talk about her new work. "I will deal chiefly with the proprietors of such places and will see that all laws are obeyed and the places are kept clean and moral."

Although Miss Clara Barton, the founder of the Red Cross society in the United States, is ninety-one, she still takes personal charge of one of the branches of the society. Miss Barton's relief work dates back to the civil war, when she became a nurse on the battlefields and organized searching parties for missing soldiers.

"The country is going to the dogs!" shouted the socialistic agitator at a street meeting.

"Quit your snarling, then, and wait for your share!" said the auditor who sized the speaker up.—Browning's Magazine.

Merely Symptoms.

The man who doth an effort make
To solve a knotty question
Will straight be told that he should take
Some aid to slow digestion.
And if he strives to be prepared
To cross the shoreless river
They'll say his nerves have got him scared
And blame it on his liver.
—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Natural Inference.

The chronic muck raker's wife looked up from her evening paper. "Another great man's birthplace is to be restored," she remarked.

"About time," growled the chronic muck raker. "From whom did he steal it?"—Illustrated Sunday Magazine.

Alarmed.

She awoke in dismay
When she heard the mate say,
"Now hoist up the top sheet and spanker,"

Grand Trunk Engineers.

For the past few weeks a committee representing the engineers of the Grand Trunk Railway System has been in conference with the superintendent of motive power. So quietly did they carry on their negotiations that althought twenty-six of them were domiciled at a Montreal hotel for weeks there has been no publicity about the matter. The negotiations werecarried on with the best of good feeling on both sides and now, it is pleasant to record that an agreementhas been reached satisfactory to all concerned. The engineers asked for a substantial increase of pay, amounting it is understood to something like 12 per cent. The Grand Trunk was willing from the first to grant them an increase and the result of friendly negotiations is the agreement concluded Thursday. The representatives of the engineers left for their home Friday last entirely satisfied with the result of their mission to Montreal.

Chicago Churches in Campaign.

Chicago, Oct. 15.—The Laymen's Evangelical Council, representing 500 evangelical churches of Chicago, has completed arrangements for the launching tomorrow of "a simultaneous campaign" which will be continued over a period of six weeks. It is said to be the most comprehensive religious campaign ever attempted in any American city. Fifty evangelists under the personal direction of Rev. Dr. J. Wilbur Chapman, will preach the gospel at fifty different meetings every night and afternoon during the revival.

Memorial to Iroquois Fire Victims.

Chicago, Oct. 15.—Impressive ceremonies will attend the laying of the cornerstone today for the Iroquois Memorial Emergency Hospital, which is to be erected as a permanent memorial to the six hundred victims of the Iroquois Theatre fire on Dec. 30, 1903.

THE COCOANUT TREE.

It Has an Irresistible Craving For Salt Water.

"In the tropics, where the cocoanut is planted for planting the nuts are picked up when they fall from the tree where they have hung for about fourteen months in ripening. It is a fact not generally known," says the Bakers' Weekly, "that a majority of the nuts drop at night, which probably accounts for the small loss of life by cocoanuts falling upon the heads of the natives.

"The action of the heavy dew at night loosens the seal with which nature has provided the nut and allows it to fall. The nuts wanted for planting are either gathered into heaps or placed under sheds, where they are allowed to sprout before planting, in order that good, healthy sprout nuts may be selected, thus avoiding the possibility of planting 'blind' nuts that would not sprout, in which case much time would be lost in starting the 'cocoanut walks,' as the orchards are called. When holes are dug about three feet deep and twenty feet apart the nut is carefully placed in the hole and covered with about one foot of soil. The hole is filled as the sprout grows until it reaches the surface when it is left to itself, requiring no further attention. Should the place where the cocoanut is planted be at a great distance from the seashore a quantity of salt is placed in the hole. It will grow in luxuriance, however, but a short distance from the shore, nevertheless to salt water being absolutely essential to its welfare.

"An interesting story is told by a gentleman who resided for some years in the tropics. He planted a cocoanut tree behind a board fence some distance from the sea. The tree grew perfectly straight until it reached the top of the fence, when it began to grow toward the ocean, leaning a foot or more. Then a shed was built quite near the fence, but several feet higher, and the tree again grew straight until the roof of the shed was reached, when it again leaned toward the sea, forming a very curious and odd looking tree.

"The irregular growth was wholly attributed to the influence of the salt air. No magnet is truer to the pole than the nut of the cocoanut tree to the ocean, for when the nut breaks through its husk it points directly toward the sea, no matter what the position of the nut when placed in the ground."

PAID IN PELTS.

When Tennessee Was Known as the State of Franklin.

Probably few people know that the original name of the state of Tennessee was Franklin or that in 1788 the salaries of the officers of the commonwealth were paid in pelts, but the following is a correct copy of the law:

Be it enacted by the state of Franklin, and it is hereby enacted by authority of the same, that from and after the 1st day of January, 1788, the salaries of this commonwealth be as follows, to wit:

His honor the chief justice, 500 deerskins.

County clerk, 300 beaver skins.

Clerk of the house of commons, 200 raccoon skins.

Justice's fee for serving a warrant, one muskrat.

At that time the state of Franklin extended to the east bank of the Mississippi river, and on the west bank was that great unknown forest region of Louisiana. It was then a terra incognita, save a few canoe landings and Indian trading posts on the river banks. It was known as the district of Louisiana and in 1805 was made the territory of Louisiana.

The state of Franklin, which became Tennessee in 1796, was almost as little known. The new great city of Memphis was a mere trading post and was not laid out as a village until 1820.

Pelts were as plentiful in those days as pennies and much better distributed for purposes of currency and barter.

The Doctrine of Election.

When the late Senator Vance was running for congress he called on an old colored man who had in early life served the Vance family. Asked after his health, the former servant replied, "Mighty po'ly in this worl', but it's all right over yander."

"Do you believe in the doctrine of election?" asked Vance with great solemnity.

"It's the doctrine of the Bible," answered the old man.

"Uncle Ephraim, do you think I've been elected?" asked Vance again.

"Hasns Zeb, I'd a leetle rather you wouldn't draw that question. I'm too near de grabe to tell a lie, but de fac' am I nebber yet knowed nor hear tell o no man bein' elected what wa'nt a candidate."—Exchange

His Own Hands.

A fashionable painter, noted for his prolific output, was discussing at a studio tea in New York a recent scandal in the picture trade.

"Look here, old man," said a noted critic, "do you paint all your own pictures?"

"I do," the other answered hotly, "and with my own hands too."

"And what do you pay your hands?" the critic inquired. "I'm thinking of starting an art factory myself."

Footnote to the Moon.

"I see," remarked Mrs. Boomis, who was reading the evening paper aloud because her husband's eyes were tired, "that boots and shoes are going up."

"I wonder," said Mr. Boomis thoughtfully, "if all shoes will be affected. Do you suppose, for instance, that low shoes will be higher?"—Youth's Companion.

Inconsistent Father.

He always told his son to take
A woman's part
And never let a villain break
A loving heart.

Yet now he carries on like sin
Because they say
A college play.

BIG FAKES.

Great Feats of Strong Men Seen From the Inside.

"The most showy feats in a strength display on the stage are usually the simplest," says a veteran showman. "In the majority of instances they are pure fakes. Real feats of strength are seldom picturesque enough to be relished by audiences. The touch of sensationalism is needed, and the presence of danger must be scented.

"When you see a strong man in evening dress, bending a horseshoe with his hands, watch him carefully and see how he uses his thigh as a lever. You may depend upon it that beneath his trousers or tights he has a metal plate on which to bend the horseshoe. If he tear a tennis ball with his fingers depend upon it the cloth on the ball has been interfered with and the ball punctured.

"When you see a strong man tearing packs of cards as you would a cigarette paper you may be sure the cards have been well baked before using. Sometimes the cards in the centre of the pack are specially prepared.

"The breaking of a champagne bottle on the biceps is a trick which never fails to rouse the enthusiasm of an audience. It is impossible for any man breathing to fracture a perfect champagne bottle on his biceps, yet many have claimed the feat as within their powers.

"The way it is managed is this: A small hole is scratched in the surface of the bottle, a sharp spike is worn on the biceps, and the spike is forced into the hole. The strength necessary to bring about a fracture of the glass with these aids is not great, but the audience believes that the apparently impossible has been accomplished.

"The feats which consist of bearing a dozen people on a platform hanging from the strong man's teeth, of allowing a motor car to cross the body, of holding two motor cars in check, and others of a similar nature are all "fakes" of an elaborate kind. That they are ingenious I will not deny; the majority of them have taken a deal of careful thinking out. Many are adaptations of engineering feats, in which seemingly eccentric effects of leverage are accomplished."

Nuremberg.

Nuremberg was once almost the richest and most famous town in Europe. The well-known saying of Pope Pius II. that a Nuremberg citizen was better off than a Scottish king was justified by the accounts that have been preserved of the town and its burghers. In the fifteenth century there came from Nuremberg the first watchers, known as "Nuremberg eggs;" the first cannon, the first gun lock lock, the first wire drawing machine, the clarinet, certain descriptions of pottery and the art of painting on glass. For 300 years its walls defended the valley of the Pegnitz against all enemies. Four hundred towers once topped the walls, but only about a third of them now remain.

An Awful Jolt.

"I see you have a new automobile," said Wiggs enviously.

"Yes," responded Biggs as he slowed up the machine near the sidewalk. "And it's a beauty. Everything works like clockwork."

"That's good."

"The tires are puncture proof."

"Better still."

"And she goes like the wind."

"Gee whiz. Wish I owned one."

"By the way, are you fond of riding?"

"Am I fond of riding? Well, I should say so!"

"Well, here's a street car transfer I just found. I won't need it, and you can ride home on it."

Where Pa Came In.

The young couple were out with the new baby when they met the man who had formerly been the husband's rival.

"So this is the new baby," said the former rival enthusiastically. "What a beautiful child he is! He looks just like his mother. He has eyes of blue just like hers, and his nose is just the same. He has her chin and mouth, and did you ever see such a resemblance in their ears? What a beautiful child!"

"Hey!" he blurted out. "The kid hasn't grown his teeth yet. Do you think I've got a chance there?"

The Oriental Weavers.

More than 3,000 years ago, as tiles and marbles from Nineveh show, splendid fabrics were being produced for the adornment of the palaces of the kings of Assyria, and every oriental rug becomes a magic carpet when one realizes how through the long days of the long centuries these simple people have been weaving in with the colors of the jewels and the rainbow the sunshine and shadow of their own lives. How much of tears and sighing has gone to the tying of the myriad knots or followed the flying shuttle on its journeys to and fro!

Thought It Was a Regatta.

"I suppose," said the facetious Mr. Codding to Mrs. Malaprop, who had just returned from abroad, "that you saw an Italian vendetta while you were in that country?"

"Oh, yes, indeed!" replied the guileless lady. "We saw one in the canals at Venice, with all the dongolas decorated most lovely."

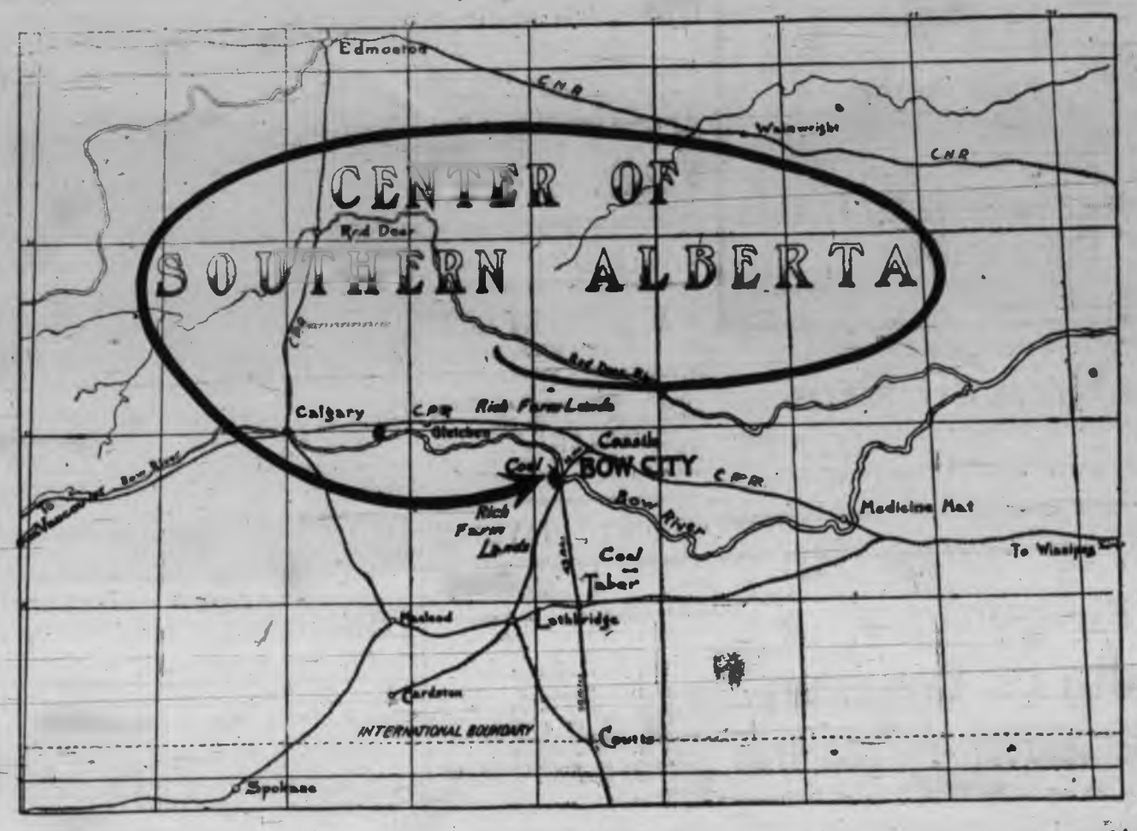
"Charlie" Carrington.

Earl Carrington, who was recently appointed Lord Great Chamberlain of England by King George, is one of the largest landowners in England. The late King Edward and "Charlie" Carrington, as he is popularly known to his intimates, grew up together in close intimacy. For five years he was governor of New South Wales, where he studied agriculture. Lord Carrington returned home a convinced and enthusiastic land-reformer. He believes in getting men back to the land, and has established no fewer than 5,000 small holdings on his estates. The new Lord Great Chamberlain has a wide reputation as an excellent administrator.

"GIVE YOUR SON A DEED"



If, by way of illustration, you will review the history of the men in your town who have made money out of real estate, you will find that in each and every instance their profits were made from real estate acquired at ground floor prices.

More money can be made by those who acquire a realty interest in a town at its inception per dollar invested than from investments made after a period of years.

Do you know that you can purchase with $5 cash a full sized residential lot in Bow City, Alberta —

the logical location for a great city, a city which is destined to be known, the world over, as a market place annually for hundreds of thousands of bushels of grain, grown on the vast irrigated fields surrounding Bow City, a shipping point for coal from the great Bow Centre Collieries, and a purchasing depot for hundreds of prosperous farmers resident throughout Southern Alberta.

To-day is your opportunity to acquire an interest in Bow City at the ground floor price.

It will be too late six months hence, to apply for a lot in Bow City at the present prices and on such easy terms as are offered you in this advertisement.

Why not follow Russell Sage's advice given in a letter published some years ago to the fathers in the Western States:—

"Buy your son a lot in a town being the "centre of a great agricultural country—when "he comes of age that lot will be worth consid-"erable money and will provide a handsome "stake for him in life; it is at least most sub-"stantial life insurance—sure and certain."

Buy your son a $50 lot in Bow City, the coming metropolis of the western prairies. In a very short time he can re-sell the same at a big increase, which money he will find advantageous in business pursuits or in a college course.

Bow City, the centre of the great granary of Southern Albert has a future concerning which no sane business man or banker has any doubt.

When you are assured of the success of the city, when you have proven to you beyond the shadow of a doubt that Bow City will, in the very near future, be one of the most active, one of the most progressive towns on the Western prairies, you should not hesitate to acquire at least one $50 residential lot, when same is on sale on such easy terms as 10 per cent cash and the balance 10 per cent per month until paid—a deed at any time.

Bow City is in the heart of a famous irrigated farming belt whose farmers are assured of a crop every year. They are prosperous and their prosperity will naturally enhance the value of Bow City real estate.

The great coal mines of Bow City will furnish work for 1,000 to 1,500 miners daily, these miners will constitute a substantial basis for a successful city.

The present owners of Bow City have decided that no licenses shall be issued for the sale of spirituous liquors; they intend that this great mining and agricultural centre shall be free from any traffic in intoxicating drinks—it will be a clean city.

Bow City is the headquarters of a railway which taps a territory unparalleled for richness in crops and natural resources.

The Sale of Bow City Lots opened but a few days ago

If you are desirous of acquiring a $50 residential lot close in you should lose no time in making application by wire direct to the General Agents of the townsite, or to the nearest sub-agent.

Do not delay by sending your apullication by mail.

Wire at once your reservation for one or more lots On receipt of wire your name will be placed on the closest-in unsold lot or lots and same will be held in your name, allowing you sufficient time for your cash payment, mailed same day you wire, to travel from your home to the head office.

You may find it to your advantage, if you are desirous of securing a business opening, or a business lot, to write for copy of the plans, booklets and descriptive matter concerning Bow City, all of which may be had on application, free of charge.

LORD ROSEBERY'S BET.

It is on record that a bet has been made by Lord Rosebery in a London club with Lord Chancellor Loreburn that by November 1916, compulsory militia service will be established in Great Britain. As Lord Rosebery is an imperialist in his sympathies, and still, nominally at least, a liberal, much stress is laid on his declaration by the makers of conscription literature, which is now enjoying a wide publicity in the United Kingdom. The conversion of such a man as the ex-premier to the belief that Great Britain must take a leaf from the experience books of Continental Europe is considered significant. It would be idle as well as futile to deny that the attachment of his name to the cause of which Spencer Wilkinson and others have been identified, has a certain amount of significance.

His opinion might be regarded as professionally, of course, as a greater value than that of Lord Roberts, whose profession would naturally be thought to influence his judgment.

As a historian as well as a stylist, Lord Rosebery commands respect and a large amount of the argument he advances is historical, but historical writers will admit that the parallel he draws between the case of Great Britain of today and the Prussia in the disastrous year of Jena is a stretch on the imagination and there will be a long controversy before John Bull will authorize the "King's press" as a permanent recruiting agent of the fighting forces.

A POWER BUND.

Niagara power is at the door of the municipalities of Western Ontario, a ready servant. Its energies will be turning the wheels of industry, lighting the marts of commerce and illuminating the homes in a score or more of towns and cities in the electric zone before the snow flies.

The Hydro-Electric Commission, a state Board appointed by the Province of Ontario, with splendid foresight, indomnitable courage and in the face of strenuous opposition, has woven a web of transmission lines from Niagara Falls to Toronto on the East, and Windsor on the West, and Berlin on the North at the behest of a group of 35 municipalities.

It was a vast work undertaken by the people of a state. A unique piece of public ownership, which ensures to Ontario for all time to come—cheap power, cheap light and cheap heat.

This power line carries the highest voltage of any line in existence, namely 110,000 volts, and its workings will be an object of interest to electrical engineers over the entire continent.

The official opening of the great public service was held at Berlin, on October 11, and was made the occasion of a three-day demonstration. The Ontario Cabinet, the Hydro-Electric Commission, members of the Provincial Legislature, mayors and editors of Canadian and American cities attended.

Berlin was selected as the point at which this demonstration should be held because of the movement to obtain Niagara power for the union of municipalities was launched there and it was the first municipality ready to receive it.

Berlin owns all its public utilities—water, gas, electric light and power and street railway system. It has over seventy manufacturing plants and is one of the greatest industrial centres in Canada.

160 acres of absolutely proven oil land on Sulphur Mountain, adjoining and between the Liberty and Puritan Oil Companies' property. Ten miles from Santa Paula, Ventura Co., Calif.

FACTS—The property is absolutely proven territory, lying as it does with the UNION OIL CO. producing on the south, the LIBERTY OIL CO. producing on the west, the HARD OIL CO. producing on the north, which only recently started its 30th rig, and Puritan Oil Co. to commence drilling on the east. Also it is located in a district of BIG PRODUCING COMPANIES, such as Ojo Petroleum, Pyramid Oil Co., Canadian Queen, Capital Creek, Hard Oil and Asphalt Co., and others. THERE'S NO QUESTION ABOUT THE COMPANY GETTING OIL. It is possible that Liberty Oil Company's new well will be a gusher, which would make the ATLANTA OIL COMPANY stock worth par. Mr. Cowell, our Superintendent, knows every foot of the ground, and having his log book of Liberty property, which adjoins our land, and as experienced OIL MAN and we consider ourselves fortunate in obtaining his services. VENTURA CO. OIL represents the cream of the industry. It is the home of HIGH GRAVITY OIL. VENTURA COUNTY OIL means $1.50 a barrel at well. Costs from 2c to 6c to produce it. THE GREAT UNION OIL CO. got its start in VENTURA CO. and has paid over twenty-two millions in dividends. These GREAT ASSETS had a small beginning in the WILD CAT, GUSHER, within SHORT OF ATLANTA OIL CO. property. The demand for refining oil FAR EXCEEDS THE SUPPLY. The 38 refineries in California are crying for this product. The eastern high gravity fields are diminishing. The OHIO FIELDS, FOR INSTANCE, have fallen off one-third. The demand is caused by the increased market for gasoline. Throughout the world the number of automobiles and internal combustion gasoline engines is forcing up the price of high gravity crude petroleum. Eastern operators are now looking to VENTURA COUNTY, which are said to be the most extensive known. THIS IS THE FIRST ANNOUNCEMENT of ground floor offering of ATLANTA OIL CO., and may be oversubscribed at any time. One day's delay may mean you are too late. ACT NOW. COLORED PUGILIST TO SUE THEM FOR CANCELLING HIS DRIVING LICENSE.

The Olympia Auto Show—British Motor Exhibition to Begin November 4.—Auto Was Test Case With Wagon.

New York, Oct. 14.—Jack Johnson says he is going to have the law on the contest board of the American Automobile Association for cancelling his license as an automobile driver. He sent this reply to the board last night:

"I return herewith the one dollar which you returned to me, same in payment of license fee. I conformed to all conditions named on the application blank furnished me by your office, and will not accept cancellation of my license. You are in error when you state that I obtained the license by trickery or misrepresentation. You cannot blame me for your lack of office system. I will go into the courts if necessary to secure my rights and privileges.

Both Johnson and Barney Oldfield, who are scheduled to race at Sheepshead Bay on October 20, say that the race will be run regardless of the board's action.

Typesetting Machine of Marvelous Ingenuity

Without Changes of Matrices It Reels off Full Page Ads Set in Body and Display Type or With Equal Ease and Simplicity Turns Out Newspaper Stories With Scare Headlines—It Casts and Sets All Sizes of Type From 5 to 42 Point Up to 180 Picas Wide.

There is now being exhibited in New York a new multitype typesetting machine that has aroused comment of printers throughout the country. It is a typesetting and typecasting machine, which casts and sets any style of type from 5 to 42 point, delivering the matter direct into the galley, and attains speed never before equalled.

The machine is so ingenious in its work and construction that it appears to do its work guided by its own thinking powers. According to the experts in the printing trade, this new multitype is bound to revolutionize the work of typesetting, not only in the great newspaper plants, but also in the printing of books and magazines and in job printing offices. It is as far ahead of the present linotype machine as is the electric locomotive ahead of the old wood burning engine.

From the earliest history type inventors have striven to produce a cheap and simple machine to enable printers to make their own type. Crude hand machines were devised in the early days and every printer was his own type founder. The growth of the printing industry and the invention of the expensive automatic type casters led to a separation of the type founding industry and printing offices.

Then followed the invention and perfection of the present linotype machine, the Mergenthaler, a wonder itself in the work it performs. The linotype, however, did not obviate the necessity of the expenditure of large sums for display type for ad composition, heads, etc., or the installation of type casting machines. The Multitype does both.

With the linotype machines in general use today in the newspaper and printing shops complete lines of type are cast in single lines on what are slugs. The linotype sets and casts only two styles of type and a good operator can set about 6,000 ems an hour. Where several styles or different points or sizes of type are called for by the work in hand it is necessary to change the magazine on the machine. That occasions delay and added to this the linotype can set only one style or point of type at a time. The cost of a magazine is about $216, and if a printer has sufficient magazines of different styles of type the linotype machine, by the shifting of the magazine, can set type as high as 36 point. There is a "double decker" linotype now being used for setting display advertisements that sets as high as 44-point. This machine feeds from two magazines.

Another typesetting machine in use—more especially for job work—requires two men to operate it. It is a double machine, consisting of one keyboard perforating machine and a typecasting machine. This machine casts only one size of type at a time, and where different styles of type are required several machines are necessary. The range in work of this type of machine is 18 points and about 3,500 ems an hour is its capacity.

With these facts in mind, it can be readily understood how ingenious is the perfecting in typesetting and typecasting attained by the newest multiple machine, which goes by the name of Multitype.

The machine now being used in New York is a typecaster and also a composing machine, and it can be used as are other sorts casters—to found type for the case. Owing to its speed it can produce more pounds of type an hour than any other typecaster now in existence or ever made.

But the distinctive feature of this casting and composing machine is that it can produce display type in the order of composition, changing matrices without stopping the machine, and it delivers composed lines direct into the galley in any length from 1 to 30 inches and in type ranging from 5 to 42 point.

The matter is corrected from a galley in the same manner and as easily as type-foundry type is corrected, and the printer is saved the cost and time of distributing the type into cases. The cost of leads and leading by hand is entirely eliminated, as the Multitype leads automatically.

A machine now on the market and sold for about $2,000 and used in large plants casts all thicknesses of leads in place of the brasses generally used by printers. The same work is done quicker by a small device placed on the Multitype—costing possibly $15—and the leads are cast in any thickness or length. This makes the Multitype the ideal machine for newspaper work and magazines. In fine book work air holes in the type are the bane of the printer. By a simple process the Multitype avoids this annoyance and produces a perfect type. It will cast and set about 6,000 ems an hour under ordinary operation, but that record can be far exceeded by expert operators.

This machine will cast and perfectly justify into lines of any length up to 30 inches, something no machine has ever been able to do. To change from one style of type to another it is merely necessary to press a key and the change is made in a second. There is no shutting off expensive magazines, with the attendant delay. The machine is operated from keyboard the same as the linotype machine, but no spacing register before the operator is used.

With newspaper stories in the rush of going to press and the other rushes that are unavoidable in newspaper offices, the Multitype has the advantage of being a great time saver. It will set the body of the story and the headlines at the same time, something that will be most appreciated in the newspaper offices of the country.

Mr. Allen A. Canton, who is the inventor of the Multitype, has perfected many devices in the mechanical and electrical field. The multiple control system used in the control of electric trains of the trolley line between Milwaukee and Waukesha, W., is his invention. The motor controls and starters used on the large motors in the big steel mills generally throughout the country are his inventions, and also the automatic telephone exchange systems owned by the Bell Telephone Company interests.

Mr. Canton has placed many labor-saving devices on his Multitype machine that will be greatly appreciated by the operators of those machines. By the depression of a single key, for instance, any commonly used word or combination of letters is cast. It sets type around cuts automatically and an automatic indicating register indicates the character or words cast the same as on the visible typewriter. A centreing device automatically inserts any line or fraction of a line into the centre of a galley and casts a space equal length on either side of the line.

The construction of the machine is simplicity itself, and anyone who can operate a keyboard can run the Multitype. A great item for the small printer is the fact that these machines are not expensive and the cost of maintenance is low. It is also a fact that a linotype machinists is not needed to keep them in running order, so the printer in the small town far away from the larger city can use them with perfect peace of mind and not be always in fear of the big bill for repairs.

Many attempts have been made to improve upon the linotype machine now generally used by newspapers and printers in all lines of the work. Some years ago there was a linotype machine brought out which, while it proved a wonder, was altogether too complicated for commercial purposes. Each machine cost more than $12,000 to build, so, with the manufacturers' profit, the price was prohibitory to the printer.

The machine was called the Page linotype, and it now reposes in the museum of Cornell University. It cost the Government $35,000 to get out the patent papers covering it, and most of the patent examiners and attorneys who had anything to do with this complicated but wonderful machine went insane.

RAILWAY REGULATIONS.

Although there was little novelty in the railways' presentation of their case for the advance of their rates, there was much that was novel in the shippers' contentions. In Chicago it was testified by one railway that forty million dollars of earnings had been put back into the property. In this city it was testified that some thirty-five millions of dollars of earnings had been expended upon the new Pennsylvania terminal. This was in accord with the formerly approved rule of practice by the best roads—"a dollar for dividends and a dollar for betterments. It was this principle of plowing the earnings back into the property which has kept down the capitalization of American railways at the same time that their rates have not risen with other prices for services and goods.

On this formerly approved principle the shippers' counsel joined issue, taking their cue, it must be admitted, from certain rulings of the Inter-State Commerce Commission. These improvements made from earnings were regarded as grievances, and in themselves a proof of extortion. It was asserted as a right that the roads should reduce their rates by whatever sums of earnings they have been accustomed to devote to improvements. Even the misfortunes of the railways were imputed to them for a fault. For example, it was alleged that because one road had lost large sums by equipment frauds, and had prospered nevertheless, therefore it had overcharged by the amount it had lost by embezzlement, and should be held to reduce its rates by the amount of its losses. The broad position of those assuming to act for the general public is that the railways should be allowed to charge no more than would just prevent their setting up a defence of confiscation. And, in estimating the permissible income the railways are held by these spokesmen to be entitled to no more than a reasonable income upon the amount of their own funds which they have devoted to the public use.

These gentlemen seem in some danger of winning a battle and losing a campaign. It is conceivable that they may prevent an advance in rates, and come to regret the consequent lack of vitality in the railways. American roads are far from having attained their growth. They are in need not only of income enoughto sustain their life but to stimulate their growth. There is a certain justice in having the funds necessary for their growth contributed by those whose patronage of the railroads is a source of profit, rather than by the general public whose gain from the railways is less direct. If the railways are held to capitalize their betterments, and must borrow the money, interest must be paid on the money borrowed, and the rates must be adequate to pay the interest and providing a sinking fund for the establishment of the debt. As interest and sinking fund must come from earnings, it would seem to come to the same thing in the end.

Whatever the merit of this argument on either side, it is plain that a new light is thrown upon what is thought to be regulation of rates. Heretofore it has been thought that the function of government was merely to assure that rates were reasonable and just, that is, neither extortionate nor discriminatory, toward either persons or places. If the position assumed on behalf of shippers is sustained there is no detail of the management of the railroads too trivial for examination and control

CANADIAN CROP.

Conditions of Crops in Canada Regarded as Good.

Ottawa, Oct. 11.—The Census Office publishes today a bulletin on the condition of the crops in Canada at the end of September. The reports show lower averages of condition for the whole of Canada than those of a year ago, but the reduction applies chiefly to the Northwest provinces. In the Eastern provinces a high per cent. is maintained for nearly all the crops, and quantity and quality are nearly as good as a year ago and better than two years ago. In Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta there is a drop of about 20 per cent. in the quality of grains and roots, but the threshings indicate that the yield will be larger for wheat, oats and barley than was promised at the end of August. For the whole of Canada the condition of rye at the end of September was [illegible] which is ten per cent. better than two years ago and 2.39 better than last year. Peas and beans are nearly eight per cent. lower in condition than a year ago; but nearly ten per cent. higher than in 1908. Buckwheat is about the same as last year and 12 per cent. better than in 1908, whilst mixed grains are better by five per cent. than last year and by 19.47 per cent. better than two years ago. Corn for husking compared for the three years 1910, 1909, and 1908 shows percentages of 85.12, 86.77 and 82, and corn for fodder of 89.82, 87.-18 and 92 for the respective years. The condition of potatoes is 76.08 at the end of September compared with 90.37 last year, of turnips 82.09 to 83.34 and of sugar beets 83.13 to 71.02, whilst in 1908 their conditions ranged from 85 to 74. Alfalfa has a condition of 83.30 for the end of September, and it exceeds 90 in the Maritime Provinces and Ontario. In Quebec and the Northwest provinces it is not more than 70 per cent., and in British Columbia it is 88.38. All field grains in the province last named exceed 92 per cent. in quality.

The estimate yield of rye this year for Canada is 1,634,000 bushels of peas 6,444,500 bushels, of beans 1,-089,600 bushels, of buckwheat 7,302,-000 bushels, of mixed grains 20,103,-000 bushels, of flax 4,314,000 bushels, and of corn for husking 17,682,000 bushels. The average bushels per acre for these crops is 19.43 for rye 16.69 for peas, 20. 4 for beans, 26.98 for buckwheat, 34.91 for mixed grains, 9.04 for flax and 53.82 for corn. Better averages for wheat, oats and barley are assured when the final returns are made in December than the reports for the end of August gave.

RACIAL FEELING.

Mr. Bourassa Stirring Up Strife in Quebec.

Montreal, Oct. 14.—The Telegraph has the following in regard to Henri Bourassa and his campaign to incite racial feeling in Quebec:

That the most of the people of this province still regard Henri Bourassa with interest, but respect for his talents has long since been swallowed up in contempt for his antics. While another Frenchman has been preaching racial peace and a united Canada, Mr. Bourassa has been proclaiming, from the platform and through the press, the gospel of race strife and dissatisfaction. Destructive statesmanship is easy, and Mr. Brousassa's firebrands may kindle bonfires here and there, but the time is past, in Canada, when a national conflagration is likely to result. In the end he must be consumed by his own fires.

To what extent he is going may be judged from the columns of his newspaper, Le Devoir. This is the paper which tells the French of Quebec that "Our role will be to provide food for the cannon on board the English warships." In a recent issue the following appears.

"Those of our fellow countrymen, who followed the counsel of Sir Wilfrid Laurier and went to South Africa to fight the Boers recall with what sentiments of disdain they were received by the regular English troops. They also remember the contemptuous title which was cast at them—'Colonials.' They returned tired of their bragging of the Empire."

Mr. Bourassa is a good forgetter when he wants to be. Not a word does Le Devoir say of England's spontaneous and whole-hearted acknowledgment of the important part which was played by the Canadians in South Africa. Its readers are left to believe that the Colonials departed unthanked, though it is a matter of history that no debt to the over-seas dominions has been more freely and thankfully admitted by Great Britain.

"Colonials" is not, or at any rate ought not to be, term of contempt. It breathes the spirit of new lands and new endeavors, of wide and pleasant places afar from the crowded center of an older and confined civilization. Canada should find no more shame in such an appellation than youth would find in being called young. The Dominion has no reason to regret being a daughter in the Mother's house so long as she is "mistress in her own." This fact is too widely appreciated among Canadians of all classes and creeds to be affected by anything which Henri Bourassa, trouble-maker may do or say.

JONATHAN'S EMANCIPATION.

By HELEN T. QUIGG.

Jerusha Amanda Dibbs was his brother's wife and had asserted and maintained her authority over both his brother and himself ever since she had become a member of the family. All morning he had been wondering uneasily for whom the storm was brewing, and, as her husband had got out of the house unscathed, he feared that he was in for it. He was standing by the window now, looking out aimlessly, wishing that it were over and yet not daring to avoid it, and when she entered the room in which he stood, clearing her throat emphatically, he turned toward her with a shiver of apprehension. He was a stout man, with an air of mild indecision about him; about his soft, sandy hair; about his broad, rounded shoulders; about even his easy, grayish lace sack coat.

"It's pretty capers you've been cutting around that Jezuel widow," she said.

Jonathan looked, it must be confessed, not only surprised, but worried. "I hope I have not made any trouble for her," he said doubtfully.

"It's absurd, positively absurd," continued Mrs. Dibbs, flopping into a chair. "The idea of marrying that silly little fool, without a cent to her name, and at your age too."

Her brother-in-law had not really had an intention of any sort in regard to the widow. Indeed, he had never had a decided intention in regard to anything since Mrs. Dibbs had taken possession. Nevertheless he felt mildly indignant enough to make a faint retort. "I am sure, Amanda, you were not much younger when you married Lucien," said he in his quiet way.

"I should like to know," she began in a deep, ominous voice, "what business that is of yours. And you know well enough, Jonathan Dibbs, that when I married your brother I was not nearly as old as you are. But anyhow"—her tone had become loud and resonant—"anyhow I never was such a childish simpleton as you are and always will be to the end of your days—to be fooled and taken in by a designing, no account little creature that's been fishing for a husband ever since that poor invalid man of hers died, worried to death by her flightiness, I'll warrant! That's a pretty thing to happen to a man like you, isn't it?" Here Mrs. Dibbs choked, and Jonathan took advantage of the momentary check in her assault to inquire, "Who told you I was going to marry her, Amanda?"

"Who told me?" she burst out. "Who told me? Why, hasn't the little fool herself been telling it all around the town that you wanted to marry her and," in a high, simpering falsetto, "that she didn't know whether she ought to think of it or not, but that Mr Dibbs was such a nice man and such a friend of her poor, dear, Arthur and she would hate to disappoint him? Oh, the idiot!"

Jonathan Dibbs looked thoughtful. Suddenly the figure of the widow in question appeared before his mind's eye. It was a neat, retiring little figure, with soft brown hair and a small face, slightly sunburned, but sweet and tender, and with an individuality of its own that only a patient, conscientious life could have given it. He compared it with the large, obtrusive face and figure of his sister-in-law, and gradually he began to smile. A sudden sense of relief came to him in the contemplation of the little widow and a strange, unusual sense of pleasure, the joy of the awakening of a desire and a will in him which he had never before suspected.

"I guess the little woman really did think I wanted to marry her," he remarked pleasantly.

"Of course she did," replied Mrs. Dibbs smartly in her loud, scornful voice, not noting the change in her victim's attitude toward her. "Of course she did, the conceited little piece."

"I wouldn't be absurd if I were you, Amanda," said Jonathan Dibbs. "It doesn't suit your size." He had spoken very slowly and smoothly, but he gasped a little now that he had achieved this crude but radical assertion of his freedom. He had reason to gasp.

"What! You dare! You dare!" She stood before him glaring, and his unaccountable inclination to laugh at her frightened him more than her passion did. "You dare!" she shouted. "You — you brute! I knew that little fool had you in her clutches. I knew it. Did she tell you to say that? I might have known she would bring you to forget all honor and truth and duty. Don't you dare bring her to this house, you brute! Size, indeed! She isn't the size of a frame rail. That's your idea of beauty, I suppose. Just you dare to marry her!"

Jonathan Dibbs, though his heart quaked within him, walked boldly past her to the door. There he turned. "I may send you an invitation to the wedding if she cares to have you come. Anyhow I'll send you an announcement. Say goodby to Lucien for me, will you? Poor Lucien!" He grinned happily into her blazing eyes and, shutting the door with a bang as he went through the house, strode out into the street.

Mrs. Dibbs sank into a chair and after repeating several times the speeches with which she had benefited her brother-in-law indulged in a fit of hysterics, to the vast amusement of the coil parrot and the kitchen maid.

Jonathan, however, though he was experiencing a faint, rather contemptuous pity for his brother, strode along gayly, as he had never done before.

"What a fool—what a fool I used to be!" he thought. "What a fool a man is anyhow to let a woman ride over him at her own sweet will! And to think that I stood it for twelve years, and never thought of breaking away! It must have been the widow, bless her heart!" Here he smiled to himself sentimentally and wondered how she would take it, the "it" in question being the plan he was going to propose to her.

He flung the gate of the little yard wide open and walked quickly along the path by the side of the house. The widow was on the porch ironing out some lace when he approached, and she looked up with face aglow when she perceived who it was. He lost no time in announcing the object of his visit. He took her hands in his and looked into her wide eyes. "Lillian," he said, "there is a train that leaves here for the city in forty minutes. I want you to get ready and go with me on that train if you can do it in so short a time."

The widow flushed and paled.

"What for?" she asked.

"Why, to get married, of course," he said, surprised that she did not know. There was a silence, and when his arm stole around her, "Hurry up!" in a low voice and a tone whose anxiety did not refer to catching the train.

"I didn't know," she began slowly—"I didn't know we meant to get married. But if you wish it very much—oh, dear!" She hid her face suddenly in his coat.

"Now go," he said after a little, "because we want to catch that train. And wear that blue thing you have with the white spots—you know."

She smiled tremulously. No one had ever noticed her clothes before, and she had always half worshiped him anyhow, and now she was very much confused and very happy.

They managed to catch the train by means of a little running for it, and they rode gayly and breathlessly away from home toward the city. She stole a look at his beaming face and after awhile gathered courage to speak.

"Jonathan," she said softly, "how did I—what did I do to make you think of this? I never hoped"—

He laughed. "Call me Jack," he said with a blush. They used to call him Jack when he was a big, slow, good natured schoolboy. "And what you did was to make a man of me, that is all," he continued. Then after awhile he laughed again. "We have my sister-in-law to thank for some of this," he remarked slowly, "but," he turned to her and spoke with sudden emphasis—"but you must not let it grieve you if we never have a chance to express our gratitude."

A "Sure Thing" Poet.

Poets as a rule are not good business men, but an exception is one of a little group of young writers and artists who dine every evening together and talk shop. The poet very often reads the verses he has composed, and sometimes the comments are not exactly flattering. "That's rotten!" exclaimed an artist on hearing one of these effusions recently.

"I'll bet you $5 I can sell it to a magazine," replied the poet.

The wager was made, and the artist lost. Since that the poet has made several similar bets with his scoffing friends and has won them all. He was chuckling over it to an outsider the other day. "You must have wonderful confidence in the merit of your work," said the rank outsider.

"Confidence nothing," laughed the poet. "I couldn't lose. I never read a poem to those fellows until I have first sold it."—New York Sun.

Caring For Eyeglasses.

Most people seem to think that glasses will stand any sort of treatment, and yank and pull at them until they go to the repair shop with alarming frequency. Glasses should never be taken off with one hand; an optician advises that they be carefully grasped by the rims of the lenses on both sides and removed by pushing upward. Pulling at one side of spectacles bends the frame; with noseglasses it loosens the screw, and the lens shakes continually. Sometimes this happens in spite of care, and then it is well to purchase one of the tiny screwdrivers used by opticians and tighten them whenever necessary. Clean your glasses with some soft material—a common piece of tissue paper is better than any medium yet invented—and occasionally give them a bath in warm water into which a little ammonia has been dropped.

Arrange for Gettsburg Celebration.

Harrisburg, Pa., Oct. 13.—One of the greatest patriotic demonstrations ever held in the United States will take place in 1913 on the battlefield of Gettsburg, if the plans discussed at a preliminary meeting of the arrangements committee here today are carried out. The demonstration will be in observance of the fiftieth anniversary of the great battle between the Union army under Gen Meade and the Confederate forces under Gen. Lee. That the celebration of the semi-centennial will be truly national in its scope is already assured by the acceptance by nearly all States of the invitation to participate. Two Southern States, Georgia and North Carolina, were the first to respond to the invitation. It is expected that the Grand Army of the Republic and the United Confederate Veterans will have the leading parts in arranging for the celebration and that virtually all the other patriotic organizations of the country will participate.

Teacher of St. Peter's School Dies.

The death occurred at St. Joseph's hospital yesterday morning after a short illness of Rev. Sister Mary Adrian, a member of the teaching staff of St. Peter's school. The funeral will take place tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock from Mount St. Joseph to St. Peter's cemetery.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

Mr. David Williamson's Funeral Today.

Mr. David Williamson, formerly of this city, passed away on Saturday at New Liskeard of typhoid fever. His brother, Mr. R. Williamson, also formerly a resident of Peterborough arrived here yesterday morning with the remains, which will be buried from Mr. D. Belleghem's undertaking establishment today at two o'clock. A wife and one child are left to mourn the loss, besides two sisters and one brother.

Local Battery Inspection.

Capt. C. Long, and Master Gunner Stroud of the R.C.H.A., Kingston, yesterday inspected the equipment and accouterements of the (local) 24th Battery, Canadian Field Artillery. These two gentlemen were guests at the Snowden House. The result of these Kingston officers proved most satisfactorily and established the fact that the local battery is now as at all times ready to answer a call in their country's defence.

R. F. WILES & CO.

W. H. Bailey Hart in Store.

Mr. Walter H. Bailey, Ashburnham was severely injured at the Higgins' Hardware store, Hunter street, yesterday morning. He was lowering a stove, when the guide rope slipped off the big wheel, the result being that the big stove made the wheel turn around. Mr. Bailey stepped under the wheel, and two of the steel prongs which hold the rope struck him on the side of the head, cutting him in three or four places. Dr. Brown was called and attended to his injuries, which are not, fortunately, very severe.

Presentation to Mrs. Armstrong.

The members of the Women's Auxiliary of St. Luke's church, at the home of Mrs. L. Turner at the court house, met to say good-bye to one of their members, Mrs. George Armstrong, who left Sunday afternoon for Moosejaw. During the course of the evening, a presentation of a handsome gold ring was made to Mrs. Armstrong, by Mrs. Gaskins, president of the society, and on behalf of the auxiliary, Mrs. Wm. Hickey read a suitable address.

Richardson's Assailant Fined.

It will be remembered that in our report last Friday of the trial over an assault upon Richardson, we noted that owing to the absence of two witnesses requifed, a remand was granted. Yesterday morning in the police court Mr. F. D. Kerr appeared for the complainant. Nearly all the evidence was heard on the first occasion, but two more witnesses gave evidence, which corresponded pretty well, but all pointed to the conviction of the accused. After considering the evidence his worship found the accused guilty of disorderly conduct on the street and fined him $5 and costs, amounting to $7.35. Magistrate Dumble also said that he found the prisoner guilty of using grossly insulting language on the street, but let him go on this charge.

SOCIETY EVENTS

The Times will be pleased to receive notices of Weddings, Social Events, Personal Announcements, which will be published in this column free of charge.

Mr. George B. Hilliard, Lakefield, was in the city yesterday and gave The Times a call.

Mr. Walter Perks of the Royal Trust Co., Montreal, is home on a two weeks' vacation.

Miss Ethel Judge of Oshawa, has taken Miss M. Hurley's place at the G.N.W. as operator.

Mrs. C. H. Norley of Welland, is the guest of her mother, Mrs. Phillips, Mark street, Ashburnham.

The condition of Mr. James Stevenson last night showed little difference, unless that he was a trifle weaker.

Miss Lielah Beach, 177 Charlotte street, has returned home after a two months' visit with friends in Hamilton.

Misses Rennie and Gillespie, of R. Fair & Co's store, were in Toronto yesterday attending the mid-autumn millinery openings.

Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Turner have returned from Montreal, and have taken up their residence on Mark street, Ashburnham.

Mr. Philip Billington, of the Bank of Nova Scotia, has been transferred to Winnipeg. He left town on the 4.38 C.P.R. train yesterday.

Miss Bessie Henderson, left yesterday morning on the 8.30 Grand Junction Express for Belleville, where she goes to fill a responsible position in the Belleville office of the Peterborough Light and Power Co. Miss Henderson will be much missed.

Trinity College School.

The Times is in receipt of an invitation to the annual speech day proceedings in connection with Trinity College School, Port Hope, which is to take place today. The proceedings will begin with a sermon by the Lord Bishop of Huron, at 11.30 a.m., after which a luncheon will be served at 1.30 p.m. At 3.30 the prize delivery in the school gymnasium will take place, when addresses will be delivered by W. Peterson, Esq., M.A., LL.D., C.M.G., Principal of McGill University; W. Wilfrid Campbell, Esq., M.A., LL.D., and others.

Dunkirk, N.Y., Couple Married Here.

A quiet wedding was solemnized in this city yesterday morning, when Miss Pearl Marie Isabella Gibson, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gibson of Dunkirk, N.Y., and niece of Mrs. Charles Wilkonson, of 266 Dalhousie street, became the bride of Mr. John Anson Felton, also of Dunkirk, N.Y. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Mr. Couch, pastor of the George street Methodist church. The bride wore her travelling suit of serge. Mr. and Mrs. Felton left on the 5.35 train for Lindsay, Collingwood, Toronto, and other points. Through western Ontario, after which they will return to Dunkirk, N.Y., where they will make their future home.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury.

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used, except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. DESPATCHING CIRCUITS.

Grand Trunk Have Placed in Commission Two Telephone Train Despatching Circuits.

The Grand Trunk Railway System have recently placed in commission on their northern division, two telephone train despatching circuits as follows. One circuit between North Parkdale Junction and Burlington Junction via Allandale, a distance of 145 miles, and another circuit between Allandale and Nipissing Junction, a distance of 165 miles. Train despatchers on each of these circuits are located at Allandale.

On the circuit between North Parkdale Junction and Burlington Junction there are twenty-one way stations, and on the circuit between Allandale and Nipissing Junction, twenty way stations. These circuits are constructed of No. 9 guage hard drawn copper wire, transposed at intervals of every half mile through the open country and as much more frequent as it is necessary in the vicinity of high voltage power lines in order to avoid inductive influences and to render the telephone circuits absolutely quiet. The station equipment is of the latest and most perfect type on the market and consists of a swinging arm transmitter and head band receiver for each way station, thus giving the operator the free use of his head, hands and body while using the telephone; the apparatus is swung to one side out of the way while not in use. The train despatching office is equipped with a selector system for calling offices and the duration of the ring in each way station is controlled by the despatcher, who plainly hears the ring through his receiver. Any office on the line can be signalled within eight seconds and as the signal bell in each office consists of a four inch gong there is little doubt but what the operator will hear his call even though outside of the office and at a distance from it. The despatcher has absolute control of the circuits and way stations must obtain his co-operation when desiring to communicate with one another.

The telephone is considered as being superior to the telegraph as a medium for despatching trains both as a factor of safety and a saving of time. By telephone each station and and numeral is first pronounced and then spelled out letter by letter by the despatcher for verification when an order is issued, and repeated in like manner by the receiving operator; while by telegraph stations and numerals can only be spelled out in Morse characters.

During the past three years the telephone has made rapid strides on trunk line railways in the United States and Canada for train despatching purposes and today over thirty thousand miles of railway is being so despatched. While the expense for constructing and equiping telephone circuits, greatly exceeds that of constructing telegraph lines the railways have obtained so much better results with the telephone that they feel justified in spending the money.

We understand that it is the intention of the Grand Trunk Railway System to extend the use of the telephone over its more important and operators, the transmission belines in the near future.

The new system has met with the immediate favor of the despatchers ing so excellent that the work is transacted in fully fifty per cent less time and in a more personal and satisfactory manner, than is possible with the telegraph.

Court of Revision

TAKE NOTICE that the Municipal Council of the Corporation of the City of Peterborough intends to construct sewers on the streets named below and intends to assess a portion of the final cost thereof upon the real property to be immediately benefitted thereby frontiog or abutting upon the said parts of the said streets. A statement showing the lands liable to and proposed to be specially assessed for the said works, and the names of the owners thereof, so far as the same can be ascertained from the last revised assessment roll and otherwise, is now filed in the office of the clerk of the Municipality and is open for inspection during office hours.

Smith Street, from a point 160 ft. west of George Street to Benson Street—Estimated cost of the work $208.95, of which $40.94 is to be paid by the Municipality.

Inverlea Street, from Water Street east to the manhole opposite laneway—Estimated cost of the work $158.10, of which $79.65 is to be paid by the Municipality.

The number of annual special assessments to pay the cost of the said works will be thirty.

A Court of Revision will be held on Tuesday, the 1st day of November, 1910, at the hour of eight o'clock in the evening, in the City Council Chamber for the purpose of hearing complaints against the proposed assessment or the accuracy of frontage measurements or any other complaints which the person interested may desire to make, and which is by law cognizable by the Court.

Dated at Peterborough, the 15th day of October, 1910.

S. R. ARMSTRONG,
Clerk.

Florida in Vortex of a Terrific Gale

One of the Worst Storms Ever Experienced Along Gulf Coast---Many Fishing Craft May be Lost

Jacksonville, Fla., Oct. 18.— The entire southern section of Florida was the vortex of a terrific hurricane today. Grave fears were felt for the safety of Key West and all other cities in the extreme southern part of the State. All wires south of Louisville were down and the storm was sweeping both east and west. The latest report out of Key West, stated that the city was being swept by one of the worst storms ever experienced along that section of the gulf coast.

At St. Augustine, Fla., the storm raged all night. The wind dashed waves of tidal immensity over the sea walls. Ships were broken from their moorings, and it is believed that many fishing craft, which have been unable to make ports because of the wind, foundered with losses of life. The entire lower part of St. Augustine was flooded this morning with the area of inundation increasing. Three laborers are reported dead.

Testing City Water Raises Some Trouble

To the Editor of The Times.

Sir,—In yesterday's edition of The Times there appeared a notice in reference to the testing of water. From this it would appear, that the Water Commissioners of this city are trying to crawl out from under the just condemnation of the ratepayers, for what they think, was a reckless misappropriation of $750, which should have been paid into the treasury; to lighten the taxes, which now press so unmercifully on the poor.

First of all, the Commissioners sent a young man to Toronto for a two weeks' tuition, which in their innocence, they thought would make him an accomplished analyst for the testing of milk and water. For this two weeks' teaching of the young man, the Commissioners paid fifty dollars of the people's money, thereby making Peterborough a sort of charity school. Then the Commissioners bought a laboratory at a cost of $500, and last of all they increased the salary of the two weeks' graduate by two hundred dollars a year, making in all $750 of the people's money wasted in this wild cat scheme. But they say it will save time and trouble and expense of sending samples of water to Toronto for analysis. To this it may be replied, that the time and trouble are included in the duties of a health officer, without any additional expense to the people, and the expense of sending a sample to Toronto costs only 25 cents, and for that the town gets the opinion of an independent man, of well known ability and experience. The question naturally arises: If all this expense had to come from the pockets of the Commissioners, would they as well as the citizens have seen the folly of the enterprize? The Water Commissioners had better sell the outfit and refund the $750 to the town, before the High Court has the trouble of taking a hand in the game.

BOURASSA MAY BE CANDIDATE

THE NATIONALIST LEADER LIKELY TO ENTER THE CONTEST IN DRUMMOND.

Real Object of Fight—Nationalists Hope Some Day to Hold the Balance of Power at Ottawa and Force Demands.

Ottawa, Oct. 18.—While there is nothing absolutely definite about it, advices have been received here that Mr. Henri Bourassa is thinking seriously of running in Drummond and Arthabaska as the Nationalist candidate. It is said that he had fully made up his mind to be a candidate in Two Mountains, had the seat been opened by the appointment of Mr. Ether, M.P., to a judgship, but the county is a close one and the government was appealed not to bring on a bye-election there.

Whether the Nationalist leader will seek election in Arthabaska remains to be seen, but if he does, it will be a whirlwind campaign. It promises to be that way whoever is the candidate.

TO RE-ENTER FEDERAL ARENA.

It seems pretty clearly established that Mr. Bourassa aims to re-enter Federal politics, and one of his strong supporters was asked today what object he had in view. It was pointed out that the Nationalists were attacking both parties more or less, but particularly the Liberals.

"We hope some of these days," was the reply, "to have a solid Quebec behind Bourassa. The Nationalists will then occupy a position analagous to the Irish Nationalists in regard to the British Government, or, in other words, hold the balance of power and be able to force upon the government of the day the views of the Province of Quebec, in matters political."

History in Moving Pictures.

Yesterday the large audiences at the Crystal Theater, including thee prominent clergymen of the Church of England, thoroughly enjoyed the representation of that immortal story, "The Cut." In this picture every scene is actually taken from life and nature, including scenes from the great Castle of Seville. The shores of Morocco, and there are over 500 people appropriately garbed engaged in this historic drama. The picture by request of several leading citizens will be held over and presented today.

Automobile Smashes Cycle.

As one of Peterborough's best known and most popular professional men, was driving his automobile down George street yesterday afternoon, he turned at Hooter street. As he turned, the leading dealer in metals and rags, etc., of Peterborough, was preparing to mount his motorcycle. The man of metals could not see the approaching motor car, on account of a number of pedestrians intervening. Just as the car was upon him, the junk dealer, in his excitement, dropped his cycle and the heavy machine of the professional man passed over and crushed the motor-bicycle to the resemblance of a sandwich cut and made by a machinist with D.T.'s. No blame can be attached to the owner of the automobile.

TRINITY SCHOOL.

Annual Speech Day Attended By Local Citizens.

The annual speech-day proceedings in connection with Trinity College School, Port Hope, to which The Times had the honor of an invitation took place yesterday. The annual service in the school chapel took place during the morning with the Lord Bishop of Huron as preacher. Luncheon was partaken of in the School Dining Hall at 1.30, and the annual presentation of prizes was held in the school gymnasium during the afternoon with the Right Reverend Bishop Reeve as chairman. Addresses were delivered by W. Peterson, Esq., M.A., LL.D., C.M.B., principal of McGill University; W. Wilfrid Campbell, Esq., M.A., LL.D. and others.

Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Stratton motored to Port Hope to attend the event, as their son Master Wilfrid is a pupil at T.C.S.

Enterprise of the Collier Co.

For some time the Collier Electric Company have been selling in Peterborough the Bissell electric motor for sewing machines, manufactured by the Bissell Motor Company of Toledo, O. Impelled by the Patents Act the company with great enterprise have decided to go into the manufacture of the motors themselves at their factory on Simcoe street. The motor is a labor saver for the housewife, and a most successful device. Mr. Collier has just completed the invention of an electric water heater in which water can be heated quickly and economically.

A Chandos Wedding.

Towards the close of last month a quiet wedding was solemnized at the residence of Mrs. James Campbell of Chandos, when her eldest son, James W., was united in marriage to Miss Violet Johnson, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willis Johnson, also of that township. The officiating clergyman was Rev. Mr. Lord, of Apsley. To the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, played by Miss Olga Littledale, the bridal party entered the parlor. The bride was charmingly gowned in pure white clinging texture, with trimmings of white satin and lace. The bridesmaid, Miss Martha Campbell, daughter of Mr. D. S. Campbell, ex-reeve of Chandos, was attired in soft pale blue silk with lace trimmings.

Lindsay Town Clerk to Settle.

As noted in a former issue of The Times, Mr. Knowlson, the town clerk of Lindsay, is in difficulties with the town officials. The town council appointed an auditor, to examine Mr. Knowlson's books. Mr. Knowlson's relatives have retained Mr. G. K. Hopkins, K.C., to look into the matter, and he has written to the mayor demanding the right to have a second auditor present to go into the matter with auditor appointed by the town. He has also requested the mayor to call a meeting to try and make an amicable adjustment of the trouble.

"I had been troubled with constipation for two years and tried all of the best physicians in Bristol, Tenn., and they could do nothing for me," writes Thomas E. Williams, Middleboro, Ky. "Two packages of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets cured me." For sale by all dealers.

HE FAILED IN HIS ATTEMPT TO CROSS THE OCEAN TO EUROPE.

Airship Abandoned 250 Miles Off Cape Hatteras—Signalled for Help by Wireless—End of Most Daring Flight in History.

New York, Oct. 18.—The dirigible balloon America, carrying Walter Wellman and a crew of five in an attempt to reach Europe by trans-Atlantic flight, has been wrecked at sea and abandoned.

CREW RESCUED.

Wellman and his entire crew have been rescued and are on their way to New York on board the SS. Trent, of the Royal Mail Steam Packet Company line, plying between Bermuda and New York. This information was conveyed in an official report from Captain Down, of the steamer Trent, to his office in New York today, in the following despatch:

"At 5 a.m., today sighted Wellman airship America in distress Signalled by Morse code that she required assistance and help. After three hours' manoeuvring with fresh winds blowing, rescued Wellman and his entire crew and cat. They were hauled safely on board. All are well. The America was abandoned in latitude 35 degrees 43 miles north, longitude 68 degrees 18 minutes west.

(Signed) DOWN.

BACK HOME TOMORROW.

Captain Down later notified the company that the Trent would arrive in New York tomorrow. According to the discription given by him of the disaster to the airship, she was abandoned about 250 miles north by east of Cape Hatteras.

OFF NOVA SCOTIA COAST.

From 12.45 p.m. Sunday, when Captain Down's message was received shortly after noon today the airship had been swept from wireless stations along the coast. The America was last heard of off Stasconset, Mass. At 12.45 Sunday afternoon the wireless operator in the Marconi Company's station at Stasconset sent a query directed to the America, asking if all on board were well. The reply, very feeble and indistinct, came back. It consisted of the single word "Ye."

It was then estimated that the America was 100 to 300 miles east of the Massachusetts coast, although her exact location was doubtful.

MILD WEATHER.

At that time and since weather bureau have reported mild weather off the Atlantic seaboard, with the exception of an electrical storm off Sable Island, 100 miles off the Nova Scotia coast.

Although no official advices have been received as to how the balloon was wrecked, it is believed that it fell a victim of the Sable Island electrical storm and was wrecked in a tempest of lightning and sharp, contrary winds.

The America was equipped with all instruments used by navigators and many had been especially constructed. Among these was a barometer for the forecasting of future weather.

CAPT. PEARSON MARRIED.

Popular Otonabee Navigation Company's Officer Becomes a Benedict.

A wedding of considerable local interest took place yesterday afternoon at the resicence of the bride's parents, when Captain Samuel R. Pearson, of the Otonabee Navigation Company, was united in marriage to Miss Gertrude A., only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Corner, of Wilford, Ont. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Johnston, in the presence of a number of relatives and friends.

The bride was attended by Miss Woodard, while the groom was supported by Mr. Will Corner, brother of the bride. Their many friends in Peterborough, Lindsay and elsewhere will wish them a long and happy life.

Captain and Mrs. Pearson will take up their residence at 576 Stewart street.

SUFFRAGETTES HAPPY.

New York, Oct. 15.—That the revolution in Portugal may mark the beginning of equal suffrage for the entired civilized world, was the declaration today of Mrs. Clarence Mackay, president of the Equal Franchise Society. In fact the announcement of President Braga that the coming National Assembly of the new republic of Portugal will be elected by universal suffrage has caused great enthusiasm among the New York votaries of the suffragettes' cause.

"If President Braga but keeps his word," said Mrs. Mackay today, "the redolution in Potugal will become more historical for what it will do for the cause of woman's suffrage, than for what it will do in merely bring about the freedom of that country."

Eight were Killed in an Election and 25 Injured

Basse Terre, Guadeloup, Oct. 18.—Five men and three women were killed and at least twenty-five other persons were wounded, six of whom will die during rioting at the election here. One of the dead is a woman of 70.

It is supposed that many others who were injured fled to the woods after the fighting. The roof of the town hall in which the balloting took place was riddled with bullets.

The rioting occurred in the Petit Bourg district of this city the capital.

The French-Canadians are Greatly Worked Up

Tilbury, Oct. 18.—At a meeting of the Tilbury North Township Council yesterday, the members, all French Canadian Liberals but one, pledged Dr. Reaume that they would give him a majority of three hundred at the next election, as a protest against Bishop Fallon's attack on him. The township is largely liberal.

The French are greatly worked up and a safe French seat is promised to Maisonville, the dismissed secretary of Hon. Dr. Reaume.

OCTOBER WEDDING.

Miss Mary Spears Is the Charming Bride of Mr. Stanley Matchett.

A very pretty wedding was celebrated yesterday afternoon at the house of Mr. John Spears, 173 Hunter St. east, when his younger sister, Miss Mary Spears, was united in the holy bonds of marriage to Mr. Stanley Machett, of Peterborough. The ceremony was performed by Rev. C. E. Cook, pastor of Mark street church, in the presence of about thirty invited guests. To the strains of the wedding march played by Miss Reta Gaskins, the bride entered the drawing room leaning on the arm of her brother, who gave her away, and took her place under a wedding bell suspended from the ceiling. The room was prettily decorated with autumn leaves and vines, varied here and there with clusters of red berries. The bride looked charming in a dress of white silk crepe de chine with appliqué trimmings. She wore the customary veil. The bridesmaid was the bride's little niece, Miss Wilhelmine Gaskins. After the ceremony the guests sat down to a sumptuous repast. Among the presents were a handsome chair from the Women's Missionary Society and Ladies' Aid and a silver chafing dish from the choir and the Epworth League, and also some handsome silver from her Sunday school class. The bride also received several cheques, among them being one from Mr. Geo. Webber and Sons for fifty dollars.

Mr. and Mrs. Matchett left on the 4.38 train for Toronto and Hamilton, where they will spend their honeymoon with friends, and on their return they will take up their residence at 384 Mark street.

How the United States Gets Over Difficulty of Educating Foreign Born

RURAL FRENCHMAN IN ESSEX DOESN'T KNOW WHAT IT ALL IS ABOUT.

Cannot Read English—Few Get Any French Papers—Cannot Change System in a Generation.

Windsor, Ont., Oct. 17.—In the office of W. C. Martindale, chief inspector of Detroit Public schools this afternoon, a press representative put this question:

"How have you solved the language difficulty among your French school children?"

Mr. Martindale's reply was given: "Our solution may or may not be of practical value to the situation in Essex. This nation as you know has no such institution as the separate school. English prevails, whatever be the inclination or disinclination of the foreign born citizen or his children. The nation demands as its common mode of intercommunication one tongue and one only, and expediency imposes the necessity of learning English on every newcomer who expects to make his way."

SPECIAL NIGHT SCHOOLS.

"We got over the difficulty of educating the foreibn born by providing special night schools. We instruct in the one language only and that is English. For this purpose we utilize foreign instructors of Sound English education to import the English language to their fellow countrymen. Thus we have a Hungarian teaching English to Hungarians, a Greek teaching the Greeks and so forth. We do not allow, as you do in Canada, public paid teachers to develop a foreign tongue. That, in a nutshell, is how Michigan steers clears of a bilingual problem.

THE WAY WE CANNOT DO.

That is the way Detroit does it, and it is also the way the Essex of the Irishman or the Frenchman precisely cannot do, for reasons that are too old and too unalterable to enter the calculation of any serious educationalist of this locality.

In today's journey through the various localities the high feeling engendered in Windsor, Toronto and other urban centers, does not seem to be reflected in the rural French parts.

There farming folk unable for a large part to understand English, are denied information from the English newspapers, and few Quebec French papers are circulated anywhere in the district.

The thunder, therefore, of this campaign for the indictment or justification of North Essex and its school system is passing over the heads of the very people concerned. They do not seem to realize that a vital conflict is being waged with the future of French Canadian youth in the balance.

TEACHERS HARD TO GET.

Now that his lordship has come into the open with "facts and figures," the French-Canadian is likewise cutting out his tendency to sentiment and endeavoring to justify or explain away what otherwise might look ugly to the eyes of outsiders. The teacher difficulty has this northern half of the country by the throat like a vise. Teachers of sound training model school certificates who have also a knowledge of French and English sufficient for conversation are scarce as gold nuggets. Just last night at Walkerville, a leading Roman Catholic was putting forth the argument that the people of the rest of Ontario must be content to see the Essex schools falter and fail unless the Ontario Department of Education boldly took the matter in hand and compelled every teacher to come up to the standard demanded in nearly every part of English Canada.

BEST LEFT ALONE.

"Now, however, that a Catholic bishop has drawn back the curtain surely the authorities could with propriety and good diplomacy come into the field and say the day of ignorance has passed and that the schools must now be equipped with teachers holding proper certificates."

Under the old government there grew up too, a system of special permits and extensions which those in positions of authority in Protestant school management assert is perpetuated this day. Children entering the French Catholic schools hence find themselves under tuition which, being gastily and hglf thoroughly assimilated by the instructor, is impossible to be imparted with any degree of success to the scholar. Where are the teachers to come from that will rejuvenate and revitalize a worn down and ineffectual machine? Dr. Casgrain of Windsor, a French Canadian, points to the Sisters' Catholic Teachers' Order, but as another Catholic stated last night, even these sisters are mostly outside the racial lines of the French pulpits and only in a minority of cases endowed with a thorough French knowledge and in the end might not be the medium desired in the present crisis.

WILL NOT BE TEACHERS.

French boys and girls from the rural or semi rural parts of North Essex, who have pushed themselves to the front and acquired a fair knowledge of English by one means or another are more and more turning their backs on the profession of pedagogy.

Every month of the year they troop to Detroit, bag and baggage to take positions, which even for unlearned striplings bring them from forty to fifty dollars a month. Girls from Stoney Point, Tilbury, Belle River and Tecumseh have come to know that of extraordinary ambition takes them away from the old farm and the bit of potato patch teaching with its long training and not over magnificent rewards is more tedious and unpalatable course than the simple little ferry boat across to the hundred Detroit factories and stores.

Every family has need of a good reliable liniment. For sprains, bruises, soreness of the muscles and rheumatic pains there is none better than Chamberlain's. Sold by all dealers.

WHIPPED BABE.

Italian Arrested Accused With Causing Child's Death.

Hagersville, Ont., Oct. 17.—Sam Ponessa, an Italian quarryman of this place, was placed under arrest here yesterday, and removed to the county jail at Cayuga, pending an investigation into the death of his eight months-old child early on Saturday morning.

It is alleged that during Friday night the baby disturbed Ponessa's sleep by its crying and it is said he whipped it so severely that death resulted shortly afterwards.

Coroner Dr. McDonald has empanelled a jury, which today met and viewed the body of the child, then postponed the inquest until Wednesday.

DISCOVERS MOUNTAIN.

One Said to Be Highest on Continent, North of Arctic Circle.

Seattle, Wash., Oct. 18.—Thos. H. Riggs, a government engineer, who has been at work on the Alaskan boundary survey, reports the discovery for north of the Arctic circle of what he believes to be the highest mountain on the continent, exceeding Mount McKinley by nearly 2000 feet. Riggs and his party discovered the mountain while at work on the boundary survey, near the Porcupine River south of latitude 67. The mountain is east of the 141st Meridian, therefore in Canadian territory. The height of Mount McKinley is 20,464 feet.

SAYS FALLON IS NOW IN RETREAT.

Le Temps of Ottawa Says He Threw Bomb Before Running Away.

Ottawa, Oct. 17.—Leading French-Canadians in Ottawa decline to say anything for publication regarding the statement of Bishop Fallon at Goderich. Privately they do not hesitate to assert that the bishop is evading the issue and that he is laying a trap for himself when he seeks to disprove the charge that he has ordered teachers in his diocese not to teach French in their schools. They claim to have absolute proofs in the shape of affidavits and state that they are willing to submit them to any commission of investigation which the Provincial government may appoint. And it would not be surprising if their reply to Bishop Fallon were to take the form of a demand for such a commission when the whole subject could be threshed out in a judicial way.

Le Temps, the local French newspaper, will say that "Bishop Fallon does not deny with the same audacity as on September 22.—He no longer contradicts the stenographic report of his speech to his priests on July 14, and he admits that he does not desire French instruction in the schools of his diocese. In short, he has retreated all along the line, but in running away he throws the bomb which he promised.

"Bishop Fallon would make us believe that those who leave the schools of his diocese are ignorant, incapable of passing the examination of superior schools. We are not among those who claim that our schools and we include those of Quebec as well as those of Ontario, are as good as the old. We regret that so many of the parents take their children away from school at so early an age but we affirm that at the age of ten they are able to read and write."

Whenyour feet are wet and cold and your body chilled through and through from exposure, take a big dose of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, bathe your feet in hot water before going to bed, and you are almost certain to ward off a severe cold. For sale by all dealers.

PUBLIC NOTICE!

NOTICE is hereby given that pursuant to the provisions of The Consolidated Municipal Act 1903 the Council of the City of Peterborough intends at a special meeting thereof to be held at the Council Chamber in the City of Peterborough on Monday, the 24th day of October, 1910, at the hour of 8 o clock p.m., to pass a By-law to stop up and close that part of King Street in the said City described as follows:—Commencing at the point of intersection of the north side of King Street with the east side of Water Street—thence easterly along the north side of King Street 212 feet 6 inches more or less to the south east angle of the land granted to Mrs. Margaret A. Rogers by Letters Patent dated the 12th day of December, 1901, thence southerly at right angles to King Street 21 feet—thence westerly in a line parallel to King Street 98 feet 6 inches, and thence in a direct line to the place of beginning, and to convey the same, for use for manufacturing purposes, to The Peterborough Canoe Company (Limited), the owner of the land adjoining said part of King Street to be closed, in exchange for a conveyance to the Corporation for use as a public highway of the westerly fifty feet of that part of the land now covered with water conveyed by the Peterborough City Trust to said Mrs. Margaret A. Rogers lying east of and immediately adjoining the land granted to the Canadian Pacific Railway Company by Letters Patent dated the 31st day of January, 1902, and extending from the northern to the southern limit of the land conveyed to the said Mrs. Margaret A. Rogers.

AND TAKE NOTICE that at the said time and place the Council will hear in person or by Counsel or Solicitor any one whose land might be prejudicially affected thereby, and who petitions to be so heard.

Dated this 15th day of September, 1910.

CRIPPEN ON TRIAL FOR WIFE MURDER

FAMOUS MURDER CASE COMES TO TRIAL, WITH ALVERSTONE ON BENCH.

London, Oct. 18.—"I am not guilty."

Standing alone in the great prisoners' dock in Old Bailey, facing judge and court with cool assurance, Dr. H. H. Crippen today entered a plea of not guilty to the charge of murdering his wife, Belle Elmore, the music hall singer, whose dismembered body is alleged to have been found buried in the cellar of their Hilldrop Crescent home.

The trial was immediately opened, and with dispatch unknown in the American law courts. The defence exercised only three challenges from the first panel, the jury was quickly completed, and King's counsel R. D. Muir, opened the case for the Crown.

The features of today's session was the admission of Bruce Miller of Chicago, that he sometimes called Mrs. Crippen by her husband's name, wrote her love letters and kissed her.

ALL OVER IN A WEEK.

It is expected that Crippen will know his fate in less than a week. The court will be in session daily from 10.30 in the morning until five every evening.

The tiny room in which the Crippen trial is being held was jammed an hour before the court was called to order by those who had been so fortunate as to secure tickets of admission. In the court were numerous wigged and gowned barristers, who exercised their privilege and filled the court room to the exclusion of nearly all others.

The sidewalks around Old Bailey were crowded for hours before the trial, and the judges, barristers, and witnesses had great difficulty in making their way into the decourt.

ACCUSED OF HERESY.

Prominent Detroit Divine Before Church Court.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 17. Among the ministerial and lay delegates who have arrived to attend the annual convention of Michigan Baptists here this week almost the sole topic of discussion is the "heresy" trial which promises to enliven the proceedings. A trial for heresy is something unusual in the Baptist denomination. Never before has such a trial taken place in the history of the Michigan Baptist convention, but the present disputes over doctrinal differences has reached such an acute stage that it is felt that the convention cannot very well avoid taking official action in the matter.

The storm centre of the present trouble is the Rev. Frederick Merrifield, director of the Ann Arbor Baptist guild, which directs the theological training of students destined for the Baptist ministry. For some years Mr. Merrifield's teachings have been criticised by certain old-line Baptists, who have openly charged him with denying the divinity of Christ and his bodily resurrection. As a result of these criticisms Mr. Merrifield has been requested to submit a full statement of his doctrinal beliefs and teachings. The convention itself will then discuss the whole matter and by a vote decide whether Mr. Merrifield shall be asked to resign his position. The introduction of the controversy on the convention floor is expected to precipitate a lively discussion as the accused clergyman has the support of many prominent divines and laymen throughout Michigan.

WHY SHELDON'S "CHAIN" SPREAD.

The passing of Sheldon brings into strong relief two salient features of his business—the skill with which he selected those who were to receive large profits for advertising purposes, and the way in which a majority of his victims helped spread his propaganda. The very essence of his scheme was that the man or woman who received forty or fifty per cent. a month on an "investment" is not apt to be hypercritical as to its character or overly inquisitive as to details, and that, furthermore, it is a common characteristic of mankind to talk freely and at length of anything which seems to demonstrate unusual acumen and shrewdness on their part.

Sheldon began modestly. Only within the last three or four months has he endeavored "to interest the public en masse in his "blind pool," says the Montreal Star. For the most part, his victims have been secured in many cases innocently, by others who had tasted the illicit delights of "earning" impossible profits and had boasted of them. The widening circles, starting from the score of carefully chosen "clients," who were selected for vicarious enrichment from the commencement of operations, spread of their own accord until they reached nooks and crannies far removed from St. James street. As they widened they involved men and women whom neither Sheldon nor his lieutenants could themselves influence. That is the chief reason why the bursting of the Sheldon bubble has brought sorrow and consternation to homes where the thought of gambling is repugnant and belief in the fundamental honesty of human nature has never before been shattered

U.S. WASTEFULNESS.

Uncle Sam's Carelessness of Natural Resources.

Montreal, Oct. 17.—In speaking of reciprocity with the United States many writers have lost the true meaning of national policy and few seem to grasp the idea that no nation has been as wasteful as the United States with her natural resources.

The object of all Canadian policy is to make a powerful and self-sustained Canadian nation, and absolute free trade is at war with the whole ideal. Whether we admit it or not, we are Protectionist in Federal policy and in Provincial policy. Witness prohibition of the export of pine logs, the pulp wood regulations of various provinces and the limitation on the export of electrical energy. Moreover, Liberal Governments have been as active as Conservative governments in setting the mark of protection upon all our fiscal and industrial legislation.

No nation has been so wasteful in its handling of natural resources as the United States, and it is not our business to save the American people from the consequences of their own prodigality. This, however, is what is designed by the movement to get access to Canadian raw material. Already nearly $250,000,000 of American capital have been invested in Canada. This investment has been accomplished by the operation of the Canadian tariff and the Provincial restrictions upon the export of Canadian pine and pulpwood. The Americans thoroughly understand that under continental free trade they would retain the bulk of this capital in the United States, force Canadians in search of employment to go to American industrial centers and strip bare the forests and impoverish the Dominion in order to build up, as Miss Machar says, "An Empire not our own."

We do not impose customs duties for the special benefit of manufacturers. If protection were a special grant in aid to one class of the community the system could not last here or elsewhere for twelve months. We legislate to build up industries that towns and cities may grow and merchants do business, that farmers may have better markets, that Canadians may find every form of employment in their own country, that in order that labor may be employed that wages may be maintained, the sons of farmers who do not follow agricultural pursuits may not have to leave home and declare allegiance to another flag, and that our vision of a populous and powerful Canadian commonwealth may have ultimate accomplishment.

In face of the United States no other policy can be considered. We cannot compete against great specialized industries manufacturing for 90,000,000 people. Even the manufacturing supremacy of Great Britain was attained under Protection. By the policy of the United States Protection becomes essential to the national growth of Canada. The West will not be content to be only an agricultural country. Western cities will aspire to be great nteats of tariff system as population increases, manufacturing.

THE PRINCESS ROYAL.

How Monster Warship Came to Bear That Name.

The Admiralty have paid a neat and appropriate compliment in naming the new Dreadnought, just begun at Barrow, Princess Royal, in honor of the Duchess of Fife. Whether it came by accident or design is another thing. According to one story it came about in this way: The Duchess of Fife was at Marseilles last autumn on her way to Egypt, and expected to find there a telegram from the king. She was told there was none, but had enquiries made, which resulted in the telegram being found, set aside. It was addressed "The Princess Royal," but some official taking the title to be the name of a vessel had noted on it in pencil "ship unknown," and put it by. The story reached the Admiralty just as Sir John Fisher was selecting the names for the four "contingent" Dreadnoughts now being laid down. He had chosen the four, but, on hearing the story, put his pen through the fourth name, Devastation, substituting that of the "ship unknown"—Princess Royal.

As it happens, the name is to the royal navy very far from being that of a "ship unknown." There have been four ladies to bear the style of Princess Royal in England, and each one in turn has had a British battleship named after her. The man-of-war name, indeed, is just as old as the title itself. It appeared first on the navy list in 1728, in honor of George the Second's strong-minded eldest daughter, the Princess Anne, married in 1734 to the Prince of Orange. A second man-of-war bore it in honor of George the Third's eldest daughter, the Princess Charlotte-Augusta-Matilda, "a chaste and gentle Princess," married in 1797 to the future King of Wurtemburg. The third was given the name in honor of Queen Victoria's eldest daughter, the late Empress Frederick; and a fourth ship now takes it in honor of King Edward's eldest daughter, the Duchess of Fife.

Rigid economy in naval matters and little shipbuilding marked the earlier days of George the Second, so that monarch had to content himself by taking away the name of an old ship and substituting Princess Royal for it. The man-of-war in question was an old three-decker of William the Third's navy, originally named the Triumph. H.M.S. Princess Royal the First lost the only chance she got of firing an angry gun. That was in 1744, when her admiral was Sir John Norris. "Foul Weather Jack"—the first of the two the navy has had. Just as Norris had caught up the French fleet he was chasing and a battle seemed inevitable, one of the admiral's storms burst, and the fleets were forced apart and never sighted one another again.

H.M.S. Princess Royal the Second was launched in 1773, by George the Third's brother, the Duke of Gloucester. The little girl Princess Royal of that day, a nine-year-old child, was sculptured as the figurehead. "The Princess Royal is seen seated on a chair supported on the shoulders of Neptune and Amphitrite, who ride on dolphins. Many Tritons are playing about them." So a newspaper reporter who witnessed the launched at Portsmouth described the figurehead.

"Foul Weather Jack" the second, Admiral John Byron, Lord Byron's grandfather, who "had no rest at sea," was her first admiral, and his ill-luck came on board with him.

Starting from England to take up the chief command off New York in the American war with a fleet of thirteen ships, storm after storm fell on him. Only two ships arrived at the rendezvous, the Princess Royal and another. A third crawled in later on, her masts gone, and leaking badly. Three more had to turn back, battered wrecks, for England. The remainder, with signals of distress flying, put into various American harbors. When Admiral Byron at length got them together and refitted, and was sailing for the West Indies, two of them were wrecked in another storm. He was reinforced and met the French off Grenada, made a blundering attack, and was badly mauled, being lucky to escape defeat and the loss of half his fleet. After that the Princess Royal fought in three battles under Rodney, and then went home to England to be present at the sinking of the Royal George, and to take part with Lord Howe in the final relief of Gibraltar, which closed the great siege. Then came the war with the French revolution, and we see the Princess Royal in the thick of the midnight horrors of the fighting in Toulon Harbor when an "unknown captain of artillery" Napoleon Bonaparte, drove the British fleet out headlong. Two fights with the French in 1795, one off Genoa, the other near Toulon, make up the Princess Royal's record of eight battles. For some years after that the Princess Royal had her place in the Channel Fleet, helping to hold in check Napoleon's intended invasion from Boulogne, one of "those far-distant storm-beaten ships upon which the Grand Army never looked, but which stood between it and the dominion of the world." Her end, to be taken to pieces at Chatham, came two years after Trafalgar.

The third Princess Royal bore the effigy of Queen Victoria's eldest daughter, the Empress Frederick, for her figurehead. A 91-gun screw-propelled wooden two-decker of the "fifties" of the last century, she made a name for herself as Captain Lord Clarence Paget's ship in the Crimean war, serving both in the Baltic campaign and before Sebastopol in the Black Sea.

So we come to the new Dreadnought, the Princess Royal of to-day, a tremendous cruiser-battleship of 26,500 tons, the biggest warship ever yet laid down in the world.

Scotland's Polar Quest.

Scotland refuses to be left behind and has determined to take part in the international scramble for the South Pole with an expedition of her own. Dr. W. S. Bruce has been chosen to lead the expedition, and funds are being subscribed throughout the country, by rich and poor alike, for the fitting out of the Scottish National Antarctic expedition, as it is not unproudly termed.

Grand Trunk Engineers.

For the past few weeks a committee representing the engineers of the Grand Trunk Railway System has been in conference with the superintendent of motive power. So quietly did they carry on their negotiations that although twenty-six of them were domiciled at a Montreal hotel for weeks there has been no publicity about the matter. The negotiations were carried on with the best of good feeling on both sides and now, it is pleasant to record that an agreement has been reached satisfactory to all concerned. The engineers asked for a substantial increase of pay, amounting it is understood to something like 12 per cent. The Grand Trunk was willing from the first to grant them an increase and the result of friendly negotiations is the agreement concluded Thursday. The representatives of the engineers left for their home Friday last entirely satisfied with the result of their mission to Montreal.

106 acres of absolutely proven oil land on Sulphur Mountain, adjoining and between the Liberty and Puritan Oil Companies' property. Ten miles from Santa Paula, Ventura Co., Calif.

FACTS—The property is absolutely proven territory, lying as it does with the UNION OIL CO. producing on the south, the LIBERTY OIL CO. producing on the west, the BARD OIL CO. producing on the north, which only recently started its 30th rig, and Puritan Oil Co. to commence drilling on the east. Also it is located in a district of BIG PRODUCING COMPANIES, such as Ola Petroleum, Pyramid Oil Co., Canadian Queen, Capital Creek, Bard Oil and Asphalt Co., and others. THERE'S NO QUESTION ABOUT THIS COMPANY GETTING OIL. It is possible that Liberty Oil Company's new well will be a gusher, which would make the ATLANTA OIL COMPANY stock worth par. Mr. Cowell, our Superintendent, knows every foot of the ground, and having his log book of Liberty property, which adjoins our land, and an experienced OIL MAN and we consider ourselves fortunate in obtaining his services. VENTURA CO. OIL represents the cream of the industry. It is the home of HIGH GRAVITY OIL. VENTURA COUNTY OIL means $1.50 a barrel at well. Costs from 30 to 60 to produce it. THE GREAT UNION OIL CO. got its start in VENTURA CO. and has paid over twenty-two millions in dividends. These GREAT ASSETS had a small beginning in the WILD BILL GUESSER, within SIGHT OF ATLANTA OIL CO. property. The demand for refining oil FAR EXCEEDS THE SUPPLY. The 38 refineries in California are crying for the product. The eastern high gravity fields are diminishing. The OHIO FIELDS, FOR INSTANCE, have fallen off one-third. The demand is eased by the increased market for gasoline. Throughout the world the number of automobiles and internal combustion gasoline engines in forcing up the price of high gravity crude petroleum. Eastern operators are now looking to VENTURA COUNTY, which are held to be the most extensive known. THIS IS THE FIRST ANNOUNCEMENT of ground floor offering of ATLANTA OIL CO., and may be oversubscribed at any time. One day's delay may mean you are too late. ACT NOW. WRITE FOR LATEST NEWS OF VENTURA OIL FIELDS.

The lumber for the derrick is on the ground and machinery has been ordered. Well No. 1 will be started as soon as drilling is installed. It should not take over six months to complete first well. Well No. 2 by conditions of lease, must be in operation by February 14th, 1911.

ADVANCES TO 30c AUGUST 20th.

THE LAKE LEVELS.

The project of a dam at the mouth of the Niagara River in order to raise the level of Lake Erie and thereby improving all the ports on that lake, has for some years been urged by shipping interests in the United States, but the International Waterways Commission, which has had the matter under consideration, has come to the conclusion that such a dam would do more harm than good.

In its report the commission declares that the effect of constructing a dam at the point named would be to raise the low water stages of Lake Erie about one foot, those of Lake St. Clair 0.61 foot, and of Lakes Michigan and Huron about 0.27 foot, but the high water stage would not be at all affected. These are all the advantages that could be expected from the carrying out of the proposed work.

On the other hand the commission finds that a dam would increase the oscillations in Lake Ontario by five and a half inches- that is to say, low water would be made lower by about four and a half inches. The effect of this would be to reduce the levels in the St. Lawrence canals by about 7.66 inches. This would be detrimental to navigation. It is pointed out in the report that in weighing these advantages and disadvantages, it is to be remembered that the persons who are to benefit by the former are not identical with those who are to suffer by the latter.

If the advantages and disadvantages could be equally distributed, the commissioners are inclined to think that the former would outweigh the latter, and that the expediency of the undertaking would be a question of cost. They believe, however, that the advantages to be gained are not of such an overwhelming character as to justify the undertaking with its intricate and often damaging effects.

FROM A MONARCHY TO A REPUBLIC

Montreal, Oct. 15. The general controversy with the people at the present time on the recent occurrence in Portugal is of a divided nature.

Many argue that the change from a monarchy to a Republic in Portugal does not make much difference; her people may be as happy and prosperous under one form of government as under the other. But our view is apt to be colored by our own experience. We, in Canada, live under monarchical institutions, next door to a republic. We feel that we enjoy as much liberty as our neighbors. We are apt to forget the essential difference between life in Europe and life in North America.

Portugal is about half the size of Manitoba, or of North Dakota. Yet it has its royal family, whose fortunes are linked with those of other royal families, and excite interest in every European capital; its courts, its army and its navy, its colonies in Africa and Asia. It is under the influence of the feudal and military spirit of Europe. When it desires to effect a change in its government it must resort to arms and shed blood; while a Canadian Province or an American State would simply put out a Grit or Tory premier, as the case might be, and appoint a good live manas minister of agriculture, to encourage a more profitable use of the soil.

What happens in Portugal on a small scale happens in Germany and Austria on a large scale. These countries swarm with royal and aristocratic personages who lacking useful employment, yearn for military glory, and whose quarrels and selfish ambitions keep all Europe in a state of nervous tension. Were the armies of Russia, France, Germany, Austria, and Italy disbanded tomorrow, every p[illegible] artisan would be as safe from invasion as he is today, while he would be freed from the burden of conscription and military taxation.

The upsetting of the toy throne of Portugal is of no great importance in itself, but as an indication of the growth of liberal and democratic ideas it is worthy of note. Between peace and self-government there is a close relation. The powers that have consented to have their differences settled peaceably at The Hague are the British Empire and the United States, the two greatest examples of freedom and self-government in the world. On the other hand there is a close relation between the German Emperor's ideas of divine rights in kings and his desire for military supremacy. A German republic would speedily make peace with the French republic, and greatly reduce the military burders of both countries, and of Europe.

It is true that there have been warlike democracies, such as the first Republic of France, but the citizens of these were influenced by traditions centuries old, by the ideas implanted in ages of feudalism and oppression. When they desired to achieve certain objects they sprang to arms, because they were acquainted with no other method of redressing grievances. But free institutions gradually and surely undermine militarism.

AN EMPIRE BUILDER.

The Canadian Pacific Railway is likely to indecrease its dividend rate next year, it is to make the distribution quarterly instead of half-yearly and it is to place faster and finer ships on the Atlantic route. These announcements made at the company's annual meeting, drive home the fact that in its 29th year the pioneer transcontinent road is still the country's greatest advertisement. The vast bulk of the corporation's securities being held in Great Britain and on the continent of Europe, every fresh success achieved by this brilliantly managed enterprise tends strongly to establish and reinforce Canada's credit abroad and to facilitate the successful flotation of other Canadian ventures in the old world. It must be said that by teaching home-keeping Britons the value of the outer-dominions, the Canadian Pacific has been a powerful factor in the upbuilding and establishment of the Empire.

TORTURED TO DEATH.

Ottawa, Oct. 13 - Part of a human face, badly burned with acid, was handed over to the chief analyst of the government yesterday by Dr. Fagan, Provincial health officer at Vancouver. It is the only clue to a Vancouver. It is the only clue to the solution of a mysterious murder recently discovered at Revelstoke.

The victim was a miner named Frank Julian, who is thought to have been set upon by members of the Black Hand. He was cut up, and before being murdered was evidently tortured. A ring around the face was burned in by the use of acid It is to determine what acid was used that the analysis is being made.

IMPALED BY AN ARROW.

Pinned Through the Neck to a Tree, Yet He Survived.

It was in the summer of 1859 that George Wainwright and Ben Spencer, each in charge of a train of freight wagons, were headed for the Missouri river to bring supplies back to Colorado points. The Indians were very troublesome in those days, and these two outfits always camped together for protection. One night they had arranged the camp, with the wagons forming a circle, and everybody but the guards was to be inside. Wainwright preferred to sleep in a clump of cottonwoods about a quarter of a mile off, and there he fixed himself with his negro servant as a bodyguard. Neither the camp nor Wainwright was disturbed during the night, but early the next morning while Wainwright was sitting on the ground with his back to a tree drinking his tin of coffee an arrow from an unseen foe entered his neck at the right of the jugular vein and was driven with such force as to impale the victim to the tree. The negro, believing his master was killed, ran to Spencer's camp and gave the alarm.

Spencer and some of his men rushed over to Wainwright. Instead of being dead Wainwright was not even seriously injured. Spencer cut the arrow off close to the point of entrance and then gently drew Wainwright's head forward until he was released. The victim suffered but little inconvenience from the wound, and by the time the trip was completed it was entirely healed.—Los Angeles Times.

THE WAY OF THE SWISS.

Foreigners Regarded as Egyptians and Treated Accordingly.

A foreign resident in Switzerland was fined 10 francs because his little girl had plucked three buttercups growing on a piece of land on which she and some half dozen Swiss children had for years been accustomed to play. The land had recently changed bands, and its new owner had put up a notice forbidding the plucking of flowers. A passing gendarme had found the children flagrante delicto and had forthwith instituted proceedings against the little foreigner, while letting the little natives go scot free. The child's father appealed against the sentence and by dint of hard fighting, which entailed, of course, expense, forced the higher court to reduce the fine from 10 francs to 3—i. e., 1 franc for each buttercup.

When I tried to learn the whys and wherefores of this case I was told by a Swiss that one-half of every fine levied goes to the gendarme who reports the offense for which it is levied, and also that Swiss gendarmes cannot fairly be expected to be quite so alert in taking proceedings against their own country people as against foreigners.

Further, I was told by an American that in Switzerland all foreigners rank as Egyptians and that the one Scriptural injunction that is faithfully obeyed there is that which ordains that Egyptians shall be spoiled.—From "The Latter Day Swiss" in Cornhill Magazine.

A Famous Opal.

The most famous opal in history was that which was worn in a ring by the Roman senator Nonius in the day of the triumvirate. Its size equaled that of a medium sized hazelnut, yet its beauty and brilliancy rendered it a marvel among the dilettanti of Rome, especially when it was known that the goldsmiths and money changers had set its value at $1,000,000. Mark Antony made overtures to Nonius for its purchase, intending, it is thought, to present it to Cleopatra, but the senator refused to part with it and for fear that it would be taken from him by sheer force sought safety in flight. Here history loses all trace of this famous gem, there being no record of its transference from Nonius to any of his family.

At a Wedding Breakfast.

After a marriage recently the bridal party partook of a sumptuous breakfast, toward the end of which a younger brother of the bride got up and said solemnly, raising his glass:

"Ladies and gentlemen, I have to propose a toast, which, however, must be drunk standing. Please take your glasses and rise up."

The guests, although somewhat bewildered, did so.

"Now," said the young scapegrace, "if you will remain standing for a few minutes I'll find out who has been sitting on my new hat."—London Tit-Bits.

COL. ROOSEVELT A NEW APOSTLE OF DISCORD.

John A. Dix, Democratic Nominee for Governor of New York, Strikes Out.

Thomson, N.Y., Oct. 13.—Declaring that Theodore Roosevelt is a new apostle of discord and dissention John A. Dix, in accepting the Democratic nomination for governor of New York State at his home here today asserted that the menace of new nationalism overshadowed all state questions and even aimed at the overthrow of some of the fundamental institutions of the nation.

"We have already had to our cost ample proof of his ability to disturb business, destroy values and create a condition of panic country-wide in its evil effects," said Mr. Dix of Col. Roosevelt.

Miss Bessie Henderson, left yesterday morning on the 9.30 Grand Junction Express for Belleville, where she goes to fill a responsible position in the Belleville office of the Peterborough Light and Power Co. Miss Henderson will be much missed.

Noted Local Singer Leaves.

Yesterday morning Miss Lavina Hallihan, soprano, went to Toronto to enter seriously upon vocal study. It is probable that she will remain in Toronto for the present season, to undertake concert and solo work in some church choir, in connection with her musical studies; and probably in the spring she will go to New York to study under Lambusch, a noted vocal teacher. Miss Hallihans many friends in Peterborough, will follow her future with warmest interest.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury.

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used, except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Court of Revision

TAKE NOTICE that the Municipal Council of the Corporation of the City of Peterborough intends to construct sewers on the streets named below and intends to assess a portion of the final cost thereof upon the real property to be immediately-benefitted thereby frontiog or abutting upon the said parts of the said streets. A statement showing the lands liable to and proposed to be specially assessed for the said works, and the names of the owners thereof, so far as the same can be ascertained from the last revised assessment roll and otherwise, is now filed in the office of the clerk of the Municipality and is open for inspection during office hours.

Smith Street, from a point 160 ft. west of George Street to Benson Street—Estimated cost of the work $206.95, of which $40.94 is to be paid by the Municipality.

Inverlea Street, from Water Street east to the manhole opposite laneway—Estimated cost of the work $176.10, of which $79.65 is to be paid by the Municipality.

The number of annual special assessments to pay the cost of the said works will be thirty.

A Court of Revision will be held on Tuesday, the 1st day of November, 1910, at the hour of eight o'clock in the evening, in the City Council Chamber for the purpose of hearing complaints against the proposed assessment or the accuracy of frontage measurements or any other complaints which the person interested may desire to make, and which is by law cognizable by the Court.

Dated at Peterborough, the 15th day of October, 1910.

S. R. ARMSTRONG,
Clerk.

LITTLE LOCAL LINES

Lindsay has enrolled forty boy scouts.

During the fiscal year ending March 31st, 1910, the Peterborough Custom House took in $344,934.45.

French-Canadians Interview Hon. Dr. Pyne

FATHER LEBEL AND VICE PRESIDENT OF EDUCATIONAL CONGRESS SEE MINISTER.

Ask for Retention of Bi-lingual Schools—"Working Splendidly in Northern Ontario," They Say.

Toronto, Oct. 19.—The first official movement of the French-Canadians of the Province to offset the onslaught of Bishop Fallon on bilingual schools was made at the Parliament buildings today when Mr. A. A. Aubin, M.P.P. for Sturgeon Falls, and Father Lebel, S.J., of Sudbury, called first upon Hon. Dr. Reaume, then Hon. Frank Cochrane, who is closely connected with Northern Ontario, and then met Dr. Pyne, the minister of education.

FRENCH-CANADIAN CONGRESS.

The significance of the visit, which Mr. Aubin insisted upon regarding as merely a "friendly call," is seen in the fact that he is vice-president under President Belcourth of the French-Canadian Educational Congress, and he and Father Lebel, who is a well known Jesuit priest at Sudbury, were members of the deputation from the congress which waited upon the government last spring to ask for an extension of the teaching of French in French-Canadian sections of the Province.

WANT BI-LINGUAL SCHOOLS.

Their visit, it is understood, was to urge upon the ministers the necessity for the retention of bi-lingual schools, pointing out the great advantage in them if they are conducted under proper conditions.

In an interview with a reporter, Father Lebel was enthusiastic in their support. "They have worked out well in Nipissing and other northern districts," he said. "The fault with the Essex bi-lingual schools I should judge is that the system was not administered properly."

In Sturgeon Falls, Mr. Aubin said, 9 out of 12 pupils who tried the entrance examinations from bi-lingual schools had passed.

A TEMPERANCE LECTURE.

Rev. J. Bennett Anderson Addresses Large Audience at St. Luke's.

Last night, in St. Luke's church, Rev. J. Bennett Anderson, diocesan missionary, with Rev. Edgar Pickford of Norwood, held a temperance meeting in that church. Rev. Mr. Anderson, who has been doing a great deal of work in the interests of St. Luke's parish, addressed the meeting, taking as his text, Isiah XLIX. vii. "Wasting and Destruction are in the Paths." This world-wide traveller, whom Rev. Dr. Langfeldt demonstrated his proverbial interest in procuring as speaker on so popular a subject, gave those present a heart to heart talk on temperance. He showed how in Ireland, during the famine, grain that should have gone into bread or other means of human food, was wasted, practically by being used by the distillers in making whisky. Mr. Anderson said that men waste their time, their money and their reputations in drinking intoxicants. He thought the money spent in intoxicants would be much better spent in manufacturing and in the homes of the people. In response to a question put by The Times, Rev. Mr. Anderson would not commit himself as to whether he was against or in favor of local option. As far as he would go, in reply, was to say, "I'm not going to speak on local option. I believe in common sense in this temperance question."

At the close of the address Mr. Anderson appealed to those present to sign the total abstainance pledge and 29 responded to the request.

An Alliance with Rome

(Special to The Times.)

Rome, Oct. 19.—The possibility of an alliance between the new Republic of Portugal and the Roman Catholic Church, by which the vatican will officially recognize the new government upon condition that some of the Catholic orders be allowed to remain in the country, has developed.

TRY TO REVIVE THE OLD P.P.A.

HAMILTON SAYS PROMINENT ORANGE MEN WANT TO REVIVE THE ASSOCIATION.

Was a Power in Hamilton—Eucharist Congress and Bilingual School Issue Stirring Protestants to Action.

Hamilton, Oct. 19.—The Protestant Protective Association which cut a big figure in municipal and Provincial elections here sixteen years ago, is to be galvanized into life again if the plans of a number of prominent Orangemen who have taken the matter up succeed.

Ex-Ald. Baird, a well-known Orangeman, who was one of the leading spirits in the old association, is actively identified with the new movement. The men behind it think the Roman Catholic Church is getting too strong a grip on the country. They have been aroused by the Eucharistic Congress. Father Vaughan's charges against Protestantism, and the controversy being waged over bilingual teaching in the schools. Their hope is that the P.P.A. movement will again flourish all over the country.

In 1901 the P.P.A. controlled the council here, electing A.E. Stewart as mayor. This was shortly after Margaret Sheppard toured the country, making sensational addresses, in which she charged that the Catholic churches were filled with rifles and ammunition. The movement died out after Sheriff Middleton and J. M. Gibson, the present lieutenant-governor defeated the P.P.A. candidates.

WILD BEARS SEEN.

Kent Street, Lindsay, Invaded By Members of the Clan of Bruin.

Large game have not been seen around Lindsay for a great many years and only stories of bygone narrow escapes, where Kent street now is, recall the "animals I have known or met." But last evening was an exception, for up at the west of the town on Angeline avenue a surprising sight was witnessed by a lady when she happened to look out upon the road at about nine o'clock. There slowly crossing the road, from the field in the rear of Dr. Pogue's were two immense coal black bears. They shuffled up the bank on the other side and slid noiselessly into the woods, where no doubt they are waiting for another night to fall to enable them to stroll around the many nearby orchards unmolested.

The presence of these unusual prowlers will afford the hunting fraternity an opportunity to gain experience without having to go far for the furriest of game. Who is going to secure the pelts?—Lindsay Post.

VARICOSE VEINS CURED

Confined to His Home for Weeks.

"Heavy work, severe straining and evil habits in youth brought on Varicose Veins. When I worked hard the aching would become severe and I was often laid up for a week at a time. My family physician told me an operation was my only hope—but I dreaded it. I tried several specialists, but soon found out all they wanted was my money. I commenced to look upon all doctors as little better than rogues. One day my boss asked me why I was off work so much and I told him my condition. He advised me to consult Drs. Kennedy & Kennedy, as he had taken treatment from them himself and knew they were square and skilful. I wrote them and got THE NEW METHOD TREATMENT. My progress was somewhat slow and during the first month's treatment I was somewhat discouraged. However, I continued treatment for three months longer and was rewarded with a complete cure. I could only earn $18 a week in a machine shop before treatment, now I am earning $31 and never loose a day. I wish all sufferers knew of your valuable treatment.

JUROR TOPPLED OVER IN THE BOX WHILE INSPECTOR DEW GAVE HIS EVIDENCE.

A Sudden Halt in the Crippen Case—Trial Will Be Rushed With All Speed—After Two Hours' Delay Stricken Juror Took His Seat and the Hearing Was Resumed.

London, Oct. 19.—Suddenly stricken with illness, a juror toppled over in the box at the trial of Dr. H. H. Crippen for the murder of his wife, Belle Elmore, today, and the trial came to a sensational halt. The juror, Louis Greene, was carried into an ante-room where he was attended by Doctors Wilcox and Marshall, two of the expert witnesses. At the time Greene was stricken, Inspector Dew, of Scotland Yard, who arrested Crippen and Ethel Le Claire Le Neve on the liner Montrose, was on the stand.

THE MIGHTY MULTITUDE.

The same mighty multitude crushed about the historic court of Old Bailey when today's session was resumed, and when Dr. Crippen, looking if possible, more natty and stylish than yesterday was ushered into the court room.

The throng of stylishly dressed women, many of them attired in gowns of the latest Paris mode, was increased today. The spectators' seats were a sea of waving plumes and ablaze with jewels and bright colors.

CASE WILL BE RUSHED.

No sooner had Lord Chief Justice Alverstone of Great Britain set the wheels of the law in motion when it was made evident that the case would be rushed with all possible speed.

All of the scientists, who testified at the inquest and the preliminary hearing, were on hand. Inspector Dew was the first witness called to the stand.

The inspector had not gotten fairly into his story when Juror Greene pitched forward in his seat and fell upon the floor.

CRIPPEN WAS CALM.

Instantly the court room was in a tremendous state of excitement, but Crippen wheeled in his chair and looked with professional calmness upon the scene.

Court attaches rushed to the juror's box where the stricken man was being supported by two of his fellows. Juror Greene was picked up by the arms and legs and carried through the crowded courtroom into an ante room.

In the meantime Doctors Wilcox and Marshall had rushed forward to minister to the sick man. It was believed that Greene had given way to the excitement attending the famous case and that his nerve had fallen prey to the grewsome details which were being brought out.

If this was the case the story of violent death had preyed less upon the minds of the women in the court room, for they were calmly curious concerning the evidence and exhibits, although they were thrown into the smelling salts stage by the dramatic scenes when the case was stopped.

HAD TO TAKE RECESS.

Lord Alverstone announced from the bench that a recess would be taken until Greene had been restored. It was two hours before the juror had recovered sufficiently to take his seat in the box. During the long wait Dr. Crippen gazed calmly about him or held whispered conferences with his counsel, Alfred A. Tobin, M.P., Huntley Jenkins and Arthur Arthur Newton. He seemed to have Newton. He seemed to have a great deal to say to his lawyers and apparently was not worried.

DEW WAS ANXIOUS.

The crowds became restless as the time dragged on, and Inspector Dew, the sleuth, seemed anxious to get away. At the time when the case was so suddenly stopped, Dew was well into the story of the chase after Crippen and his arrest. The inspector went back to the very first, telling how Scotland Yard had been notified that Mrs. Cora Crippen was mysteriously missing and that an investigation should be made.

The detective said that Scotland Yard had first been apprised of the suspicious circumstances of Mrs. Crippen's disappearance by John Nash, a theatrical manager. Nash had returned from America early in the summer where Mrs. Crippen's friends were very anxious.

Following Nash's visit to the central offices of London's detective force, Dew said that he went to 39 Hilldrop crescent, North London, where the Crippens had been living and interviewed Crippen.

The inspector later went to Crippen's office and again to his residence according to his story on the stand.

Under examination by Barrister Tobin, Dew said:

"Dr. Crippen answered all my questions readily, and allowed me to search the house without protest. He was not worried and quite cool when he went into the cellar.

English Language Alone Should be Used

The Orange Sentinel, appropriately devotes columns of its space this week to editorial comment on the Fallon controversy. Its important conclusion is summarized in the following paragraph:

"We feel that Ontario should be preserved as a Province where the English language alone should be used in official life and in the schools. This will work no hardship to any class of citizens. On the contrary, it will be a boon to the children of French-speaking citizens who are today denied the instruction that is necessary for them to succeed in life."

No Warships Salute the Deposed King

Very Quiet Reception King George Greeted the Deposed Portuguese Monarch Cordially—Arrival at Plymouth.

London, Oct. 19.—Manuel, the deposed King of Portugal came to England on exile today a few months ago as a ruling King he came with all the pomp of royalty seeking a bride. It was then that he came with the personal interest of King George, who had for him a Manuel and Queen Mother Amelie landed at Plymouth from the British Royal yacht Victoria and Albert which had conveyed them from Gibraltar.

The mark of homage to royalty which had marked his tour across Europe and into England when he was seeking a queen to grace his throne were missing upon the journey which ended at Plymouth today.

A few loyal attendants came with the exiles and will remain with them upon the estate of the Duke of Orleans, at Woodton, in Worcestershire where they will make their future home.

HIS SEARCH FOR BRIDE.

Several members of British noble houses were mentioned in connection with Manuel's search for a bride among them Alexandra of Fife.

Manuel was received cordially by King George, who displayed much interest in the deposed king from the Iberian Peninsula.

The contrast between the entrance into England then, with warships booming royal salutes and the quiet manner in which the exiled members of the Portuguese family came today was marked in more ways than one.

AN ORDINARY RECEPTION.

At Plymouth not ordinary courtesy was expected on the coming of the young king and his mother. More interest was displayed in the manner in which the boy and his mother were hearing their load than in sympathy for the royal exiles. A quiet official reception was tendered the royal party today.

(Special to The Times.)

Montreal, Oct. 19.—C. D. Sheldon, the missing stock broker, was seen in New York this week by a friend. He made no attempt to disguise himself and showed no nervousness when addressed by his right name. He said he was in New York on business. New York police claim to have no warrant for his arrest.

COMPETITION FOR ATLANTIC SUBSIDY

SEVERAL TRANSPORTATION LINES ARE AFTER THE CONTRACT FOR CARRYING MAILS.

New C.P.R. Steamships—Empresses Will Be Sent to the Pacific and Company Will Build New Vessels for Atlantic.

Ottawa, Oct. 18.—Close competition in respect to the Atlantic steamship subsidy is expected when the contract expires a year from next May.

Mr. Andrew Allan was in conference with Sir Richard Cartwright today, but he stated that he was not in a position to make any announcement. Some time ago the Allan Line submitted a proposition for a 22 knot service, the subsidy sought being upward of a million. It has never been dealt with by the Cabinet.

The White Star Dominion Line has intimated its intention of tendering, while the Royal Line has made certain proposals with special reference to the carriage of mails.

NEW C.P.R. BOATS.

The announcement that the Empresses are going to the Pacific is taken as meaning undoubtedly newer and faster Canadian Pacific ships on the Atlantic, and that company will also be a competitor.

It is understood that the minister of trade and commerce inclines to the view that with so many fast lines in the business the subsidy should be divided. However, the matter is one for the cabinet, and it has not yet been dealt with.

Burleigh Power Co. Want Ontario Lands

Toronto Oct. 19.—A deputation headed by J. J. Preston and J. H. Devitt, two members of the legislature, waited upon Hon. Frank Cochrane, minister of lands, forests and mines, this morning to ask that the Central Ontario Power Company be given a patent to 26 acres of government lands near Burleigh Falls.

This company has received from the Dominion Government a concession to develop power at Burleigh Falls on the Otonabee river, at the head of Stoney Lake. The land in question is immediately adjoining this water power. At the present time the question of ownership is in dispute between the Ontario and Dominion governments, and therefore the minister of lands and forests, and mines is in favor of a lease. The company, however, desires patent rights. It promises cheap power to Cobourg, Port Hope, Peterborough, and surrounding towns.

Turkeys will be Scarce

(Special to The Times.)

Ottawa, Oct. 19.—There is great danger of a turkey famine this Thanksgiving—Oct. 31st. Dr. Charles Higgins, Dominion Biologist, says the high price of turkeys is not due to a combine, but to a high mortality all over the Dominion from a parisitic and contagious disease called "blackhead." Efforts are being made to stamp it out.

DEFENDED POPE IN SPITE OF PROTEST.

Montreal, Oct. 18.—The City Council yesterday passed a resolution concerning Mayor Nathan of Rome, on behalf of the Catholic population of Montreal, against his "blasphemous insults" to the pope.

A protest was filed by the Ministerial Association against the council dealing with the question at all, on the ground that such action would merely create suspicion and foment discord in a cosmopolitan city such as Montreal, with its many races and religions.

Five aldermen also protested in writing against the resolution. These were Aldermen Carter, Boyd, Ward, Judge and Drummond, who took the ground that the city council of the City of Montreal had no interest as a body in any utterance or action of the chief magistrate of the Eternal City.

GOT A BAD SPRAIN.

Thanks to Zam Buk, Now Well.

Don't limp about in pain when you slip on the sidewalk or get a sprain, or get a bad twist at your recreation. Rub in Zam Buk, and be well in a short time.

Mr. Clarence D. Black, Legal Department, Transcontinental Railway, Ottawa, writes: "I have used Zam Buk with very satisfactory results, but I did not know its full value until just recently when I fell from a street car and badly sprained my ankle. I immediately applied Zam Buk, and am pleased to say that it has proved invaluable to me. The pain was soon eased."

Bear in mind that Zam Buk is used by all the famous football teams, all the best trainers, and all the leading athletes. Men who are at sport all the time whose living depends upon their keeping "fit" find Zam Buk the surest way to fitness. They are the best judges.

AN HEIRESS WEDS AN N. Y. ENGINEER

New York, Oct. 19.—At last one ardent devotee of occult forces has discovered here sure enough affinity, her real soul mate, within the wold of this wearied world.

She is Miss Antoinette Reading Gazzam, of Cornwall, N.Y., a very pretty young woman, 20 years of age and heiress of $3,000,000. Her affinity is Mr. Charles B. Galvin, a not too high salaried engineer on the New York Aqueduct. And these two dreamily attuned soul-mates will be married today in the parish house of St. Thomas' Roman Catholic church, by Father Breslin.

How Miss Gazzam found her everlasting mate of her astral inmost being is a real romantic story, and will be detailed in her own magazine, "The Forecast," appearing serially under the title, "My Search for a Masculine Counterpart" and Ideal Companion Through the Supernatural."

"The romance has been a very beautiful one," said she in the drawing room of her marble mansion on the Hudson.

"I wrote a letter yes, I wrote a letter to Mr. Galvin. He did not answer me. I wrote another letter. Still he did not answer me. But when I wrote a third he did answer me, and then one day he came here right here," she said pausing to accentuate an inflection of marvelling "and that was the first time I ever saw him in my life."

A MONTH IN JAIL.

Mahaffy Threatened, With Central Prison Should He Sin Again.

At yesterday's session of the police court Walter Mahaffy appeared to receive his sentence for the charge of false pretence, which he pleaded guilty to on the morning of Monday, October 10th. "Give me a chance your worship," pleaded Mahaffy. "If you will let me go this time, I will turn over a new leaf."

"How many chances do you want," said his worship. "Do you want me to give you a chance to go on stealing and going on as bad as ever?"

"No, your worship," answered the prisoner. The magistrate compromised if such word were applicable, by giving the prisoner a month in jail. His worship warned Mahaffy if he falls from grace again, and is brought before him, the magistrate Central Prison, Toronto, will be the address for Mahaffy correspondence for some time.

English Speaking Roman Catholics Support Bishop Fallon's Stand

QUIETLY AGREE THAT HIS STAND IN THE BI-LINGUAL CONTROVERSY IS RIGHT.

Teaching is Not Good Says La Presse, Which Declares That Fallon Will Fail as Have Others Who Wish to Bar the French—Can Learn Both.

Montreal, Oct. 19.—English speaking Roman Catholic clergy are quietly supporting Bishop Fallon's stand in the bi-lingual controversy. Interviewed today every English speaking priest with one exception declared, "Good for Fallon, we are with him."

One of the heirarchy attached to the archbishop's ... assures that theoretically Bishop Fallon is right. From a pedagogical standpoint he agrees that bi-lingual education in primary work is unsatisfactory. He thinks it sufficient to introduce the second language as supplemental in advanced classes.

Archbishop Bruchesi being absent from town could not be seen for an expression of his opinion.

La Presse editorially says—We regret that we cannot agree with the opinion of Mgr. Fallon. French Canadians are well able to learn both French and English at the same time, provided they are given the means to do so. This is proven in the Province of Quebec. So French-Canadian will refuse English because he understands that it is necessary, but no French Canadian will consent nevertheless to the abandonment of the French. It is very beautiful to say to the French Canadian with Mgr. Fallon, "Have purely French schools if you wish, but the French Canadians understand well that the one resource is bi-lingual education. It is possible that Mgr. Fallon up to a certain point is right in saying that bi-lingual schools in his diocese are not as successful as might be desirable. But to what is this due? The French Canadians obtain these schools at great trouble and misery and they find all sorts of obstacles in their road.

"Mgr. Fallon paints a pathetic picture of the condition of our Ontario compatriots, but everyone knows that he is not the one to represent matters in a better light than they really are. But without having precisely wished to do so, he has rendered a notable service to the French Canadian cause in making known at last his true attitude. Our compatriots know now what he holds. They will arouse themselves from their torpor, for each one knows how difficult it is to extinguish them when they are on their guard.

Says Peary Didn't Reach The Pole

Berlin, Oct. 19.—Prof. Andreas Galle, the famous German astronomer of Potsdam, today issued a sensational statement, in which he declared that Commander Peary did not reach the North Pole.

Prof. Galle declares that none of Peary's methods for reckoning his position in the far north were reliable, and that even had Peary reached the axis of the earth, he would not have known it.

CANADA'S BIG SURPLUS.

The announcement made by Mr Lemieux in England that Mr Fielding may be expected to announce a £6,000,000 surplus for the year is one which Canadians will note with some satisfaction. A $30,000,000 surplus would be the biggest by a large margin, that Canada has ever known, the record year to date being 1908, when the balance on the right side was something less than $20,000,000. The significance of the sum mentioned by Mr. Lemieux is emphasized by comparing it with the aggregate surpluses of all years from Confederation down to 1896. The sum of these surpluses is less than $40,000,000, and when the deficits, which aggregated over $23,000,000 are deducted, it dwindles to less than $17,000,000.

THE VASTNESS OF INDIA.

For eighty years at least writers have endeavored to bring home to the outside world an knowledge of the vastness of India, but so far as can be perceived have failed. The average man, says the Fortnightly Review, reads what they say, learns up to their figures, tries to understand their descriptions, but fails, for all his labor, to realize what India is—a continent large as Europe west of the Vistula, and with 30,000,000 more people, fuller of ancient nations, of great cities, of varieties of civilization, of armies, nobilities, priesthoods, organizations of every conceivable purpose, from the spreading of great religions down to systematic murder. There are twice as many Bengalese as there are Frenchmen; the Hindostanee, properly so called, outnumber the whites in the United States; the Mahrattas would fill Spain; the people of the Punjab with Scinde are double the population of Turkey, and I have named four of the more salient divisions.

Everything is on the same bewildering scale. The fighting peoples of India, whose males are as big as ourselves and more regardless of death than ourselves, number at least 120,000,000, equal to Gibbon's calculation of the population of the Roman Empire. There are 400,000 trained brown soldiers in the native service, of whom we hear perhaps once in ten years, and 2,000,000 men who think that their proper profession is arms, who would live by arms if they could, and of whom we in England never hear a word. If the Prussian conscription were applied to India we should, without counting reserves or landwehr or any force not summoned in time of peace, have 2,500,000 soldiers actually in barracks, with 900,000 recruits coming up every year—a force with which not only Asia but the whole world might be subdued. There are tens of millions of prosperous peasants whose hoardings make of India the grand absorbant of the precious metals, tens of millions of peasants beside whose poverty Irishs or Sicilians or Connaught men are rich; millions of artisans, ranging from men who build palaces to the men who, nearly naked and almost without tools, do the humblest work of the potter.

Every occupation which exists in Europe exists in India. The industry of the vast continent never ceases for India, with a population in places packed beyond European precedent, imports nothing either to eat or drink, and but for the Europeans would import nothing whatever. She is sufficient to herself for everything save silver. Amid these varied masses, these 250,000,000, whose varied descriptions would fill volumes, the tide of life flows as vigorously as in Europe. There is as much labor, as much contention, as much ambition, as much crime, as much variety of careers, hopes, fears and hatreds. It is still possible for a moneyless Indian to become Vizier of a dynasty older than history, or Finance Minister of a new Prince whose personal fortune in hard cash is double that of the late Emperor William, or abbott of a monastery richer than Glastonbury ever was, owner of an estate that covers a country, head of a firm whose transactions may be vie with those of the Barings or Bleichroders. One man, Jula Pershad by name, fed and transported the army which conquered the Punjab.

THE SUFFERERS IN THE RAINY RIVER DISTRICT.

The destruction of human life and of property by fire in the Rainy River district is of such proportions as to cause every thinking mind to realize the inadequacy of language to express the suffering which has been caused and the devastation which has been wrought. The descriptions of the progress of that devastation in the fire-swept region bring home to us a realization of the powerlessness of man before the mighty forces of destruction there are in Nature, when those forces once get headway. Many lives have been lost, whole families perishing, and property to the value of many millions have been destroyed.

The plight of the survivors is pitiful in the extreme. The experiences of terror and distress through which they have passed have been such as to arouse the sympathy of every feeling heart, especially for the women and children.

HUNTING RARE ORCHIDS

IT HAS LURED INNUMERABLE COLLECTORS TO DEATH.

Terrible Dangers Constantly Menace the Man Who Seeks the Beautiful Tropical Plants—It is a Task For the Dauntless and Only a Small Percentage of the Men Survive—Cruel Disappointments.

Orchid hunters continually face hardships and terrible dangers and many a collector has paid for his daring with his life. The rarer specimens of these plants are generally found in the wildest depths of tropic forests. They abound in the greatest profusion in the hot, damp parts of the West and East Indies, in Madagascar and other islands in the same region, in the moist forests of Brazil, the warm parts of Central America and western Mexico. Not dependent on the soil for their nutriment, they are mostly found clinging to the trunks and branches of trees and to stones and crags where they vegetate among ferns and other shade-loving plants.

Warmth and moisture are essential to orchids, and warmth and moisture in tropical countries are synonymous with miasma and fever. Wild animals also, and poisonous serpents, abound in the umbrageous depths wherein the rarer varieties lie hidden.

One firm of orchid importers reported a year or two ago that they had five collectors killed in as many months by the wild tribesmen of the western Himalayan slopes; while three others, even more unfortunate, were made prisoners and carried off to undergo the nameless horrors which have from time immemorial been characteristic of Central Asian slavery. If the pay is big, the risks an orchid hunter runs are correspondingly great. Cutting his way through tangled forests, wading often up to the waist through stagnant swamps, always on his guard against beasts and still more savage men, the orchid hunter earns every penny of his money. Even the natives avoid the districts into which the intrepid collector penetrates.

A few years ago eight orchid hunters met at Tamatave, and then separated in search of specimens. Within a year only one of them survived and he had spent months in the most pestilential swamps, from which he emerged with his health impaired. One of the others had been captured by the native priests, who drenched him with oil and burned him to death on the altar.

M. Hamelme, one of the most successful of all collectors, and the discoverer of many new orchids in the little-known island forests of Madagascar, tells how, in these regions, "not only was our party exposed to the risk of being strangled by hostile and ferocious tribesmen a fate which befell many a poor fellow belonging to our expedition but we had to struggle almost night and day against the wild animals that haunt these primeval forests." He himself, in the same country, had to go through the ceremony of being made "brother-in-blood" to King Moyambassa in order to penetrate the interior of the island, an honor which nearly cost him his life.

Speaking of wild animals he says: "The most terrible of all is the fossa (a carnivorous beast related to the cat tribe), against which we had constantly to be on guard. One of these animals caused the death of the brother-in-law of the king, a fine, handsome, well-built man. It pounced upon his shoulder, rending the flesh from his back, and mangling him in a frightful manner. Being 'brother-in-blood' to the king, and thus a relative of the deceased man, I had to take part in the funeral ceremony and worse than that I had to obey their laws, which command that if any one has the moral responsibility of an accident, and death is the result of it especially of a relative—he has the choice of being greased and burned alive or of taking the whole family of the deceased and of marrying his wife.

When a hunter finds an orchid there are three ways of getting it. He may cut down the tree to which it clings, he may lasso the branch or limb on which it hangs and draw it to him, or he may cut a sapling, lean it against the tree and climb up and bring down the plant. As a precaution against snakes and scorpions, which are as often found in trees as anywhere else, cutting down the tree is with most orchid hunters the favorite method of securing the coveted plant.

In addition to the dangers and difficulties inseparable from the actual finding of the orchid, there are innumerable troubles ahead of the indefatigable collector before his work is done. The difficulties of getting it out of the country and safely on a home-going boat are almost insuperable and nothing but the most indomitable perseverance could overcome it. Occasionally an unforeseen circumstance robs a collector of the spoils for which he has so strenuously striven. The cruel luck of one unfortunate hunter would be hard to beat. After months of ceaseless toil, exposed to the usual risks and hardships of his profession occasionally wading up to his waist in mud and at other times venturing into almost inaccessible places he at last succeeded in collecting between 3,000 and 4,000 orchids of an exquisitely beautiful and rare species. His delight knew no bounds, and with all possible haste he commenced his tortuous journey back to the seaboard, where his precious and dearly-won floral treasures would be shipped to England.

His plants safely on board, that very night a fire broke out in the hold of the vessel and not a single plant was saved. The collector was nearly distracted when he realized what had happened. With a heavy heart he wired to his employers: "Collection destroyed by fire. What shall I do?" Back came the mandate from the disappointed orchid importers: "Go back at once!" And back he went, with the rainy season at hand, to perhaps the wettest country under the sun.

Grand Trunk Engineers.

For the past few weeks a committee representing the engineers of the Grand Trunk Railway System has been in conference with the superintendent of motive power. So quietly did they carry on their negotiations that although twenty-six of them were domiciled at a Montreal hotel for weeks there has been no publicity about the matter. The negotiations were carried on with the best of good feeling on both sides and now, it is pleasant to record that an agreement has been reached satisfactory to all concerned. The engineers asked for a substantial increase of pay, amounting it is understood to something like 12 per cent. The Grand Trunk was willing from the first to grant them an increase and the result of friendly negotiations is the agreement concluded Thursday. The representatives of the engineers left for their home Friday last entirely satisfied with the result of their mission to Montreal.

160 acres of absolutely proven oil land on Sulphur Mountain, adjoining and between the Liberty and Puritan Oil Companies' property. Ten miles from Santa Paula, Ventura Co., Calif.

FACTS—The property is absolutely proven territory, lying as it does with the UNION OIL CO. producing on the south, the LIBERTY OIL CO. producing on the west, the RARD OIL CO. producing on the north, which only recently erected its 30th rig, and Puritan Oil Co. to commence drilling on the east. Also it is located in a district of BIG PRODUCING COMPANIES, such as Ojai Petroleum, Pyramid Oil Co., Canadian Gusher, Capital Creek, Rard Oil and Asphalt Co., and others. THERE'S NO QUESTION ABOUT THIS COMPANY GETTING OIL. It is possible that Liberty Oil Company's new well will be a gusher, which would make the ATLANTA OIL COMPANY stock worth $10 per share. Mr. Cornell, our Superintendent, knows every foot of the ground, and having his log book of Liberty property, which adjoins our land, and an experienced OIL MAN and we consider ourselves fortunate in obtaining his services. VENTURA CO. OIL represents the cream of the industry. It is the home of HIGH GRAVITY OIL. VENTURA COUNTY OIL means $1.00 a barrel at well. Costs from 3c to 4c to produce it. THE GREAT UNION OIL CO. got its start in VENTURA CO. and has paid over twenty-two millions in dividends. These GREAT ASSETS had a small beginning in the WILD BELL GUSHER, within EIGHT OF ATLANTA OIL CO. property. The demand for refining oil FAR EXCEEDS THE SUPPLY. The 3 refineries in California are crying for the product. The eastern high gravity fields are diminishing. The OHIO FIELDS, FOR INSTANCE, have fallen off one-third. The demand is caused by the increased market for gasoline. Throughout the world the number of automobiles and internal combustion gasoline engines is forcing up the price of high gravity crude petroleum. Eastern operators are now looking to VENTURA COUNTY, which are held to be the most productive known. THIS IS THE FIRST ANNOUNCEMENT of ground floor offering of ATLANTA OIL CO., and may be overwhelmed at any time. One day's delay may mean you are too late. ACT NOW. WRITE FOR LATEST NEWS OF VENTURA OIL FIELDS.

RAILWAY REGULATIONS.

Although there was little novelty in the railways' presentation of their case for the advance of their rates, there was much that was novel in the shippers' contentions. In Chicago it was testified by one railway that forty million dollars of earnings had been put back into the property. In this city it was testified that some thirty-five millions of dollars of earnings had been expended upon the new Pennsylvania terminal. This was in accord with the formerly approved rule of practice by the best roads—"a dollar for dividends and a dollar for betterments. It was this principle of plowing the earnings back into the property which has kept down the capitalization of American railways at the same time that their rates have not risen with other prices for services and goods.

Onthis formerly approved principle the shippers' counsel joined issue, taking their cue, it must be admitted, from certain rulings of the Inter-State Commerce Commission. These improvements made from earnings were regarded as grievances, and in themselves a proof of extortion. It was asserted as a right that the roads should reduce their rates by whatever sums of earnings they have been accustomed to devote to improvements. Even the misfortunes of the railways were imputed to them for a fault. For example, it was alleged that because one road had lost large sums by equipment fraud, and had prospered nevertheless, therefore it had overcharged by the amount it had lost by embezzlement, and should be held to reduce its rates by the amount of its losses. The broad position of those assuming to act for the general public is that the railways should be allowed to charge no more than would just prevent their setting up a defence of confiscation. And, in estimating the permissible income the railways are held by these spokesmen to be entitled to no more than a reasonable income upon the amount of their own funds which they have devoted to the public use.

These gentlemen seem in some danger of winning a battle and losing a campaign. It is conceivable that they may prevent an advance in rates, and come to regret the consequent lack of vitality in the railways. American roads are far from having attaind their growth. They are in need not only of income enoughto sustain their life but togstimulate their growth. There is a certain justice in having the funds necessary for their growth contributed by those whose patronage of the railroads is a source of profit, rather than by the general public whose gainfrom the railways is less direct. If the railways are held to capitalize their betterments, and must borrow the money, interest must be paid on the money borrowed, and the rates must be adequate to pay the interest and provideing a sinking fund for the establishment of the debt. As interest and sinking fund must come from earnings, it would seem to come to the same thing in the end.

Whatever the merit of this argument on either side it is plain that a new light is thrown upon what is thought to be regulation of rates. Heretofore it has been thought that the function of government was merely to assure that rates were reasonable and just, that is, neither extortionate nor discriminatory, toward either persons or places. If the position assumed on behalf of shippers is sustained there is no detail of the management of the railroads too trivial for examination and control.

Indiana W.C.T.U.

ARE CO RELATED.

Newspapers Play a Prominent Part In the Education of School Children.

Toronto, Oct. 18 There is a movement on foot in many of the largest cities to have the reading of newspaper a part of the pupils' study.

Newspapers and the Public schools are naturally co-related. It is not surprising, therefore, that in Chicago there is a movement to educate the children in newspaper reading. The average boy studying history has an idea that the end of the book is the end of all things. The death of Queen Victoria closes his knowledge. The assumption of the book and of the boy who uses it seems to be that nothing happening nowadays is worth bothering about. Surely it should be fully as interesting to watch the making of history as to consider the finished product. Many people miss the romance in the next street because they are straining their vision to catch the romance of good King Arthur's golden time. The boy who knows the main facts about the French Revolution should not be permitted to remain ignorant of the successful rising in Portugal.

Yet too many boys and girls are not encouraged to read newspapers either at school or at home. It is regarded as father's perquisite. Like his pipe and his dress pumps, the paper too, often is a personal possession. Yet the modern newspaper is the product of observation keener and more accurate than that of most bookish historians. The news is written by men who have a quick appreciation of human interest and often a polished style of writing.

So far as war correspondence is concerned, the public is well educated. In a war year, newspaper circulation goes booming. But the battle artists are not the only men who write true literature and vivid history for the daily papers. The news associations maintain men of the highest ability at all the foreign capitals. They write of diplomatic tangles, they have the confidence of eminent men in close touch with the governments. The story of the Messina earthquake, for instance was a splendid sample of peace-reporting. The Portuguese Revolution, the troubles in Barcelona, the unrest in Egypt, the young Turks and their program, all these stories were clearly and tersely told. The cable news of one day is aglow with romance, which no healthy minded boy or girl should miss.

As for our own country and its development, the newspaper is the only channel of information. Books would be out of date before they were printed. The Ottawa Press Gallery is a credit to the newspapers of any country. The Western correspondents are alert and accurate. Local news, which is a sort of glorified gossip and therefore of intense interest, is well written and attractively presented. When a girl reads only the social column and a boy is satisfied with the sporting page alone they are likely to become as one sid ed as the man who reads only the political leaders—to make sure that the editor agrees with him.

VOLLON'S PUMPKIN.

A Painting That Drove Parisian Artists Into Hysterics.

It is a part of the duty of the official picture hanger of the Societe des Artistes Francais to distribute the canvases which are offered for the Paris Salon throughout the rooms of the Palais des Beaux Arts. The jurors are then summoned to examine these and commend or condemn as they see fit. The artists are at liberty to appeal to the jurors, and an influential artist can make trouble for the picture hanger. In this connection a story is told of Vollon, the painter of still life.

Some years ago Vollon had painted what he deemed his masterpiece, a luxurious pumpkin, orange in color and heroic in size, such as one sees at an agricultural show. The jurors did not approve the official picture hanger's choice of a place for it. A second choice also was found for it and condemned.

By this time the pumpkin had become the principal topic of conversation in all the studios of Paris, and the leading artists began to look in at the Salon to make sure that their exhibits were not being injured by an unfortunate contrast. One—Bouguereau—nearly fainted with horror on seeing the pumpkin not far from his pictures. "Take that thing away!" he shouted; "it kills my white and pink nymphs!"

So the pumpkin was removed. But here Cormon objected. He declared that it should not stay in the same room with his pictures. "Its juxtaposition to my lions and boars and tigers," said he, "makes them look like tame cats."

Taffegrain was the next artist to protest. "Don't place it near my work!" he exclaimed angrily. "What becomes of the martial spirit of my canvases, and what is the use of exhibiting starving garrisons with a big pumpkin alongside?"

So the pumpkin was shifted about till it had passed through fifteen rooms, and not a member of the society would tolerate its presence. Finally the picture hanger placed the pumpkin in the entrance hall, officially called "Salle d'Honneur," but popularly dubbed the "Chamber of Horrors." Naturally Vollon became the mortal enemy of the unhappy picture hanger.—Harper's Weekly.

OYSTERS ARE LAZY.

Just like confirmed invalids, oysters spend their lives in beds. The principal parts of an oyster are salt water and a handsome stomach.

Every oyster has a mother-of-pearl lined overcoat with the moss on the outside. But a Waldorf-Astoria oyster gathers no moss.

Oysters, as a rule, keep their mouths shut, but when they have been in society too long they begin to gape. They are fond of playing games, one of their favorites being ring-around-a-rosy. In this game they join shells in a circle on a plate. They live in the ocean in summer and during the winter months frequent the principal hotels and restaurants, where they have reserved seats on cakes of ice specially prepared for them. They are rarely met with at huskings or church fairs.

An oyster is a conchologist by nature, a bivalve by profession and an appetizer because he cannot help himself. There are girl oysters as well as men oysters; but, so far as is known, one is not superior to the other.

Oysters vary in size according to their circumstances and their bringing up. Some are harder to swallow than others. There is no particular rule about this. But if at first you don't succeed, try, try again.

In June the oysters ought to be as rare as the days.—Thomas L. Masson in Judge's Library.

About Blackheads.

Blackheads are among the most trying blemishes. They are ugly and give the appearance of lack of cleanliness. Sometimes they do indicate that not sufficient care has been taken in washing the skin and removing the impurities, but there are times when they are due to some internal disorder, and then a physician should be consulted. A lotion which can beapplied externally and which is said to be very beneficial is made as follows: Pure brandy, three ounces; cologne, one ounce; liquid potassa, one-half ounce. Apply at night after washing the face thoroughly with soap and water.

Presentation to Dr. Luttrell.

Dr. Sam Luttrell, who has been conducting evangelistic meetings at Park Street church for the past two weeks, has been presented with a purse of gold and an address at the church by the congregation and Helping Hand Bible class. The recipient responded to the presentation in a few well chosen words.

A Good Prisoner.

"Jeff," a valuable cattle dog, belonging to some one at Norwood is a prisoner. Constables Adams and Newhall effected the capture. "Jeff" has been in town since the Peterborough Fall Fair. He is an exemplary prisoner, gives no trouble, costs the county little to keep him, still the man owning "Jeff" should call and take him home.

Rev. Father O'Sullivan Coming.

Rev. Father O'Sullivan of Port Hope, founder of St. Peter's Total Abstinence Society, and editor of the Catholic Record, will deliver his inaugural address at the meeting of the Ladies' Literary Society at the Lyceum tomorrow night. It is altogether likely that this eminent orator will be heard by a crowded house. The evening's proceedings will be enlivened by a good musical program.

Lieut. Comstock Entertains.

At a very enjoyable banquet given by Lieut. Comstock, to the members of Company C of the 57th Regiment, at the armories, Sergt. Adams gave a song, followed by one from Sergt. Steadman. Col.-Sergt. Soucie's contribution was an enjoyable recitation, and Corporal Webb made a bright speech. Lieut. Comstock explained the good to be gained by a young man joining the local regiment.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury.

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used, except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. LITTLE LOCAL LINES

Section Foreman Noyes of the G.T.R. Belleville Peterborough line has discovered wild strawberries growing and ripening near the city.

By request the picture "The Cid," which made such a favorable impression yesterday and the previous day at the Crystal, will be repeated again today. Miss Guerin will sing.

Two of last year's competitors in the Examiner road race will enter again this year. They are Morris Montgomery and Chauncey Knapp.

No good people. They have not struck oil as yet. The smell that gave you a headache yesterday was caused by the crude oil, put by the city on George street.

The officers of that admirable body the Children's Aid Society, are arranging to have a "Tag Day," in support of that institution. This would, no doubt result in a good round sum for a worthy object.

HALL'S BRIDGE.

Weather very fine and warm.

Threshing is nearly finished and reports are that the grain has yielded good this year.

Misses Maguires of Lakefield, spent a couple of days last week with Miss Ruby Jones.

Miss Rose Blewett spent Saturday in the village.

Messrs. R. Howden of Peterborough, and J. Chesney took quite a herd of cattle to Peterborough last week which was purchased from Lakehurst and Rockcroft farmers.

WHAT'S THE USE.

To Keep a "Coffee Complexion."

A lady says: "Postum has helped my complexion so much that my friends say I am growing young again. My complexion used to be coffee colored, muddy and yellow but it is now clear and rosy as when I was a girl.

"I was induced to try Postum by a friend, who had suffered just as I had suffered from terrible indigestion palpatation of the heart and sinking spells.

"After I had used Postum a week I was so much better that I was afraid it would not last. But now two years have passed and I am a well woman. I owe it all to leaving off coffee and drinking Postum in its place.

"I had drank coffee all my life. I suspected that it was the cause of my trouble, but it was not until I actually quit coffee and started to try Postum that I became certain; then all my troubles ceased and I am now well and strong again."

Gypsy Explains Re His Band.

Yesterday afternoon four gentlemen, with bizarre rainment and sunburnt faces took in the town. They were gypsies belonging to the band camped at the "Four Corners," about a mile and a half out of the city. The evident leader of the band, talking with a Times representative, said that his "band" had been misrepresented in the local press. He remarked that the band he and his pals belonged to had no connection whatever with the band that created so much excitement here last June. There are only eight or ten members of his band, and whilst they have a number of horses to sell or trade they are breaking no laws of the land.

ONTARIO CABINET GRANTS POWER SITE

(Special to The Times.)

Port Hope, Oct. 20.—Col H. A. Ward, K.C., of this place, announces that the Ontario Cabinet today passed an order in council granting lease of land for power site at Burleigh Falls to Central Ontario Power Company. The owners and also lessee of Dominion Government power to have use of canal dam and works.

This will be good news to power users, as it will no doubt mean the early development of this splendid water power. Under the able direction and control of Mr. J. A. Culverwell, the Central Ontario Power Company will now undoubtedly become a reality.

City Manufacturers' Committee in Short Session Last Night

The City's Manufacturers' Committee met last night, with Mayor Morrow, Chairman Duffus, and Alderman Gillespie in their accustomed places.

Mr. Carew, who, as previously announced, is anxious to bore for natural gas here, providing he can get a street franchise for conveyance of same, wrote the city solicitor that as the city has considered the application of others for a similar franchise there would be no need of his going further into the matter till next January. He offered that Mr Hattman had had all the opportunity due him for carrying on his operations agreed upon, and seemed surprised that his application for an extension of time should enter into the question at all. A copy of the solicitor's reply to Mr. Carew was read. The solicitor has enquired of Mr. Carew if he would be willing to accept the terms provided in the Dittman agreement as amended at the time the Landy Shovel and Tool Company's application for a franchise came before the committee. In the agreement now drawn up by the Manufacturers' Committee, the city's interests are pretty thoroughly protected, and the committee's attitude so far points to the conclusion that this agreement is open to all comers.

THE WATER COMMISSIONERS.

Another Communication Regarding a Recent City Expenditure.

To the Ecitor of The Times.

Sir,—An amazing article signed E. V. Frederick, appeared in the Examiner of the 19th inst., and it is safe to predict, that as a strange literary effort, that article will stand unrivalled until the judgment day. In his communication to the Examiner E. V. makes many erratic assertions but he does not think it worth while to offer any proof. For instance, he charges the writer with throwing mud at the Water Commissioners. It would be well if this gentleman knew the difference between mud and criticism. If E. V. will read the article he complains of, he will see his mistake. No one is throwing mud at the Water Commissioners. But we repeat that the ratepayers of Peterborough are displeased with those gentlemen, for what is considered a foolish and unwarranted misappropriation of the city funds. Towards the close of his unique article E. V. depicts an objectionable character, and then he tells us that "We have too many of this kind still left here in all walks of life." This is a curious sentence, which we think could hardly be surpassed in any of the bilingual schools.

We will make no attempt to follow our literary friend in his devious remarks, and we would only say, that in looking over his article in the Examiner, one is painfully impressed, with the conviction that in his youth E. V. Frederick has had the misfortune to be too familiar with a muck rake; and it is said that no matter how much one rubs the gridiron, it will continue to emit the odor of the herring.

RATEPAYER.

Chased Muskrat in Delerium.

This little story is absolutely true, and is given, not from a literary standpoint, so much as from the view of common sense temperance argument. Last night a man well-known to many Peterborough citizens, stopped a representative of The Times, and told this yarn. "Do you know that last night just in front of ——'s dry goods store I saw a big muskrat run out on the pavement. I took my umbrella and knocked the rat over. Thinking its skin was valuable, I carried the rat by its tail up George street, west on Hunter street to Pulkinghorne's livery stables. Here the musk rat suddenly sprang from my hand and rushed down Aylmer street. I got a livery rig and, following the rat caught it at Grady's bakery. The whole explanation of the chase was an aftermath resulting from an over use of stimulants. Not much of a story, but a great temperance argument as the story is absolutely true.

Boys Wanted!

To fill fine positions at good salaries as Stenographers, Bookkeepers, Secretaries Invoice Clerks and Office Assistants.

We Can't Supply the Demand for ambitious boys who have had our training. We have on file an even dozen unfilled calls from the leading business houses for such boys, at salaries ranging from $6.00 to $12.50 a week to start. We can't fill these vacant positions because, all our boys are employed at good salaries. What we want is more boys to educate for these and other good paying positions. We need some bright girls too.

Fined for Manslaughter

North Bay, Oct. 20.—W. R. Montgomery, convicted of manslaughter in causing the death of Elmer Kline, in ejecting him from his hotel in New Liskeard, was fined $500 and released on Suspended sentence by Judge Teetzel this morning.

EX-SENATOR HILL DIES IN ALBANY

MAN WHO DROVE GROVER CLEVELAND OUT OF NEW YORK STATE PASSES AWAY.

His Last Call for Honesty—Made a Speech a Few Weeks Ago Pleading for Higher Life.

For two weeks he had been ill with a cold and complications. There was a recurrence of the lung trouble of four years ago. Last week the senator's condition was serious but he seemed to improve this week. Yesterday he was in good spirits. Dr. McFarland saw no cause for apprehension, when he called at the senator's residence, but Mr. Hill's age and the tax upon his vitality brought about a sudden change during the night and he died at 3.45 o'clock this morning. The only person in attendance at the time was the senator's nurse.

Senator Hill's last public appearance was in Elmira several weeks ago, where he made a speech in which he pleaded for a return to "old time principles of honesty in public life." It was noticed at the time that he appeared very feeble, and the ravages of time were very marked.

You are not experimenting on yourself when you take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for a cold as that preparation has won its great reputation and extensive sale by its remarkable cures of colds, and can always be depended upon. It is equally valuable for adults and children and may be given to young children with implicit confidence as it contains no harmful drug. Sold by all dealers.

NOTORIOUS DR. CRIPPEN IN THE BOX---DFENCE SCORES

DOCTOR TOOK THE STAND TO REFUTE THE CHARGE THAT HE MURDERED HIS WIFE.

Defence Points Out That Dr. Crippen Has Always Borne a High Reputation in Social and Business Life—Nothing Has Been Shown Against His Character—Is Belle Elmore Crippen Alive?

London, Oct. 20.—The climax was reached in the sensational Crippen murder case this afternoon when Dr. H. H. Crippen took the witness stand to refute the charge that he had murdered his wife, Belle Elmore Crippen, that he might marry his pretty typist, Ethel Claire LeNeve.

A day of dramatic incidents in the case was reached at four o'clock when the defence called the little prisoner to the witness stand.

NOTHING AGAINST CHARACTER

"The prosecution suggests that this prisoner became a fiend for mercenary motives," exclaimed Mr. Tobin, addressing the court in the defense. "But I wish to point one prominent feature, and that is that Dr. Crippen has always borne a high reputation in social and business life, nothing has ever been said against his character.

"Crippen had no money motive to commit the crime with which he is charged.

"Does this man wear a hunted look?" cried Tobin in dramatic fashion, pointing his finger at the dapper Crippen.

The prisoner looked straight ahead as court, jury, counsel and every spectator in the room stared at him in the silence which followed.

NO TRACE OF KNIFE.

"The prosecution has not established the fact that Crippen purchased the quicklime in which the remains were buried, nor has any trace of axe or dissecting knife with which the body must have been mutilated, been discovered," continued the lawyer.

"No trace of them were found in the cellar of the Crippen home or elsewhere."

IS BELLE ELMORE ALIVE?

The counsel then played an oratorival trump card.

"Who knows whether Belle Elmore is dead or alive?" he shouted.

"That is something which the jury must know before it can condemn any man for her murder."

"We know that Belle Elmore Crippen threatened to leave her husband, and Crippen declares that this threat was fulfilled.

Police Have no Clue

(Special to The Times.)

Niagara Falls, Ont., Oct. 19.—Today the police declare that they were entirely at sea as to the identity or whereabouts of the unknown man who last night shot and mortally wounded Mrs. Maud Washington. They have no clue to work on and every officer in the city is actively engaged in the investigation.

The shooting took place in a vacant lot within a block and a half of the woman's home. A number of suspects were locked up last night but allowed to go this morning. The woman has not regained consciousness and Dr. Olmstead, who is inattendance, declares that she cannot recover.

RAZOR STRAP USED ON BABY

EVIDENCE AT INQUEST THAT ITALIAN ABUSED THE SQUALLING LITTLE ONE.

Mother Denies the Story—But Neighbors Tell of Her Own Statements—Evidence by Doctor.

Hagersville, Oct. 20.—Evidence that Sam Ponessa used a razor strop to punish his infant child, was given here last night at the corner's inquest. The verdict returned was "That the death of the infant son of Samuel Ponessa was hastened by violence at the hands of some person or persons to them unknown.

Dr. Holmes testified that he found livid marks on the child's forehead face and back, which could easily have been caused by a strap. The body was that of a child which had suffered from inattention or want of proper nourishment. "I would say without hesitation that the child suffered violence before death, and that death was undoubtedly hastened by violence," said Dr. Holmes.

Mrs. Edith Rispin, who lives near the Ponessa's, said she was well acquainted with the Italian family, and had been told by Mrs. Ponessa that her husband had abused the child, and would not buy food for it. She had even shown her a razor strop which he is said to have used on the child.

THE PROSECUTION FINISHED YESTERDAY DEFENCE SCORED SCIENTIFIC POINT IN THE EVIDENCE YESTERDAY.

Counsel for Crippen Says He Will Prove That Mark on Piece of Human Flesh is Not a Scar and That the Poison Found in the Remains Might Be Animal Alkaloid and Not a Drug Taken During Life.

"When Mr. Crippen finally disappeared after the bitter quarrel," said Tobin, "Dr. Crippen foolishly began a campaign of lies to cover the scandal. His only desire was to save his good name. There was nothing criminal in what he did. All of those lies which he told, and we all admit that they were lies, raised prejudice and suspicion against him.

"What is more natural for him to do than flee?

TO PROTECT MISS LE NEVE.

"And what was more natural than he should take Miss Le Neve with him? Her name was being linked with his in the accusations and he thought too much of the girl to leave her unprotected. It was her interest and her welfare which prompted him to persuade her to leave the country.

Then Mr. Tobin moved toward the jury box and spoke in a very solemn and impressive voice.

"You gentlemen of the jury must be entirely satisfied that the remains found in the cellar at 39 Hilldrop crescent belonged to a woman.

WHAT WAS THE SEX?

"You have heard the testimony of eminent pathologists who state under oath that they had been unable to determine in their own minds whether that mutilated body was of a man or of a woman. And further more you must be convinced that they belonged to Belle Elmore Crippen before you can convict this man.

"You must remember that the scientists who testified that they could not tell from anatomical grounds were the remains were of a male or a female were retained by the prosecution, and not by us.

Speaking of the scar upon the piece of human flesh taken from the body, Tobin explained "And suppose it did come from the wound made by an operation, is it not possible for a man to have an operation as well as a woman?"

Preparatory Steps for The Big Convention in February Next

OVER 600 HARDWARE MEN AND STOVE DEALERS WILL NEED TO BE ACCOMMODATED.—AN EVENT TO LOOK FORWARD TO WITH PLEASURE.

"Information" Cards With Map of City for Use of Visitors Will Be Printed and Distributed Among Delegates to the Convention.

The Reception and Legal Committee of the City Council met last night.

There were present Mayor Morrow, Chairman Ald. Duffus, Aldermen Gillespie and Buller.

Fire Chief Howard wrote, suggesting that the Provincial Association of Fire Chiefs, be invited to hold their next annual convention in Peterborough. Chief Howard is secretary of the association, which meets in Toronto on October 31st and November 1st. Orillia is making a strong bid for the next annual convention.

The chairman was instructed to forward, through Chief Howard, an invitation for the Provincial Fire Chiefs to meet at Peterborough in annual convention next year.

R. N. Scott's claim for $25 expenses incurred by his traction engine breaking through a bridge in Ashburnham, was referred to the city solicitor.

The committee were inclined to think the city should have a counter claim against Scott for damages to said bridge.

BILL FOR REFRESHMENTS.

Fire Chief Howard sent in a bill for $8, expended in refreshments for Midland Oddfellows and Firemen's excursion here last summer. As the committee had not authorized this expense account they washed their hands of all responsibility therefore, and turned the matter over to the Fire, Water and Light Committee, in hope that Chairman Ald. Morgan may know something of the incident.

BIG CONVENTION NEXT FEBRUARY.

Mr. W. Wrigley, secretary of the Ontario Retail Hardware and Stove Dealers' Association, assuming that the City's Reception Committee will assist in getting visiting hardware men accommodation next February, when over 600 members of the trade, will meet here in convention. The letter went on to say that Mr. Wrigley had written our various hotels for information as to the number of guests they can accommodate, and their rates, but had received replies from but three—the Oriental, National and the Grand. The writer therefore, asked for such data to be furnished by some city authority. He also suggested that a card be got out, one side bearing the names of Peterborough's various hotels, the number of guests each can accommodate, together with rates, and the other side, bearing map of business section, showing location of railways, the various hotels, the armories, Collegiate Institute, city hall, hardware stores, hardware manufacturing institutes. This card to be distributed to visitors on their arrival.

The chairman was authorized to comply with the requirements of the above association. All necessary data will be prepared and forwarded, together with sketch of a map to be printed on inside of "information" card for use of visitors. The association will bear the expense of printing such card.

Buffalo, Oct. 20.—Medical Examiner Danser today instructed Justice Davidson of Alden to hold an inquest into the shooting of Miss Martha L. Pope, a 17-year old girl, near that place late yesterday afternoon.

The girl was walking in the woods with Frank Lowney, 26, to whom she was engaged to be married. See ley Conley, 27, hunting squirrels at the time, mistook the girl's brown hair for a squirrel and fired. Rushing to the spot, he found the girl dead, shot through the head and Lowney kneeling over her prostrate body.

Conley gave himself up to the authorities.

SOUTH HARVEY.

DIED.

MASON—On Thursday, Oct. 20, 1910, Maude, daughter of Mr. Francis Mason. Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

LIFE IMPRISONMENT FOR AMERICAN TRAMP.

Parry Sound, Oct. 19.—Ledis Young, the American tramp who was accused of beating an old farmer named Davis to death while he lay in bed in a local hotel, was today found guilty of manslaughter, and sentenced to life imprisonment.

He used a bottle on his victim's head, and his motive was robbery.

The Crown was about to postpone the trial, owing to the absence of its star witness, when the defence offered to plead guilty to manslaughter.

Court of Revision

Notice is hereby given that the first sitting of the Court of Revision for the City of Peterborough, to hear appeals respecting the assessment of the said city made in 1910 for the year 1911, will be held at the City Council Chambers in the said city on Thursday, the 3rd day of November, 1910, at the hour of 8 o'clock in the evening.

French Emigrant Ship Wrecked in the Gale

CUBAN CYCLONE DROVE IT ON THE SOMBRERO REEF WEST OF KEY WEST.

Key West, Fla., Oct. 20.—The French trans-Atlantic steamer Louisiane from Havre for Havana and New Orleans, is ashore on Sombrero Reef about fifty miles east of here.

About half of her 537 passengers have been brought here and the others are not thought to be in danger.

LIGHTHOUSE BLOWN DOWN.

Havana, Oct. 20.—Although Key West is still cut off from communication with other parts of the United States, the cables to Cuba are working. Despatches received today by La Lucha announce that the principle damage done in Key West by the storm was to the shipping.

The lighthouse on the main ship channel at Key West was blown down by the force of the winds. The Florida East Coast Railway below Miami has been washed out, and it will require a month to place it in repair sufficient to handle trains.

The Norwegian steamer Fos is still stranded at Marquesas Bank. Standard Oil Barge No. 91, has been driven on Sand Key. An unknown schooner has been piled up on the Western Dry Rock.

IN HARD LUCK.

Cavanville Family Has One Boy Shot and Another Has Broken Thigh.

As an illustration of the old saying that "Troubles never come singly," it might be noted that the experience of the Syers family near Cavanville, Ont., corroborates the saying. A few weeks ago as Mrs. Syers, tired from her day's work, was lying down to get a rest, her children got possession of a loaded rifle. In some inexplicable manner, one of the children discharged the weapon, the bullet passing through one knee of Eber, one of the children, and lodging in his other leg. Eber is a patient in the Nicholls Hospital under care of Dr. Halliday. Following this accident, came the news to Mrs. Syers, that her eldest son, 12 years of age, a student at Lindsay High School, whilst wrestling with one of the other boys during the noon hour had fallen, and fractured his thigh. The boy is now in the Lindsay Hospital.

AGAIN REMANDED.

Young Man Charged With Robbery, Held Over for Another Week.

The young man held in connection with the robbery at Edgar's wholesale premises, appeared again before his Worship Magistrate Dumble yesterday morning, and his counsel, Mr. G. N. Gordon, again declined to elect or plead.

A further remand of a week was ordered and the request of Mr. Gordon that the amount of the two sureties be reduced from $500 each to $250 or $300 did not meet with the consent of the Crown attorney.

Mr. Gordon also objected to a further enlargement of the case, and submitted that the Crown should present its reasons for such a step.

Chief Thompson answered that he had good reasons for the enlargement but was not disposed to make them known.

NIAGARA POWER.

A Vast Work Undertaken by the Government.

Toronto, Oct. 20. That Premier Whitney is going a long way to fulfil his promise that "Power should be as free as the air we breathe," is borne out by the official opening of the Hydro Electric power from Niagara Falls at Berlin on Oct. 11.

Niagara power is at the door of the municipalities of Western Ontario, a ready servant. Its energies will be turning the wheels of industry, lighting the marts of commerce and illuminating the home in a score or more of towns and cities in the electric zone before the snow flies.

The Hydro Electric Commission, a state board appointed by the Province of Ontario, with splendid foresight, indomnitable courage, and in the face of strenuous opposition, has woven a web of transmission lines from Niagara Falls to Toronto on the East and Windsor on the West, and Berlin on the North at the behest of a group of 35 municipalities.

It was a vast work undertaken by the people of a state. A unique piece of public ownership, which ensures to Ontario for all time to come cheap power, cheap light and cheap heat.

This power line carries the highest voltage of any line in existence, namely 110,000 volts, and its workings will be an object of interest to electrical engineers over the entire continent.

The official opening of the great public service was held at Berlin, on October 11, and was made the occasion of a three-day demonstration. The Ontario Cabinet, the Hydro Electric Commission, members of the Provincial Legislature, mayors and editors of Canadian and American cities attended.

Berlin was selected as the point at which this demonstration should be held because of the movement to obtain Niagara power for the union of municipalities was launched there and it was the first municipality ready to receive it.

Voice From the Farm.

I'm a happy farmer
I'm in my happy glee;
Every man who makes a speech
Is talking straight to me
Hopes I'm making money,
I'm a regular pet.
Politicians all seem scared
For fear I'll get in debt.

I'm not wearing broadcloth,
I've no horseless rig.
Just the same at present
I am feeling mighty big
It kind o' puts a person
In a satisfying mood.
To find that he's the object
Of so much solicitude.

WELLMAN WILL BRAVE DEATH AGAIN

WELLMAN DISCUSSES PLANS FOR ANOTHER AERIAL TRIP ACROSS THE ATLANTIC.

A New Kind of Airship—The Flight Will Be Made Next August—Wellman to go on a Lecturing Tour.

New York, Oct. 20.—Walter Wellman will brave death again in an other attempt to cross the Atlantic by airship. He made the first announcement of his plan today. He stated that he and Melvin Vaniman, chief engineer of the airship America, in which they tried to cross the ocean, will begin work at once on plans for another air craft in which they intend to make another dash for Europe.

"Our voyage on the America showed us where we were at fault and in our second airship we will map out an entirely different kind of craft," said Mr. Wellman.

"The balloon will be of different shape, and we will eliminate several things that we found were of no practical use."

Wellman said that he and Vaniman had received several offers to lecture which they would accept, and while lecturing formulate the plans for the second voyage.

"The air navigator has been showered with telegrams and cablegrams from aeronautic scientists all over the world congratulating him and his party on their attempt. While talking to the reporter a cablegram of congratulations arrived from the Aero Club of France.

Wellman and Vaniman will make their flight next summer probably in August.

ARKLES WANTED.

Local Police Receive Letter From Detroit Asking Re Missing Man.

The local police have received the following communication from Detroit, Mich., asking as to the whereabouts of Frank Arkles, who left that city on October 3, to come to Peterborough, where he at one time resided.

Up to the present Arkles has not been located. The letter is as follows:

93 12th Street,
Detroit, Mich.

Dear Sir,—Will you kindly look up a man by the name of Frank Arkles who left Detroit, October 3rd, for Peterborough. I have not heard anything of him since. I am very uneasy about him. If you find him please answer at once, for I am afraid that something has happened to him.

The last word he told me, he would write as soon as he arrived there, and that is why I am so uneasy.

Please locate him if possible for me and oblige.

Yours truly,
Mrs. J. Adair.

THE VANISHING RED MAN.

The annual announcement is made at Ottawa as to the number of Indians in Canada. Despite the impressions to the contraty which stubbornly prevail abroad, there are less than 87,000 red men in the Dominion, and only about 385,000 in Canada and the United States. Two centuries of white man's conquest were effectual in dispossessing the aborigines, and white man's habits have completed the work of destruction. The Indian cannot thrive in civilization.

The fact that the enumeration in Canada shows a slightly larger population than that reported for the previous years is not especially significant. The Indian is vanishing. Apparent increases in numbers are due largely to the discovery of new bands or remnants of bands in the more remote sections of the country. The red men who mingle freely with their white brothers are succumbing one by one to tuberculosis and strong drink.

The fate of the Canadian Indian is one of the sacrifices to the march of civilization not particularly pleasant to contemplate. Nothing which may be said as to the mercilessness and savagery of these people in earlier days can alter the fact that the land was theirs by right of possession, and that the white man deprived them of it by force of arms and stole their inheritance by guile when he did not take it by force. He gave them the Bible with his right hand and the whiskey flask with his left. They preferred the flask. He taught them to forsake their tents, and they died by thousands in the houses which he encouraged them to acquire.

The bison and the Indian are gone, or almost so. The forest is going. Streams are dwindling, and swamps have become pasture fields. The Canada of today would hold some strange revelations for the early explorers, could they once more return to see the handiwork of succeeding generations.

ROOSEVELT ON TARIFF.

Says He Had Nothing to Do With Drawn-up Platform.

Hot Springs, Ark., Oct. 10.—Theodore Roosevelt got here at eight o'clock this morning after a 27-hour trip from Atlanta. He is to stay here until 5.30 o'clock, when he leaves for St. Louis, for a twenty-four hour stop. Col. Roosevelt reiterated, in a talk on the train this morning as it neared Hot Springs, the declaration he made at Atlanta on Saturday night, that he was not to be held accountable for the tariff plank in the Saratoga platform.

"I have already made my attitude with respect to the tariff known in my western speeches and in those at Saratoga and Syracuse," said the ex-president. "The Saratoga plank was not of my making. I have not changed my position on the tariff."

The ex-president, it was reported this morning would come out in his speech at Indianapolis next Thursday with a severe arraignment of the Payne-Aldrich law. His Indianapolis speech will be an effort to help along the candidacy of United States Senator Beveridge. John Kern who is opposing Beveridge, has stated on the stump that Roosevelt has straddled the tariff question by proclaiming himself as against it in the West and for it in the East through the Saratoga convention plank. The ex-president would not tell how he proposed to handle the tariff question until he gets to Indiana.

"Wait till we are there," quoth the colonel.

If Col. Roosevelt attacks the Payne-Aldrich tariff law in Indiana, it is suggested here that he will find himself in an embarrassing situation when he gets back to New York State to take up the fight for Henry L. Stimson, his candidate for governor.

Col. Roosevelt refused to comment today upon the action of the Indiana Democrats in getting Colonel Wm. J. Bryan to stump Indiana in the trail of the African hunter. Colonel Bryan is to be one day behind Col. Roosevelt, and according to word that has reached the Roosevelt special train, he is to attack Mr. Roosevelt for his attitude with respect to the tariff expressed in the Saratoga platform.

The Critic—In the twelfth chapter of your novel you say, "As Clifford Dangerfield came slowly up the long garden walk Clarissa, with maidenly admiration, gazed upon him."

The Author—Well, isn't that all right?

The Critic—Hardly. How can Clarissa "gaze" after she has been blinded?

The Author—After she has been blinded? What are you talking about?

The Critic—Why, in the previous chapter, in which you describe Clifford's planing mill, you say, "For a long, fascinating minute Clarissa rested her beautiful brown eyes upon the swiftly revolving buzzsaw."

The Oldest Known Bookkeeping.

In the primitive villages of the Andes, scattered through Peru, Bolivia and Ecuador, the descendants of the ancient Incas depend upon the "kipu" for keeping all their accounts. It was in use when Pizarro conquered Peru, and the Andean Indians have never improved on it. It is the oldest known form of bookkeeping. The kipu is simply a collection of knotted strings. Differently colored strings denote different articles in daily use and ten distinct knots the ten numerals. In the absence of a written language it is a marvelously perfect system. Large transactions are conducted as accurately by it as if double entry bookkeeping were employed.

Very Fishy.

She was a fisherman's daughter, she wore her hair in a net, and she preferred love in a piscatorial way.

"My love," he whispered, "you hold first place in my heart!" Although I flounder about in expressing himself, my sole wish is that you will save me from becoming a crabbed old bachelor. I shall stick to you closer than a limpet. From you a wink'll be the road to guide me. Together we will skate over life's rocks, and when I look at your hand beside me I shall say to myself, 'Fortune was mine when I put her-ring there!'"

And then the lady dropped her eyes in sweet confusion and murmured: "Pass the salt."

Didn't Choose Well.

Some years ago a certain candidate, a relative of one of the present New Brunswick Senators, was running for the House of Assembly of that province. One canvass against him was that he was an infidel; and in the course of his nomination speech an opponent who possessed a rather shady business reputation shouted: "You don't believe there is a God."

"Do you, Mr. B.?" asked the candidate.

"Of course I do," replied the opponent.

"Then why have you served the devil all your life?"

The Canary's Claws.

If you have a canary or other cage bird look to its claws from time to time, for in a state of captivity the bird's nails grow so long that they need cutting. If this be neglected the bird is in danger of getting its nails caught in the cage and hanging there till it dies. Use a sharp pair of nail scissors and take care not to cut more than just the tips of the nails. If you hold the bird in a good light you will see a little red "thread" in each nail. This you must avoid, or you will draw blood and hurt your little pet.

The Burning Question.

Venus was rising from the sea.

"Great Jupiter!" cried the men as they crowded the beach. "How did you lose your arms?"

But the women never noticed the arms.

"In the name of all that is wonderful," they chimed, "how do you keep your hair in curl in salt water?"

The Test Star.

What is the farthest limit to which the human vision can reach? Power in his book, "The Eye and Sight," gives the ability to see the star Alcor, situated at the tail of the Great Bear, as the test. Indeed, the Arabs call it the test star.

Title of Royal Highness.

The London Express learns that the style of Royal Highness will shortly be conferred on the brothers of Queen Mary—the Duke of Teck, Prince Francis of Teck, and Prince Alexander of Teck. At present their style is Serene Highness. The late Duke of Teck was granted the style of Highness in 1887.

The Teck family belongs to the Royal House of Wurtemberg, and the present Duke of Teck would be King of Wurtemberg now but for the morganic marriage contracted by his grandfather, Alexander Duke of Wurtemberg, who married, in 1835, Claudius Countess de Rhedey, a member of the Polish nobility.

Prince Frances of Teck, her second brother, who is one of the best-known men in London, is unmarried. Prince Alexander, the third brother, is married to a daughter of the Duchess of Albany.

Echo of the Rebellion.

W. J. McLean, who landed at York Factory in 1869, to enter the employment of the Hudson Bay Company at that place, and who in 1885 was stationed at Fort Pitt, and with his family was a prisoner in Big Bear's camp for 60 days during the rebellion, is now in Montreal. He declares that Inspector Dickens, son of the great novelist, being deaf and incompetent for the position, sent out scouts with Mr. McLean. Had they remained at the fort, McLean is almost sure that an arrangement could have been reached whereby the Indians would have gone back to their reserves. They in fact had about decided to abide by the Hudson Bay agent's advice, when the two policemen came along and upset everything.

Ireland's Blue.

Strange to say, the national color of Ireland is and always has been blue (that is, heraldic blue, ultramarine—not, as some people have thought, sky blue). Green never was the national color of Ireland. The national color is taken from the ground of the arms. In the case of Ireland it is azure, a harp or stringed argent—thus blue is the color for Ireland.—Argonaut.

Bees In Warfare.

Certain Nigerian tribes find bees very useful in warfare. The villagers on retiring before an enemy excite the bees and set them free, and painful is the experience of the man who is attacked by them in the labyrinths of caves which surround the villages.

Grand Trunk Engineers.

For the past few weeks a committee representing the engineers of the Grand Trunk Railway System has been in conference with the superintent of motive power. So quietly did they carry on their negotiations that although twenty-six of them were domiciled at a Montreal hotel for weeks there has been no publicity about the matter. The negotiations werecarried on with the best of good feeling on both sides and now, it is pleasant to record that an agreementhas been reached satisfactory to all concerned. The engineers asked for a substantial increase of pay, amounting it is understood to something like 12 per cent. The Grand Trunk was willing from the first to grant them an increase and the result of friendly negotiations is the agreement concluded Thursday. The representatives of the engineers left for their home Friday last entirely satisfied with the result of their mission to Montreal.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

106 acres of absolutely proven oil land on Sulphur Mountain, adjoining and between the Liberty and Puritan Oil Companies' property. Ten miles from Santa Paula, Ventura Co., Calif.

FACTS—The property is absolutely proven territory, lying as it does with the UNION OIL CO. producing on the south, the LIBERTY OIL CO. producing on the west, the HARD OIL CO. producing on the north, which only recently erected its 30th rig, and Puritan Oil Co. to commence drilling on the east. Also it is located in a district of BIG PRODUCING COMPANIES, such as Ojai Petroleum, Pyramid Oil Co., Canadian Queen, Capital Creek, Hard Oil and Asphalt Co., and others. THERE'S NO QUESTION ABOUT THE COMPANY GETTING OIL. It is possible that Liberty Oil Company's new well will be a gusher, which would make the ATLANTA OIL COMPANY stock worth par. Mr. Cowell, our Superintendent, knows every foot of the ground, and having his log book of Liberty property, which adjoins our land, and an experienced OIL MAN and we consider ourselves fortunate in obtaining his services. VENTURA CO. OIL represents the cream of the industry. It is the home of HIGH GRAVITY OIL. VENTURA COUNTY OIL means $1.50 a barrel at well. Costs from 3c to 6c to produce it. THE GREAT UNION OIL CO. got its start in VENTURA CO. and has paid over twenty-two millions in dividends. These GREAT ASSETS had a small beginning in the WILD BILL GUSHER, within SIGHT OF ATLANTA OIL CO. property. The demand for refining oil FAR EXCEEDS THE SUPPLY. The 35 refineries in California are crying for the product. The eastern high gravity fields are diminishing. The OHIO FIELDS, FOR INSTANCE, have fallen off one-third. The demand is caused by the increased market for gasoline. Throughout the world the number of automobiles and internal combustion gasoline engines is leaving up the price of high gravity crude petroleum. Eastern operators are now looking to VENTURA COUNTY, which are held to be the most extensive known. THIS IS THE FIRST ANNOUNCEMENT of ground floor offering of ATLANTA OIL CO., and may be oversubscribed at any time. One day's delay may mean you are too late. ACT NOW. WRITE FOR LATEST NEWS OF VENTURA OIL FIELDS.

The lumber for the derrick is on the ground and machinery has been ordered. Well No. 1 will be started as soon as drilling is installed. It should not take over six months to complete first well. Well No. 2, by conditions of lease, must be in operation by February 16th, 1911.

TERRIFIC GALE SWEEPS COAST, AND BRITISH STEAMER IS LOST AT SEA.

Twenty-five Bodies Washed Ashore — Many Ships Reported Wrecked — Death Roll May Reach 200—Great Alarm Felt—Many Fishermen are Drowned.

London, Oct. 15—The English and Irish coasts are lined today with wrecks, and grave fears are felt that the hurricane, which is hourly increasing in violence, will claim the largest death toll of this year's gales. Already more than 150 persons are reported to have perished. Many big vessels have either foundered or been driven ashore, while numberless fishing smacks are missing and believed to have sunk.

Corpses are being washed ashore at numerous places. Sixteen passengers and sailors are known to have perished in the foundering of the steamer Heathfield, which went down in the North Sea, while twenty are believed to have died on the steamer Cranford, missing off Hartlepool and believed to have sunk.

Many small groups of three and four fishing boats are reported missing from ports along the coast, and it is almost sure they have been lost for seven large steamers had great difficulty in remaining afloat in the high seas that were running. Telegraph reports from along the coast indicate that more than a dozen big vessels are stranded along the coast and that their crews have been compelled to take to the rigging, because of the seas that are washing over their decks. Grave fears are entertained for the safety of the imperiled mariners, as the seas are running so high the life-savers have been unable to launch their boats.

The gale is increasing in fury, and warnings have been sent to all ports that it is unsafe to venture out.

The bodies of five seamen from the Cranford were picked up. The ship carried a crew of twenty. It is believed the men were attempting to reach shore in a small boat when they were lost. Some of the wreckage coming ashore indicates that a sailing ship met a like fate.

Lifeboats from many points were out all last night, and in some instances effected rescues. In other cases they were unable to reach distressed craft.

ENGLISH LADY WHO SPOKE IN CANADA A YEAR AGO WILL TOUR UNITED STATES.

Women Will Get Votes She Says There's a Good Chance for Equal Suffrage in England.

New York, Oct. 14.—"Women rule the world because they rule the child," said Mrs. Philip Snowden, wife of the chairman of the National Administrative Council of the Independent Labor Party of England, and leading member of the British Parliament here today. Mrs. Snowden is one of the most prominent suffragettes of England, and with her husband is making a tour of the United States.

"The great artist, the great poet, owes more to his mother than to his father," she continued. "He is moulded by woman to mould the thoughts of others. Man will never be other than secondary. But woman's influence, existing as it does, today, without responsibility, is ruling the world very badly. Women need the ballot to rule the world well.

"Those who believe in masculine domination over woman, who see in her a chattel or a servant or man, are, of course, opposed to the idea of sex equality of suffrage. As a matter of fact the chances for women's suffrage in Great Britain are excellent."

Snowden himself is also an ardent supporter of equal suffrage.

"One of the first uses that women will make of the ballot when they have won their right to vote, will be to vote against the tax on foodstuffs. In fact in my estimation the enfranchisement of women would be one of the surest means of reducing the cost of living," he said today.

Sensational Raid on the Redeemable Investment Company.

Boston, Oct. 14. Federal authorities visited the offices of the Redeemable Investment Company yesterday and came away with Manager Charles H. Brooks, the books of the company and several thousand dollars in cash, all taken under a warrant charging the company with the use of the mails in a scheme to defraud.

The Redeemable Investment Company was organized three years ago as a holding company with a capital of $10,000,000.

Circulars found in the office say that the company promotes only those properties of which it is the owner, or of which it has control, and that the stock is not listed, as the company's redemption fund furnished a market for the stock on demand at a price in no case less than the price paid the company together with at least six per cent. for the time it has been issued.

The circulars also say that the company controls the Santo Domingo Mining Company, which is said to own 85 per cent. of the mines of Lahsso, San Domingo, and a ranch of 70,000 acres in the same State, the Norman Plass Lumber Company which claims to own 500,000,000 feet of timber in British Columbia, the Bolton and Canadian Wheat Company having 20,000 acres of land in Canada, and the Okanagan Development Company of Washington.

A Beauty Tip.

When the skin takes on a shiny appearance one should take especial care of it. Rinse the soap off well with water when washing. The face should be dried with a very soft towel. Apply a simple remedy of one dram of boracic acid mixed with four ounces of rosewater. Before the face is quite dry a little powder should be placed on it. Then rub the face gently with a chamois after the powder has dried. In many cases where the blood is not at fault for the condition this remedy will be found entirely sufficient to take away the shiny appearance.

Encouraging Wrinkles.

Have you ever caught a glimpse of yourself in the mirror when you are doing your hair, brushing your teeth or putting the finishing touches to your toilet? If you haven't, just try it once and you will probably see, to your amusement, that you are making horrible grimaces and twisting your forehead into all sorts of frowns and wrinkles while doing these simple duties. Many people encourage wrinkles in this way and when too late to remedy matters wonder how in the world they got them.

A Good Tooth Powder.

Never use a tooth powder with camphor in it. It certainly whitens the teeth for a time, but it makes the enamel so brittle that the teeth are apt to decay very quickly. The best tooth powder to use is simple precipitated chalk. It should be kept in a wide mouthed glass stoppered bottle and can be perfumed by adding a few drops of eau de cologne or any favorite perfume.

Housekeepers' Hands.

If the hands are thoroughly greased with vaseline before using dyes it will prevent the stain penetrating deeply into the skin.

After washing clothes the hands are generally disagreeably rough. If a little olive oil is rubbed well into the skin and left for ten minutes, then rubbed with a cut lemon and well washed with hot water and soap, the hands will become smooth and white again.

The "Arabian Nights."

The collection of tales called the "Thousand and One Nights," or the "Arabian Nights," is of unknown date and authorship. It was first made known in Europe about the end of the seventeenth century by Antoine Galland, who was employed by Colbert to collect manuscripts in the east. The copy of the Arabic manuscript brought by Galland from Syria contained a marginal note dated 1584, and from internal evidence the middle of the fifteenth century has been fixed upon as the probable period of the composition of the work. Some of the tales were evidently borrowed by the writer from other authors, and Von Hammer identifies at least the plot and some of the stories of the "Arabian Nights" with an earlier collection in Persian called the "Thousand Fanciful Stories."

April Fooling.

The origin of the custom of April fooling cannot be traced with any degree of certainty. In the literature of the last century there are found many references to it, and yet beyond that it is scarcely possible to go. One suggestion is that the custom of playing tricks on the first day of April was derived from some ancient pagan custom, such as the Hull festival among the Hindoos or the Roman feast of the fools. One fact, however, we do know, and that is that the practice prevails in many countries under various names which would seem to indicate that it dates away back to the early history of the race.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Four Extremes.

The coldest place on earth inhabited by man is Verkhoyansk, above the arctic circle, in northeastern Siberia. The thermometer there drops to 90 degrees below zero in January, but sometimes rises to 85 degrees above zero in the shade in July, dropping, however, to the freezing point on the warmest summer nights. The hottest place in the world is the interior of the great Sahara desert, in Africa, where the thermometer rises to 122 degrees. The wettest place is Greytown, Nicaragua, where the mean annual rainfall is 200 inches. The place of least rain is Port Nolloth, in South Africa, where less than an inch sometimes falls in a year.

All For Love.

"Did you ever know a girl to die for love?"

"Yes."

"Did she just fade away and die because some man deserted her?"

"No; she just took in washing and worked herself to death because the man she loved married her."—Houston Post.

A Cruel Hint.

Nell—Harry had such a masterful way about his proposing that I liked Belle—Did you? That's queer, for it was exactly what made most of us other girls turn him down.—Baltimore American.

Six Months in Castle Nesbitt.

Francis McGirr, to whom the classic walls of Castle Nesbitt, whose stone walls frown down over Central Park, are as familiar as the hands on a watch are to its face, was yesterday given a six months' ticket good for board and lodging, with privileges of using a buck saw on the jail wood and raking up the leaves in Central Park, as Jack Frost nips them from the maple and oak trees. Francis seems in love with the board and accommodation supplied by Jailor Nesbitt.

Mr. J. W. Leslie, organizer of the National Bill Posters' Association, was in the city yesterday.

Miss Mary Hurley, Charlotte St., formerly of the G.N.W. Co., left yesterday morning for Detroit, where she has accepted a position.

There is little difference in the physical condition of Mr. James Stevenson, ex-M.P., Mr. Stevenson is simply getting weaker daily.

Miss Eva Noyes left for Toronto yesterday morning, where she will spend a couple of weeks, the guest of her brother, Mr. W. H. Noyes, North Parkdale.

An automobile party consisting of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Blakely, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. H. Smith, Mr. Geo. E. Oxley, Mrs. Mann, Donald Mann, and Mrs. Bryden, all of Toronto, were in the city on Wednesday, and registered at the National.

Mr. Charles J. W. Batstone, who has been here for the last three months, compiling a city directory, has gone to his home at Sarnia. He expects that the directory will be ready for delivery in about two weeks. Mr. Batstone made many friends while here.

Mr. W. H. Dunsford, late manager of the Bank of Commerce at Quebec, has arrived in the city, and has assumed the managership of the local branch of the bank. Mr. Dunsford was at one time on the staff of the bank here and will be remembered by many friends.

LITTLE LOCAL LINES

The 57th Regiment Band held a practice last night.

For the second time, this season, the fallen leaves on Victoria Park were garnered up. A pile resembling a minature straw stack was got together and burnt.

The officers of that most estimable and, really venerated body, the Children's Aid Society, are arranging for a tag day in the near future. This is one society, whose efforts, should they be directed in the way of a tag day, will meet with recognition.

Much local interest is being taken in the Crippen trial. The prosecution have finished their case. Hyoscine poison was found, and Dr. Crippen is shown to have purchased hyoscine. Still, the purchase of ten cents worth of gasoline is not sufficient proof that the owner of an automobile has run over a chicken.

Members of the choir of All Saints church are reminded that there is a practice tonight at eight o'clock. A practice tonight at eight o'clock. A full attendance is requested in view of the fact that special music is to be rehearsed for the opening of the new church, which takes place on Sunday next.

Galt, Ont., has had a scare some what reminding one of the dread possessing the minds of mothers in Peterborough with small children. The latter are evidently afraid of the gypsy band camped here. In Galt, a real escaped convict from the Central Prison farm, was at large but fortunately arrested. The gypsy band in Peterborough are about as dangerous as a canary bird suffering with advanced tuberculosis.

Dr. Crippen Assailed Without Mercy by Crown Prosecutor, Richard Muir--One of The Most Terrific Attacks in History of British Law Courts

London, Oct. 21.—The cross-examination of Dr. Crippen, was the most terrific within the memory of barristers who looked on. At times Solicitor Alfred Tobin tried to save his client from the avalanche of questions which rained upon him.

Like the accusing personification of justice, Prosecutor Muir stood directly before the prisoner hurling broadside after broadside at the diminutive prisoner.

London, Oct. 21.—The defence in the trial of Dr. H. H. Crippen for the murder of his wife closed at 3.30 o'clock this afternoon.

All records for speed in a criminal trial have been proven in this case.

London, Oct. 21.—The pitiful figure of Dr. H. H. Crippen, confused, self-damaged and cowering with ing beneath a pitiless rain of questions while he slowly saw his case tottering before him, featured his sensational trial for the murder of his actress wife, Belle Elmore Crippen, in Old Bailey (Court) today.

Under the merciless cross-examination of Prosecutor Richard Muir, Crippen totally changed from the self-complacent and dapper prisoner into an object of abject pity.

Court attaches declared that he had placed the noose about his own neck, and the spectacle presented, was one of the most pitiable in the annals of the famous old tribunal of justice.

Crippen admitted that he knew of no person who had seen or heard from his wife since February 1, nor did he know of anyone who had seen her leave his residence at 39 Hilldrop Crescent, North London, alive. He admitted that his testimony concerning her leaving him to join another man in America were mere assumption.

The Isolation Hospital Will Cost $12,500

Dr. McPherson's Estimates for Furnishings Totalled $2,100, Qualified with a Good-Start Figure of $15,000

The Property Committee of the City Council last night took up the question of the cost of the isolation hospital, and decided that it would net the town $12,500.

Medical Health Officer Dr. MacPherson was present and submitted the rough estimates of furnishings required; taking as a basis that 24 or 25 beds are installed, including those required for nurses and help. His estimate totalled $2,100, allowing $20 for electric heaters for ward parties. To connect the institution with gas would cost $550, hence the substitution of electric heaters. But the medical health officer qualified his estimate with the opinion that for a good start the hospital might be equipped for $1500.

In going into figures the committee gleaned that $9,200 had already been provided for in connection with the hospital, and that its ultimate cost would be $12,500.

A bylaw will be prepared to defray the cost of building and equipping the hospital by issuing debentures for $12,500, bearing interest at 4½ per cent.

If possible a town nurse, who is willing to go to Montreal for a special four months' training, will be secured as matron for the hospital. The chairman and Dr. McPherson were authorized to attend to securing such a matron, the salary not to exceed $50 a month for time engaged. The city will pay her expenses to and from Montreal, to enter and return from training for isolation duties.

The chairman and Dr. McPherson were also authorized to assume the responsibility for recommending a maid and wife as caretakers of the hospital.

"I am pleased to recommend Chamberlain's Cough Remedy as the best thing I know of and safest remedy for coughs, colds and bronchial trouble," writes Mrs. L. B. Arnold, of Denver, Colo. "We have used it repeatedly and it has never failed to give relief." Sold by all dealers.

SAXON KING WILL HUNT IN AFRICA

HIS ENTHUSIASM STIRRED BY COL. "TEDDY" ROOSEVELT'S BIG GAME EXPERIENCES.

He Will Travel Incognito—Wants to Make Trip Solely as a Sports-Khartoum.

Berlin, Oct. 21.—Fired by enthusiasm over Col. Roosevelt's big game experience in Africa, King Frederick August of Saxony has completed arrangements for an elaborate hunting expedition in the Soudan. He expects to start for Africa next February and remain two and a half months. His only traveling companions so far selected are his personal physician and his adjutant general.

The King desires to travel in the strictest incognito, and as far as his rank permits purely in the capacity of a sportsman. The expedition will start from Khartoum and follow the route of the White Nile to the vicinity of Fashoda. His majesty will in the meantime thoroughly digest the German edition of Col. Roosevelt's book, "African Wanderings," and will profit as far as possible by the Colonel's jungle experiences.

The king's brother, Prince John George, and his wife, and his majesty's sister, Princess Mathilda, have just started for an extended visit to the Far East, where later in the winter they will join the German Crown Prince.

The Water Commissioners Spent $20,000 More Than Voted

The City's Finance Committee met last night, Chairman Ald. Bradburn presiding. There were also present Mayor Morrow, and Aldermen Morgan, Phelan and Hicks.

The three selections of jurors will be paid $15 each, on motion of Ald. Phelan.

A number of accounts were certified to and passed.

Water Commissioner W. H. Moore was present and asked permission for the Water Commissioners to issue debentures for $20,000 to meet the extra expense over and above the estimates for the water works dam, pumping house and equipment. The ratepayers voted $120,000 for this work, which ultimately cost $140,000.

Without going into detailed figures, Mr. Moore explained that an unlooked for expenditure of $8000 was entailed in reaching rock bottom in the river. This work was done at a pro rata price of the contract, to the loss of the contractor. The remaining $12,000 in excess of estimating was mainly incurred in purchasing the Irwin and McCauley property to assure no possible protest against raising the water to a maximum head and in constructing heavier and wider piers than originally provided for, together with wheel pits, in anticipation of the city developing its own power.

The committee, generally, endorsed this additional expenditure as being in the city's best interests, but could not approve of the policy of appropriating the additional funds required without going to the ratepayers.

Ald. Bradburn,—"Mr. Moore when the people gave the commissioners $120,000 for that work, and you found it was not sufficient, you should have gone back to the people and not spent an additional $20,000 and subsequently endeavor to put the onus of issuing debentures for that amount upon the city council."

Ald. Hicks also questioned the procedure of asking the ratepayers for $120,000 and spending $20,000 more without their sanction. He specially emphasized the fact that the additional $8,000 expended in the river bed should have been foreseen by Engineer Kennedy, and was curious to know of one instance in which this engineer had ever kept the construction of any work within his estimate.

Mr. Moore contended that under the city's act the commissioners were empowered to spend $10,000 a year in extensions, and instead of issuing debentures for $20,000 to meet the overdraft for the construction of the water works dam, etc., they had used $20,000 of the surplus contingent fund, thus effecting a saving in interest. They now want this money for contingent expenses, hence their request for permission to issue debentures.

Ald. Bradburn was anxious to know when the people are to get any benefit from the water works, if there is no limit to the issuing of debentures.

Mr. Moore replied that in one year from now there will be an appreciable lowering of water rates, besides providing a sinking fund for debentures issued.

Mr. E. H. D. Hall read the Municipal Act, which provides that the Water Commissioners can use their contingent fund as they have done with the consent of the Municipal Railway Board provided any expenditure does not exceed $5,000 without consent of the council.

The committee did not appreciate assuming the responsibility of sanctioning the additional expenditure of $20,000 if not having gone to the ratepayers in the usual way, and Ald. Hicks emphatically declined to vote for a resolution authorizing the issue of debentures. No motion being forthcoming for such a motion the matter was referred to Monday night's council meeting.

A SAD DEATH.

Miss Maud Mason Contracts Typhoid From a Patient Under Her Care.

The many friends of Mr. Frank Mason, Peterborough's well known florist, will sympathise with him in the sad news he has received from Morden, Man., saying that Miss Maud, his eldest daughter, had died about noon from typhoid fever. Miss Mason had gone to take a three years training in the Masonic Hospital at Morden, and had just finished the course. Her first case outside the hospital was that of a young man suffering from typhoid, from which the fever was contracted, following his death. She was removed to the hospital, and despite every care and attention, died.

We understand that the body will be brought to Peterborough for interment and the date of the funeral will be announced later.

BIG LIQUOR CASE.

Norwood Hotel Man Will Fight Case in Local Option Suit.

One of the most interesting cases ever heard in the County of Peterborough is that against L. E. Killoran, of the Norwood House of that burg. Mr. Killoran is charged with selling liquror, during last September in a local option district. It is announced that Mr. J. H. Burnham will act in the interests of the government, while Mr. Killoran has secured Mr. L. McHayes, K.C., and Mr. G. N. Gordon to defend him.

The case which was postponed from the 10th of October was to have been heard before County Police Magistrate Edmison, at the town hall here on Monday last, but has been put off till the 14th of November.

CANADIAN FLAG FLOATS FROM NIOBE'S MAST HEAD—NEW CRUISER SALUTED.

Halifax, Oct. 21.—The Canadian cruiser Niobe, flagship of the new navy of the Dominion, arrived in port this afternoon, and anchored just off the dockyard.

The new cruiser was saluted by the Citadel as she came slowly up the harbor, and also by the troops who paraded on the water front. The ship's band responded to the cheers of the militiamen by playing the Maple Leaf.

Hon. L. P. Brodeur, minister of marine and fisheries and Mr. Desbarats, deputy minister, boarded the Niobe at Sydney, and were received with a salute of seventeen guns.

Lieut.-Governor McGregor, who was a passenger in today, General Drury and the members of the civic reception committee also went aboard when an address of welcome was delivered by the mayor.

The lieut.-governor presented the cruiser, on behalf of the province, with a handsome silver plate.

Previous to the cruiser entering the harbor Admiral Kingsmill went aboard and hoisted the Canadian flag amid the cheers of the crew.

Mr. E. H. D. Hall Promises to be an Exceptionally Energetic Chairman of the Public Library Board

The City Property Committee and the Public Library Board met in joint session last night.

There were present Mayor Morrow, Chairman Ald. Hicks, Aldermen Morgan, Graham, Bradburn and Batten, the council's committee.

The Library Board was represented by its chairman, E. H. D. Hall, Inspector Mowatt, and Mr. David Spence.

The following tenders for stacks and lighting were opened:

Office Specialty Co., Toronto—
Tables and chairs ..... $ 539.00
Book stacks 1625.00

A. Cumstock—
Tables and chairs ..... $ 539.00
Book stacks 1625.00

E. B. Clegg & Co.—
Tables and chairs ..... $ 539.00
Book stacks 1625.00

Both the local houses are tendering through outside manufacturers, and no choose of tender was open from a standpoint of price. Hence no tender was accepted, but

Mr. E. H. D. Hall suggested that some of the fittings in the old library might be used in the new building, thus saving considerable expense. Mr. Hall's suggestion met with approval, and Chairman Duncan and Ald. Bradburn were authorized to meet the Library Board at four o'clock today, and confer together on the question of library fittings. They will inspect both library buildings, and decide upon what saving can be effected by using some of the old fittings.

CONCRETE OR LATTICE

Tenders for a fence or wall at south of the new public library building were received as follow:

Rutherford Bros.—
Cement and brick wall $288.00
Lattice fence 188.00

Jones and Davidson—
Lattice fence $175.00
Brick and cement 245.00

His worship suggested that a concrete wall be built by the city employees, and that the city engineer be requested to furnish an estimate for same. This was acquiesced in.

This committee really have not sufficient funds with which to finish their work on the library as they would like. They have merely $1300 on hand, while last night's estimates totalled $2,000 or more, in addition to monies already expended or provided for.

FENCE AROUND PARK.

A temporary wire fence is to be built at both ends of the King Edward Park, which has been thoroughly seeded down.

$600 FOR MAINTENANCE.

On request of E. H. D. Hall, chairman of the Library Board, said board was authorized to draw the $600 appropriation made at the beginning of the year for the new Public Library's maintenance from the time of its opening until next year's council convenes.

The old library liabilities are in the neighborhood of $500, which in debtedness the new board is obliged to assume.

Chairman Ald. Duncan and Mr. E. H. D. Hall, chairman of the Library Board, were authorized to visit Toronto's Public Library, in the hope of acquiring information that will effect a saving in fitting out Peterborough's new library.

It will be about eight weeks before our new library is opened.

GOOD PAY FOR LABORING WORK

Janitor Wilson of the City Hall is now receiving $570 a year, and asked for an increase.

Ald. Duncan regretted that a precedent had recently been established by raising salaries all round.

A prolonged discussion ensued, and Ald. Morgan moved, seconded by Ald Batten that Janitor Wilson be given an increase of $30 per year.

Ald. Bradburn thought $600 a year, every month in the year, might be considered pretty good pay for a janitor, and moved in amendment, seconded by Ald. Graham, that Wilson be granted an increase of $25. This amendment carried.

In connection with the foregoing, it is understood, once for all, that Mr. Wilson must deliver the city council's notices.

ARKLES WANTED.

Local Police Receive Letter From Detroit Asking Re Missing Man.

The local police have received the following communication from Detroit, Mich., asking as to the whereabouts of Frank Arkles, who left that city on October 3, to come to Peterborough, where he at one time resided:

Up to the present Arkles has not been located. The letter is as follows:

Dear Sir,—Will you kindly look up a man by the name of Frank Arkles who left Detroit, October 3rd, for Peterborough. I have not heard anything of him since. I am very uneasy about him. If you find him please answer at once, for I am afraid that something has happened to him.

The last word he told me, he would write as soon as he arrived there, and that is why I am so uneasy.

Please locate him if possible for me and oblige.

Yours truly,
Mrs. J. Adair,

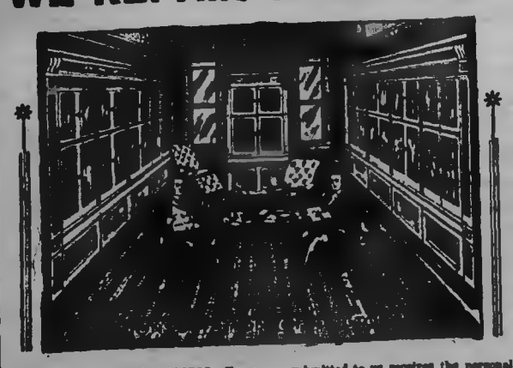
WE REPAIR WEAK MEN



ONE SECRET OF OUR SUCCESS. Every case submitted to us receives the personal attention of our Medical Staff, who consider the symptoms, complications and chronicity, and then decide as to the disease and curability. Specific remedies are then prescribed for the case and are compounded by our own chemist in our own Laboratory. Such appropriate treatment cannot fail to cure, as specific medicines are selected to cure the symptoms that trouble you. We have no cure-all medicines like most specialists use who send the same medicines to all patients alike and cure none. We have treated patients throughout Canada for over twenty years and can refer to any bank as to our responsibility.

Lord Charles Beresford Sees Danger Ahead

Add Seven Dreadnoughts—To the Program, Or in Three Years' Time Triple Alliance Will Stand Ahead.

London, Oct. 21.—Lord Charles Beresford has addressed an "open letter" to the prime minister, in which the following passages occur:

During the next few weeks there must occur a momentous crisis in the affairs of the nation and of the Empire. If the right measures are taken by the executive government, of which you, sir, are the representative the defences of the empire may be secured. The position of affairs with regard to the naval defences of the empire will three years hence be fraught with a danger whose gravity I believe it to be difficult to exaggerate.

In order that the naval power of Great Britain may be maintained in its proper relation to the strength of the naval power of foreign nations three years hence, I believe it to be absolutely essential that in addition to the five capital ships which are to be laid down next year, seven more first-class armored ships should be laid down. Such an increase in the force of heavy ships must of course be supplemented by the full and adequate provision of all those other elements of fighting power upon which depends the whole utility of the battle squadrons.

Shanghai, Oct. 21.—The taking of the census in China continues to involve the officers carrying out the duty in a great deal of trouble, the movement being looked upon with suspicion in the eyes of a population which mistrusts the cupidity of the mandarin. In the Sun On Prefecture the women resent the numbering of the houses and the affixing of notices and assemble in great numbers to oppose the action with vigor.

A resident in the Tai Pang village of the district, who had charge of the census affairs, roused the ire of the villagers so that they burned his house to the ground. Trouble regarding the census is also reported from the Lo Ting Prefecture, where it is said, serious rioting has occurred. Disturbance is also reported from the Wing On district.

The magistrate of that district suggested to the authorities in Canton that they should send down a persuasive speaker to go around to all the villages in the district and inform the people that the census was being made for FRIDAY, OCTOBER 21, 1910.

ARE CO-RELATED.

Newspapers and the Public schools are naturally co-related. It is not surprising, therefore, that in Chicago there is a movement to educate the children in newspaper reading. The average boy studying history has an idea that the end of the book is the end of all things. The death of Queen Victoria closes his knowledge The assumption of the book and of the boy who uses it seems to be that nothing happening nowadays is worth bothering about. Surely it should be fully as interesting to watch the making of history as to consider the finished product. Many people miss the romance in the next street because they are straining their vision to catch the romance of good King Arthur's golden time. The boy who knows the main facts about the French Revolution should not be permitted to remain ignorant of the successful rising in Portugal.

Yet too many boys and girls are not encouraged to read newspapers either at school or at home. It is regarded as father's perquisite. Like his pipe and his dress pumps, the paper too often is a personal possession. Yet the modern newspaper is the product of observation keener and more accurate than that of most bookish historians. The news is written by men who have a quick appreciation of "human interest" and often a polished style of writing.

So far as war correspondence is concerned, the public is well educated. In a war year newspaper circulation goes booming. But the battle artists are not the only men who write true literature and vivid history for the daily papers. The news associations maintain men of the highest ability at all the foreign capitals. They write of diplomatic tangles; they have the confidence of eminent men in close touch with the governments. The story of the Messina earthquake, for instance was a splendid sample of peace-reporting. The Portuguese Revolution, the troubles in Barcelona, the unrest in Egypt, the young Turks and their program, all these stories were clearly and tersely told. The cable news of one day is aglow with romance, which an healthy minded boy or girl should miss.

As for our own country and its development, the newspaper is the only channel of information. Books would be out of date before they were printed. The Ottawa Press Gallery is a credit to the newspapers of any country. The Western correspondents are alert and accurate. Local news, which is a sort of glorified gossip and therefore of intense interest, is well written and attractively presented. When a girl reads only the social column and a boy is satisfied with the sporting page alone they are likely to become as one-sided as the man who reads only the political leaders—to make sure that the editor agrees with him.

Pork Pie In Disguise.

Delectable pork pies are made by an old housekeeper, who says that the person most averse to pork will eat the pie without recognizing the presence of the pork. Line a deep pie dish with very thin shavings of salt pork and fill the dish with apples, peeled, quartered and cored. Over them put another layer of the thin pork shavings, sweeten, season with allspice and put on a top crust.

FOUGHT TO A FINISH.

In India a native went to bathe in a ravine. He was in the water up to his neck when a tiger on the hill above gave a leap toward its prey. But the tiger had not calculated that, since his victim was much lower than himself, a leap of the right strength for a horizontal range would carry him far beyond his mark; consequently he fell some ten feet on the other side.

Now, it happened that a hungry crocodile was at the same time drawing a bee line under water toward the native. When the crocodile had almost come upon his prey he heard a splash just in front and made a dash, bringing his enormous jaws down on the tiger's paw.

The bather nearly fainted with fright when he saw the tiger fall into the water, and for a few moments he could not understand why the creature did not devour him. Why did he persist in keeping one of his paws under water, beating savagely with the other? And the water turned red!

Then all at once the assaults of the tiger became more furious, and his growls developed into roars. The huge tail of a crocodile reared up out of the water. The obvious intention was to pull the tiger under water and drown him, and the tiger, understanding this purpose, tried to frustrate it by beating the snout of the crocodile with his other paw. But the snout was too far down, and he left much of his force on the surface of the water. His struggles became more and more feeble, and at length he disappeared altogether, only a cluster of bubbles remaining to show where he had been.

His fight, however, had been a game one, not entirely in vain, for when the bodies of the two beasts finally came to the surface it was seen that the tiger had literally torn away the whole front of the crocodile's face and had blinded it so that its victory was a useless one.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Making It Simple.

The scholarly looking man with the big eyeglasses had been invited to address the Sunday school and was making a few remarks concerning the lesson.

"I see the word 'line' occurs here," he said. "Will some one give me a definition of 'line'?"

Nobody answered.

"It is very easy," he proceeded encouragingly, "though you may find it a little perplexing to convey the idea in simple terms. Try again. Well, the ordinary signification of the word is longitudinal extension, but here it denotes a predetermined boundary. I am sure, my young friends, you can remember that."

Needed No Help.

The old colored woman ambled into the police court where her son was to be tried on a charge of petit larceny. She had been talking to a police court lawyer the evening before, and, catching sight of her, the limb of the law hustled toward her.

"Well, did you get up that $5 for me?" he inquired eagerly. "They are going to try Hamp's case now."

"Well, now, suh, I didn't git de money, mister. Times is jes so hard I done colluded ter let Hamp go on en be c'victed widout de 'sistance ob counsel."

Tomboy.

Verstegan gives the following origin of the word "tomboy" as applied to romping girls: "Tumbe, to dance; Tumbod, danced; hereof we yet call a wench that stirreth or leapeth lyke a boy, a tomboy; our name also of tumbling cometh from hence."

A Born Leader.

"Why are you constantly referring to Bliggins as a leading citizen?"

"I can't help having an admiration for the man," replied Miss Cayenne. He belongs to our whist club and always knows which card to play first."

Grand Trunk Engineers.

For the past few weeks a committee representing the engineers of the Grand Trunk Railway System has been in conference with the superintendent of motive power. So quietly did they carry on their negotiations that although twenty-six of them were domiciled at a Montreal hotel for weeks there has been no publicity about the matter. The negotiations were carried on with the best of good feeling on both sides and now, it is pleasant to record that an agreement has been reached satisfactory to all concerned. The engineers asked for a substantial increase of pay, amounting it is understood to something like 12 per cent. The Grand Trunk was willing from the first to grant them an increase and the result of friendly negotiations is the agreement concluded Thursday. The representatives of the engineers left for their home Friday last entirely satisfied with the result of their mission to Montreal.

Real Mining Pays Better Than Anything Else

Here is an opportunity to invest in a Real Mine. Property developed. Plenty of pay ore in sight to guarantee the success of the enterprise. Mill and equipment are all paid for in full. Small amount still needed to install the equipment for which

This is a bonafide gold mine and will yield big returns on the investment and can be put on a paying basis immediately.

For a short time we will offer this stock at the following prices and terms:

$35.00 buys	100 shares.	$10.00 cash, $5.00	per mo. for 5 months
50.00 buys	150 shares.	15.00 cash, 7.00	per mo. for 5 months
100.00 buys	325 shares.	25.00 cash, 15.00	per mo. for 5 months
275.00 buys	1000 shares.	50.000 cash 32.00	per mo. for 5 months
200.00 buys	700 shares.	40.00 cash, 40.00	per mo. for 5 months
500.00 buys	2000 shares.	90,000 cash, 84.00	per mo. for 5 months

An additional discount of 5 per cent. where all cash accompanies the order. Certificates issued when final payment is made. The above prices are very low when the small capitalization is considered. Stock is all one class. Issued fully paid and non-assessable.

Capital stock, $400,000. Shares 400,000. Capacity of the mill, 50 tons per day. Average value of ore, $15.00 per ton. Cost of mining and milling, less than $4.75 per ton. Net profits per ton, $10.25.

Property consists of three mining claims or 62 acres, over three-quarters of a mile in length, with a vein running the entire length; with an average width of from 3½ to 4 ft. Vein proves to a depth of from 75 to 200 ft. at different points and no indication of the vein running out, but grows deeper with depth.

Don't let this opportunity go by.

CALIFORNIA OIL

First Offering

Atlanta Oil Company

Capital Stock $600.000---Par Value $1.00

No Preferred Stock. No Bonus or Free Stock. No Bonded Indebtedness
Lease Runs 40 Years All Stock in Treasury for One-Sixth Royalty. Benefit of Holders. Incorporated Under Laws of State of California.

106 acres of absolutely proven oil land on Sulphur Mountain, adjoining and between the Liberty and Puritan Oil Companies' property. Ten miles from Santa Paula, Ventura, Co., Calif.

FACTS—The property is absolutely proven territory, lying as it does with the UNION OIL CO. producing on the south, the LIBERTY OIL CO. producing on the west, the BARD OIL CO. producing on the north, which only recently started its 30th rig, and PURITAN OIL CO. to commence drilling on the east. Also it is located in a district of BIG PRODUCING COMPANIES, such as Ojai Petroleum, Pyramid Oil Co., Canadian Queen, Capital Creek, Bard Oil and Asphalt Co., and others. THERE'S NO QUESTION ABOUT THIS COMPANY GETTING OIL. It is possible that Liberty Oil Company's new well will be a gusher, which would make the ATLANTA OIL COMPANY stock worth par. Mr. Cowell, our Superintendent, knows every foot of the ground, and having his log book of Liberty property, which adjoins our land, and an experienced OIL MAN and we consider ourselves fortunate in obtaining his services. VENTURA CO. OIL represents the cream of the industry. It is the home of HIGH GRAVITY OIL. VENTURA COUNTY OIL means $1.00 a barrel at well. Costs from 30 to 40 to produce it. THE GREAT UNION OIL CO. got its start in VENTURA CO. and has paid over twenty-two millions in dividends. These GREAT ASSETS had a small beginning in the WILD HILL GUSHERS, within SHORT OF ATLANTA OIL CO. property. The demand for refining oil FAR EXCEEDS THE SUPPLY. The 35 refineries in California are crying for the product. The eastern high gravity fields are diminishing. The OHIO FIELDS, FOR INSTANCE, have fallen off one-third. The demand is caused by the increased market for gasoline. Throughout the world the number of automobiles and internal combustion engines is forcing up the price of high gravity crude petroleum. Eastern operators are now looking to VENTURA COUNTY, which are held to be the most extensive known. THIS IS THE FIRST ANNOUNCEMENT of ground floor offering of ATLANTA OIL CO., and may be oversubscribed at any time. One day's delay may mean you are too late. ACT NOW. WRITE FOR LATEST NEWS OF VENTURA OIL FIELDS.

The number for the derrick is on the ground and machinery has been ordered. Well No. 1 will be started as soon as drilling is installed. It should not take over six months to complete first well. Well No. 2, by conditions of lease, must be in operation by February 10th, 1911.

ADVANCES TO 20c AUGUST 20th.

HALIBURTON.

Here is an item for the hen fanciers. Mr E P. Doxie reports that he has fourteen white leghorn hens that laid in ten months, beginning Dec. 1st last, 160 dozen eggs, and they were not straining the selves in any way over it, either. Latterly some of them began to get a little irritated that they never could find anything where they laid it. Now come along with your hen stories.

Rev. Mr. DeLorm, met with a bad accidently lately. He tied his horse to a fence, while he went into get his dinner. A dog frightened the horse and it broke loose Mr. DeLorm caught the horse and it threw him against the fence, put his shoulder out and hurt him otherwise. He is going about again with his arm in a sling. The buggy was broken all to pieces.

Ancient Egyptian Mortgage.

Of all the numerous Egyptian papyri dating from the Greco-Roman period and preserved in the British museum none can be said to be of greater interest than those throwing light on the social conditions and manners and customs of the period. Many of these documents are mortgages bills of sale and marriage contracts. Of the first named class a very interesting one is dated in the twentieth year of Cleopatra and Ptolemy. It appears that a shepherd named Menthu and his mother, Tausir, finding themselves in difficulties, mortgaged their field to a woman named Ete for the sum of 690 pieces of silver, which they promised to repay in eight months' time with interest. In case of failure of this condition they were willing to forfeit the field without further trouble or litigation. After giving the measurements of the land and particulars of its boundaries the document is attested by Heru-se-esi, scribe of Usir-ur, alias Amenhetep.—London Globe.

Preserving Spiders' Webs.

Naturalists employ an interesting method to preserve all kinds of spiders' webs. The webs are first sprayed with an atomizer with artist's shellac, and then, should they be of the ordinary geometric form, they are pressed carefully against a glass plate, the supporting strands being at the same time severed. After the shellac has dried the plates carrying the webs can be stored away in a cabinet. Even dome shaped webs may be preserved in their original form by spraying them with shellac and then allowing them to dry before removal from their supports. Many spiders' webs are very beautiful, and all are characteristic of the species to which they belong, so that, from a scientific standpoint, their permanent preservation is very desirable.—Harper's Weekly.

A Country Doctor's Record.

Dr. James Morris, who was one of the oldest medical practitioners in Scotland, has just died at Dunfermline. When he celebrated his jubilee as a doctor some ten years ago he made this statement: "During my fifty years in practice I have attended 50,000 patients, administered chloroform 10,000 times with absolute immunity from fatal results, had 5,000 births (1,000 consecutive cases without a death), made about 1,000,000 visits and traveled about 500,000 miles." Not a bad record for a country medical man.—Westminster Gazette.

Skyscrapers.

The second generation of skyscrapers in lower Manhattan has appeared. The twenty story building at the corner of Wall and Nassau streets is now being torn down as obsolete in order to make way for a new and much higher thirty-two story structure. New York skyscrapers may soon be classified like battleships—at the end of ten years "obsolescent," at the end of twenty "obsolete" and then the scrap heap.—Springfield Republican.

One of the Kennel.

"The country is going to the dogs!" shouted the socialistic agitator at a street meeting.

"Quit your snarling, then, and wait for your share!" said the auditor who sized the speaker up.—Browning's Magazine.

Merely Symptoms.

The man who doth an effort make
To solve a knotty question
Will straight be told that he should take
Some aid to slow digestion,
And if he strives to be prepared
To cross the shoreless river
They'll say his nerves have got him scared
And blame it on his liver.
—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Natural Inference.

The chronic muck raker's wife looked up from her evening paper. "Another great man's birthplace is to be restored," she remarked.

"About time," growled the chronic muck raker. "From whom did he steal it?"—Illustrated Sunday Magazine.

Alarmed.

There was a young lady named Bankes,
Who slept while the ship lay at anchor.
She awoke in dismay
When she heard the mate say,
"Now hoist up the top sheet and spanker."
—Lippincott's.

Mrs. Alice Stebbins Wells, it is reported, will be appointed policewoman of Los Angeles, Cal. It was Mrs. Wells' efforts, backed by the ministers and clubwomen, that caused the ordinance to be passed creating the office of policewoman in Los Angeles.

"My work is to be chiefly where young people gather for entertainment in parks, penny arcades, moving picture shows and dance halls," Mrs. Wells explained when asked to talk about her new work. "I will deal chiefly with the proprietors of such places and will see that all laws are obeyed and the places are kept clean and moral."

Although Miss Clara Barton, the founder of the Red Cross society in the United States, is ninety-one, she still takes personal charge of one of the branches of the society. Miss Barton's relief work dates back to the civil war, when she became a nurse on the battlefields and organized searching parties for missing soldiers.

THOUGHTS OF A BUSY FELLOW

On Past, Current and Coming Events of Local and General Import.

BILINGUALISM.

While a knowledge of French is a graceful and useful accomplishment, and perhaps especially so in Canada, still the national tongue of Ontario should not be subordinated to the French language, as appears to have been the case in some communities in North Essex. English is conceded to be the work-a-day commercial tongue, and its acquirement is essential to a professional, commercial or industrial career, not only in Canada, but also in the major portion of the civilized world. And it is fortunate indeed that the rising generation in some parts of Ontario have in Bishop Fallon a broad minded church man who has the courage of his convictions that the best interests of his flock lies in being educated in Ontario's national language. 'Tis true that in Canada conditions are peculiar, in that one province is to-day unconsciously perpetuating its mother tongue and inherent national characteristics, in the doing of which racial discords are bound to arise from time to time. In greater Canada, however, as a result of one intercommunion language, the varied nationalities that are settling there are rapidly becoming truly homogeneous, and will eventually merge into one great nation not English, nor British, but Canadian in the truest sense of the word. And 'tis a pity that any reason should today exist for qualifying the word Canadian with two separate prefixes, but such a condition prevailing it is the bounden duty of all to live in harmony and encourage legislation for the common good. English, French, Protestants and Catholics alike. However, so desirable a state of existence in Canada must remain purely ideal so long as a paper like the L'Action Sociale of Quebec is, in dealing with the bilingual question, encouraged, to quote its own words, in "advising French Canadians that this latest attack against them is one that must be resisted to the last ditch, even though former comrades are now ranged on the side of the enemies." Such talk as this savors of a national and religious venom that is dangerous to the peace and harmony of Canada as a whole.

We have a just and capable government in Ontario, quite able to adjust the bilingual question in an equitable manner, without any interference on the part of a neighboring province. French can be successfully taught in any public school, if so desired, by having its place with other subjects in the curriculum. This policy is adopted by Germany in Alsace and Lorraine—one-time French provinces, but now German; the intercommunicable language is German, while so many hours each week are given to French and English. By this means it is impossible for the third generation from French parents to be ignorant of the national tongue of Alsace and Lorraine, as is the case in North Essex, and to ignore the fact that they are living under the German flag. Germany's foresight in those acquired provinces has resulted in an absence of racial discords.

MUCH ADO ABOUT HENS.

Hen fanciers will be interested to learn that Mr. E. P. Hoxil reports that his fourteen leghorn hens laid in 10 months 160 dozen eggs, and the Bobcaygeon Independent invites more hen yarns.

Well, we have a story to report that goes one better than the foregoing. An evening contemporary announced that eggs were selling in Peterborough's market last Saturday at 70 and 80 cents a "pair." Our friend, Mr. Hoxie will undoubtedly be pleased to learn of this apparent merger in eggs, and leave no stone unturned to get in on the ground floor.

DISPOSAL OF SEWAGE.

With the growth of Peterborough, which is steadily becoming netted with sewers, it behoves us to look forward to the time when sewage must be disposed of, on Peterborough's part, in some other way than into the river, and also when a similar solution of the Otonabee's waters to the north of us must cease. On more than one occasion our health and city authorities have recognized that the health of this community is menaced by polluted waters from the north, and advices to hand show that similar alertness on this question prevails not only in sister communities, but on the part of many who would summer on the banks of the river below the locks were it not for the outfall sewer. Living in a glass house, as it were, we cannot afford to throw stones, and must take the mote out of our own eye before complaining of that in the eye of our brethren. The thought of our beautiful river as a combination sewer and pleasure resort is by no means as alluring now as it was twenty years ago, and any alderman who successfully fathers a scheme for otherwise disposing of sewage than by the method now resorted to, will have accomplished a good work.

In connection with the above it may be of interest to note that in the city of London (England), the sewage is carried to precipitation works some miles below the city, where it is treated chemically. Then only the clarified sewage is allowed to flow into the river. The wet sludge is screened to take out the rags, wood or other material that might clog the sludge pump, the sludge is then passed on into settling channels, and ultimately carried out to sea in boats that travel 110 miles each trip. At Glasgow they press the solid matter into cakes, which are sold as fertilizers.

CHANCE FOR A PETERBOROUGH MAN.

A Chicago woman is in search of some man to marry her, even if only for one week, that she may become qualified to claim an inheritance left her by an eccentric uncle. She is offering $200 for the week's engagement, and no takers at the hour of going to press.

A QUESTION OF CHEWING.

The Chicle (gum) factory are asking a free site on which to erect a new factory. Should their proposition be favorably considered by the city fathers a bylaw would have to go to the ratepayers, in which event there would be considerable "chewing" over the matter. The people's temper these days regarding such measures is extremely irritable.

Forty Hours' Service Finished.

The forty hours service of reparation to Christ in the Blessed Sacrament which has been held at St. Peter's for the past three days, was solemnly closed yesterday morning at six, with high mass celebrated by Father McColl, Father Toner being deacon and Father Casey, subdeacon.

Informal Dinner at the Crystal.

On Thursday night a number of friends of Mr. W. A. Edwards, proprietor of the Crystal Theater, gathered in that place of amusement, after the show was over. An extemporre supper of limburger cheese, scrambled eggs, sliced onions, bread sliced right off the loaf, and other delicacies were in order. Whilst the banquet was characterized by a strictly temperance sentiment, a good time was had. Mr. Porter, proprietor of Porter's Delicatessen, was in charge of the cuisine.

CHICAGO MERCHANT MAKES STATEMENT.

After Spending Thousands of Dollars and Consulting the Most Eminent Physicians, He Was Desperate.

CHICAGO, ILLS.—Mr. J. G. Becker, of 134 Van Buren St., a well-known wholesale dry goods dealer, states as follows:

"I have had catarrh for more than thirty years. Have tried everything on earth and spent thousands of dollars for other medicines and with physicians, without getting any lasting relief, and can say to you that I have found Peruna the only remedy that has cured me permanently.

"Peruna has also cured my wife of catarrh. She always keeps it in the house for an attack of cold, which it invariably cures in a very short time."

A Fowl Dinner.

The Women's Guild of All Saints' church will give a fowl dinner in the old church, which in the future will be known as All Saints' parish Hall, on Monday next, the 24th inst., from 5 to 8 p.m., to which the public are cordially invited. The charge for this dinner will be 25 cents, devoted to the building fund of the new church.

LITTLE LOCAL LINES

The Boy Scouts met last night at the armories.

The Orangemen will celebrate the 5th of November, a day late. They will hold a parade to All Saints' Church on the 6th of November. Dr. Symonds of Montreal, will be the preacher of the evening.

The third of the series of popular concerts by the 57th Regiment Band, will be given next Friday evening. Mr. Gliddon has secured that famous humorist, Mr. Harry Bennett, for the occasion.

It is to be hoped that Peterborough will get the next annual meeting of the Fire Chiefs. If Chief Howard can pull the wires, and he seems to have a pretty good grasp of them, this city seems pretty sure to get the convention.

GIRL IN TROUBLE.

Seeks Advice and Assistance at Local Police Station.

Night before last a girl, only nineteen years of age, called at the police station, bearing in her arms a month old baby. She, the mother, wanted assistance. P. C. McGinty, that veteran of the local police force referred the unfortunate young woman to Relief Officer Miller. When she met him she said that her home was in Minden, but that she had been in Campbellford and Buckhorn, and in the former place met her betrayer. The girl had been in the city but a short time and not having any friends with whom she could spend the night took the course stated above.

VOL. XXXIII NO. 240 PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO MONDAY OCTOBER 24 1910 PRICE TWO CENTS

New All Saints' Church was Opened Yesterday

His Lordship Bishop Sweeney, Assisted by Rectors of All Saints' and St. John's Churches, Conducted the Interesting Ceremony--Large Congregations

The splendid new stone church of All Saints' was formally opened at the morning service yesterday. The 710 seats were all filled by a congregation composed about equally of men, women and children. The altar and pulpit were brightened by bouquets of natural flowers. A choir of about sixty, accompanied by the massive and sweet toned organ, rendered grand music. The choir of All Saints' was augmented by some 15 voices from the mother church, St. John's, led by Mr. George Chandler. The congregation of All Saints' are to be congratulated on supplying the people of Peterborough with so commodious, handsome and comfortable a place of worship. The building, including the accommodation for the choir, comfortably seats about 750 people. The accoustics of the church are perfect, every word uttered from either pulpit or chancel being clearly heard at the entrance doors.

The church, which is not yet fully completed, presents a massive and handsome appearance. The interior, with its lofty ceiling is striking in looks and is arranged on strictly utilitarian ideas, no space is wasted. Along the side walls are suspended electric light brackets. From the ceiling hang two long brazen heavy chains, holding electroliers with clusters of lamps. The pulpit and choir are admirably supplied with light from handsome upright brass pillars bearing five lamps each.

The western elevation for altar and choir requirements is closed on three sides with red curtains pendent from brass poles. The handsome quarter cut oak communion table is the gift of Mr. Jas. Edgar, and was, together with a new communion flagon, dedicated at the 8 a.m. service.

At the morning service, Rev. Mr. Mr. Trompour, rector of this grand new sacred edifice read the prayers, Rev. Canon Davidson of St. John's church, read the lessons, and epistle, and his Lordship Bishop Sweeny of Toronto, repeated the Commandments. The whole service, assisted by the large choir, the three eloquent clergymen, the hearty responses and evident interest of the congregation was most inspiring and admirably suited to the opening of the new church.

After the singing of hymn No. 645 the congregation, on request of the rector of All Saints' church, remained standing, as his lordship, accompanied by the clergymen, unveiled and dedicated the handsome stained window on the north side of the church, erected to the memory of the late Mr. George Oliver.

His lordship also dedicated to the service of the church a new pulpit desk, a set of offertory plates and new hymn boards.

Bishop Sweeney's sermon was a masterly discourse and beautifully appropriate. It was eulogistic of the splendid work accomplished by those responsible for the growth of All Saints' since its incipiency as a mission of St. John's, and concluded with an impressive exhortation that his hearers emulate the lives of the saints of old whose memory the very name "All Saints' Church" perpetuates. He considered it a great privilege to be present on this bright and sunshiny morning at the opening of All Saints' new and beautiful edifice, and congratulated priest and congregation alike upon the consummation of their glorious and mighty enterprise. He hoped that before many years the building debt will have been paid, and that it will then be his privilege to come and consecrate a new chancel, also free from debt. This opening marks the closing of old chapters in the first volume of All Saints' history, and the opening of a new volume and chapter. The first chapter commenced with the late Rev. Mr. Beck of St. John's when a Sunday school was established in this part of the town in connection with St. John's in 1875. This work was revived in 1882 as a mission to the parent church, when services were conducted by lay readers. The good work was taken up and continued by the present rector of St. John's, Rev. Canon Davidson, in 1889, and, added his lordship, we pause to say, that we appreciate how much this parish owes to Rev. Canon Davidson's fatherly and fostering care for All Saints' in which today he takes almost as keen an interest as though he were in charge of the work. From 1896 to 1904 Rev. Mr. Armitage had charge of All Saints' and during the last two years of his magistration he was the first rector of the church as the house of worship for a seperate parish. Rev. Mr. Major came next as rector, holding office from 1904 to 1908. Today marks the closing of that portion of this church's history and a great deal of praise is due its present young and vigorous rector, whose energetic work has realized the dreams of his predecessors, and the crowning of all past and present efforts in the opening of this large and beautiful All Saints' church, which marks the opening of a new chapter and volume.

The opening of this church, continued the bishop, is the result of the law of expansion, which applies to religion as well as to business, and this sacred edifice should stand for an influence in the community, from generation to generation, as long as the church shall stand.

The latter portion of his lordship's message was a dissertation on the sacredness and significance of church names in general, and the names "All Saints," he urged, should be a sort of challenge and inspiration to imitate those blessed saints and martyrs of old, whose memory was perpetuated for all time in the naming of our churches. "I challenge and charge you," he said, "in the name of the living God, to strive to emulate those blessed saints of old, that you may be numbered with them in glory everlasting."

The church was taxed to its utmost capacity at the evening service, when the bishop again presided.

In the afternoon his lordship delivered a beautiful address to the united Sunday school children present

Week-End Session of The Board of Works

The City Board of Works met Saturday evening. There were present Mayor Morrow, Chairman Ald. Hicks and Aldermen Metheral, Duncan, Graham and Duffus.

Ald Metheral reported that the sidewalk on Wolfe street lies so much higher than Mr. Carlisle's property that surface water backs up into his cellar. Street Commissioner Evans will investigate and report.

Ald. Graham's suggestion that an approach be built to Knox church, on Rubidge street, will be carried out.

On Saturday, October first, one of Walter Stocker's bill boards blew down and damaged the hand railing of the bridge on George street near Townsend. On motion of Aldermen Metheral and Graham, Stocker will be requested to repair the damage done.

The insurance on the machinery and equipment in the city yard having run out, Chairman Ald. Hicks was authorized to renew same in a tariff company, deducting whatever valuation was placed on the road roller recently disposed of.

Commissioner Evans was instructed to act on the complainant of E. J. Jackson that a ditch opposite his store is quite impassable after a heavy rain.

An approach to W. W. Cole's property on Downie street, was allowed.

W. F. Morrison is anxious to build a cement wall between his property and the Downie street creek, on Victoria avenue, providing the city furnishes the material. He also wants sewer connection. The committee not being quite clear as to which of these requisitions Mr. Morrison was pressing for immediate attention, no action was taken on either.

Mr. McKewen is asking for sewer connection this fall with the house he is erecting on Benson and Aberdeen avenues, also for a sidewalk. This matter must take the usual course.

The draining of the miniature lake that forms each spring on Perry street was reported on by the engineer. This will be attended to at a cost of $35, and next spring citizens will have no occasion to use a punt in crossing Perry street in the vicinity of Mr. Bradburn's property. Two catch basins are to be construct ed.

W. J. Johnston's application for a concrete crossing on Aylmer, from Edinburg to Dublin, was left over for action next spring.

The engineer reported that it will cost $84 to fix the sidewalks and do the grading needed on Hunter street, at Quaker Oats property west of the bridge. Half the cost of this work should be borne by the Quaker Oats people, who will also furnish the cinders for a pathway across the tracks.

The board agreed that the most equitable way would be for the company to pay the full cost of that portion of this work rendered necessary through their building operations; they to either do the work themselves or the city undertake it, and charge expense of same to the company.

Local Amateur Minstrels.

The members of the Belmont Club intend to put on a minstrel show in December that promises to be one of the biggest events of the season. The services of a professional to rehearse and stage the production have been secured.

Funeral Today.

The body of the late Miss Maude Mason arrived last night on the midnight express. The funeral will take place this afternoon at two o'clock from the residence of her father at the corner of Aylmer and McDonnell street. Interment in Little Lake cemetery.

SPAIN IS ON THE EVE OF A CIVIL WAR?--REVOLT AGAINST THE SUPREMACY OF ROME

AN UPHEAVAL WHICH FOR MAGNITUDE WILL BE WITHOUT PARALLEL IN THE HISTORY OF THE PENISULA.

Premier Canalejas is Confident That His Native Land Will Displace Old Conceptions and Institutions With Much Bloodshed.

London, Oct. 22.—The Madrid correspondent of the Daily Telegraph believes that Spain is on the eve of a tremendous political struggle which for magnitude of issues and complexity of interests, is without a parallel in the history of the Peninsula. Judging by the present symptoms, the contest about to begin will culminate in a peaceful revolution from above, or a violent upheaval from below. Meanwhile the excitement is feverish, and the tumors in circulation are bewildering. Civil war is predicted by some politicians and grave dangers to the dynasty are apprehended by others, while many imagine that the king will throw the premier over, and entrust someone else with the arduous task of forming a new cabinet, which will strike out a different but not an opposite course.

This is not, of course, the first crisis of the kind recorded in the annals of Spanish history. As its main character is a revolt against the supremacy of Rome, it may be compared with the somewhat similar revolution which took place in 1836 and in 1868, when some very rude assaults were delivered upon the Ultromontane cause in Spain. But the present movement has a very different basis, and possibly, also very different objects from those which have preceded it. According to his own assertion, Senor Canalejas is backed up by the majority of his countrymen. At all events, he has the support of the leader of the opposition, Senor Maura, who appears to have identified himself with the aims of the prime minister. Other revolutions have been due to dynastic causes, or else were the immediate result of some fiery pronunciamento from a disappointed general. In the present case the movement has some of the characteristics of a national enterprise engineered bo doubt, by the Radical and Republican parties, which have all along existed in Spain side by side with those forces which are called reactionary and Conservative, but depending in its main features upon something much more solid and substantial than the mere vote of factions Spain it would seem, has now resolved to put herself in line with the most modern of European nations.

MR. STRATTON'S GIFT.

Powerful Telescope for Local Astronomical Society.

Hon. J. R. Stratton has presented the Peterborough section of the Royal Astronomical Society of Canada with a powerful three-inch telescope. The instrument is especially equipped for solar observation. It can be adjusted so that the intense solar heat and light are so neutralized as not to affect the eyes painfully or injuriously. It also has a device—by the use of which the stars in the zenith can be studied without discomfort to the neck, which comes when the ordinary apparatus is not supplemented by a device like that mentioned. Not only has the new telescope these distinguishing features, but it has a power that will bring stars of the ninth magnitude within range of vision for practical purposes.

The society expects to hold its inaugural meeting of the season in Peterborough on November 4th, in the Assembly Hall of the Collegiate Institute, at which the presence of the new telescope and Prof. DeLury, of Toronto University, will be leading features of interest. Prof. DeLury's address will be on the subject "The Astronomy of today" Admission is free and the public is cordially invited.

IN COLLISION.

Three People Thrown From Buggy Hit By Street Car.

Saturday afternoon a G. T. R. street car was in collision with a buggy containing Mr. and Mrs. Goodfellow and Mr. Alex. Campbell, at the corner of Simcoe street. The occupants were thrown to the ground, and the wheels and understructure of the buggy badly smashed. Mr. Campbell's head was somewhat severely cut, one of the horse's heads, whilst Mr. and Mrs. Goodfellow were slightly cut on their respective heads. They were brought in to Payne's drug store when Dr. Green attended to their wounds. It seems that the driver of the buggy tried to drive past the car and did not realize the speed at which the latter was moving. Fortunately those thrown to the ground were not so badly hurt as at first reported.

Chimes Fund Over $5,000.

The chimes fund has now well exceeded the $5,000 mark, or to be exact, it now amounts to $5,050. Messrs. Curtis, proprietor of the local brick yards, and their employees contributed $32.25. It is worth noting that this generous donation was given on their own invitation, and without solicitation.

Will Take Appeal in Hope of Saving Crippen From Going to Gallows

THE PRISONER SAT UNMOVED WHEN THE JURY PRONOUNCED THE FATAL WORDS.

(Special to The Times.)

London, Oct. 22.—As Dr. H. H. Crippen was being assisted in the prison van to be taken back to Brixton Prison, after he had been sentenced, he collapsed and had to be assisted. His face was blanched to the color of chalk and he was trembling in every limb. A warden practically carried the little prisoner. A vast crowd had gathered outside Old Bailey, and when Crippen appeared he was greeted with hoots and yells.

London Oct. 22.—It was announced this afternoon that Crippen will be hanged November 16.

London, Oct. 22.—Dr. H. H. Crippen was found guilty of the murder of his wife, Belle Elmore Crippen, and sentenced to death by hanging, in the Old Bailey Court this afternoon. The jury was out 29 minutes. The charge of Lord Chief Justice Alverstone to the jury had apparently favored the prosecution.

Crippen bore up stoically. The counsell for the American gave notice of an appeal that will stay execution.

TRIAL OF MISS LE NEVE.

Miss Ethel Claire Le Neve, for whose love Crippen put his wife out of the way, will be placed on trial on Tuesday charged with being an accessory after the fact.

The trial established a new record in English criminal procedure. It lasted but five days.

The date for Crippen's execution was set for either November 14 or November 15. It is possible that his appeal will not have been passed on by that time.

PROTESTS HIS INNOCENCE.

In passing sentence Justice Alverstone asked Crippen if there was any reason why sentence should not be passed upon him. Crippen replied calmly:

"I still protest my innocence."

THE DEATH CHARGE.

In passing sentence the court said. "Hawley Harven Crippen, you have been convicted upon evidence which could leave no noubt in the mind of any reasonable person that you cruelly poisoned your wife, then mdtilated her body. I advise you to entertain no hope of escaping the consequences of your crime.

"I implore you to make peace with Almighty God."

Crippen seemed suddenly to realize his predicament as he was led from the court room and seemed dazed as he was escorted out by warders.

A POWERFUL LINK.

The last point in the case before the summing up of the prosecution was a powerful link in the chain of the defence. Crippen had taken the stand for re-direct examination to enable Lord Chief Justice Alverstone to clear up some points of doubt in his own mind.

"Crippen testified yesterday that hyoscin was used as a remedy in cases of nerve disorder," said Lord Chief Justice Alverstone. "Now tell me how and where you learned to administer this dangerous and powerful drug?"

The witness, still natty and stylish by dressed, and wearing a collar so high and tight that it nearly choked him, turned in the witness chair.

"I learned the uses of hyoscin from a medical work which is now in the hands of my counsel, Alfred Tobin," said Crippen.

"Let me see the book," said the judge. It was duly handed to him, but before opening it he leaned forward and questioned the American further.

HOW DRUG IS ADMINISTERED.

"Is it administered through the mouth or hypodermically?" asked he.

"In both ways my lord," replied the witness.

The judge then opened the book at a designated place and murmured "that is correct."

Addressing the jurors the lord chief justice said "It is established through this authoritative medical work now before me that hyoscin is used as a drug as well as a poison. This book states that it is administered either through the mouth or hypodermically."

Crippen could scarcely conceal his elation as he took his seat and his counsel was equally jubilant. It was believed that the point brought out by the court was one of the strongest yet made by the defence.

The Chicle Co. will be Offered a Site at a Nominal Price

The Board of Works on Saturday evening took up briefly the Canadian Chicle Company's request for a site, as the land the company has in view is a part of the Lot on which the southend pumping station is being erected. The Chicle people only require a lot 50x100, upon which to erect a building 25x70 feet, four stories high, they do not require to extend back to the railway tracks. While guaranteeing to employ 50 hands to start with, the expectation number will increase to 125 employee in the very near future. The company have been advised that there is no possible hope for them securing a free site, and the Board of Works and Manufacturers Committee will offer them a lot at as nominal a price as possible. It has been suggested that they be offered a site to the south of the pumping station lot, and some of the aldermen will visit the locality this morning at nine o'clock, and report at tonight's council meeting.

SENSATIONAL CASE NOW ON IN UNITED STATES COURTS.

Mrs. Isabella J. Martin is Accused of Attempted Murder Instigated Her Son to Commit the Deed.

Oakland, Cal., Oct. 20.—Mrs. Isabella J. Martin, the alleged dynamiter, who has been a source of more trouble and worry to the local authorities during the past two years than any other prisoner with whom they have ever had to deal, is again prominently in the public eye, her case having come up this week for its second trial. The woman was convicted in December, 1908, of having instigated her minor son, "Baby John" Martin, to blow up the home of Superior Judge Ogden. She had litigation in his court, and imagined that she had not been fairly treated.

At her first trial the contention of the prosecution was that the boy's act was in fact her own, as he was acting in fear of his life when he blew up Judge Ogden's home. The convicting testimony was that Mrs. Martin kept the youth "Baby John" terrorized with threat of death to the point of compelling him to do her bidding in setting off the bomb. But the Appellate Court ruled that the danger of threatened death was not sufficiently imminent to free him from being an accomplice and without corroboration the testimony of an accomplice is not sufficient to convict. The Supreme Court, to which the district attorney took the case, refused to disturb the finding of the Appellate Court and the case was therefore assigned for retrial.

During the period of nearly two years that Mrs. Martin has been confined to jail she has caused much trouble for the jail authorities by her eccentric conduct. She has written many letters to persons of prominence complaining that she has been mistreated and that her health and life have been endangered by confinement in a poorly ventilated cell and by lack of proper nourishment. When brought into court last July, the date fixed for her second trial the woman attempted suicide by cutting her wrist with a piece of broken glass.

The jail attendants insist that Mrs. Martin is shamming and continuing to play a part. They admit that she may be insane, but insist that her mind is clear enough to realize what she is doing, and to distinguish between right and wrong. As a result of her erratic conduct and her insistence upon conducting her own defence the attorneys who defended her at her first trial and who successfully carried the case to the higher courts have reluctantly withdrawn from the case.

There is little danger from a cold or from an attack of the grip except when followed by pneumonia, and this never happens when Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is used. This remedy has won its great reputation and extensive sale by its remarkable cures of colds and grip and can be relied upon with implicit confidence. For sale by all dealers.

Entries for the Lakefield Peterborough road race are coming in well. The prizes for this big Petethatonough annual event were on exhibition Saturday night in the windows of a local book store. Albert Smoke of Chemong, who won the event last year, has entered again this fall, and is in good physical condition. G. Holmbeck of Cobourg, has entered for the boys' race. There are now eight entries for the senior, and about thirty for the junior event.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

Mighty Poor Policy! Says Alderman Duffus

On Enquiring Into the Enforcement--or Rather Non-Enforcement---of the City's Building Bylaw

The calm, peaceful business deliberations of the City's Board of Works were rudely disturbed by Ald. Duffus on Saturday evening, when he enquired if regarding the building of Braund's new store on Charlotte street, over the creek privileges had been granted in violation of the terms of the building bylaw.

Mr. Montgomery, who is building in the next block, is doing considerable kicking that he is compelled to conform strictly to the bylaw," said Ald. Duffus. "Has Mr. Braund been given privileges not allowed to others?"

"I believe so," said Ald. Hicks with a shrug of his shoulders. "A bylaw, to that effect was passed at the last council meeting."

"Mighty poor policy that," ejaculated Ald Duffus.

Mayor Morrow: "I have never known in twenty-five years a bylaw to have been broken, as it has been in this case."

Ald. Graham: "I could name a dozen other instances."

Ald. Duncan concurred in Ald Graham's contention.

It is worthy of note that his worship opposed the privileges granted Mr. Braubd in regard to this new building, and advised his colleagues against the measure.

The Baptists Attack The Roman Catholics

Toronto, Oct. 22.—"The Eucharistic Congress has put Protestants on the defensive," said Rev. E. A. Stobo, S.T.D., after presenting the report of the Baptist mission among the French Catholics of Quebec, at this morning's session of the convention.

"The purpose of the congress was aggressive. The Church, which has lost in Germany, Britain, Spain and Portugal, hoped to win Canada by carrying a flour and water cracker through the streets of Montreal. But through the streets of Montreal But they will not succeed. The masses have drifted away from the superstitions of the middle ages.

"I am grateful to Father Vaughan," he went on, "for that sermon of his on the mass. He came out with the ultimatum 'Worship the cracker, or go to perdition.' We won't worship the cracker, and by the grace of God and the sacrifice of Jesus Christ we will escape perdition. I have been told by friends in the Roman Catholic clergy that they regard the Baptists as the only logical Protestant sect, the others having derived a great deal of their authority from the Church of Rome. The Roman Catholics fear the Baptists, but thank God we do not fear Rome. I think we already see signs of the real downfall of Romanism, so let us push the work of evangelization among our French Canadian brothers."

FIFTY DROWNED MANY MISSING

Rio de Janeiro, Oct. 22.—Fifty persons known to have been drowned and a boatload of eighteen others missing is the report received here today in connection with the report of the sinking late last night of the British steamship Walley. The vessel foundered in a terrific storm with sight of the Arrozales lightship, off the northeast coast, and within a few miles of the city of Para. Seventy-five of the passengers and crew are reported to have been rescued, most of the women and children having been saved. All of these were taken off in small boats. Only the most meagre and unconfirmed reports have been received here but these indicate that the vessel was lost through some trouble with either her steering gear or her engines, as a result of which she drifted on a rocky projection and filled rapidly.

It is believed that those lost were drowned on the capsizing of small boats in the heavy sea which was running at the time, and which drove the Whalley inshore.

A STRIKING TRIBUTE.

Great Britain has long been the admiration of foreigners, but perhaps no more remarkable eulogy of the mother country has ever been heard than that once pronnced upon her by Victor Hugo. Gazing across the channel that eminent Frenchman wrote: "Over that sea, in calm majesty, lies the proud Isle, whose existence consoles me for a thousand continuous crimes, and vindicates for me the processes of Providence. Yes, yes, proud England, thou art justly proud of thy colossal strength—most justly of thy proud-like repose. Stretched upon the rock, but not like Prometheus, and no evil fiend to rend thy side, rests the genius of England. He waits his hour, but counts not the hours between. He knows that it is rolling up through the mystic gloom of ages, and that its chariot is guided by the iron hand of destiny. It will come, it is coming, it has come. The whole world, aroused as by some mighty galvanism, suddenly raises a wild cry of love and admiration, and, and throw itself into the bounteous bosom of England. Henceforth there are no nations, no peoples, but one, indivisible, will be the world, and the world will be one England. Her virtues and her patience have triumphed. The lamp of her faith, kindled at the apostolic altars, burns as a beacon to mankind. Her example has regenerated the erring, her mildness has rebuked the rebellious, and her gentleness has enchanted the good. Her type and her temple shall be the Mecca and the Jerusalem of a renewed universe. A country that compels such admiration in foreign hearts, compels also the absolute affection of her subjects. Canadians, Australians, New Zealanders, South Africans and Britons everywhere are proud of her and of the vast empire which her virtues and her energies have so firmly established.

COMPULSORY MILITA SERVICE.

Lord Rosebery Predicts It Will Come Before November, 1916.

London, Oct. 19.—A great deal of controversy has been in evidence over the recent statement said to have been made and backed up by a wager that a compulsory military service will be established in Britain.

It is on record that a bet has been made by Lord Rosebery in a London club with Lord Chancellor Loreburn that by November 1916, compulsory militia service will be established in Great Britain. As Lord Rosebery is an imperialist in his sympathies, and still, nominally at least, a liberal, much stress is laid on his declaration by the makers of conscription literature, which is now enjoying a wide publicity in the United Kingdom. The conversion of such a man as the ex-premier to the belief that Great Britain must take a leaf from the experience books of Continental Europe is considered significant. It would be idle as well as futile to deny that the attachment of his name to the cause of which Spencer Wilkinson and others have been identified, has a certain amount of significance.

His opinion might be regarded unprofessionally, of course, as a greater value than that of Lord Roberts, whose profession would naturally be thought to influence his judgment.

As a historian as well as a stylist, Lord Rosebery commands respect and a large amount of the argument he advances is historical, but historical writers will admit that the parallel he draws between the case of Great Britain of today and the Prussia in the disastrous year of Jena is a stretch on the imagination and there will be a long controversy before John Bull will authorize the "King's press" as a permanent recruiting agent of the fighting forces.

Receives Great Praise.

The roadbed and general conditions both in operating and service on the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway between Winnipeg and Edmonton is coming in for great praise from patrons who have gone over the road.

At the general offices at Montreal a letter was received from a Professor of one of the prominent Collegiate Institutes in the west which reads as follows:

"On my recent trip in the West I travelled over the Grand Trunk Pacific between Saskatoon and Winnipeg, and must say I was surprised to find the roadbed in such excellent condition. It seemed like travelling in one of the old main lines in the east. The dining and sleeping car service was first-class in every particular, and I found the train officials courteous and obliging. Passengers whom I met were unstinted in their praise of the road and its appointments."

MISS JULIET POINTS.

"I truly am a most insignificant personage and up to the present moment have lived a most uneventful life," said Miss Juliet Points, who has recently won the $1,500 scholarship maintained by the General Federation of Women's Clubs and providing for two years of study in England, when asked to talk about her plans for the future.

"I expect to sail in June," she went on as she walked across the campus of Barnard college, New York city, to the subway, "but I haven't made any definite plans for my work. I shall probably spend my summer partly in England and partly on the continent, and I want to visit some of the big foreign cities and investigate their economic and sociological conditions. I shall study, of course, in some English university the examinations admit me to any—and I shall do research work in the British museum. I mean to make a thorough study of the English industrial revolution as the starting point of all present sociological and economic development, and at the same time I intend to investigate present industrial conditions in England, concentrating on the status of women in industry in that country.

"I have already done work of this kind here in America. I find it intensely interesting, and I am eager to find out just how English and continental conditions compare with ours.

"I spent my last year, you know, doing research work for the United States immigration commission and had my share of interesting experiences. I should love to tell you some of them, but the report has just been sent in to congress, and until it is released I am not supposed to discuss the matter with any one."

The report in question is the industrial and congestion report prepared under the direction of Professor Jeremiah Jenks of Cornell university. Miss Points' share in the work took her to all the big cities and industrial centers of the United States and brought her into close touch with immigrants of many classes.

"People paint the immigrants pretty black," she commented, "but I like them myself. They are intensely interesting."

Miss Points is at present an instructor in the history department at Barnard college, where she will continue until her departure for the other side.

Ashes From the Old Hearth.

A quaint Swedish legend concerning a cure for homesickness appears in Selma Lagerlof's book "The Girl From the Marsh Croft," translated by Velma Swanston Howard. The tradition is to the effect that if a person suffering from nostalgia took some ashes from the hearth in his or her old home and strewed them on the fire in the strange place he or she would be rid of the homesickness—an easy remedy apparently, but it had two serious drawbacks. The first was that after using the remedy in the new home one would never be content in any other place. If one were to move from the homestead to which one had borne the ashes one would always long to get back there again just as much as one had longed to get away from there. And the second drawback was that one couldn't carry ashes along every time one moved to a new place, because the remedy could be used once only. After that it lost its charm and had no effect. So that, taken all in all, it was a rather dangerous experiment to make.

Winter Home of Deer.

The winter home of the American red deer is very interesting. When the snow begins to fly the leader of the herd guides them to some sheltered spot where provender is plentiful. Here as the snow falls they pack it down, tramping out a considerable space, while about them the snow mounts higher and higher until they cannot get out if they would. From the main opening or "yard," as it is called, trampled out paths lead to the nearby trees and shrubbery which supply them with food. In this way they manage to pass the winter in comparative peace and safety.—St. Nicholas.

Mr. Charles J. W. Batstone, who has been here for the last three months, compiling a city directory, has gone to his home at Sarnia. He expects that the directory will be ready for delivery in about two weeks. Mr. Batstone made many friends while here.

Grand Trunk Engineers.

For the past few weeks a committee representing the engineers of the Grand Trunk Railway System has been in conference with the superintent of motive power. So quietly did they carry on their negotiations that althought twenty-six of them were domiciled at a Montreal hotel for weeks there has been no publicity about the matter. The negotiations werecarried on with the best of good feeling on both sides and now, it is pleasant to record that an agreementhas been reached satisfactory to all concerned. The engineers asked for a substantial increase of pay, amounting it is understood to something like 12 per cent. The Grand Trunk was willing from the first to grant them an increase and the result of friendly negotiations is the agreement concluded Thursday. The representatives of the engineers left for their home Friday last entirely satisfied with the result of their mission to Montreal.

106 acres of absolutely proven oil land on Sulphur Mountain, adjoining and between the Liberty and Puritan Oil Companies' property. Ten miles from Santa Paula, Ventura Co., Calif.

FACTS—The property is absolutely proven territory, lying as it does with the UNION OIL CO. producing on the south, the LIBERTY OIL CO. producing on the west, the RARD OIL CO. producing on the north, which only recently erected its 30th rig, and Puritan Oil Co. to commence drilling on the east. Also it is located in a district of BIG PRODUCING COMPANIES, such as Ojai Petroleum, Pyramid Oil Co., Canadian Queen, Capital Creek, Rard Oil and Asphalt Co., and others. THERE'S NO QUESTION ABOUT THE COMPANY GETTING OIL. It is possible that Liberty Oil Company's new well will be a gusher, which would make the ATLANTA OIL COMPANY stock worth par. Mr. Cornell, our Superintendent, knows every foot of the ground, and having his log book of Liberty property, which adjoins our land, and an experienced OIL MAN and we consider ourselves fortunate in obtaining his services. VENTURA CO. OIL represents the crest of the industry. It is the home of HIGH GRAVITY OIL. VENTURA COUNTY OIL means $1.00 a barrel at well. Costs from 35c to 60c to produce it. THE GREAT UNION OIL CO. got its start in VENTURA CO. and has paid over twenty-two millions in dividends. These GREAT ASSETS had a small beginning in the WILD BILL GUSHER, within SIGHT OF ATLANTA OIL CO. property. The demand for refining oil FAR EXCEEDS THE SUPPLY. The 35 refineries in California are crying for the product. The eastern high gravity fields are diminishing. The OHIO FIELDS, FOR INSTANCE, have fallen off one-third. The demand is caused by the increased market for gasoline. Throughout the world the number of automobiles and internal combustion gasoline engines is forcing up the price of high gravity crude petroleum. Eastern operators are now looking to VENTURA COUNTY, which are held to be the most extensive known. THIS IS THE FIRST ANNOUNCEMENT of ground floor offering of ATLANTA OIL CO., and may be oversubscribed at any time. One day's delay may mean you are too late. ACT NOW. WRITE FOR LATEST NEWS OF VENTURA OIL FIELDS.

The lumber for the derrick is on the ground and machinery has been ordered. Well No. 1 will be started as soon as drilling is installed. It should not take over six months to complete first well. Well No. 2, by conditions of lease, must be in operation by February 10th, 1911.

EVIDENCE AT INQUEST THAT ITALIAN ABUSED THE SQUALLING LITTLE ONE.

Mother Denies the Story But Neighbors Tell of Her Own Statements—Evidence by Doctor.

Hagersville, Oct. 20. "Evidence that Sam Ponessa used a razor strop to punish his infant child, was given here last night at the coroner's inquest. The verdict returned was "That the death of the infant son of Samuel Ponessa was hastened by violence at the hands of some person or persons to them unknown.

Dr. Holmes testified that he found livid marks on the child's forehead, face and back, which could easily have been caused by a strap. The body was that of a child which had suffered from inattention or want of proper nourishment. "I would say without hesitation that the child suffered violence before death, and that death was undoubtedly hastened by violence," said Dr. Holmes.

Mrs. Edith Rispin, who lives near the Ponessa's, said she was well acquainted with the Italian family, and had been told by Mrs. Ponessa that her husband had abused the child and would not buy food for it. She had even shown her a razor strop with which he said to have used on the child.

LIFE IMPRISONMENT FOR AMERICAN TRAMP.

Parry Sound, Oct. 19.—Louis Young, the American tramp who was accused of beating an old farmer named Davis to death while he lay in bed in a local hotel, was to-day found guilty of manslaughter, and sentenced to life imprisonment.

He used a bottle on his victim's head, and his motive was robbery.

The Crown was about to postpone the trial, owing to the absence of its star witness, when the defence offered to plead guilty to manslaughter.

IN HARD LUCK.

As an illustration of the old saying that "Troubles never come single" it might be noted that the experience of the Syers family near Cavanville, Ont., corroborates the saying. A few weeks ago as Mrs. Syers, tired from her day's work, was lying down to get a rest, her children got possession of a loaded rifle. In some inexplicable manner, one of the children discharged the weapon, the bullet passing through one knee of Eber, one of the children, and lodging in his other leg. Eber is a patient in the Nicholls Hospital under care of Dr. Halliday. Following this accident came the news to Mrs. Syers, that her eldest son, 12 years of age, a student at Lindsay High School, whilst wrestling with one of the other boys during the noon hour, had fallen and fractured his thigh. The boy is now in the Lindsay Hospital.

ITS UPPER PART A MYSTERY.

Shrouded In Impenetrable Forests and Vine Growths Through Which a Gleam of Sunlight Never Shows—A Curious Woodland Tangle.

While the Amazon is the world's greatest river, if not in length at least in the volume of water which flows through it, it is the world's strangest river as well.

The few travelers and explorers who have journeyed up this water course to its many sources in the glaciers of the South American mountains tell stories which are almost incredible about the literal maze of streams which unite to form it, each stream having its birth in one of the great ice masses. Yet a few hundred miles below, where they merge and create the river, the temperature is such that it works its way through a perfect labyrinth of tropical vegetation.

Only the mariner can tell the place where the Amazon really has its mouth, because the opening it has made on the eastern coast of South America is so wide that it extends over 100 miles. A long distance before one comes to the mouth of the river, however, one is really sailing on the waters of the Amazon, because they force their way so far out into the ocean. They say that 300 miles out at sea off the mouth of the Amazon you can hoist a bucketful of fresh water out of the ocean from the deck of a ship, such is the quantity of its water that flows from that gigantic basin.

Long after you have entered the actual river and have its banks north and south of you if you are in midstream you will still be out of sight of land, such is the breadth of the vast channel. The river stretches far into the ocean and far up the country. Take a map of South America and look up a place called Iquitos. It lies four-fifths of the way across the continent from east to west. Yet from Iquitos there is a fortnightly service of ocean going steamers to Europe which descend some 3,000 miles of the river before they reach the sea.

It is not only one branch of the Amazon, but many, that are thus to be regarded as the same as ocean highways. The southern branches of the Amazon are broken by rapids along a line where a low continental shelf exists. Above these rapids, however, there is again deep water. Thus beyond the falls of the Madeira there are over 10,000 miles of navigable water on that river and its branches.

Not only Sir Martin Conday, but other travelers who have ventured along the upper river and its tributaries, say that here a curious woodland tangle exists. To the surface of the water the sun's rays seldom reach, and one may go many miles along waterways where it is well nigh as dark as night because the sky is almost completely shut out by the mass of vines which interlace the trees and are so thick with leaves. Deprived of the sunlight, all is dark and rank. The damp air is laden with unhealthful vapor. The surface of the water in places where the current is too sluggish to carry it away is covered with scum and weed.

It requires no little courage to explore these fastnesses, for a man really takes his life in his hands, so unhealthy are they. Occasionally, however, one can see the upper portion of the forest where there is a little crevice in its roof of vines. Above this is really a scene of life and beauty. Birds and butterflies and other gorgeous insects are flying from place to place; flowers of hundreds of hues and shapes are blooming from the plants attached to tree, branch and trunk. While below all may be lifeless and silent, above the height where the mass of vines overshadow the river nature has created a world of brightness and animation; but, as already stated, it is almost entirely shut out from the human eye.

To attempt to break through this canopy of vines which hide it from the lower world is almost impossible because the vines grow so thickly, but some naturalists have penetrated it and say that the forests really have two surfaces, the one above this artificial roof and the one below. That which is above is barred from human entrance. Its inhabitants are mostly birds and insects that are radiant with beauty unequaled in the world.

Whatever grows in the Amazon mud strives with desperate internecine struggle to reach this sky exposed surface and there blossoms. Beneath, where man can walk or float, all is dark. Only here and there a fitful ray of sunlight struggles through. Orchids blossom within this shadowy region.

You can see these bright creatures flitfully in the cavern below, but not in all their glory, as they must behold one another above. Sometimes as they flit about beneath they will chance to cross a sunbeam slanting through a hole in the vegetation; then for an instant they flash into view like an explosion of burning color. It is thus that the great butterflies are seen to the best effect. No one can imagine what a picture they produce in their native haunts as their wings flash and close and flash again in the sunlight as they fly.

No; this upper world of the Amazon forests has been closed to human beings and promises to remain a perpetual mystery unless with the aid of some aerial craft one may be able to visit it.—Chambers' Journal.

There is little difference in the physical condition of Mr. James Stevenson, ex M.P., Mr. Stevenson is simply getting weaker daily.

Oven Thermometer Makes Baking Easy

Don't wash and scrub, bend and rub over a hot wash tub; sift a little GOLD DUST in the water, loosen the dirt, and save rubbing

Soap is not a bit of cleansing good until it is mixed with water and made into suds. And then it still needs the rub-rub-rub of human muscle.

GOLD DUST works in an entirely different way—instantly and totally dissolves in hot or cold, hard or soft water—and, without any aid from you, starts to cleanse.

GOLD DUST is more than soap—better and more economical. It is a powder of magic power—but rightly directed power, that leaves the wash white, sweet, wholesome.

Use your brains, not your muscle!

Throw away your soap, get GOLD DUST, and simply use it according to the directions on the package.

Receives Great Praise.

The roadbed and general conditions both in operating and service on the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway between Winnipeg and Edmonton is coming in for great praise from patrons who have gone over the road.

At the general offices at Montreal a letter was received from a Professor of one of the prominent Collegiate Institutes in the west which reads as follows:

"On my recent trip in the West I travelled over the Grand Trunk Pacific between Saskatoon and Winnipeg, and must say I was surprised to find the roadbed in such excellent condition. It seemed like travelling in one of the old main lines in the east. The dining and sleeping car service was first-class in every particular, and I found the train officials courteous and obliging. Passengers whom I met were unstinted in their praise of the road and its appointments."

Miss Leneve Fainted on Hearing Crippen's Fate

THE DATE OF HANGING IS DEFINITELY FIXED FOR NOVEMBER THE 8TH.

Being Advanced a Week—Little Hope of Clemency or Successful Appeal—Leneve Expected Acquittal.

London, Oct. 24.—Following a conference with the prison authorities Lord Chief Justice Alverstone today definitely fixed the date for the hanging of Dr. H. H. Crippen, convicted on Saturday of the murder of his wife, Belle Elmore, Nov. Tuesday, Nov. 8th.

Crippen's attorneys are already preparing for their appeal to the Court of Criminal Appeals, although it is admitted that there is only the slightest chance that that body will interfere with the decision of the lower court.

Crippen had recovered his composure today and continued to protest his innocence. When offered religious consolation he became indignant and said that he was more interested in getting his rights than in listening to a priest.

Crippen will be hanged in Pentonville Prison, should his appeal fail, as is expected, unless the home secretary intervenes and recommends to the Crown that he be reprieved.

Miss Leneve is prostrated today. She had fully expected that Dr. Crippen would be acquitted, thus necessitating her own release. When she received word that Crippen had been convicted and sentenced to death, she fainted, and it was some time before the prison doctor could restore her consciousness. She is now apprehensive of the outcome of her own trial on a charge of accessory after the fact which will begin tomorrow.

So far as the scope of the appeal is concerned, Attorney Newton said today that it was uncertain. He cannot decide until he has had a conference with his client tomorrow.

Getting Gallows Ready

(Special to The Times.)

London, Oct. 24.—The erection of a gallows on which to hang Dr. Crippen, began today. The high sheriff stated it would be ready before November 8, the day set for the execution as announced on Saturday.

Mistook a Skunk for the Family Cat

Now this little local story of human interest (and animal life, particularly the latter), is true in every particular. To begin with, a prominent citizen of Peterborough lives on Dalhousie street. Three or four nights ago, the citizen's wife went out in their verandah to look for the family cat, or rather, kitten. The verandah was bathed in a silvery flood of bright moonlight. Returning to the front door, the lady called to her husband, "Come out and enjoy the wonderful moonlight, whilst I look for that kitten." The resident of Dalhousie street actuated by the charm of the moonlight and its natural romantic effects followed his wife out on the piazza. Here a disturbing element was introduced into this Arcadian scene of domestic felicity. The citizen owns a dog, a big dog, called after a celebrated admiral. This dog true to his name, advanced with full steam on, or as in older story to' gallant sails spread to the breeze, at top speed. Just as the admiral reached and passed his owners, the lady, looking at a low placed window sill, located in the shadow, saw a small furry ball on the sill. She exclaimed "Why there's kitty now," and stepped forward quickly to gather the family pet into her arms. The Admiral, however, with canine instinct or foolishness, sprang past his mistress towards the furry object, on the window seat. Now the dog influenced by the theory of transfiguration of souls; may have inherited the instincts of his revered patronymic, the Admiral. He leaped forward with a broadside of barks, and a big display of gleaming teeth. "Kitty" leaping from the window, making for the lawn, in the bright moonlight showed that she was a deep black with longitudinal lines of white. He or she, to keep pace with the Admirable fired also a broadside that made the Admiral and the people on the verandah, beat a hasty, very hasty retreat. "Kitty" was one of those small but powerful animals, whose pelts are known in the fur trade by the name of "Alaska sable," and by the common people, as "skunks." The battle was all to the good, for "kitty." For three days the dog, entitled "The Admiral," keeps in strict seclusion, and wears an expression of evident regret and depression. The verandah will be left for some weeks to the sanitary and purifying action of the winds of heaven and the bright sunlight.

The real "kitty" was discovered later on down the cellar apparently looking for disinfectants.

THE GAMBLING EVIL.

What About the Man Who Dabbles in Stocks.

Toronto, Oct. 24. During the convention held here last week of the Baptist Church, an address was given which dealt with the different phases of gambling.

The speaker at the convention is concerned because boys play marbles "for keeps." He need not be. The game is one of skill, the winner gets nothing of intrinsic value, and he cannot do anything with his accumulated marbles, but use a limited number of them in the game. The only complaint against marbles that would seem at all well grounded is that the small boy no longer knows how to play them. Almost any oldster will bear witness that there is not the skill and science in the game today that was involved in the marbles of a half or even a quarter of a century ago.

Not a little nonsense has been talked about gambling. The pulpit has been prone to declare that men gambled even at the foot of the cross when they drew lots for the garments of the Crucified. But the drawing of lots is not only countenaced but counselled in the Scripture. The Lord told Moses that the land must be divided by lots among the tribes. The Apostles chose a successor to to Judas by drawing lots as be-Matthias and Justus.

Admittedly the line between what is gambling and what is not gambling is sometimes too difficult to draw. But it may safely be said that the convention might better concern itself with the mothers who play bridge for stakes which are beyond their purse and the fathers who buy stocks on margin with money they cannot afford to lose. These are more illegitimate subjects of criticism than the small boy with his bag of marbles.

BLOOD DISEASES CURED

BEFORE TREATMENT

AFTER TREATMENT

He was surprised at how the sores healed—"I took your New Method Treatment for a serious blood disease with which I had been inflicted for twelve years. I had consulted a score of physicians taken all kinds of blood medicine, visited Hot Springs and other mineral water resorts, but only got temporary relief. They would help me for a time, but after discontinuing the medicines the symptoms would break out again—running sores, blotches, rheumatic pains, looseness of the hair, swellings of the glands, palms of the hands scaling, itchiness of the skin, dyspepsia stomach, etc. I had given up in despair when a friend advised me to consult you, as you had cured him of a similar disease 9 years ago. I had no hope, but took his advice. In three weeks' time the sores commenced to heal up and I became encouraged. I continued the New Method Treatment for four months and at the end of that time every symptom had disappeared. I was cured 7 years ago and no signs of any disease since. Council Have Not Yet Authorized the Issuing of Debentures Asked For By Water Commissioners

By-law Sent to a Special Meeting—Mr. W. H. Moore Claims He Was Misunderstood at Friday Night's Meeting—$20,000 Not Wanted for Water Works Dam, is the Commissioners' Assurance

The Water Commissioners left the City Council Chambers a little too soon last night.

Ald. Hicks invited them to remain and hear the second reading of a by-law authorizing the issuing of debentures to raise $20,000 for water-works purposes; but as it looked as though the measure was going through the measure was going through the commissioners did not wait.

As amatter of fact the bylaw got but a very little distance on its journey through the second reading, before it was referred to a special committee of the council to be called by his worship, at which meeting the commissioners will be invited to be present.

Last Friday evening Water Commissioner Mr. W. H. Moore appeared before the Finance Committee, and his explanation of why the commissioners needed $20,000 to be raised by issuing debentures left the committee with a distinct impression that the $120,000 voted by the people for the construction of the new water works dam pumping station, etc., had been exceeded by $20,000 taken from the contingent fund, and which amount must now be replaced to meet waterworks extension requirements. Mr. Moore took the trouble to itemize the several expenditures unlooked for when the work was estimated, and our finance minister tallied them with pencil and paper, and the whole subsequent discussion hinged upon Mr. Moore's direct statement that this work in question would cost $140,000, hence the present need for issuing debentures.

Last night however, the three commissioners waited upon the council and offered that the Finance Committee had misinterpreted the situation, and Messrs. T. F. Matthews and W. H. Hill presented their case.

Mr. T. F. Matthews, chairman of the commissioners, regretted that an erroneous conception of the situation had gone abroad. He said they wanted $20,000 raised by debentures to replace funds used from the contingent fund for needed extension of water mains. The city bylaw authorized the issue of $10,000 worth of debentures each year for such work, upon which they had spent $33,000, in two years. Instead of asking for the issuing of debentures they had paid their way out of the surplus revenue and contingent fund so long as such were available, deeming it to be a better policy than to take advantage of their power to borrow $10,000 each year, and let the cash rest in a bank at 3 per cent. Interest until such time as actually needed. For the monies spent in 1908 and 1909 no provision whatever had been made and they now needed the $20,000 in question to put back into the contingent fund. They were not going to apply it to the cost of the water works dam, as debentures had been sold in 1908 and 1909.

To Ald. Hicks, Mr Matthews replied that he did not yet know what the actual cost of the waterworks etc., would be.

Ald. Hicks.—"Should the work total more than the $120,000 voted by the ratepayers what will you do?"

Mr. Matthews.—"We shall come back to the council."

Mr. W. H. Hill endorsed his colleague's explanation of the situation, and emphasized the fact that no debentures have been sold in 1908-9-10 for extension of mains, etc.

Mr. Matthews insisted that their demand for $20,000 worth of debentures was imperative in order to meet current and future requirements. Then a demand will shortly be made upon the commissioners for interest and sinking fund, which must be met. The commissioners cannot continue their operations and keep up with the demand for extensions, unless the council authorize the issuing of the debentures they are entitled to under bylaw.

Ald. Bradburn had considerable diffidence in fathering the bylaw authorizing an issue of $20,000 worth of debentures. "I don't like this way of doing business," he said; "coming to the council after the money is spent."

Mr. Matthews could not see the wisdom in issuing debentures for $10,000 each year paying at least 4½ per cent. for same, and leaving the cash in the bank until actually needed at 3 per cent.

Ald. Bradburn then introduced the bylaw in question, and it had its first reading, after which the commissioners departed.

EXPRESSIONS OF SURPRISE

General expression of surprise were here in evidence on the part of the Finance Committee. They could not understand how it was they could have, according to Commissioners Matthews and Hill, misinterpreted the situation as presented by Mr. Moore last Friday night. And the reports of that meeting circulated were not misleading so far as their acceptance of Mr. Moore's statement of the case is concerned.

Some of the aldermen are not yet sure of their position. They want to be satisfied that when the $20,000 to be borrowed is placed in the contingent fund it will not be appropriated to meet an overdraft on the water works dam construction account.

The act reads that the commissioners could apply it on payment of any such contract, providing they do not exceed $5,000. In the event of their wishing to exceed this amount they must get the consent of the Railway Board and that of the council.

Ald. Hicks, to the city solicitor—"Kyostonghout

"In voting for the replenishing of the contingent fund I want to be sure of my position. Can the Commissioners use the money of that fund, replenished by the issuing of debentures, for an excess of expenditures on the water works dam?"

The solicitor.—"They can up to $5,000, over that amount they would have to get the consent of the Railway Board and this council."

At this point the absence of the commissioners was regretted, and Ald. Hicks moved, seconded by Ald. Duncan, that this bylaw be read a second time at a special meeting to be called by the mayor, and that the Water Commissioners be requested to be present.—Carried.

The next meeting will probably be on Wednesday night.

Defence Believes That Dr. Crippen will Exonerate Miss Leneve

London, Oct. 24.—Dr. H. H. Crippen, under death sentence for the murder of his wife, Belle Elmore Crippen, is in a state of nervous collapse. Extraordinary precautions are maintained in Brixton jail to prevent him from committing suicide. The American doctor is under constant surveillance in the death cell and all his food is especially prepared and guarded more carefully than it was before his trial.

Crippen may not be able to testify in the trial of Ethel Claire Le Neve, charged with being an accessory after the fact and for whose love Crippen put his wife out of the way.

TRIAL OF MISS LE NEVE.

Miss Le Neve will be called to the bar in Old Bailey tomorrow, and the trial will be pushed as speedily as that of her lover.

Despite the announcement of Barrister Alfred A. Tobin that an appeal would be taken for Crippen, it had not been filed today, and lawyers who have followed the case, expressed the opinion that the prisoner's lawyers were on the verge of giving up the battle.

In sentencing Crippen Lord Chief Justice Alverstone announced that Crippen should entertain no hope of escaping the penalty.

INTEREST IS INTENSE

Interest has intensified in the trial of the Le Neve girl until it outrivals that in the trial of Crippen. Thousands of applications were received for seats despite the fact that the court room will accommodate only 150 persons, and approximately half of these are court attaches, lawyers, witnesses and others there on official business.

CEMENT MIXER MEETS WITH A HORRIBLE DEATH AT HIS WORK

Belleville, Oct. 24.—Frank Kylie, a middle aged man employed at the Lehigh Cement Works, was this morning the victim of an accident which proved fatal. He was engaged about a mixer when his hand caught and the arm was virtually ground off to the shoulder, and the flesh about the right breast torn off.

The victim expired shortly after being admitted to the City Hospital. Kyle was a married man residing outside of the city.

DEATH OF MAN WHO WAS AT MORNING SERVICE ANNOUNCED AT EVENING

Cobourg, Oct. 24.—Almost without a moment's warning, Mr. Reuben May died here yesterday afternoon. He was a retired farmer who had resided here some time in the town, and was well known throughout the community. In the morning he was present at the service in the Methodist church, and was apparently in good health. In the evening it was announced to the congregation that he was dead.

REMANDED FOR TRIAL.

Local Policemen Catch Alleged Burglars After Trying Experience.

Laverne Killingbeck and Garnet Innis tried to escape from Constables Newhall and Meagher at the C.P.R. station just as the 1.38 train came in on Saturday afternoon. They appeared in court yesterday morning on a charge of breaking into James Edgar's store on the night of Oct. 20th and taking goods to the value of $20. They did not plead or elect and the case was remanded for a week. Mr. G. N. Gordon appeared on behalf of the prisoners.

It appears that on Saturday afternoon the police ascertained that the prisoners were to be at the station, and Officers Meagher and Newhall hid behind some box cars on the Central Milling Co.'s siding. The men acted as though they expected to meet some one at the station. Killenbeck gave the officers a lively chase around some cars. One of the fugitives, seeing that the passengers and pedestrians saw their flight tried to mingle with the crowd but P. C. Meagher was too foxy for his little game, and gathered him in. P. C. Newhall, seeing the other escape from a gateman, who tried to grab him, followed his quarry, and got him at the bridge. Both captures reflect credit upon the local police officers. Both prisoners' faces and in one case, photograph, are known well in police circles.

THEY CLAIM THAT IT TAINTS THEIR PIES AND OTHER OTHER PASTRY.

And Is Driving Customers Away—Bylaw to Restrict Whistling of Locomotives Shelved for Two Months.

The city fathers met in special session last night. There were present Mayor Morrow, and Aldermen Dunfus, Hicks, Meegan, Bradburn, Gillespie, Metheral, Graham, Batten and Buller.

St. Peter's Total Abstinence Society asked for exemption of taxes on their new building, as was allowed in the case of their old premises. This was referred to the Finance Committee.

TAINTS THEIR PIES.

O'Connell and Gordon wrote the council that they had been instructed by Messrs. Potvin, Coleman Bros., and T. H. Hooper, bakers and confectioners, George street, that the city's practice of oiling that street was occassioning serious injury to their trade, and thayt a large number of customers were leaving them through odor and taste of the oil prevading the articles manuactured by them as a result of the presence of oil on the street. Their clients insist that this practice should be stopped at once or that other material should be used upon the streets as would be free from objectionable features. They would be pleased if the council would advise what the city was going to do in the matter.—This matter was referred to the Board of Works.

CLOSING OF STREET.

The notice of the closing of that part of King street needed for the expansion of the Peterborough Canoe Company, was read without any protest being forthcoming.

A bylaw to authorize the closing of that portion of King street in question, and the conveyance of the same to the Peterborough Canoe Company, Limited, was subsequently adopted.

Other minor communications were referred to their respective committees.

BACK TO COMMITTEE.

Ald. Duncan fathered the report of the Property Committee, the month's business of which has been published from time to time, together with the business of all other committees.

Clause 3, however, which recommended that Richard Sheehy's request that he be alloweh the land he has rented from the city for $5 a year instead of $25 as in previous years, was sent back to the committee for reconsideration.

Ald. Buller thought it a hardship that Mr. Sheehy should be charged $25 for a piece of land he is not really using now. When his business calls for the lot being of actual service to him he would willing renew the $25 rate.

Ald. Hicks enquired if it was the committee's idea not to have this lot tied up for $5 a year.

Ald. Duncan.—"Such is our object in not acceeding to the rate asked for by Mr. Sheehy. If he doesn't need the property let him give it up."

Ald. Graham.—"I understand that there is some heavy stone on it, difficult to remove."

The matter went back to committee.

$248 FOR CEMENT WALL.

Ald. Duncan reported that the city engineer's figure for constructing a cement wall at south side of the Public Library, was $245. This question will be consequently taken up by the Property Committee for consideration.

INCREASE OF SALARY.

A bylaw fixing the salary of Robt. Wilson at $50 a month, dating from October 1st, 1910, was passed. Wilson is janitor of the city buildings.

$12,500 FOR HOSPITAL.

A bylaw to authorize the borrowing of $12,500 for Isolation Hospital purposes passed its several readings.

WHISTLING OF TRAINS.

Ald. Duffus fathered a bylaw to prevent certain noises calculated to disturb the inhabitants of the city of Peterborough.

This measure was calculated to restrict the whistling of locomotives within the city limits.

Superintendent Lynch, of the Grand Trunk Railway, had however, written council, promising to minimize the whistling of locomotives as much as possible, in consideration of which Ald. Bradbdrn contended that there was no call at present for any bylaw dealing with the question.

Ald. Buller exclaimed that the tooting of engines was a safeguard to the public. One could not expect a man to run ahead of a train to warn the public of its approach.

Ald. Bradburn moved, seconded by Ald. Buller,—That this bylaw be "side-tracked" for two months.—Carried.

DIED AWAY FROM HOME.

Funeral of Little Beaver, Col., Boy, Who Was Sent Here to Recuperate.

This afternoon at 2.30 the funeral of the little nine-year-old boy, Arthur John Gale, will be held from the residence of Mr. Price, 37 Cresent street to Little Lake cemetery. The service at the house and grave will be conducted by the Rev. Mr. Riddiford. This funeral arises from a pathetic story. The boy died in Nicholl's Hospital on Saturday night. His parents reside at Denver, Col. Some time the boy while at home, had his thumb injured in a cream separator. The wound never seemed to heal together and blood poisoning set in. His physician in Denver advised his parents to bring the boy to a climate where the altitude was lower.

Hence the lad was brought to Peterborough and subsequently placed in the hospital, where, in spite of the best medical attendance procurable, died, as noted above.

A Physician on Food.

A physician of Portland, Oregon, has views about food. He says:

"I have always believed that the duty of the physician does not cease with treating the sick, but that we owe it to humanity to teach them how to perfect their health, especially by hygenic and dietic laws.

"With such a feeling as to my duty I take great pleasure in saying to the public that in my own experience and also from personal observation, I have found no food to equal Grape-Nuts, and that I find that there is almost no limit to the great benefit this food will bring when used in all cases of sickness and convalescence.

"It is my experience that no physical condition forbids the use of Grape-Nuts. To persons in health there is nothing so nourishing and acceptable to the stomach, especially at breakfast to start the machinery of the human system on the day's work.

"In case of indigestion I know that a complete breakfast can be made of Grape-Nuts and cream and I think it is not advisable to overload the stomach at the morning meal. I also know the great value of Grape-Nuts when the stomach is too weak for digest other food.

"This is written after an experience of more than 20 years, treating all manner of chronic and acute diseases, and the letter is written voluntarily on my part without any request for it."

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 25,

AN OLD FIGHTING GROUND.

The Nationalist element of Quebec, under the leadership of Bourassa, will doubtless make a strong fight to win the seat of Drummond and Athabaska, which has been rendered vacant by the appointment of Louis Lavergne to the senate. It is to be hoped that for the benefit of Canadianism the Nationalists are defeated. The chief purpose they service is to ferment public opinion and cause racial differences between the French and English-speaking elements of Ontario and Quebec. Drummond and Athabaska are notable fighting grounds and as a rule give large majorities to the Liberal party. But it is not alone for the advantage of Liberalism that we argue against a Bourassa and the doctrines of his Nationalist success, but because Bourassa and the doctrines of his party are against a United Canada.

A STRIKING TRIBUTE.

Great Britain has long been the admiration of foreigners, but perhaps no more remarkable eulogy of the mother country has ever been heard than that once pronuced upon her by Victor Hugo. Gazing across the channel that eminent Frenchman wrote: "Over that sea, in calm majesty, lies the proud Isle, whose existence consoles me for a thousand continuous crimes, and vindicates for me the processes of Providence. Yes, yes, proud England, thou art justly proud of thy colossal strength—most justly of thy proud like repose. Stretched upon the rock, but not like Prometheus, and no evil bend to rend thy side, rests the genius of England. He waits his hour, but counts not the hours between. He knows that it is rolling up through the mystic gloom of ages, and that its chariot is guided by the iron hand of destiny. It will come, it is coming, it has come. The whole world, aroused as by some mighty galvanism, suddenly raises a wild cry of love and admiration, and, and throw itself into the bounteous bosom of England. Henceforth there are no nations, no peoples, but one, individuable, will be the world, and the world will be one England. Her virtue and her patience have triumphed. The lamp of her faith, kindled at the apostolic altars, burns as a beacon to mankind. Her example has regenerated the erring, her mildness has rebuked the rebellious, and her gentleness has enchanted the good. Her type and her temple shall be the Mecca and the Jerusalem of a renewed universe." A country that compels such admiration in foreign hearts, compels also the absolute affection of her subjects. Canadians, Australians, New Zealanders, South Africans and Britons everywhere are proud of her and of the vast empire which her virtues and her energies have so firmly established.

CANADA'S BIG SURPLUS.

The announcement made by Mr. Lemieux in England that Mr. Fielding may be expected to announce a £6,000,000 surplus for the year is one which Canadians will note with some satisfaction. A $30,000,000 surplus would be the biggest by a large margin, that Canada has ever known, the record year to date being 1908, when the balance on the right side was something less than $20,000,000. The significance of the sum mentioned by Mr. Lemieux is emphasized by comparing it with the aggregate surpluses of all years from Confederation down to 1896. The sum of these surpluses is less than $40,000,000, and when the deficits, which aggregated over $23,000,000 are deducted, it dwindles to less than $17,000,000.

BIG LIQUOR CASE.

Norwood Hotel Man Will Fight Case in Local Option Suit.

One of the most interesting cases ever heard in the County of Peterborough is that against L. E. Killoran, of the Norwood House of that burg. Mr. Killoran is charged with selling liquror, during last September in a local option district. It is announced that Mr. J. H. Burnham will act in the interests of the government, while Mr. Killoran has secured Mr. L. M. Hayes, K.C., and Mr. G. N. Gordon to defend him.

The case which was postponed from the 10th of October was to have been heard before County Police Magistrate Edmison, at the town hall here on Monday last, but has been put off till the 14th of November.

A "Sure Thing" Poet.

Poets as a rule are not good business men, but an exception is one of a little group of young writers and artists who dine every evening together and talk shop. The poet very often reads the verses he has composed, and sometimes the comments are not exactly flattering. "That's rotten," exclaimed an artist on hearing one of these effusions recently.

"I'll bet you $5 I can sell it to a magazine," replied the poet.

The wager was made, and the artist lost. Since that the poet has made several similar bets with his scoffing friends and has won them all. He was chuckling over it to an outsider the other day. "You must have wonderful confidence in the merit of your work," said the rank outsider.

"Confidence nothing," laughed the poet. "I couldn't lose. I never read a poem to these fellows until I have first sold it." New York Sun.

Caring For Eyeglasses.

Most people seem to think that glasses will stand any sort of treatment, and yank and pull at them until they go to the repair shop with alarming frequency. Glasses should never be taken off with one hand; an optician advises that they be carefully grasped by the rims of the lenses on both sides and removed by pushing upward. Pulling at one side of spectacles bends the frame; with noseglasses it loosens the screw, and the lens shakes coath sally. Sometimes this happens in spite of care, and then it is well to purchase one of the tiny screwdrivers used by opticians and tighten them whenever necessary. Clean your glasses with some soft material—a common piece of tissue paper is better than any medium yet invented—and occasionally give them a bath in warm water into which a little ammonia has been dropped.

O summer girl, sweet summer girl,
We're watching now for you!
We're waiting for you to arrive,
You and your peekaboo.
The winter girl is very sweet,
And she has many charms,
But now the summer girl we want
To greet with open arms.

O summer girl, sweet summer girl,
Come early as you can
And be, as you have always been,
A blessed boon to man!
We'll lavish on you all our love,
As we have done before,
And we'll agree to bow the knee
And worship and adore.

THE ANIMAL DERBY.

It Would Be Ostrich 1st, Greyhound 2nd, Kangaroo Also Ran.

Most people have heard of those animal races which are a popular feature of gymkhana meetings, but it may be explained that for an animal race the competitor enters any sort of animal he likes, except a horse or a dog, and drives or guides his champion to the winning-post.

Now, we will turn the Derby into an animal race, open to the whole animal kingdom. We will suppose that each animal runs throughout at the greatest speed of which it is capable, and that they don't interfere with each other.

First of all the field. Some animals—such as cattle—are, obviously, too slow to stand a ghost of a chance, and so we will line up the following ten starters: Hare, lion, roebuck, greyhound, horse, giraffe, elephant, kangaroo, dromedary, and ostrich—the last-named because, although a bird, he runs, and runs mighty fast, too.

Indeed, here it may as well be said that if you want to win money on an animal race, you back the ostrich every time, for he is the fastest thing on land, and only one bird can beat him—namely, the swallow. The ostrich, then, would win our animal Derby with the greatest possible ease, for he would cover the 1 mile 4 furlongs and 29 yards of the Derby course at the amazing speed of 100 miles an hour—that is, nearly three times as fast as any horse ever foaled could do it, and, roughly, twice as fast as any other competitor among those named.

The record time for the Derby was made in 1906, when Major Loder's Spearmint won in 2 minutes 36 4-5th seconds. The ostrich would take, roughly, 53 seconds.

But who would be second? Probably the kangaroo will have a good many adherents, for, outside Australia, people have the idea that the kangaroo hops along at a tremendous pace. But the kangaroo would finish "down the course," absolute last!

A kangaroo is a slow animal, 7 1-2 miles an hour being his best speed. For second place, it would be a fairly close fight between the greyhound and the roebuck. A greyhound can go nearly a mile a minute—54 miles an hour, to be exact—and this would just bring him home ahead of the roebuck, whose best speed is a trifle over 50 miles an hour.

Now, for fourth place. The hare seems a likely choice; but again you would be wrong. A lion can give a hare a start and a beating. A lion is capable of 45 miles an hour, but the hare is fully extended at 4 miles an hour less.

What about the horse? Well, 35 miles an hour is the thoroughbred's limit, and that brings him into sixth place. Spearmint won his Derby at the rate of, roughly, 35 miles an hour, but a horse is capable of 38 miles an hour over a short distance.

Not far behind the thoroughbred would come the giraffe, who gets along at the "useful" gait of 34 miles an hour.

Then would come a big gap, closed at the other end by the elephant, who would come trumpeting along at a sedate 12 miles an hour.

The dromedary's speed, too, is a myth. Mr. G. E. Larner, the amateur walking champion, would make the dromedary step out, for the beast is not up to more than about 9 miles an hour, and Mr. Larner has walked 9 miles in 67 minutes 37 4-5 seconds.

And so the final placings of our animal Derby would be—ostrich, greyhound, roebuck, lion, hare, horse, giraffe, elephant, dromedary, kangaroo.

Grand Trunk Engineers.

For the past few weeks a committee representing the engineers of the Grand Trunk Railway System has been in conference with the superintent of motive power. So quietly did they carry on their negotiations that although twenty-six of them were domiciled at a Montreal hotel for weeks there has been no publicity about the matter. The negotiations werecarried on with the best of good feeling on both sides and now, it is pleasant to second that an agreemeathas been reached satisfactory to all concerned. The engineers asked for a substantial increase of pay, amounting it is understood to something like 12 per cent. The Grand Trunk was willing from the first to grant them an increase and the result of friendly negotiations is the agreement concluded Thursday. The representatives of the engineers left for their home Friday last entirely satisfied with the result of their mission to Montreal.

JONATHAN'S EMANCIPATION.

By HELEN T. QUIGG.

Jerusha Amanda Dibbs was his brother's wife and had asserted and maintained her authority over both his brother and himself ever since she had become a member of the family. All morning he had been wondering uneasily for whom the storm was brewing, and, as her husband had got out of the house unscathed, he feared that he was in for it. He was standing by the window now, looking out aimlessly, wishing that it were over and yet not daring to avoid it, and when she entered the room in which he stood, clearing her throat emphatically, he turned toward her with a shiver of apprehension. He was a stout man with an air of mild indecision about him; about his soft, sandy hair; about his broad, rounded shoulders; about even his easy grayish lace mack coat.

"It's pretty capers you've been cutting around that Jezuel widow," she said.

Jonathan looked; it must be confessed, not only surprised, but worried. "I hope I have not made any trouble for her," he said doubtfully.

"It's absurd, positively absurd," continued Mrs. Dibbs, flopping into a chair. "The idea of marrying that silly little fool, without a cent to her name, and at your age too."

Her brother-in-law had not really had an intention of any sort in regard to the widow. Indeed, he had never had a decided intention in regard to anything since Mrs. Dibbs had taken possession. Nevertheless he felt mildly indignant enough to make a faint retort. "I am sure, Amanda, you were not much younger when you married Lucien," said he in his quiet way.

The curling pins in which Mrs. Dibbs' front locks were confined bristled with anger.

"I should like to know," she began in a deep, ominous voice, "what business that is of yours. And you know well enough, Jonathan Dibbs, that when I married your brother I was not nearly as old as you are. But anyhow"—her tone had become loud and resonant—"anyhow I never was such a childish simpleton as you are and always will be to the end of your days—to be fooled and taken in by a designing, no account little creature that's been fishing for a husband ever since that poor invalid man of hers died, worried to death by her flightiness, I'll warrant! That's a pretty thing to happen to a man like you, isn't it?" Here Mrs. Dibbs choked, and Jonathan took advantage of the momentary check in her assault to inquire, "Who told you I was going to marry her, Amanda?"

"Who told me?" she burst out. "Who told me? Why, hasn't the little fool herself been telling it all around the town that you wanted to marry her and," in a high, simpering falsetto, "that she didn't know whether she ought to think of it or not, but that Mr. Dibbs was such a nice man and such a friend of her poor, dear Arthur and she would hate to disappoint him? Oh, the idiot!"

Jonathan Dibbs looked thoughtful. Suddenly the figure of the widow in question appeared before his mind's eye. It was a neat, retiring little figure, with soft brown hair and a small face, slightly sunburned, but sweet and tender, and with an individuality of its own that only a patient, conscientious life could have given it. He compared it with the large, obtrusive face and figure of his sister-in-law, and gradually he began to smile. A sudden sense of relief came to him in the contemplation of the little widow and a strange, unusual sense of pleasure, the joy of the awakening of a desire and a will in him which he had never before suspected.

"I guess the little woman really did think I wanted to marry her," he remarked pleasantly.

"Of course she did," replied Mrs. Dibbs smartly in her loud, scornful voice, not noting the change in her victim's attitude toward her. "Of course she did, the conceited little piece."

"I wouldn't be absurd if I were you, Amanda," said Jonathan Dibbs. "It doesn't suit your size." He had spoken very slowly and smoothly, but he gasped a little now that he had achieved this crude but radical assertion of his freedom. He had reason to gasp.

"What! You dare! You dare!" She stood before him glaring, and his unaccountable inclination to laugh at her frightened him more than her passion did. "You dare!" she shouted. "You—you brute! I know that little fool had you in her clutches. I knew it. Did she tell you to say that? I might have known she would bring you to forget all honor and truth and duty. Don't you dare bring her to this house, you brute! Miss, indeed! She isn't the size of a fence rail. That's your idea of beauty, I suppose. Just you dare to marry her!"

Jonathan Dibbs, though his heart quaked within him, walked boldly past her to the door. There he turned. "I may send you an invitation to the wedding if she cares to have you come. Anyhow I'll send you an announcement. Say goodby to Lucien for me, will you? Poor Lucien!" He grinned happily into her blazing eyes and, shutting the door with a bang as he went through the house, strode out into the street.

Mrs. Dibbs sank into a chair and after repeating several times the Jonathan, however, though he was experiencing a faint, rather contemptuous pity for his brother, strode along gayly, as he had never done before.

"What a fool—what a fool I used to be!" he thought. "What a fool a man is anyhow to let a woman ride over him at her own sweet will! And to think that I stood it for twelve years and never thought of breaking away! It must have been the widow, bless her heart!" Here he smiled to himself sentimentally and wondered how she would take it, the "it" in question being the plan he was going to propose to her.

He flung the gate of the little yard wide open and walked quickly along the path by the side of the house. The widow was on the porch tending out some lace when he approached, and she looked up with face aglow when she perceived who it was. He lost no time in announcing the object of his visit. He took her hands in his and looked into her wide eyes. "Lillian," he said, "there is a train that leaves here for the city in forty minutes. I want you to get ready and go with me on that train if you can do it in so short a time."

The widow flushed and paled.

"What for?" she asked.

"Why, to get married, of course," he said, surprised that she did not know. There was a silence, and when his arm stole around her, "Hurry up!" in a low voice and a tone whose anxiety did not refer to catching the train.

"I didn't know," she began slowly—"I didn't know we meant to get married. But if you wish it very much—oh, dear!" She hid her face suddenly in his coat.

"Now go," he said after a little, "because we want to catch that train. And wear that blue thing you have with the white spots—you know."

She smiled tremuously. No one had ever noticed her clothes before, and she had always half worshiped him anyhow, and now she was very much confused and very happy.

They managed to catch the train by means of a little running for it, and they rode gayly and breathlessly away from home toward the city. She stole a look at his beaming face and after awhile gathered courage to speak.

"Jonathan," she said softly, "how did I—what did I do to make you think of this? I never hoped"—

He laughed. "Call me Jack," he said with a blush. They used to call him Jack when he was a big, slow, good natured schoolboy. "And what you did was to make a man of me, that is all," he continued. Then after awhile he laughed again. "We have my sister-in-law to thank for some of this," he remarked slowly, "but," he turned to her and spoke with sudden emphasis—"but you must not let it grieve you if we never have a chance to express our gratitude."

My Unknown Love.

I used to meet her in the park
Behind a prancing pair,
While this poor heart went pitapat
To see a form so fair.

I grew to know her lovely eyes,
Her cheeks that flush and pale,
But who can see a maiden's blush
Beneath an auto veil?

In winter she's an Eskimo
In heavy furs arrayed.
In summer she is nothing but
A goggled mummy maid.

And so my heart has ceased to throb
At sound of horn or bell,
It might be Angelina.
If it were I could not tell.
—Harper's Weekly.

Sarah Made John.

Mrs. Smith-Jones-Brown (effusively) Congratulations, my dear! I hear you just received your final decree.

Mrs. Greene-Robinson-Johnson-Jackson—Yes, indeed, and the judge paid me such a pretty compliment.

Mrs. S.-J.-B.—Really? What was it?

Mrs. G.-R.-J.-J.—He said that in view of my excellent record in the divorce courts an honorary decree should be conferred on me.—Illustrated Sunday Magazine.

An Unintended Error.

The Critic—In the twelfth chapter of your novel you say, "As Clifford Dangerfield came slowly up the long garden walk Clarissa, with maidenly admiration, gazed upon him."

The Author—Well, isn't that all right?

The Critic—Hardly. How can Clarissa "gaze" after she has been blinded?

The Author—After she has been blinded? What are you talking about?

The Critic—Why, in the previous chapter, in which you describe Clifford's planing mill, you say, "For a long, fascinating minute Clarissa rested her beautiful brown eyes upon the swiftly revolving bandsaw."

The Oldest Known Bookkeeping.

In the primitive villages of the Andes, scattered through Peru, Bolivia and Ecuador, the descendants of the ancient Incas depend upon the "kipu" for keeping all their accounts. It was in use when Pizarro conquered Peru, and the Andean Indians have never improved on it. It is the oldest known form of bookkeeping. The kipu is simply a collection of knotted strings. Differently colored strings denote different articles in daily use and ten distinct knots the ten numerals. In the absence of a written language it is a marvelously perfect system. Large transactions are conducted as accurately by it as if double entry bookkeeping were employed.

Very Fishy.

She was a fisherman's daughter, she wore her hair in a net, and she preferred love in a piscatorial way.

"My love," he whispered, "you hold first place in my heart! Although I flounder about in expressing himself, my sole wish is that you will save me from becoming a crabbed old bachelor. I shall stick to you closer than a limpet. From you a wink'll be the road to guide me. Together we will skate over life's rocks, and when I look at your hand beside me I shall say to myself, 'Fortune was mine when I put her-ring there!'"

And then the lady dropped her eyes in sweet confusion and murmured:

"Pass the salt."

Didn't Choose Well.

Some years ago a certain candidate, a relative of one of the present New Brunswick Senators, was running for the House of Assembly of that province. One canvass against him was that he was an infidel; and in the course of his nomination speech an opponent who possessed a rather shady business reputation shouted: "You don't believe there is a God."

"Do you, Mr. B.?" asked the candidate.

"Of course I do," replied the opponent.

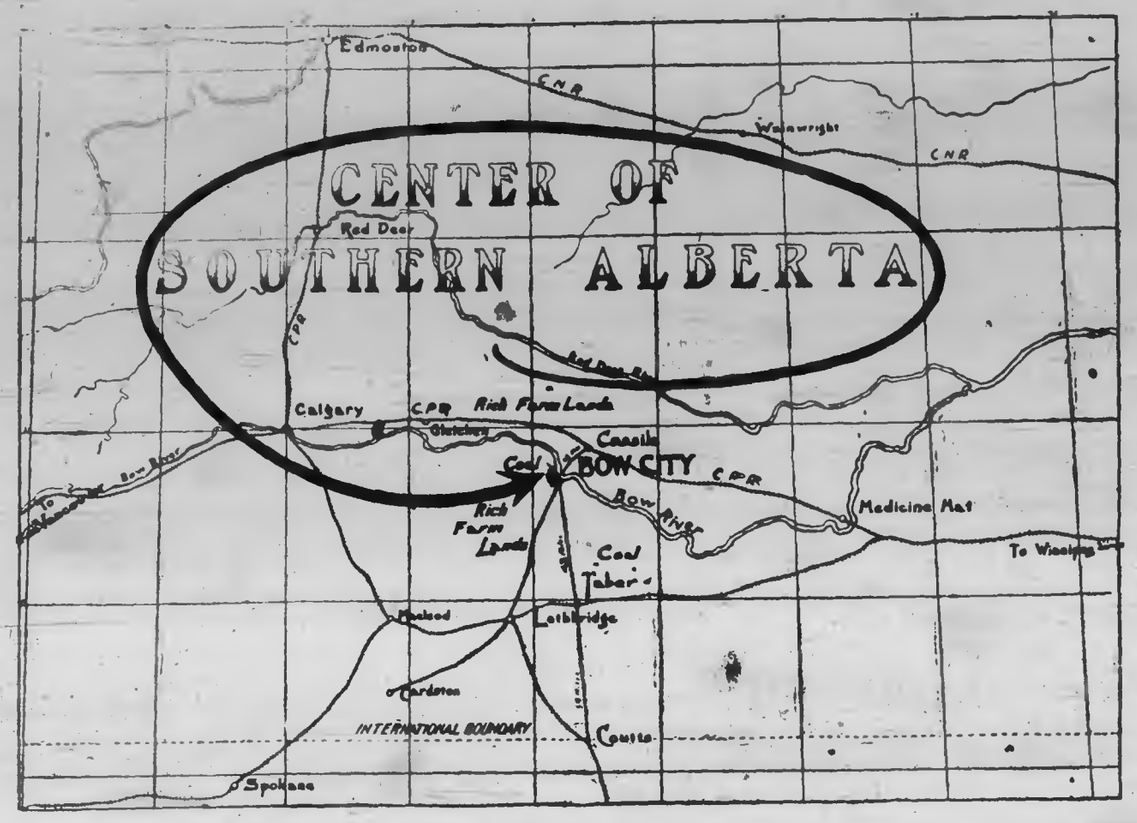
"Then why have you served the devil all your life?"

Footnote to the News.

"I see," remarked Mrs. Boomis, who was reading the evening paper aloud because her husband's eyes were tired, "that boots and shoes are going up."

"I wonder," said Mr. Boomis thoughtfully, "if all shoes will be affected. Do you suppose, for instance, that low shoes will be higher?"—Youth's Companion.

"GIVE YOUR SON A DEED"



If, by way of illustration, you will review the history of the men in your town who have made money out of real estate, you will find that in each and every instance their profits were made from real estate acquired at ground floor prices.

More money can be made by those who acquire a realty interest in a town at its inception per dollar invested than from investments made after a period of years.

Do you know that you can purchase with $5 cash a full sized residential lot in Bow City, Alberta

the logical location for a great city, a city which is destined to be known, the world over, as a market place annually for hundreds of thousands of bushels of grain, grown on the vast irrigated fields surrounding Bow City, a shipping point for coal from the great Bow Centre Collieries, and a purchasing depot for hundreds of prosperous farmers resident throughout Southern Alberta.

To-day is your opportunity to acquire an interest in Bow City at the ground floor price.

It will be too late six months hence, to apply for a lot in Bow City at the present prices and on such easy terms as are offered you in this advertisement.

Why not follow Russell Sage's advice given in a letter published some years ago to the fathers in the Western States:—

"Buy your son a lot in a town being the "centre of a great agricultural country—when "he comes of age that lot will be worth consid-"erable money and will provide a handsome "stake for him in life; it is at least most sub-"stantial life insurance—sure and certain."

Buy your son a $50 lot in Bow City, the coming metropolis of the western prairies. In a very short time he can re-sell the same at a big increase, which money he will find advantageous in business pursuits or in a college course.

Bow City, the centre of the great granary of Southern Albert has a future concerning which no sane business man or banker has any doubt.

When you are assured of the success of the city, when you have proven to you beyond the shadow of a doubt that Bow City will, in the very near future, be one of the most active, one of the most progressive towns on the Western prairies, you should not hesitate to acquire at least one $50 residential lot, when same is on sale on such easy terms as 10 per cent cash and the balance 10 per cent per month until paid--a deed at any time.

Bow City is in the heart of a famous irrigated farming belt whose farmers are assured of a crop every year. They are prosperous and their prosperity will naturally enhance the value of Bow City real estate.

The great coal mines of Bow City will furnish work for 1,000 to 1,500 miners daily, these miners will constitute a substantial basis for a successful city.

The present owners of Bow City have decided that no licenses shall be issued for the sale of spirituous liquors; they intend that this great mining and agricultural centre shall be free from any traffic in intoxicating drinks—it will be a clean city.

Bow City is the headquarters of a railway which taps a territory unparalleled for richness in crops and natural resources.

The Sale of Bow City Lots opened but a few days ago

If you are desirous of acquiring a $50 residential lot close in you should lose no time in making application by wire direct to the General Agents of the townsite, or to the nearest sub-agent.

Do not delay by sending your apulication by mail.

Wire at once your reservation for one or more lots On receipt of wire your name will be placed on the closest-in unsold lot or lots and same will be held in your name, allowing you sufficient time for your cash payment, mailed same day you wire, to travel from your home to the head office.

You may find it to your advantage, if you are desirous of securing a business opening, or a business lot, to write for copy of the plans, booklets and descriptive matter concerning Bow City, all of which may be had on application, free of charge.

ROOSEVELT ON TARIFF.

Says He Had Nothing to Do With Drawing Platform.

Hot Springs, Ark., Oct. 19.—Theodore Roosevelt got here at eight o'clock this morning after a 27-hour trip from Atlanta. He is to stay here until 5.30 o'clock, when he leaves for St. Louis, for a twenty four hour stop. Col. Roosevelt reiterated, in a talk on the train this morning as it neared Hot Springs, the declaration he made at Atlanta on Saturday night, that he was not to be held accountable for the tariff plank in the Saratoga platform.

"I have already made my attitude with respect to the tariff known in my western speeches and in those at Saratoga and Syracuse," said the ex-president. "The Saratoga plank was not of my making. I have not changed my position on the tariff."

The ex-president, it was reported this morning would come out in his speech at Indianapolis next Thursday with a severe arraignment of the Payne-Aldrich law. His Indianapolis speech will be an effort to help along the candidacy of United States Senator Beveridge. John Kern who is opposing Beveridge, has stated on the stump that Roosevelt has straddled the tariff question by proclaiming himself as against it in the West and for it in the East through the Saratoga convention plank. The ex-president would not tell how he proposed to handle the tariff question until he gets to Indiana.

"Wait till we are there," quoth the colonel.

If Col. Roosevelt attacks the Payne-Aldrich tariff law in Indiana, it is suggested here that he will find himself in an embarrassing situation when he gets back to New York State to take up the fight for Henry L. Stimson, his candidate for governor.

Col. Roosevelt refused to comment today upon the action of the Indiana Democrats in getting Colonel Wm. J. Bryan to stump Indiana in the trail of the African hunter. Colonel Bryan is to be one day behind Col. Roosevelt, and according to word that has reached the Roosevelt special train, he is to attack Mr. Roosevelt for his attitude with respect to the tariff expressed in the Saratoga platform.

COMPULSORY MILITA SERVICE.

Lord Rosebery Predicts It Will Come Before November, 1916.

London, Oct. 19.—A great deal of controversy has been in evidence over the recent statement said to have been made and backed up by a wager that a compulsory military service will be established in Britain.

It is on record that a bet has been made by Lord Rosebery in a London club with Lord Chancellor Loreburn that by November 1916, compulsory militia service will be established in Great Britain. As Lord Rosebery is an imperialist in his sympathies, and still, nominally at least, a liberal, much stress is laid on his declaration by the makers of conscription literature, which is now enjoying a wide publicity in the United Kingdom. The conversion of such a man as the ex-premier to the belief that Great Britain must take a leaf from the experience books of Continental Europe is considered significant. It would be idle as well as futile to deny that the attachment of his name to the cause of which Spencer Wilkinson and others have been identified, has a certain amount of significance.

His opition might be regarded unprofessionally, of course as a greater value than that of Lord Roberts, whose profession would naturally be thought to influence his judgment.

As a historian as well as a stylist, Lord Rosebery commands respect and a large amount of the argument he advances is historical, but historical writers will admit that the parallel he draws between the case of Great Britain of today and the Prussia in the disastrous year of Jena is a stretch on the imagination and there will be a long controversy before John Bull will authorize the "King's press" as a permanent recruiting agent of the fighting forces.

Capital Stock $600.000---Par Value $1.00

No Preferred Stock. No Bonus or Free Stock. No Bonded Indebtedness
Lease Runs 40 Years All Stock in Treasury for Incorporated Under Laws
One-Sixth Royalty. Benefit of Holders. of State of California.

166 acres of absolutely proven oil land on Sulphur Mountain, adjoining and between the Liberty and Puritan Oil Companies' property. Ten miles from Santa Paula, Ventura Co., Calif.

FACTS—The property is absolutely proven territory, lying as it does with the UNION OIL CO. producing on the south, the LIBERTY OIL CO. producing on the west, the HARD OIL CO. producing on the north, which only recently erected its 30th rig, and Puritan Oil Co. to commence drilling on the east. Also it is located in a district of BIG PRODUCING COMPANIES, such as Ojai Petroleum, Pyramid Oil Co., Canadian Queen, Capital Crude, Hard Oil and Asphalt Co., and others. THERE'S NO QUESTION ABOUT THE COMPANY GETTING OIL. It is possible that Liberty Oil Company's new well will be a gusher, which would make the ATLANTA OIL COMPANY stock worth par. Mr. Cowell, our Superintendent, knows every foot of the ground, and having his log book of Liberty property, which adjoins our land, and an experienced OIL MAN and we consider ourselves fortunate in obtaining his services. VENTURA CO. OIL represents the cream of the industry. It is the home of HIGH GRAVITY OIL. VENTURA COUNTY OIL means $1.00 a barrel at well. Costs from 2c to 4c to produce it. THE GREAT UNION OIL CO. got its start in VENTURA CO. and has paid over twenty-two millions in dividends. These GREAT ASSETS had a small beginning in the WILD HILL QUEREA, within SIGHT OF ATLANTA OIL CO. property. The demand for refining oil FAR EXCEEDS THE SUPPLY. The 36 refineries in California are crying for the product. The eastern high gravity fields are diminishing. The OHIO FIELDS, FOR INSTANCE, have fallen off one-third. The demand is caused by the increased market for gasoline. Throughout the world the number of automobiles and internal combustion gasoline engines is forcing up the price of high gravity crude petroleum. Eastern operators are now looking to VENTURA COUNTY, which are held to be the most extensive known. THIS IS THE FIRST ANNOUNCEMENT of ground floor offering of ATLANTA OIL CO., and may be overwhelmed at any time. One day's delay may mean you are too late. ACT NOW. WRITE FOR LATEST NEWS OF VENTURA OIL FIELDS.

The number for the derrick is on the ground and machinery has been ordered. Well No. 1 will be started as soon as drilling is installed. It should not take over six months to complete first well. Well No. 1, by conditions of lease, must be in operation by February 14th, 1911.

ADVANCES TO 20c AUGUST 20th.

ARE SUSPICIOUS OF THE OFFICIALS WHO ARE ASKING THE QUESTIONS OF THEM.

Shanghai, Oct. 21.—The taking of the census in China continues to involve the officers carrying out the duty in a great deal of trouble, the movement being looked upon with suspicion in the eyes of a population which mistrusts the cupidity of the mandarin. In the Sun On Prefecture the women resent the numbering of the houses and the affixing of notices and assemble in great numbers to oppose the action with vigor.

A resident in the Tai Pang village of the district, who had charge of the census affairs, roused the ire of the villagers so that they burned his house to the ground. Trouble regarding the census is also reported from the Lo Ting Prefecture, where it is said, serious rioting has occurred. Disturbance is also reported from the Wing On district.

The magistrate of that district suggested to the authorities in Canton that they should send down a persuasive speaker to go around to all the villages in the district and inform the people that the census was being made.

HUNTER ST., PETERBOROUGH

LORD CHARLES SEES DANGER AHEAD TRIPLE ALLIANCE TO OUTSTRIP BRITAIN.

Add Seven Dreadnoughts To the Program, Or In Three Years' Time Triple Alliance Will Stand Ahead.

London, Oct. 21.—Lord Charles Beresford has addressed an "open letter" to the prime minister, in which the following passage occurs:

During the next few weeks there must occur a momentous crisis in the affairs of the nation and of the Empire. If the right measures are taken by the executive government, of which you, sir, are the representative, the defences of the empire may be secured. The position of affairs with regard to the naval defences of the empire will three years hence be fraught with a danger whose gravity I believe it to be difficult to exaggerate.

In order that the naval power of Great Britain may be maintained in its proper relation to the strength of the naval power of foreign nations three years hence, I believe it to be absolutely essential that in addition to the five capital ships which are to be laid down next year, seven more first-class armored ships should be laid down. Such an increase in the force of heavy ships must of course be supplemented by the full and adequate provision of all those other elements of fighting power upon which depends the whole utility of the battle squadrons.

Biliousness is due to a disordered condition of the stomach. Chamberlain's Tablets are especially a stomach medicine, intended especially to act on that organ to cleanse it, strengthen it, tone and invigorate it to regulate the liver and to banish biliousness positively and effectually. For sale by all dealers.

A Beauty Tip.

When the skin takes on a shiny appearance one should take especial care of it. Rinse the soap off well with water when washing. The face should be dried with a very soft towel. Apply a simple remedy of one dram of boracic acid mixed with four ounces of rosewater. Before the face is quite dry a little powder should be placed on it. Then rub the face gently with a chamois after the powder has dried. In many cases where the blood is not at fault for the condition this remedy will be found entirely sufficient to take away the shiny appearance.

Encouraging Wrinkles.

Have you ever caught a glimpse of yourself in the mirror when you are doing your hair, brushing your teeth or putting the finishing touches to your toilet? If you haven't, just try it once and you will probably see, to your amusement, that you are making horrible grimaces and twisting your forehead into all sorts of frowns and wrinkles while doing these simple duties. Many people encourage wrinkles in this way and when too late to remedy matters wonder how in the world they got them.

A Good Tooth Powder.

Never use a tooth powder with camphor in it. It certainly whitens the teeth for a time, but it makes the enamel so brittle that the teeth are apt to decay very quickly. The best tooth powder to use is simple precipitated chalk. It should be kept in a wide mouthed glass stoppered bottle and can be perfumed by adding a few drops of eau de cologne or any favorite perfume.

Housekeepers' Hands.

If the hands are thoroughly greased with vaseline before using dyes it will prevent the stain penetrating deeply into the skin.

After washing clothes the hands are generally disagreeably rough. If a little olive oil is rubbed well into the skin and left for ten minutes, then rubbed with a cut lemon and well washed with hot water and soap, the hands will become smooth and white again.

The "Arabian Nights."

The collection of tales called the "Thousand and One Nights," or the "Arabian Nights," is of unknown date and authorship. It was first made known in Europe about the end of the seventeenth century by Antoine Galland who was employed by Colbert to collect manuscripts in the east. The copy of the Arabic manuscript brought by Galland from Syria contained a marginal note dated 1584, and from internal evidence the middle of the fifteenth century has been fixed upon as the probable period of the composition of the work. Some of the tales were evidently borrowed by the writer from other authors, and Von Hammer identifies at least the plot and some of the stories of the "Arabian Nights" with an earlier collection in Persian called the "Thousand Fanciful Stories."

April Fooling.

The origin of the custom of April fooling cannot be traced with any degree of certainty. In the literature of the last century there are found many references to it, and yet beyond that it is scarcely possible to go. One suggestion is that the custom of playing tricks on the first day of April was derived from some ancient pagan custom, such as the Hull festival among the Hindoos or the Roman feast of the fools. One fact, however, we do know, and that is that the practice prevails in many countries under various names which would seem to indicate that it dates away back to the early history of the race.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Four Extremes.

The coldest place on earth inhabited by man is Verkhoyansk, above the arctic circle, in northeastern Siberia. The thermometer there drops to 90 degrees below zero in January, but sometimes rises to 86 degrees above zero in the shade in July, dropping, however, to the freezing point on the warmest summer nights. The hottest place in the world is the interior of the great Sahara desert, in Africa, where the thermometer rises to 122 degrees. The wettest place is Greytown, Nicaragua, where the mean annual rainfall is 250 inches. The place of least rain is Port Nolloth, in South Africa, where less than an inch sometimes falls in a year.

All For Love.

"Did you ever know a girl to die for love?"

"Yes."

"Did she just fade away and die because some man deserted her?"

"No; she just took in washing and worked herself to death because the man she loved married her."—Houston Post.

A Cruel Hint.

Nell Harry had such a masterful way about his proposing that I liked Belle. Did you? That's queer, for it was exactly what made most of us other girls turn him down.—Baltimore American.

Live as though life was earnest and life will be so.—Owen Meredith.

One of the Kennel.

"The country is going to the dogs!" shouted the socialistic agitator at a street meeting.

"Quit your snarling, then, and wait for your share!" said the auditor who sized the speaker up.—Browning's Magazine.

LIFE IMPRISONMENT FOR AMERICAN TRAMP.

Parry Sound, Oct. 19.—Lodis Young, the American tramp who was accused of beating an old farmer named Davis to death while he lay in bed in a local hotel, was today found guilty of manslaughter, and sentenced to life imprisonment. He used a bottle on his victim's head, and his motive was robbery.

The Crown was about to postpone the trial, owing to the absence of its star witness, when the defence offered to plead guilty to manslaughter.

EVIDENCE AT INQUEST THAT ITALIAN ABUSED THE SQUALLING LITTLE ONE.

Mother Denies the Story—But Neighbors Tell of Her Own Statements—Evidence by Doctor.

Hagersville, Oct. 20.—Evidence that punish his infant child, was given here last night at the corner's inquest. The verdict returned was: "That the death of the infant son of Samuel Ponessa was hastened by violence at the hands of some person or persons to them unknown.

Dr. Holmes testified that he found livid marks on the child's forehead, face and back, which could easily have been caused by a strap. The body was that of a child which had suffered from inattention or want of proper nourishment. "I would say without hesitation that the child suffered violence before death, and that death was undoubtedly hastened by violence," said Dr. Holmes.

Mrs. Edith Rispin, who lives near the Ponessa's, said she was well acquainted with the Italian family, and had been told by Mrs. Ponessa that her husband had abused the child and would not buy food for it. She had even shown her a razor strop which he is said to have used on the child.

DESPATCHING CIRCUITS.

Grand Trunk Have Placed in Commission Two Telephone Train Despatching Circuits.

The Grand Trunk Railway System have recently placed in commission on their northern division, two telephone train despatching circuits as follows:—One circuit between North Parkdale Junction and Burlington Junction via Allandale, a distance of 145 miles, and another circuit between Allandale and Nipissing Junction, a distance of 165 miles. Train despatchers on each of these circuits are located at Allandale.

On the circuit between North Parkdale Junction and Burlington Junction there are twenty-one way stations, and on the circuit between Allandale and Nipissing Junction, twenty way stations. These circuits are constructed of No. 9 guage hard drawn copper wire, transposed at intervals of every half mile through the open country and as much more frequent as it is necessary in the vicinity of high voltage power lines in order to avoid inductive influences and to render the telephone circuits absolutely quiet. The station equipment is of the latest and most perfect type on the market and consists of a swinging arm transmitter and head band receiver for each way station, thus giving the operator the free use of his head, hands and body while using the telephone; the apparatus is swung to one side out of the way while not in use. The train despatching office is equipped with a selector system for calling offices and the duration of the ring in each way station is controlled by the despatcher, who plainly hears the ring through his receiver. Any office on the line can be signalled within eight seconds and as the signal bell in each office consists of a four inch gong there is little doubt but what the operator will hear his call even though outside of the office and at a distance fromit. The despatcher has absolute control of the circuits and way stations must obtain his co-operation when desiring to communicate with one another.

The telephone is considered as being superior to the telegraph as a medium for despatching trains both as a factor of safety and a saving of time. By telephone each station and and numeral is first pronounced and then spelled out letter by letter by the despatcher for verification when an order is issued, and repeated in like manner by the receiving operator; while by telegraph stations and numerals can only be spelled out in Morse characters.

During the past three years the telephone has made rapid strides on trunk line railways in the United States and Canada for train despatching purposes and today over thirty thousand miles of railway is being so despatched. While the expense for constructing and equiping telephone circuits, greatly exceeds that of constructing telegraph lines the railways have obtained so much better results with the telephone that they feel justified in spending the money.

We understand that it is the intention of the Grand Trunk Railway System to extend the use of the telephone over its more important and operators, the transmission belines in the near future.

The new system has met with the immediate favor of the despatchers ing so excellent that the work is transacted in fully fifty per cent less time and in a more personal and satisfactory manner, than is possible with the telegraph.

CANADIAN FLAG FLOATS FROM MORE'S MAST HEAD NEW CRUISER SALUTED.

Halifax, Oct. 21.—The Canadian cruiser Niobe, the flag-ship of the new navy of the Dominion, arrived in port this afternoon, and anchored just off the dockyard.

The new cruiser was visited by the Citadel as she came slowly up the harbor and also by the troops who paraded on the water front. The ships band responded to the cheers of the militiamen by playing the Maple Leaf.

Hon L. P. Brodeur, minister of marine and fisheries, and Mr. Desbarats, deputy minister boarded the Niobe at 4 o'clock, and were accorded a salute of seventeen guns.

Lieut. Governor McGregor, who was sworn in today, General Drury and the members of the civic reception committee also went aboard, when an address of welcome was delivered by the mayor.

The lieut. governor presented the cruiser, on behalf of the province, with a handsome case of plate.

Previous to the Niobe entering the harbor Admiral Kingsmill went aboard and hoisted the Canadian flag, amid the cheers of the crew.

He Will Travel Incognito—Wants to Make Trip Solely as a Sportsman.

Berlin, Oct. 21.—Fired by enthusiasm over Col. Roosevelt's big game experience in Africa, King Frederick August of Saxony has completed arrangements for an elaborate hunting expedition in the Soudan. He expects to start for Africa next February and remain two and a half months. His only traveling companions so far selected are his personal physician and his adjutant general.

The King desires to travel in the strictest incognito, and as far as his rank permits, purely in the capacity of a sportsman. The expedition will start from Khartoum and follow the route of the White Nile to the vicinity of Fashoda. His majesty will in the meantime thoroughly digest the German edition of Col. Roosevelt's book, "African Wanderings," and will profit as far as possible by the Colonel's jungle experiences.

The king's brother, Prince John George, and his wife, and his majesty's sister, Princess Mathilda, have just started for an extended visit to the Far East; where later in the winter they will join the German Crown Prince.

The Seventh Gate

A Story of the Chinese Forbidden City.

By CLARISSA MACKIE

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

Owen Ryder left the train at the terminus several miles outside the walls of Peking and covered the remaining distance toward the city gate on the back of a donkey.

As he approached the seventh gate he paused for an instant. He had come on a journey of thousands of miles to accomplish a mission, and now that the object of his search was almost within his grasp he hesitated.

Fear had no part in his hesitation. He was comparatively safe in the disguise afforded by his Chinese dress—as safe as any native Chinese who wished to gain admission to the Forbidden City.

Then, with a quick indrawn breath, he moved into the deeper shadow of the gate. As his hands touched the bronze doors they swung softly inward and engulfed him.

A dark shadow loomed at his side and, without a sound, guided him close against the inner wall in a curving line. They came to an abrupt stop in a grove of trees whose tops rustled high over their heads. Before them were the dim outline and bulky mass of some huge building.

At last a door closed softly behind them, the hands were removed from Ryder's lips and arm, and presently a light twinkled out of the gloom.

The American turned to look at his companion, who had withdrawn the cover from a small bronze lantern and stood revealed in its dim light.

Ryder stared and stared again at the tall, spare figure that confronted him. This was no Chinese—this man with deep sunken blue eyes and wisps of fair hair sticking out from under the cue bound about his forehead. Owen Ryder's wondering gaze traveled over the yellowed skin drawn tightly over the protruding cheek bones, down to the handsome nose and bitter, curling lips, down to the common blue cotton Chinese dress and then up again with puzzled eyes to study the face with something lacking—something—what?

The man laughed silently as he lifted his bony hands to each side of his head. "You miss these appendages, my friend. I have been cropped, you see." His voice was low and vibrant with some suppressed emotion.

Ryder gasped. "Your ears—my God!" He felt within his blouse for the comfortable reassurance of his revolver, and his fingers curled about the butt lovingly.

"Your ears next, my friend, and the ears of all who pass through the seventh gate inward," said the stranger, with assumed lightness. He turned and pointed to the wall behind him, and Ryder gasped again to see a line of dark figures stretched along the floor.

"Earless freaks," said the tall stranger, with sudden dreariness in his mocking tone. "Sit down on the floor, man, and tell your story—nay, let me preface it for you and for me and the rest of us—white men!"

"Go ahead," said Ryder.

"You are an artist of some sort. You have learned that these people have recovered their lost art of producing Kiustin porcelain, that rare painting of invisible flowers, fishes or other symbols on the outside of porcelain vessels, paintings that are only revealed when the vessel is filled with liquor of some sort. The discoverer of this lost and precious art is confined to his workshop in the palace here. The retention of the secret means the addition of large sums of money to this country; hence they guard it carefully. You were put on to the secret, you have come to spy it out, you have reached as far as"— "I had a model"—began Ryder eagerly, when the other man's low laugh cut him short.

"What is your name?"

"I am Edward Stone, an Englishman. I had a model, too, and so did each of these five other poor earless devils. It was the same model. One by one she sent us here as she sent you. It could have been no one else but Lena Shultz."

"It was Lena Shultz," returned Ryder dully.

"I knew it. The man who discovered the lost art is not a native. To what country he belongs I do not know. I do know that he made the discovery and was captured with his belongings and is confined within three feet of where we now are. All day he works in the underground cell perfecting his discovery, for in spite of the most violent threats he will not impart the secret to another soul or work in another man's presence."

"But why did that woman send us here—on a wild goose chase?" muttered Ryder after a silence.

"Yonder poor devil is her husband. She hopes with the aid of other white men to help him escape from here. I was the first to come. I arrived at 9 in the evening. Now it is my duty to open the gate at 9 every evening in the hope of catching other would be thieves. 'Set a thief to catch a thief, you know!' He uttered a hard little laugh.

"I suppose that's what we are, agreed Ryder.

"That's so."

"How long have you been here?"

"Four years."

"My God! How do you live?"

"Don't live—exist."

"Any hope of escape?"

"None whatever."

"The imperial government"—began Ryder suddenly, when the Englishman interrupted.

"The imperial government knows nothing about the matter. The whole rascally affair is in the hands of a clique of highborn scoundrels. Resolve to make yourself as comfortable as possible under the circumstances—resign yourself to losing your ears (if you ever should escape one can buy lovely pink rubber ones, I fancy) and hope for a change of rulers. Nothing else will cause excitement enough to have our existence forgotten. Good night!"

Stone calmly stretched himself on the floor and went to sleep. Ryder sat and brooded at the bronze lantern flickering in the distance. His hand still caressed the butt of his revolver, but with less confidence.

New York seemed many thousands of miles away tonight—New York and alluring Lena Shultz. He cursed her under his breath and wondered how many more men she would throw as bait into that hidden city in the hope that one or all of them might aid in the escape of her husband.

There was an audible murmur of sound without the thick walls, pierced by sharp staccato cries. The thud of many pounding feet sounded in the courtyards above their heads, and in an instant the six sleeping prisoners were awake and on the alert. The Latins gabbled French to one another, while Stone and Ryder drew near to an iron grating in the stone roof.

The American could make nothing of the strange sounds, but the Englishman's face lighted with sudden excitement.

"By Jove," he whispered exultantly, "you've brought good luck after all, Ryder! Something extraordinary has happened, from what I can hear—a change of government indeed! Two deaths and chaos everywhere. Time for us to make a move, and disguises are in order."

He swooped to a dark corner and pried up a portion of the stone flagging. He brought into view a mass of silk and satin. He threw rich garments to each of his fellow prisoners, and without a word they slipped into the voluminous folds.

"Doubly a thief," muttered Stone as he surveyed his companions. Then he caught up one remaining robe and thrust it under his arm. "See if we can release Lena's husband, poor devil! We owe her a grudge, sure enough, but white men must stand by one another!"

With the air of one who had studied his ground and was well versed in his undertaking, he unfastened the oaken door and by the guiding sound of his slipping, padding feet the six followed him into the outer darkness of corridors. They twisted and turned and doubled, and at last Stone paused before another door.

"I don't know just how to get inside," he admitted in a low tone. But the pressure of his hand on the planks pushed the door inward and revealed to their shocked senses a scene of carnage indeed. With the details omitted, they realized that Lena's husband was dead, with his precious secret still a mystery behind his horribly grinning lips.

"The syndicate has done well indeed," said Stone, turning away. Silently they filed through the passages until they reached the foot of the grass grown steps where Ryder had left the outside world behind. "It is here where the guard is set. Look for danger, friends," whispered the Englishman.

The shadows were uninhabited. They slipped up into the grove of whispering trees and followed the curve of the shining wall around to the seventh gate.

"Once outside!" muttered Stone feverishly.

"Once outside!" each man repeated in his own tongue.

In the distance were muffled cries and excited murmurings. Around the seventh gate all was still ominously still.

The seven were pressed against the bronze gate, and Stone was fumbling with the complicated lock. There was a rushing sound behind them, and they turned their heads.

A file of soldiers was running toward them, and their short swords were raised in deadly menace. Stone pulled the door open and dashed forth with his companions into pitchy blackness. They crashed into a sedan chair just entering the gateway. A woman's scream pierced the darkness, and from the tower overhead the watchman thrust his lantern.

"Lena Shultz!" bellowed Ryder excitedly.

With one accord the seven victims of Lena Shultz ignored the oncoming soldiers, and, shouldering the bearers aside, they grasped the poles of the chair and carried the shrieking woman away from the seventh gate—away from the Forbidden City beyond the outer darkness to the lighted consulate buildings—to safety for all.

The next day Ryder and Stone left for the nearest treaty port. "A fifth story studio and paint pots for the rest of my life. I'll take my foreign travel look fashion hereafter," said Ryder sheepishly to his companion as they whirled along the railway. "What's your first wish, Stone?"

The Englishman touched a matted wig which hung well down over the lapel of his coat.

"Pink rubber ears," he said solemnly.

And neither laughed.

Don't wash and scrub, bend and rub over a hot wash tub; sift a little GOLD DUST in the water, loosen the dirt, and save rubbing

Soap is not a bit of cleansing good until it is mixed with water and made into suds. And then it still needs the rub-rub-rub of human muscle.

GOLD DUST works in an entirely different way—instantly and totally dissolves in hot or cold, hard or soft water—and, without any aid from you, starts to cleanse.

GOLD DUST is more than soap—better and more economical. It is a powder of magic power—but rightly directed power, that leaves the wash white, sweet, wholesome.

Use your brains, not your muscle!

Throw away your soap, get GOLD DUST, and simply use it according to the directions on the package.

Miss Maud Mason's Funeral.

The funeral of the late Miss Maude Mason, daughter of Mr. Frank Mason the particulars of whose deplored death at Morden, Man., were given in a former issue of The Times, was held yesterday afternoon. The funeral service was conducted at the house by Rev. Mr. Couch, pastor of George street church, and interment took place at Little Lake cemetery.

Trunk Lost in Transit.

Yesterday morning a number of Germans started from Lakefield, per "shanks mare," to Peterborough, carrying a trunk suspended from a pole. They claim on arrival here, to have left the trunk in a wheat field, whilst they went to a farm house for refreshments. When they got back to the wheat field the trunk was gone. Last night a local citizen was meanly suggestive enough to insinuate that the trunk was possibly not carried on a pole but on a bier.

A Toronto Philanthropist Known in This City.

A Toronto despatch tells how a gentleman well known to many Peterborough people, Mr. Eugene O'Keefe, head of the great brewery of that name, took a prominent part in laying the corner stone of St. Augustine's seminary, Scarboro Heights. Chevalier O'Keefe was private chamberlain to his holiness Pope Pius X. It was his magnificent liberality which made possible the project of the $300,000 seminary, a circumstance to which Archbishop McEvay, in his official message, read by Rev. Father Kill, chancellor to the archdiocese of Toronto, and Bishop Fallon made grateful reference.

A Douro Silver Wedding.

THE VANISHING RED MAN.

The annual announcement is made at Ottawa, as to the number of Indians in Canada. Despite the impressions to the contrary which stubbornly prevail abroad, there are less than 87,000 red men in the Dominion, and only about 365,000 in Canada and the United States. Two centuries of white man's conquest were effectual in dispossessing the aborigines, and white man's habits have completed the work of destruction. The Indian cannot thrive in civilization.

The fact that the enumeration in Canada shows a slightly larger population than that reported for the previous years is not especially significant. The Indian is vanishing. Apparent increases in numbers are due largely to the discovery of new bands or remnants of bands in the more remote sections of the country The red men who mingle freely with their white brothers are succumbing one by one to tuberculosis and strong drink.

The fate of the Canadian Indian is one of the sacrifices to the march of civilization not particularly pleasant to contemplate. Nothing which may be said as to the mercilessness and savagery of these people in earlier days can alter the fact that the land was theirs by right of possession, and that the white man deprived them of it by force of arms and stole their inheritance by guile when he did not take it by force. He gave them the Bible with his right hand and the whiskey flask with his left. They preferred the flask. He taught them to forsake their tents, and they died by thousands in the houses which he encouraged them to acquire.

The bison and the Indian are gone, or almost so. The forest is going. Streams are dwindling, and swamps have become pasture fields. The Canada of today would hold some strange revelations for the early explorers, could they once more return to see the handiwork of succeeding generations.

Local moving picture men complain that the low water in the Otonabee river prevents them from getting power to give a satisfactory picture during the day time.

A Well Known Local Citizen Passed Away

Mr. James Stevenson, ex-M.P., ex-Mayor, ex-Councillor, and General Philanthropist, Has Joined the Great Silent Majority.

One of Peterboro's oldest, best known and generally respected citizens, in the person of Mr. James Stevenson, ex-M.P., died yesterday morning. Throughout the city and county of Peterboro, and in fact the Province of Ontario, there lived few men more generally known, particularly during the years previous to the past decade. The late Mr. Stevenson, from his boyhood until sixteen years ago, when business reverses and complications swept away his fortune, was a strenuous worker of wide experience in diverse branches of business.

The deceased was born in County Fermanagh, Ireland, of sturdy Protestant stock. His father the late William Stevenson, who died some years ago in Peterborough in his 97th year, came to Canada in 1840 and settled in the village of Port Hope. At the age of 15, Mr. James Stevenson, an ambitious lad, moved to Peterborough, and began business. By close application, intelligent methods and honesty of purpose, he rapidly increased his business and began to acquire considerable property. The hardware business of Rich. Barrett, in which Mr. Stevenson began here as a manager, and of which was soon in his full possession, was sold by him in 1873. Notwithstanding his great and rapidly growing business he was always noted for the patriotic and enthusiastic interest he always took in municipal, educational and political matters. He served Peterboro seventeen years in the Town Council and four years in the County Council. He was first elected mayor of Peterboro in 1854, and was again mayor in the years 1857, 1858, 1859, 1866 to 1891 consecutively, many of his elections to this office being by acclamation. During his term as mayor, there was carried on the negotiations which resulted in the establishment of the Canadian General Electric Company here. Mr. Stevenson, during his whole life was characterized by the zealous interest in and practical work he did for the cause of education. He was a member of the Peterboro Board of Education for over half a century consecutively, and was for many years chairman of that Board. Until the infirmities of age and growing deafness precluded his serving on that Board, to advantage, he took a more active part possibly than has any man in Canada in a similar position. When he decided to resign the members regretting his enforced withdrawal, presented him with a handsome portrait of himself with a suitable inscription.

Mr. Stevenson has also, in the interests of Peterboro, served many years on the Little Lake Cemetery Board and also as a member of the Horticultural Society. One characteristic of the deceased in the days of his prosperity was his generous assistance to the poor.

In politics the deceased has been a life long and ardent supporter of the Conservative cause, and was a warm personal friend, as well as supporter of the late Sir John A. Macdonald, who on several occasions was Mr. Stevenson's personal guest, at the latter's former residence on Simcoe street. In 1882 Mr. Stevenson was tendered the nominations for the Dominion House, but on account of pressing personal business, had reluctantly to decline. However, in the next political crisis, Mr. Stevenson was again pressed to run for West Peterboro, for the House of Parliament. At great loss of time and under immense loss of business, in the interests of his party, Mr. Stevenson consented. His opponent on the Liberal side was Hon. G. A. Cox, a wealthy man and a strong politician. After one of the hardest political fights in this country Mr. Stevenson headed the poles by a majority of 16. On the expiration of that term in Parliament, he was again induced to accept the nomination, and succeeded in defeating Mr. Richard Hall. It was common report in Ottawa during the eight years Mr. Stevenson was West Peterboro's representatitbe, that no private member of parliament commanded as strong an attention from members of the cabinet as did the local member. In religion, Mr. Stevenson, originally a member of the Church of England, as a young man, joined the Methodist Church and was always a constant worshipper and free contributor to that body.

Previous to business reverses, noted above, Mr. Stevenson was possibly the largest individual property owner in this town. He owned many stores on George and other streets, the large warehouses along the G.T.R. on Bethune street, was president and practically owner of the local Works, was also a director in many real estate, savings and other aspirations.

Mr. Stevenson was twice married. His first wife was Margaret Brunker Dundas. Afterwards he married Emma Rankin Appleton. Mrs. Stevenson died some 21 years ago. Surviving Mr. and Mrs. Stevenson are two sons and four daughters.

THE LATE JAS. STEVENSON, EX-M.P.
Who Died Yesterday Morning.

The quicker a cold is gotten rid of evident leader of the band, talving the loss the danger from pneumonia and other serious diseases. Mr. B. W. L. Hall, of Waverly, Va., says: "I firmly believe Chamberlain's Cough Remedy to be absolutely the best preparation on the market for colds. I have recommended it to my friends and they all agree with me." For sale by all dealers. street.

Miss Moore left for Peterborough this morning.—Mr. R. J. Kidd, of Peterborough, and Mrs. Kidd visited in Lindsay last evening.—Lindsay Post.

A CLOUDBURST AND TIDAL WAVE

500 PERSONS REPORTED TO BE DEAD FROM CLOUDBURST AT ISCHIA.

Damage Along Coast—Streams of Mud and Lava Which Flowed From Mount Vesuvius Buried Several Families.

Naples, Oct. 25.—In the fear that more than 500 may be dead in the cloudburst and tidal wave. Government officials are doing everything in their power to get to the storm-swept island of Ischia today, and also to obtain the real news of the situation from there.

It is believed that the loss of life has been heavy, and that a number of Americans may be included among the victims, as the island was a favorite resort for tourists. Communication was practically cut off today, the only information that has yet reached here being brought by ships that passed near the island.

RELIEF TRAINS SENT.

Relief trains were rushed today to Casamicciola, a town of 4,000 inhabitants. The first report received here said that the town had been destroyed, but it is now known that the disaster is not as complete there as had been feared. Nevertheless, the mayor of that town sent word that there was heavy loss of life.

BROTHERHOOD OF ST. PAUL BANQUET

The Brotherhood of St. Paul's banquet in the Guild room of St. Paul's church last night was a very interesting and pleasant affair. There was a good attendance. The speaker of the evening was C. C. James, deputy minister of agriculture and his subject "The Relation of City Life to the Agricultural Interests," presented many points that should be of value to those present.

The speaker pointed out that with the co operation of the city people and the farmer better results in many ways would be obtained. If the farmer was encouraged and shown that by giving his undivided attention to his farm and improving it so that by keeping in touch with the up-to-date scientific methods of the day, that he would obtain good prices and would receive a fair profit as a compensation for his work, he would stay on the farm and would thereby help the city folk, as the successful farmer must have good machinery and other necessities to carry on his work and these must be purchased from the people of the city as they are manufactured by the mechanics and retailed by the merchants to the farmer. Mr. James referred to the happy and healthy condition of the people of Denmark, whereby as a result of a system of co operation of the farmer and people of the towns and cities Denmark is today one of the leading agricultural countries of the world. More than that there is little if any poverty, while there is really no very wealthy men, people being as a result of their happy co operation on about an equal standing as to wealth.

At the close of the address a hearty vote of thanks was tendered the speaker. During the evening a splendid program was given.

CRUELTY OF A HUSBAND.

He Would Not Buy Milk for Baby and Starved His Wife.

London, Oct. 24.—A sordid case of neglect and cruelty was heard in police court when Mrs. Ida Bates charged her husband with starving her and her baby and abusing them.

According to the story Bates, who was working steadily, has given mother and child nothing but bread and tea. He would not buy milk for the child, and when it cried, would stick his finger down its throat. Neighbors, who heard the wife screaming as the man abused her, had Bates arrested. He will be sentenced this week.

Mrs. Blogg, daughter of Mrs. E. Poussette, has gone to Mayworth, Ont., owing to the sudden illness of her husband.

SPEEDY AND FAVORABLE VERDICT BY THE JURY WAS A BIG SURPRISE.

Only a Few Witnesses Were Called By the Prosecution—Judge Sided With the Girl.

London, Oct. 25.—After a trial of unexpected brevity today, Ethel Clare Leneve was acquitted of the charge of being an accessory after the fact to the murder of Belle Elmore Crippen.

The speedy and favorable verdict by the jury was a big surprise, for following the sentencing to death last Saturday of Dr. Hawley Harvey Crippen for the murder of his wife, it was expected that Miss Leneve, his former stenographer and sweet heart, would receive a brief sentence.

Miss Leneve did not take the stand in her own defence. Pale and trembling, and apparently fearful of an adverse verdict, she pleaded not guilty to the charge that she did afterward feloniously receive, comfort, harbor, assist and maintain Dr. Crippen.

Richard D. Muir, the Crown prosecutor, started out as though he intended to prosecute the girl as vigorously as he did Crippen, and in his opening statement he urged that the prisoner undoubtedly knew of the murder of Mrs. Crippen, as she was the motive for the crime.

JUDGE SIDED WITH GIRL.

Only a few witnesses were called by the prosecutor, however, and the examination of these were brief, with no determined effort to bring out damaging evidence against the girl.

Lord Chief Justice Alverstone, who arraigned Crippen in such a merciless fashion, summed up the evidence for the jury, and his every word and action clearly indicated that his sympathies were with the unfortunate prisoner, whose delicate condition was a potent point in her favor.

The jury retired at 3.45, and within a few minutes it was announced to the court that an agreement had been reached. Three minutes later the jury returned to its box and handed the lord chief justice its perdict. When the acquittal was announced there was an attempt at applause in the crowded court room, which was quickly suppressed by the court bailiffs.

Died at 101 Years

Belleville, Oct. 25.—Philip Smith, aged 101 years, died in the County House of Refuge here last night. For seventy-five years the deceased had been a resident of the county, and for years followed the occupation of a carpenter. He was born in Addington County, and was never married.

WESTERN STORMS DO GREAT DAMAGE

ALONG THE NORTH COAST OF BRITISH COLUMBIA AND ALASKA—WIND AND RAIN.

Bridges Swept Away—Havoc Caused Near Prince Rupert—Two Miles of Tracks Washed Away.

Vancouver, Oct. 25.—Fierce and destructive storms are sweeping the north coast of British Columbia and Alaska, according to advices today from Prince Rupert. Strong winds and heavy rains are causing havoc in the vicinity of the terminus of the Grand Trunk Pacific. Bridges are being swept away and telegraph and telephone lines are torn down by wind and landslides. So far as has been ascertained no lives have been lost.

The storm has continued since last Wednesday, and the damage done by it has been terrific, particularly in the vicinity of Prince Rupert.

Last Wednesday the Kyan bridge, one of the biggest on the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, near Prince Rupert, was blown down and the track washed out for about two miles.

The telegraph lines of the government along the Skeena River suffered a great deal, a mile of poles and wires being taken away by landslides.

TOOK THEM ONLY 19 MINUTES TO REACH THE VERDICT OF ACQUITTAL.

No Evidence Put In for the Defence—Prisoner Laughed Hysterically After Being Pale and Trembling.

London, Oct. 25.—Ethel Claire Leneve was acquitted on the charge of being an accessory after the fact in the murder of Belle Elmore Crippen in Old Bailey Court this afternoon after a trial that lasted less than a day.

It was for love of Miss Leneve that Dr. Crippen, now under death sentence, murdered his wife. The Crown counsel, Richard Muir, couldn't show that Miss Leneve had knowledge of either Crippen's intentions or of the crime itself.

There was no witnesses called by the defence. Immediately upon the conclusion of the speech of F. E. Smith, Miss Leneve's attorney, Justice Alverstone delivered his charge to the jury and they retired, returning in 22 minutes with the verdict of acquittal.

"It is surely an astonishing proposition that Ethel Leneve would have remained secret after callous and cold-blooded murder if she knew of it," said Barrister Smith.

"How far has the prosecution convinced this jury that Miss Leneve had any knowledge that a murder had been committed? To my mind this has not been done at all."

HYSTERICAL WITH JOY.

Miss Leneve was almost hysterical with joy, and wept and laughed hysterically. Her aged father and mother, were the first to reach her, and their emotion was as marked as the girl's.

As Miss Leneve sat in the prisoner's dock today, she was a pathetic figure. She is 27 years old, of medium build, light brown hair, grey eyes and excellent teeth. Her face is pretty, and she is trim. She wears good clothes becomingly, and, naturally buyonant and affable, she is a prepossessing woman. Today she was attired in the same neat blue costume which she wore at the preliminary hearing in the police court.

The jury was out exactly 19 minutes. Immediately after the verdict was read, the court ordered the release of Miss Leneve. Miss Leneve remained in the building for nearly an hour, by which time the police had succeeded in dispersing the crowd out side.

SHELDON IS THE GREATEST SWINDLER OF A DECADE.

Once Sent Business Men of Scranton Mad With Fabulous Profits—

New York, Oct. 25.—It is practically certain that Charles D. Sheldon the missing blind pool operator of Montreal, and Charles F. Washburn, of New York, are one and the same. The general similarity in appearance might be a coincidence, but doubt is absolutely removed when certain physicla peculiarities are compared and particularly as the methods of the two men are studied.

Washburn turned the heads of New York people in 1908, then swindled them out of $1,500,000. He wrote back saying that he hoped to recoup his losses and pay all. Sheldon repeated history almost to a dollar and to a fact in Montreal.

The history of Sheldon's recent operations is known very well in Canada, and particularly in Montreal and Ottawa. Two years ago when Washburn was compared with 520 Per Cent. Miller he grew indignant. Washburn became quite indignant when the name of 520 Per Cent. Miller was mentioned.

"The difference between Miller and myself," he said, "is the difference between a crook and an honest man. I am a Presbyterian and a church-goer. Miller never invested a cent that was given him, but paid the dividends out of the principal. I invest every dollar that is given me. All that I take out is my commission."

From Scranton comes a despatch that a Charles F. Washburn drove that town moneymad with his "investment agent" game in 1907. He disappeared immediately after the bursting of his financial bubble. He was a Sunday school worker in the Second Presbyterian church and actively identified with the Y.M.C.A. He made money for some of his friends, his business grew rapidly and large amounts were given to him to invest. He sent agents out to get business. One of these induced a widow to invest $1,000 life insurance she had just received. That was the last she saw of her money. She made complaint to the district attorney and Washburn flitted.

Washburn came to this city from Scranton and took up his residence with his wife's brother, Burton W. Gibbs, a plaster and bricklayer, living at 302 Greenwood avenue, Richmond Hill.

At first Washburn made daily reports to his clients, but shortly there after said he would be unable to do so oftener than once a month. He was frank in saying he bought and sold stocks with money entrusted to him, and made no secret of the fact that he depended solely upon his judgement to increase the investments of his depositors. One man put up $100 and trebled it in three days. Another "invested" $2000 and in three days took out $2,300 with $2,000 still to his account on Washburn's books. Hard-headed business men hastened to become customers and many won.

If Sheldon or Washburn is arrested he will not get to Montreal for some time. A warrant for his arrest in Newark, N.J., has first call.

Fall Assizes Opened Yesterday Afternoon Before Judge Boyd

One charge of murder was laid before the grand jury at the opening of the Fall Assizes of the High Court yesterday afternoon, namely, that of James Gorham, charged with killing his mother. Chancellor Sir John Boyd, who is presiding, explained that the court was not ready with its evidence in Huge Deline's case, which may be held over till another session.

Among the legal talent present were Messrs. E.V. Meredith, K.C., of London, Ont., Crown prosecutor; Crown Attorney R. E. Wood, L. V. Payne, Campbellford, D. O'Connell, S. T. Medd, F. D. Kerr and G. H. Edmison.

The grand jury is composed as follows.

J. Comstock, (foreman); A. G. Shearer, Robert Beach, J. F. Braund, A. E. Coulthard, Thomas Graham, W. J. Porter, Sherman Garbutt, J. Thornei Robert Horner, Alan Caldwell, Thos. Dale, and Wm. Nelson.

HIS LORDSHIP'S ADDRESS.

"Your primary duty," said his lordship, in addressing the grand jury, "is to investigate cases of crime, you being here for that purpose. Of course you can also inspect such places as hospitals, the jail, and any other place where persons are kept at the public expense. I regret very much that in this country at the present time, there is an epidemic of crime, of murders—wives and mothers being killed by their own kith and kin. It is a dismal state of affairs, but they must be investigated fearlessly." His lordship then explained that one case had been suspended, namely, that of Deline. He then went on to summarize the particulars of the Gorham case. A young man, he said, was charged with murdering his mother. He then reviewed the facts, stating that the prisoner was apparently responsible for his action. He did not intend to shoot his mother, but if a man shoots with the intention of killing one man and kills another, the law says he is guilty of murder. "It is probably a case for executive clemency," his lordship added on the part of the Crown, but that is not for us. We must go by the letter of the law. The mercy of the Crown has been extended in this country: some, what too liberally." This concluded the address and the jury retired.

A PRETTY WEDDING.

Miss May L. Koster, the Charming Bride of Mr. Frank McDonald.

Yesterday morning Miss May L. Koster became the charming bride of Mr. Frank McDonald of Oshawa. The marriage ceremony, performed by Rev. Father McColl, was celebrated at 341 Rubidge street, the home of the bride's parents. Miss Nora McDonald, acted as bridesmaid, whilst Mr. Edward McDonald sustained the groom. The bride was becomingly attired in French valenciennes, covered with Irish crochet lace, and wore a picture hat with white plumes.

The happy young couple were the recipients of many handsome and costly presents. Mr. and Mrs. McDonald left on the 11.45 G.T.R. train for Oshawa, where they will reside in future, and carried with them the best wishes and heartiest congratulations of a large circle of friends.

GUM CHEWING.

(To the Editor of The Times.)

Sir,—The pernicious habit of chewing gum is spreading among young people to an alarming extent. And if this evil habit should continue, it will destroy the health of the nation, and in the end it will produce a race of weak, feeble-minded men. And these weaklings, bereft of the manly vigor of their ancestors, must of necessity betake themselves to the milder avocations of life, where graft and stratagem will take the place of brains and muscle. And in the next generation, when we are all laid at rest, it may not be uncommon to see such ads as the following—"Wanted: A trustworthy city officer. Applicant must have a fair, average, municipal, moral character; and physically he should be able to turn the scales at 120 pounds, troy weight. The salary of a capable officer will be $10 a month and gum. Also his share of the inalienable perquisites which belong to the office. Take notice, that if more than nine sticks should be chewed in one day, the extra cost will be charged up to salary.

Nineteen Men Were Swept Into The Sea

CARRIED OFF STEAMER REGULUS NEAR ST. JOHN'S AND WERE DROWNED.

Loss of Life on Atlantic—Several Schooners Reported Missing—One Captain Stays By Ship.

St. John's, Nfld., Oct. 25. The steamer Regulus, bound from Belle Island to Sydney, was wrecked near this port with the loss of nineteen men of the crew.

The Regulus had been running between Newfoundland ports, Sydney, C.B., and New York and Philadelphia. She broke her tail shaft off the Bay of Bulls, 36 miles from here, during a heavy storm Sunday. A tug boat went to her assistance and picked her up. The storm increased, and four hawsers parted and the Regulus was lost in the fog and darkness.

The tug found her at day light a total wreck at the entrance of Shoal Bay. The tug learned that nineteen of the crew were swept into the sea. When the tug left the steamer she appeared to be breaking up. The Regulus was 850 net tons burden, and was owned by Harvey and Company, of St. John's.

Seriously Injured

Lindsay, Oct. 25.—Dr. Mason, M.P.P., for East Victoria, was seriously hurt in a runaway ten miles from Minden. A dog frightened the horse. Dr. Mason and the driver being thrown out. The doctor's foot got tangled in the wheel, and he was dragged a considerable distance, being unconscious when picked up. He sustained three broken ribs, his lungs were slightly crushed, left arm and left side of face and head very badly crushed and cut. The injuries are painful, but will not likely prove fatal.

VINETTE CASE SETTLED.

Young Man's Friends Take Payment in Lieu of Suit.

It will be remembered, by readers of The Times, that some months ago, a young lineman named Vinette, working for a local power company, whilst in pursuit of his duty, in climbing between some wires on a pole, in the south part of the city, fell to his death, or met his death before falling, whilst on a cross arm of the pole he was on. It was alleged, at the coroner's inquest that a wire came from a higher to a lower cross arm, that expert electricians claimed should not have been there. The relatives of Mr. Vinette, who met his death, claimed damages from the company the young man worked for. Last night The Times learned that the claim for damages had been settled, out of court, for a consideration mutually agreed upon. Messrs. O'Connell and Gordon acted for the prosecution.

GORHAM MUST STAND TRIAL FOR MURDER.

James Gorham must stand his trial for the alleged murder of his mother. So ruled the grand jury at the Fall Assizes yesterday afternoon. The circumstances of this unfortunate affair are too fresh in the memory of our readers to require much description. It will be remembered that the young man Gorham, who it is alleged had been drinking raised such trouble at his mother's house in the East Ward that the police were sent for. On the arrival of P. C. McHarty, Gorham, it is charged, shot at him, and killed his mother. After the alleged deed he ran to the C.P.R. bridge, and with loaded weapons, rifle and revolver, held off the whole available police force of Peterborough, whilst straddling a high section of the bridge. It will be remembered that a priest of his own church pleaded with him, and, that, at last Mr. Geo. Graham proprietor of the Oriental Hotel, persuaded him to come down and give himself into custody.

Crown Had Difficulty in Getting Mrs. Jardine to Attend the Inquest

Goderich, Oct. 25.—The Crown had not a little difficulty in securing the attendance of Mrs. Jardine, at the resumed inquest into the death of Lizzie Anderson. Obviously she was not anxious to appear. First she went to Hagerstville when the inquiry was to have been taken up 11 days ago. Today she was not present when the coroner took his place. The crown had to provide a carriage to bring her along with the chief of police as an escort.

Mrs. Jardine proved a reluctant and and lackadaisical witness, and frequently annoyed Mr. Blackstock to a degree by the shifting sands of the story she proceeded to unfold.

Finally he expostulated with her openly.

"I want to give you a piece of advice," he remarked. "You should be fair and open and candid. The reason you get in all this trouble is because you are bent on deceiving us about something or other. I want to treat you fairly. I don't want to browbeat you, but I want the truth."

SHE SAT LISTLESSLY.

Mr. Blackstock went on to ask further questions, but Mrs. Jardine sat listlessly in her seat, her head thrown back in the broad brim of her hat resting on the high back of her arm chair.

"These pauses are very extraordinary," exclaimed Mr. Blackstock impatiently.

"They are not the causes of a straightforward woman."

Mrs. Jardine mumbled some remark, inaudible, further than a few feet from the witness box.

"You don't want us to believe," pursued Mr. Blackstock, "that you think you can escape answering my questions by a lot of trival nonsense such as that?"

The examination which lasted the entire morning then proceeded.

LIFE IMPRISONMENT FOR AMERICAN TRAMP.

Parry Sound, Oct. 19.—Lodis Young, the American tramp who was accused of beating an old farmer named Davis to death while he lay in bed in a local hotel, was today found guilty of manslaughter, and sentenced to life imprisonment.

He used a bottle on his victim's head, and his motive was robbery.

The Crown was about to postpone the trial, owing to the absence of its star witness, when the defence offered to plead guilty to manslaughter.

A SUCCESSFUL YEAR.

Molson's Bank at Last Annual Meeting Shows Great Progress and Solid Business.

The fifty fifth annual meeting of that great Canadian bulwark of finance, Molsons Bank, was held in the Board room of the bank on Monday afternoon, October 17th, with Mr. William Molson Macpherson presiding.

The directors presented their annual report, which was most satisfactory to shareholders and depositors. The net profits for the bank's fiscal year amounted to $602,794.86, after paying the usual dividend of 10 per cent., taxes, subscription to Pension Fund and expenditure on branch buildings. The balance was added to Profits and Loss account, thus a transfer of $350,000 made to the Reserve Fund, which, with $550,000 premium of 110 per cent. received on issue of $500,000 new stock, raised it from $3,500,000 to $4,400,000. The balance remaining at credit of profit and loss account is $110,187.98. The issue of 5,000 shares of new stock was sold in London, Eng., at $210 per share. The assets and securities of Molsons Bank are of high and conservative character. The officers and directorate of the bank are to be congratulated on their splendid business.

FRENCH AND THE SCHOOLS.

The question is not shall French be taught to any of the children of the Dominion. That of course must be optional with the parents of the children. But the question is shall we have a united people in Canada or shall racial and linguistic prejudices be forever perpetuated amongst Canadians? More than anything else the people of a country are united or divided by the language they speak. Languages more than any other thing unifies or seperates people. Language is the great medium of communication and intercourse.

If people cannot understand each other's language they must preforce be seperated by that fact as nothing else can seperate them. There can be little interchange of thought or fellowship of sentiment. So the question is shall the people of the Dominion be forever divided into two estranged and heterogenous peoples, or shall they be a united homogenous people.

If the latter is the desirable consummation then either the English language or the French language must be the general medium of communication between the people of this country. Which shall it be? The French language is undoubtedly one of the most elegant and until lately one of the most widely spoken languages in the world. It has in the past been the court language and the language of diplomacy throughout Europe. But lately the English language tends to become the language of diplomacy throughout the civilized world, as witness the Berlin Conference and The Hague Conference, and all over the world it is recognized as the language of commerce, because so large a proportion of the commerce of the world is in the hands of the English-speaking races.

EDITORIAL NOTE.

A Western Ontario newspaper comments on mayoralty rumors as "without authority other than Mrs. Grundy." Such a reference to the good dame is hardly correct, as her name stands for social criticism rather than for public conjecture. It is interesting to recall that this lady has now adorned the average vocabulary for over a century. In Tom Morton's "Speed the Plow," Mrs. Ashfield is continually quoting neighbor Grundy, and farmer Ashfield says to her, "Be quiet, Yull ye! Always ding-dinging Dame Grundy into my ears. What will Mrs. Grundy say? What will Mrs. Grundy think?"

CHILD SEES THINGS AT RIGHT ANGLES.

London, Oct. 24.—A peculiar vision abnormality in a Chester school child which causes the patient to view everything at right angles to its true position is described by Dr. Meredith Young, the chief school medical officer to the Cheshire County Council, in his annual report.

As the child's vision was suspected of being abnormal some test type was put before it, and he was asked to form the letters with his fingers. He promptly made the proper number of strokes, but they were all in the wrong direction. He was then made to draw the letters and he drew the large capital E face down. On being told to draw a cat he drew it standing on its tail instead of its legs, and similarly he drew a ship standing on its bow-sprit instead of its keel.

"In these cases," a well known eye specialist explained, "the defect is not in the eye otself but n the transmission of the image seen from 'the lining of the back of the eye to the brain. Normally the image of any object we see is thrown on the retina in an inverted position, the rays which pass through the upper portions of the lens of the eye being deflected downward, and the passing through the lower portion being turned upward. Thus if a lighted candle is held before the eye, in the image that falls on the retina the lighted end is downward.

"When an image thus falls on the retina a set of 'nerve messages' are immediately sent up to the brain telling us what the image is. At the same time the brain has learned once more to invert the already inverted image so finally the mind receives a picture of an object in the true position of the object.

"This child presumably has some abnormality in the nervous structure which carry images from the back of the eye to the recognizing part of the mind."

HUNTING RARE ORCHIDS

IT HAS LURED INNUMERABLE COLLECTORS TO DEATH.

Terrible Dangers Constantly Menace the Man Who Seeks the Beautiful Tropical Plants—It is a Task For the Dauntless and Only a Small Percentage of the Men Survive—Cruel Disappointments.

Orchid hunters continually face hardships and terrible dangers and many a collector has paid for his daring with his life. The rarer specimens of these plants are generally found in the wildest depths of tropic forests. They abound in the greatest profusion in the hot, damp parts of the West and East Indies; in Madagascar and other islands in the same region, in the moist forests of Brazil, the warm parts of Central America and western Mexico. Not dependent on the soil for their nutriment, they are mostly found clinging to the trunks and branches of trees and to stones and crags where they vegetate among ferns and other shade-loving plants.

Warmth and moisture are essential to orchids, and warmth and moisture in tropical countries are synonymous with miasma and fever. Wild animals also, and poisonous serpents, abound in the umbrageous depths wherein the rarer varieties lie hidden.

One firm of orchid importers reported a year or two ago that they had five collectors killed in as many months by the wild tribesmen of the western Himalayan slopes; while three others, even more unfortunate, were made prisoners and carried off to undergo the nameless horrors which have from time immemorial been characteristic of Central Asian slavery. If the pay is big, the risks an orchid hunter runs are correspondingly great. Cutting his way through tangled forests, wading often up to the waist through stagnant swamps, always on his guard against beasts and still more savage men, the orchid hunter earns every penny of his money. Even the natives avoid the districts into which the intrepid collector penetrates.

A few years ago eight orchid hunters met at Tamatave, and then separated in search of specimens. Within a year only one of them survived and he had spent months in the most pestilential swamps, from which he emerged with his health impaired. One of the others had been captured by the native priests, who drenched him with oil and burned him to death on the altar.

M. Hamelina, one of the most successful of all collectors, and the discoverer of many new orchids in the little-known island forests of Madagascar, tells how, in these regions, "not only was our party exposed to the risk of being strangled by hostile and ferocious tribesmen—a fate which befell many a poor fellow belonging to our expedition—but we had to struggle almost night and day against the wild animals that haunt these primeval forests." He himself, in the same country, had to go through the ceremony of being made "brother-in-blood" to King Moyambassa in order to penetrate the interior of the island, an honor which nearly cost him his life.

Speaking of wild animals he says: "The most terrible of all is the fossa (a carnivorous beast related to the cat tribe), against which we had constantly to be on guard. One of these animals caused the death of the brother-in-law of the king, a fine, handsome, well-built man. It pounced upon his shoulder, rending the flesh from his back, and mangling him in a frightful manner. Being 'brother-in-blood' to the king, and thus a relative of the deceased man, I had to take part in the funeral ceremony and worse than that I had to obey their laws, which command that if any one has the moral responsibility of an accident, and death is the result of it—especially of a relative—he has the choice of being greased and burned alive or of taking the whole family of the deceased and of marrying his wife.

When a hunter finds an orchid there are three ways of getting it. He may cut down the tree to which it clings, he may lasso the branch or limb on which it hangs and draw it to him, or he may cut a sapling, lean it against the tree and climb up and bring down the plant. As a precaution against snakes and scorpions, which are as often found in trees as anywhere else, cutting down the tree is with most orchid hunters the favorite method of securing the coveted plant.

In addition to the dangers and difficulties inseparable from the actual finding of the orchid, there are innumerable troubles ahead of the indefatigable collector before his work is done. The difficulties of getting it out of the country and safely on a home-going boat are almost insuperable and nothing but the most indomitable perseverance could overcome it. Occasionally an unforeseen circumstance robs a collector of the spoils for which he has so strenuously striven. The cruel luck of one unfortunate hunter would be hard to beat. After months of ceaseless toil, exposed to the usual risks and hardships of his profession—occasionally wading up to his waist in mud and at other times venturing into almost inaccessible places—he at last succeeded in collecting between 3,000 and 4,000 orchids of an exquisitely beautiful and rare species. His delight knew no bounds, and with all possible haste he commenced his tortuous journey back to the seaboard, where his precious and dearly-won floral treasures would be shipped to England.

His plants safely on board, that very night a fire broke out in the hold of the vessel and not a single plant was saved. The collector was nearly distracted when he realized what had happened. With a heavy heart he wired to his employers: "Collection destroyed by fire. What shall I do?" Back came the mandate from the disappointed orchid importers: "Go back at once!" And back he went, with the rainy season at hand, to perhaps the hottest country under the sun.

Grand Trunk Engineers.

For the past few weeks a committee representing the engineers of the Grand Trunk Railway System has been in conference with the superintent of motive power. So quietly did they carry on their negotiations that although twenty-six of them were domiciled at a Montreal hotel for weeks there has been no publicity about the matter. The negotiations were carried on with the best of good feeling on both sides and now, it is pleasant to record that an agreement has been reached satisfactory to all concerned. The engineers asked for a substantial increase of pay, amounting it is understood to something like 12 per cent. The Grand Trunk was willing from the first to grant them an increase and the result of friendly negotiations is the agreement concluded Thursday. The representatives of the engineers left for their home Friday last entirely satisfied with the result of their mission to Montreal.

First Offering

Atlanta Oil Company

Capital Stock $600.000---Par Value $1.00

No Preferred Stock. No Bonds or Free Stock. No Bonded Indebtedness. Leases Runs 40 Years. All Stock in Treasury for Benefit of Holders. Incorporated Under Laws of State of California. One-Sixth Royalty.

106 acres of absolutely proven oil land on Sulphur Mountain, adjoining and between the Liberty and Puritan Oil Companies' property. Ten miles from Santa Paula, Ventura Co., Calif.

FACTS—The property is absolutely proven territory, lying as it does with the UNION OIL CO. producing on the south, the LIBERTY OIL CO. producing on the west, the BARD OIL CO. producing on the north, which only recently started its 30th rig, and Puritan Oil Co. to commence drilling on the east. Also it is located in a district of BIG PRODUCING COMPANIES, such as Ojai Petroleum, Pyramid Oil Co., Canadian Gem, Capital Creek, Bard Oil and Asphalt Co., and others. THERE'S NO QUESTION ABOUT THE COMPANY GETTING OIL. It is possible that Liberty Oil Company's new well will be a gusher, which would make the ATLANTA OIL COMPANY stock worth par. Mr. Cowell, our Superintendent, knows every foot of the ground, and having his log book of Liberty property, which adjoins our land, and as experienced OIL MAN and we consider ourselves fortunate in obtaining his services. VENTURA CO. OIL represents the center of the industry. It is the home of HIGH GRAVITY OIL. VENTURA COUNTY OIL means $1.50 a barrel at well. Costs from 3c to 4c to produce it. THE GREAT UNION OIL CO. got its start in VENTURA CO. and has paid over twenty-two millions in dividends. These GREAT ASSETS had a small beginning in the WILD BILL GUERRIN, within SIGHT OF ATLANTA OIL CO. property. The demand for refining of PAR EXCEEDS THE SUPPLY. The 25 refineries in California are crying for the product. The eastern high gravity fields are diminishing. The OHIO FIELDS, FOR INSTANCE, have fallen off one-third. The demand is caused by the increased market for gasoline. Throughout the world the number of automobiles and internal combustion engines is forcing up the price of high gravity crude petroleum. Eastern operators are now looking to VENTURA COUNTY, which are held to be the most extensive basesp. THIS IS THE FIRST ANNOUNCEMENT of ground floor offering of ATLANTA OIL CO., and may be overwhelmed at any time. One day's delay may mean you are too late. ACT NOW. WRITE FOR LATEST NEWS OF VENTURA OIL FIELDS.

The lumber for the derrick is on the ground and machinery has been ordered. Well No. 1 will be started as soon as drilling is installed. It should not take over six months to complete first well. Well No. 2, by conditions of lease, must be in operation by February 16th, 1911.

ADVANCES TO 30c AUGUST 20th.

RAILWAY REGULATIONS.

Although there was little novelty in the railways' presentation of their case for the advance of their rates, there was much that was novel in the shippers' contentions. It Chicago it was testified by one railway that forty million dollars of earnings had been put back into the property. In this city it was testified that some thirty-five millions of dollars of earnings had been expended upon the new Pennsylvania terminal. This was in accord with the formerly approved rule of practice by the best roads—"a dollar for dividends and a dollar for betterments. It was this principle of plowing the earnings back into the property which has kept down the capitalization of American railways at the same time that their rates have not risen with other prices for services and goods.

On this formerly approved principle the shippers' consel joined issue, taking their cue, it must be admitted, from certain rulings of the Inter-State Commerce Commission. These improvements made from earnings were regarded as grievances, and in themselves a proof of extortion. It was asserted as a right that the roads should reduce their rates by whatever sums of earnings they have been accustomed to devote to improvements. Even the misfortunes of the railways were imputed to them for a fault. For example, it was alleged that because one road had lost large sums by equipment frauds, and had prospered nevertheless, therefore it had overcharged by the amount it had lost by embezzlement, and should be held to reduce its rates by the amount of its losses. The broad position of those assuming to act for the general public is that the railways should be allowed to charge no more than would just prevent their setting up a defence of confiscation. And, in estimating the permissible income the railways are held by these spokesmen to be entitled to no more than a reasonable income upon the amount of their own funds which they have devoted to the public use.

These gentlemen seem in some danger of winning a battle and losing a campaign. It is conceivable that they may prevent an advance in rates, and come to regret the consequent lack of vitality in the railways. American roads are far from having attaind their growth. They are in need not only of income enough to sustain their life but to stimulate their growth. There is a certain justice in having the funds necessary for their growth contributed by those whose patronage of the railroads is a source of profit, rather than by the general public whose gain from the railways is less direct. If the railways are held to capitalize their betterments, and must borrow the money, interest must be paid on the money borrowed, and the rates must be adequate to pay the interest and provide a sinking fund for the establishment of the debt. As interest and sinking fund must come from earnings, it would seem to come to the same thing in the end.

Whatever the merit of this argument on either side, it is plain that a new light is thrown upon what is thought to be regulation of rates. Heretofore it has been thought that the function of government was merely to assure that rates were reasonable and just, that is, neither extortionate nor discriminatory, toward either persons or places. If the position assumed on behalf of shippers is sustained there is no detail of the management of the railroads too trivial for examination and control

BARLEY WATER IS NOW THE NEW SOCIETY CRAZE.

Extraordinary Change Creeping Over The Aristocracy of England.

London, Oct. 24.—Whether it is due to the budget or society repenting of its sins, the curious fact is now established that in the clubs of St. James' street and Mayfair, the favorite drink is —barley water.

A well known wine shipper, discussing this, was filled with sorrow at this extraordinary change creeping over the aristocracy of England, as he expressed it.

"Some time ago," he said, "the clubs used to provide barley water for a few club men who asked for it, free of charge. But now that it has become such an established habit, they make a charge of 2d for a glass of barley water, with a dash of lemon in it. It is not old fellows with gout and indigestion who drink the poor stuff, but what I may call the 'young bloods' of society."

"The wine shipper became philosophical in his conversation on what is, to him, a lamentable state of affairs. "The Peninsular War," he said, "was not fought on barley water. The standing of our old stock is not likely to be kept strong and sturdy by drinking gruel fit for old maids."

On the other hand philosophers, who are not wine shippers, may well ask if a sober and temperate young manhood is not a fine asset to the nation, and if this barley water habit does not indicate that young men of today are more fit in brain and body for the great adventures of life than those who took early morning nips, pre-prandial cock tails, and after-dinner stimulants. Now that our "young bloods" are drinking barley water their brains may begin to work. That may lead to astonishing results.

Receives Great Praise.

The roadbed and general conditions both in operating and service on the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway between Winnipeg and Edmonton is coming in for great praise from patrons who have gone over the road.

At the general offices at Montreal a letter was received from a Professor of one of the prominent Collegiate Institutes in the west which reads as follows:

"On my recent trip in the West I travelled over the Grand Trunk Pacific between Saskatoon and Winnipeg and must say I was surprised to find the roadbed in such excellent condition. It seemed like travelling in one of the old main lines in the east. The dining and sleeping car service was first-class in every particular, and I found the train officials courteous and obliging. Passengers whom I met were unstinted in their praise of the road and its appointments."

HOME OF THE SHETLAND.

Little Pony Comes From a Picturesque Country.

Away to the north of Scotland lies the group of islands in which the diminutive horses commonly called Shelties have their home. The Shetlands are not all inhabited, some of the smaller islands being used merely as pasturage for a few sheep. There is little to attract either the agriculturist or the merchant, so progress is slow; the islanders till their land by old-fashioned methods, and many of them still have recourse to barter as a means of obtaining necessaries.

To the lover of the beautiful and to the artist there is much to charm. Some perhaps would describe the islands as barren—but what barrenness! The country, though destitute of trees, is so varied in the nature of its scenery that their absence in no way detracts from the general beauty of the landscape.

Countless tarns, streams and lochs all serve to make the coloring of the heather covered hills and the gloomy tints of the moors stand out in pleasing contrasts, while near the sea bold cliffs tower over the blue waters, whose waves dash against their rocky sides. Overhead numerous sea birds circle on their way to their nests on the ledges.

The largest island is known as the mainland, with a length of fifty-four miles and a width of twenty-one. The islands have a singularly mild and equable climate considering their exposed situation, and compose one of the most healthful districts of Scotland; but even the most adventurous tourists seldom visit them, because a doubtful sea trip in a small steamer is necessary before they can be reached.

Of the entire area of 551 square miles scarcely one-sixth is under cultivation, yet the Shetlanders manage to maintain something like 100,000 sheep, 30,000 cattle and 5,000 of the famous ponies. The inhabitants are of Norse origin and in their speech and customs retain many of the characteristics of their forefathers. They support themselves chiefly by the herring and other fishing industries.

They cannot afford to give much feeding to their ponies, so these hardy little animals run wild in herds on the hills or scatholds, picking up what food they can find. When the bleak wintry weather comes on they find their way down to the seashore, where they derive a scanty living from the seaweed which grows upon the rocks or has been left by the high autumn tides and freshened by melted snow or rain. At this time of year, too, they will gather in groups near the homesteads and are rewarded with an occasional truss of hay.

In spite of this precarious existence the Shelties seem happy enough and they are extremely hardy. They possess extraordinary strength for their size, being able to carry a man or woman with apparent ease for long distances.

The little ponies, with their rough, shaggy coats and flowing manes and tails, seem somehow to suit their wild rugged surroundings and the groups of them that are scattered about add the needed life to the landscape.

Perhaps it is a question of a survival of the fittest that makes these little creatures so very small, as horses of a larger type would be useless on the boggy moors or on the stony hillsides. They have been known to attain the age of thirty years and more, due probably to the healthful mode of life which they were forced to adopt, for they were born in the fields and lived and died in them.

Where Edwards Rest.

Here is a list showing where all the Royal Edwards have been laid at rest —

Edward I., born 1239, died July 7, 1307, buried in Westminster Abbey.

Edward IV., born 1442, died April 9, 1483, buried at Windsor.

Edward VI., born 1537, died July 6, 1553, buried at Westminster.

Edward VII., born Nov. 9, 1841, died May 6, 1910, buried at Windsor Castle.

The Spinning Ant of Ceylon.

The spinning ant is found in India, in Ceylon, in the Islands of Malacca, and in Australia. This ant weaves its nest between two leaves of a tree, preferably the mango. It begins to build, or to weave, by drawing two leaves together. To do this it runs a line of its working material—material similar to the spider's thread — the length of the leaf and around it. While at work it clings to the leaf with its nails and, at the same time, draws on the leaf nearest to it with its mandibles. Sometimes the two leaves suitable for nest-building are too far apart. Then the builder calls in its fellow ants and they help it to form a chain. Each ant clings to the waist of its neighbor by its mandibles. Thus enchained, they work to build the nest of their comrade.

New Zealand's Wool Trade.

Sir Joseph Ward's the Prime Minister, speaking at Mangaweka, recently, said that New Zealand was to-day exporting more wool than any one of the Australian states. The total value of the exports had now reached twenty millions a year. Eighteen months ago people had predicted financial distress, but, happily, their fears had not been realised. The deposits in banking institutions had increased by more than four millions as compared with last year.

She Got Even.

A Lanarkshire postmistress explains how she got level with a customer who had paid for £3 18s of postal orders in threepenny pieces. First of all she kept him waiting while she counted over the coins three times, and then next day, when he came back to change some postal orders, she paid him out in the same threepenny pieces!

THE MOLSONS BANK

Fifty-Fifth Annual General Meeting of the Shareholders Held Yesterday

MAY INCREASE DIVIDEND

With Increasing Prosperity President Foreshadows Extra One Per Cent.

The fifty-fifth annual general meeting of the Molsons Bank was held in the Board room of the Institution at three o'clock Monday afternoon.

The President, Mr. William Molson MacPherson, occupied the chair, and others in attendance were Messrs. S. H. Ewing, H. Markland Molson, C. S. Campbell, Ed. Fiske, R. W. Shepherd, W. H. Evans, J. P. Cleghorn, A. Piddington, W. R. Miller, C. B. Gordon, W. M. Ramsay, Alex. D. Fraser, James Alexander, George Durnford, Dr. J. Elsdale Molson, W. Stanway, C. E. Sprague and R. G. Dunton.

The President having called the meeting to order, requested Mr. A. D. Durnford to act as secretary, and that gentleman read the notice convening the meeting.

DIRECTORS' REPORT.

The General Manager, Mr. James Elliott, then read the Directors' Annual report, as follows:

"Your Directors have much pleasure in submitting this their 55th Annual Report and Statement of the Affairs of the Molsons Bank, as on 30th September, 1910.

The net profits amount to $602,604.86, as shown by statement now submitted, after paying the usual 10 per cent. dividend, taxes, subscriptions to Pension Fund, and expenditure on branch buildings; the balance was added to profit and loss account and there from a transfer of $550,000 made to the Reserve Fund, which, with the $550,000 premium of 110 per cent. received on issue of $500,000 of new stock, raised it from $3,500,000 to $4,400,000. The balance remaining at credit of Profit and Loss Account is $115,187.97.

An issue of 5,000 shares new stock of the Bank was made on the 4th February last, and sold to Sperling & Co., of London, Eng., at $210 per share, your consent thereto and waiver to your pro rata right to allotment in portion to your holdings, having been first obtained.

This $500,000 raises the Bank's paid up capital from $3,500,000 to $4,000,000.

For convenience of our English shareholders, a register for stock of the Bank has been opened in London, Eng.

The year's growth of the Bank's business is very satisfactory, increase of deposits from $27,156,151 to $31,312,439, and of loans and discounts from $28,191,634 to $32,815,154.

Money has been in good demand at reasonable rates, giving a fair return.

During the year branches have been opened at Cote des Neiges and Bedford, Que.; Portage Ave., Winnipeg, Man., and Diamond City, Alta.

Head Office and branches have, as usual, been thoroughly inspected.

The officers have faithfully performed their duties.

WM. MOLSON MACPHERSON,
President.

The President: I have received the report of the scrutineers, showing the re-election of the retiring Board of Directors, viz.: Messrs. J. P. Cleghorn, George E. Drummond, S. H. Ewing, Charles B. Gordon, H. Markland Molson, W. Molson Macpherson, and W. M. Ramsay, the announcement being received with applause.

This concluded the business of the meeting, and after the President had briefly thanked the shareholders for attending in such large numbers, the meeting adjourned.

At a subsequent meeting of the Directors, Mr. W. Molson Macpherson was re-elected President, and Mr. S. H. Ewing, Vice-President for the ensuing year.

Walkway Wanted in Central Parp.

Local citizens, whose business or homes necessitate, their constantly crossing Central Park, are asking that a granolithic pavement be laid on that short cut to George street. It seems that the present, old-fashioned paths are lower than the sod surrounding them. Thus water, such citizens claim gathers in the paths they must take, or walk on the spots covered by signs reading "Keep off the grass." As a matter of fact, trails, like those shown in moving pictures, supposedly made by red-skins in Montana or Idaho, are disfiguring the park referred to.

PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 26, 1910.

Miss Lumsden Now Mrs. Eckworth.

A quiet wedding was solemnized at the Charlotte street church yesterday morning by Rev. Mr. Henderson, when Miss E. Lumsden, daughter of Mr. F. C. Lumsden, 312 Rubsell avenue, was united in marriage to Mr. F. C. Eckworth, of Schenectady, N.Y. The young couple were unattended. They left on the 11.45 C.P.R. train for their future home, 813 Lincoln avenue, Schenectady, New York.

Presentation to Mr. G. Potter.

The young people of St. Andrew's church bid good-bye to Mr. Grant Potter, who was passing through Peterborough from Regina, Sask. where he has spent the past three months, to his new home in Montreal. Mr. Potter gave a very interesting account of his trip through the West, after which the Y.P.S.E. presented him with a pair of gold cuff links and a tie pin. He made a suitable reply.

SOCIETY EVENTS

The Times will be pleased to receive notices of Weddings, Social Events, Personal Announcements, which will be published in this column free of charge.

Mr. Will Donovan of Peterborough, was in Lindsay yesterday.

Miss Lottie Dusome of Penetang, is the guest of Miss Eva Tangney, Stewart street.

Mrs. J. W. Firth will receive at her home, 913 Aylmer street, the third and fourth Thursday of each month.

Messrs. W. Montgomery, E. R. Shields, L. Stevens and H. W. Harper, all of this city, motored to Lindsay on Monday in Mr. Montgomery's car.

General regret was expressed throughout the city yesterday over the demise of the late Mr. James Stevenson, ex-M.P., ex-mayor, etc.

Mr. G. P. Hamilton was in Lindsay over Sunday.

LITTLE LOCAL LINES

A reception was held last night in the Sons of England Hall by Court Stanley, No. 7080, C.O.F.

The Ladies' Aid of Mark street Methodist church will meet tomorrow afternoon at three o'clock at the residence of Mrs. J. H. Smith, Rogers street, Ashburnham.

The Brotherhood of St. Andrew and Philip held its first open meeting in Knox church last night. A number of new members were initiated.

P. C. McGinty, the veteran of the local police force yesterday arrested a young man for stealing an overcoat. Things will be explained at the police court this morning.

Chancellor Boyd means business when he presides at court. Yesterday two prominent citizens summoned as jurors were fined $10 each for being late.

It is said that the Collier Electric Co., have received an offer from North Tonawanda, asking them to locate a branch there. Whilst this is a great compliment to a rising local manufactory, it is to be hoped that the parent plant will not leave Peterborough.

When you have a cold get a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It will soon fix you up all right and will ward off any tendency toward pneumonia. This remedy contains no opium or other narcotic and may be given as confidently to a baby as an adult. Sold by all dealers.

MONDAY NIGHT'S COUNCIL MEETING.

Report of Business Transacted That Was Crowded Out of Yesterday's Paper.

Ald. Duncan moved, seconded by Ald. Morgan—That this Council places on record its appreciation of the members of the old library board who have devoted much time and attention to their duties in years past.—Carried.

The Mayor: "At the next meeting of this Council it will be necessary to appoint deputy returning officers for 22 polling divisions, and it will be necessary to come prepared to name these officers."

Mr. Morrison asked if the town will provide the material with which he can build a wall between the Downie street creek and his property in Victoria avenue. A few more spring freshets will wash his place away he urged, unless such protection is afforded him. On motion of Ald. Dafus, this matter was left with the Board of Works, to act in conjunction with the solicitor and engineer.

Ald. Gillespie did not come prepared with an agreed upon price by his committee for which the Clute Co. should have a site at or near the southend pumping station.

This matter will be taken up by the committee and the manufacturers' Com., to be reported on at a council meeting one evening this week.

The company are anxious to begin constructing their new factory.

On Tuesday, Oct. 25th, in the 85th year of his life, James Stevenson, ex-M.P., at his residence, 453 Water street, Peterborough, Ont. The funeral will be held on Thursday after noon at 2.30 o'clock.

BABIES SORES

Every mother should realize that the skin of her baby is so tender that the secretions of the body often lead to rashes, eruptions, etc., all of which may be removed by Zam-Buk. Scores of restless, crying babies, upon examination, are found to be suffering from some form of skin irritation or "heat." Don't let the little one suffer when Zam-Buk will cure!

Mrs. L. Hood, of 675 Alexander Avenue, Winnipeg, says: "I have proved the value of Zam-Buk when applied to children's sores. Some nasty sores broke out around my baby's mouth, and despite all the preparations used, they refused to heal. I took him to St. Boniface hospital and he remained there for two weeks. At the end of that time he was no better, and we again took him home. I was then advised to try Zam-Buk and obtained a supply. The effect of the first few applications was very gratifying, and I continued with the use of the balm. A little perseverance resulted in a complete cure."

Mrs. E. Cocker, of Yorkton, Sask., says: "My little baby girl had a bad running sore all over her little chin. A few applications of Zam-Buk healed the sore in such a perfect manner that no scar was left behind."

Scores of similar cases could be quoted. Zam-Buk is absolutely pure, contains no rancid animal fats, no mineral coloring matter, no astringent poisons. It is the ideal balm for baby.

Zam-Buk cures eczema, rashes, ringworm, chapped hands, scurvy, heat rashes, cuts, burns, ulcers, discharging sores, and all skin injuries and diseases. 50c. box, all druggists and stores, or Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Don't take the risk of using harmful imitations!

Don't wash and scrub, bend and rub over a hot wash tub; sift a little GOLD DUST in the water, loosen the dirt, and save rubbing

Soap is not a bit of cleansing good until it is mixed with water and made into suds. And then it still needs the rub-rub-rub of human muscle.

GOLD DUST works in an entirely different way—instantly and totally dissolves in hot or cold, hard or soft water—and, without any aid from you, starts to cleanse.

GOLD DUST is more than soap—better and more economical. It is a powder of magic power—but rightly directed power, that leaves the wash white, sweet, wholesome.

Use your brains, not your muscle!

Throw away your soap, get GOLD DUST, and simply use it according to the directions on the package.

"Let the GOLD DUST Twins do your work."

Two Thousand Men Meet in Toronto

BIG CONVENTION OF Y.M.C.A. WORKERS WILL OPEN TO MORROW.

(Special to The Times.)

Toronto, Ont., Oct. 27. Two thousand delegates representing 500,000 members of the Young Men's Christian Association of North America are in Toronto in readiness for the opening tomorrow of the thirty seventh international convention of the organization. It is the first time in a quarter of a century that the international convention has met in Canada and as a consequence the gathering has aroused great interest throughout the Dominion. During the three days' session many important questions of policy will be discussed, reports showing the progress of the religious, educational and other activities of the association will be considered, and addresses will be delivered by a number of men of wide reputation.

As a preliminary to the opening of the convention proper several important conferences and committee meetings were held to-day. At the King Edward Hotel a conference was held to consider industrial and immigration problems. Hon W. L. Mackenzie King, John R. Mott and other men of prominence addressed the meeting.

Proposed changes in the method of religious work will receive much attention from the convention this year. Plans for broadening the educational work of the association will also be exhaustively discussed, and the work of the junior department and of the college and railroad branches will be reviewed at length.

A matter that is likely to incite a lively discussion in the convention is a resilution prepared by a number of the Pacific coast associations asking that the plan of governing the international organization be changed so as to give the smaller associations a voice in the management of affairs. It is claimed that under the present method the control is vested in the larger associations which have the most delegates in the triennial conventions. It is asked by the associations of Seattle, Portland, Tacoma, Vancouver, Victoria, San Francisco, Spokane and other far western cities that the initiative and referendum be substituted so that all associations may have the privilege of voting on important matters affecting the policy of the organization.

Fiendish "Jack the Ripper" at Work in U.S

Cincinnati, O., Oct. 26 That a fiend, actuated by the same motives as London's "Jack the Ripper," is responsible for the death of five women of this city is the theory of the police today. The latest victim is Mrs. Harley W. Hackney, whose body was found last night within a stone's throw of the place where Miss Anna Lloyd was murdered last New Year's eve. Mrs. Hackney was found murdered in her home on Canal Bridge, Cumminesville. Her throat was cut from ear to ear, her skull crushed, and her body badly bruised. Nearby there lay an axe with which the murderer had done his work.

The discovery was made by her husband and a boarder, Chas Eckert, who were returning from their days work. The husband and Eckert were taken in charge by the police and are being held pending an investigation.

A LOCAL WEDDING.

Miss Edith Gillespie, the Charming Bride of Mr. C. Hanbridge.

A pretty house wedding took place yesterday when Miss Edith Gillespie daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. G. Gillespie, Lock street, became the bride of Mr. Clayton Hanbridge, son of Mr. John Hanbridge, of Otonabee. The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. C. Riddiford, pastor of Park St. Baptist church. The young couple entered the room to the strains of the wedding march played by Miss Hazel Gillespie. The bride looked charming in a beautiful traveling suit of navy blue cheviot. The young couple were unattended. After the ceremony Miss Nellie Pilling sang "Oh Perfect Love. The bride was made the recipient of a silver sugar bowl with spoon attached by the choir of Park street church. An address was also read. The young people of the church also gave her a kitchen shower. The happy couple left on the 4.36 C.P.R. train for Toronto and Buffalo, and on their return will reside in Otonabee.

HALLOWE'EN NIGHT.

Pleasant Time Spent at the Y.W.C.A. Last Night.

The third annual Hallowe'en party was celebrated at the Y.W.C.A. last night, when the young ladies of that institution, with their friends, to the number of about 150, spent a very pleasant evening.

Many of the girls were dressed in costumes depicting those worn in olden times, and lent much to the amusement of those present.

In fact the whole evening was spent in the good old fashioned style and everyone present enjoyed themselves immensely in playing games. Refreshments were served

The Charge Is Murder While Being Arrested He Shot off Gun and His Mother Dropped Dead.

When His Lordship Chancellor Boyd took his seat on the rostrum of the court house, there was a large and inquisite audience present. The "piece de resistance," at this forensic banquet was the trial of a twenty-year old boy, or man, James Gorham. It will be remembered by our readers that Gorham, some months ago, after breakfast left his home in the East Ward, came to town and returned, it is alleged, under the influence of intoxicants. Gorham, it is said, raised a disturbance at his home, to such an extent that police protection and assistance was sent for. When P. C. Mehatry went to the Gorham house, it is said that the young man shot at him, with intent to kill, missed him, and the fatal bullet killed Gorham's mother, who stood in the doorway. Gorham has since the coroner's inquest been in jail awaiting his trial. Yesterday morning the young fellow looked pale and worn out.

When the indictment was read, Mr. O'Connell, who is representing the prisoner answered "Not Guilty."

Mr. Meredith, Crown prosecutor, then began his address to the jury. After explaining the crime of murder he briefly related the circumstances leading up to the killing of Mrs. Gorham by her son, the prisoner at the bar. Gorham had been drinking during the day and returned home in the evening and raised a disturbance and causing all manner of annoyance, calling his mother terrible names. Capt. White, who had been summoned by the family, tried to urge Gorham to behave himself, but he told the captain that he would shoot anyone that came near him. P. C. Mehatry then arrived when the prisoner was out in a field. The officer getting over the fence, proceeded to within thirty feet of Gorham, when the latter gave the officer until he counted three to retreat. One, two, three, and a bullet went by Mehatry's head and the mother in the door, exclaimed, "I'm shot." She was shot in the breast and passed away three hours later. Gorham then went into the house and said "Mother, did I shoot you? I didn't mean to." He then told his little brother to bring down his rifle, and the prisoner bade them good bye, and told them that they now would see some fun. He climbed to the top of a nearby bridge and held the police at bay. He concluded his remarks by saying, "I'll make you fire rifles at random and go free I don't know what the country is coming to."

Police Constable Mehatry, the next witness said

"I am a police constable of the city of Peterborough. I went to the Gorham home about 6.15 in the evening on the day in question, on Maria street. I met the prisoner's brother Michael. I first saw prisoner on the track in front of the house. I went around to where I saw him standing. His sister told me he was over in the field east of the house. I talked to him over the fence. He was 90 or 100 yards away. He walked around in front and hitting a revolver fired into the ground. I tried to reason with him. He said "Come on over and I'll blow your damn brains out." After a little while he said "Come on over and I'll meet you." After I had gotten over the fence he fired a shot into the air. He said, "Don't come any nearer or I'll blow your brains out." He then counted, "One, two, three and fired. He was pointing the revolver at me. He was about twenty yards away from me. I heard the whistle of a bullet past my head and then someone behind me hollered, "Oh mother is shot." I told the prisoner, "Jimmy you have shot your mother." and he replied "that he didn't care who he had shot."

The witness testified that after the shooting Gorham had followed him for some distance when he started for some help. When he returned with Officers Newhall, McGinty and Adams he had seen the prisoner come out of the house with a rifle. Later he had seen the prisoner on the C.P.R. bridge and had heard him say "I do not want to shoot Newhall. I want Mehatry," and again, "Why did you not let him come out until I could get a shot at him."

Police Constable Newhall told of the chase of Gorham, which ended up with the prisoner taking refuge on the top of the C.P.R. bridge describing graphically the scenes already depicted in print in these columns.

Percy Neill also gave evidence corroborating that of the former witnesses.

TWENTY YEAR OLD BOY FEELS HIS POSITION KEENLY.

Police Officer Says He Threatened to Blow Out His Brains—Capt. White Tells of the Boy's Action on the Day of Shooting.

Capt W. H. White testified that he was in the neighborhood of the Gorham house on the evening of the tragedy. A woman had come to him and in consequence of what she had said, had gone to the house. When he went in things were being thrown down the stairway by someone upstairs. Then the prisoner came down and asked with an oath, "What are you doing here?" Gorham had a revolver in his hands. He pointed a revolver at the witness and said he would blow his brains out. There was a cup containing sugar on the dining room table and the prisoner picking this up held the revolver against it and blew it to pieces. The prisoner's mother had a conversation with the prisoner, who seemed to have a grievance against his mother for putting him on the black list. He called his mother names and said he would blow her brains out. The witness had said to the women, "For God sake go away from here altogether, or he'll shoot the whole lot of us." The prisoner was pointing a revolver and holding his hand on the trigger. Then he turned and fired through the door into the house. Afterwards the witness had tried to reason with the prisoner. Mr. White said he would not consider the prisoner was drunk.

Dr. F. P. McNulty gave medical testimony as to the death of Mrs. Goraam. Mrs. Gorham was lying on the floor in the hallway and witness found a wound in the right side near the right breast. He had her removed to the hospital. Dr. McNulty also gave evidence as to the post mortem examination.

To Mr. O'Connell, Dr. McNulty stated that the wound in the breast went downward and toward the left. He had seen the prisoner at the house on the night of the shooting and thought he was acting in a rather excited way.

The court closed at 6 p.m., as Sister Mary St. Edward, a former principal of the Lake street school had given evidence, to the effect practically that Gorham was hardly accountable for his acts. The case will be continued this morning.

Tariff Sends 300 Millions of U. S. Money to Canada

Taunton, Mass. Oct. 26. Congressman Eugene N. Foss, Democratic nominee as Governor of Massachusetts, stated here at a rally last night that the growth and prosperity of Canada during the next twenty five years will be relatively greater than that of the United States. He wishes the States to share in this prosperity, and also declared for reciprocity and free trade with Canada which he said had almost unbounded resources.

Mr. Foss said that three hundred million dollars will be spent in Canada by American cotton factories on account of the tariff wall. No more need of free trade between Canada and the States existed than between the States of the Union. The United States wants free raw material and food stuffs.

Mr. Foss recommended a direct taxation income tax for revenue and the tariff revised along ways to meet Canada's similar position.

QUEEN ALEXANDRA HAS SIMPLE LIFE

IN SECLUSION WITH HER SISTER THE EMPRESS MARIE OF RUSSIA IN COPENHAGEN.

Avoiding All Publicity—The Despair of Russian Detectives Who are Supposed to Guard Them.

Copenhagen, Oct. 26. Queen Alexandra and her sister, the Empress Marie of Russia, are living in the utmost retirement and simplicity at their country home, the Villa Hvidore. They are much enjoying the beautiful autumn weather. Such October sunshine has not been known here for thirty years.

The one desire of the widowed Queen and Empress is to escape public observance and recognition, and this desire of their majesties is fully respected. They live as freely and unostentatiously as any private citizens.

Their majesties never use the royal carriages and horses, but always drive in an ordinary motor car supplied by a Copenhagen firm. The chauffeur wears the uniform of the firm, and the royal ladies take no other servant with them. The car is always closed, and the queen and empress thus take extended drives along the peaceful Danish country roads without anyone suspecting their presence. Only very seldom do the royal ladies come to Copenhagen.

These motoring excursions drive to despair the Russian detectives whose task it is to protect the Empress Marie in all her comings and goings. The royal sisters refrain from giving any hint at the villa as to the route they intend taking, and only direct the chauffeur when they are at a distance from the villa precincts.

HARRY CHURCHILL WAS MURDERED IN THE WEST.

Toronto, Oct. 26.—A communication from the chief of police in Butte Montana, was received at the City Police Department today, announcing that Harry Churchill, one of the notorious septette, who escaped from the Toronto jail a couple of years ago, has been murdered in Salt Lake City, by a man named Johnston, alias Speedy.

This leaves only two of the missing convicts to be accounted for, Kid Wandel, alias Jones, and Ed Lee, who killed a man in Niagara Falls, New York, and was later traced to Japan.

Churchill was held for a time by the Butte police, at the instance of the Toronto Department. He later made his escape from a jail in Mexico, and had been lost sight of until the announcement of his murder arrived.

COFFEE WAS IT.

People Slowly Learn the Facts.

"All my life I have been such a slave to coffee that the very aroma of it was enough to set my nerves quivering. I kept gradually losing my health but I used to say 'nonsense, it don't hurt me.'

"Slowly I was forced to admit the truth and the final result was that my whole nervous force was shattered.

"My heart became weak and uncertain in its action and that frightened me. Finally my physician told me, about a year ago, that I must stop drinking coffee or I could never expect to be well again.

"I was in despair, for the very thought of the medicines I had tried so many times, nauseated me. I thought of Postum but could hardly bring myself to give up the coffee.

"Finally I concluded that I owed it to myself to give Postum a trial. So I got a package and carefully followed the directions, and what a delicious, nourishing, rich drink it was! Do you know I found it very easy to shift from coffee to Postum and not mind the change at all?

"Almost immediately after I made the change I found myself better, and as the days went by I kept on improving. My nerves grew sound and steady. I slept well and felt strong and well balanced all the time.

"Now I am completely cured, with the old nervousness and sickness all gone. In every way I am well once more."

It pays to give up the drink that acts on some like a poison, for health is the greatest fortune one can have.

TRIED TO MAKE THE GIRLS DRINK

14 YEAR OLD GIRL TELLS ABOUT HER MURDERED CHUM'S LAST EXPERIENCE.

Auto Ride Before Tragedy—Was Offered $10 to Stay, But She Left Her Friend and Went Home.

Montreal, Oct. 26. At the inquest which was opened yesterday into the death of Cecile Mechaud, whose body was found in a cesspool lot at Westmount on Sunday, some sensational evidence was given.

Bernadette Dagenais, a 14 year old girl, who accompanied the deceased on the auto drive when she was last seen alive, positively swore that the two accused, Perrault and Cherrier were the men who induced them to go on the drive at the end of August. The men, she declared, had promised to bring them home early, but had taken them to a hotel outside the city, where they had wine and supper. Witness said that the men tried to make them drink and had had offered her ten dollars to stay, but she refused and left. She had tried to get her companion, Cecile Mechaud, who was only 13 years of age, to come with her, but she refused. She never saw her again.

Madame Belleau, wife of the proprietor of the hotel, said that the party had arrived there, and supper was served for three, one of the girls having gone. She, however, declared that the automobile left earlier, and also Cecile Mechaud, but she did not know whether they went together. Cherrier, she said, was held until arrangements was made for payment. The men of the party were drinking a good deal.

Further than this the evidence did not go, and no light was thrown on the manner in which the little girl met her death when the inquest was adjourned until next Friday.

Ed. Jardine Arrested---Is Charged with Murder of Lizzie Anderson

CROWN GIVES EDWARD JARDINE A CHANCE TO AMEND HIS STATEMENTS.

Disinterested Witnesses Contradict the Young Man on Vital Points—Physician Describes Injuries and Contents of the Stomach Blackstock's Searching Examination—Inconsistencies are Noted for the Jury.

Goderich, Oct. 26. Edward Jardine has been arrested charged with murder, and Thomas Jardine on a charge of being an accessory after the fact.

Goderich, Oct. 26. Frank Jardine was recalled when the inquest into the death of Lizzie Anderson was resumed this morning.

Mr. Blackstock handed him a knife and asked him if it was the one his brother Edward used to carry.

The witness said the knife Edward Jardine used to carry was shorter in the handle, but the former stated that the knife in question was shorter in the handle than the one produced. In other respects they were identical.

Edward Jardine was also asked if he had ever seen the knife produced and he concurred with Frank that his knife was shorter.

"My knife was blacker," added Edward.

"Well," said Mr. Blackstock, "this knife is about as black as the ace of spades. I don't know what you would want blacker."

Geo. Moss said he knew the house where the body was found. He and Edward had gone there a couple of weeks before the murder. They went into the grounds after plums, they went in from the rear and came out the gate in front.

SAID WITNESS WAS LYING.

"What do you say: Edward Jardine?" asked Mr. Blackstock, "as to this evidence that you were through the grounds of the house where the girl was found a couple of weeks prior to the event?"

"Well," said Jardine, "I say he is lying."

"When you were walking that day, said Mr. Blackstock to Moss, "was Jardine limping as he does today?"

"He was not," answered Moss "as lame as he is today."

Simeon Morningstar said that he had found the knife produced at the gate of his place. His home is opposite the fair grounds. The knife was found about five weeks ago, but he could not stat edefinitely whether it was before or after the murder.

"This knife may or may not be important," said Mr. Blackstock, "so when you go away think it over and attempt if possible to fix the date when you found the knife."

Mrs. Monk, who worked in the refreshment tent at the fair, said that her daughter had come to her about half past six on the evening of September 20th to get fifteen cents worth of buns for Lizzie Anderson.

Hazel Monk, a little girl about six years of age, was called to substantiate her mother's story. The coroner was doubtful about administering the oath.

"You know, Hazel, where little girls go who tell stories," said Mr. Blackstock.

"Yes," said Hazel, "they go to the bad place."

Mame Spataro said he saw Lizzie Anderson at five minutes past eight. She wanted to know when he was going home and he said he didn't know. He told her to wait till he tied up his horse, but when he got back she had gone away.

"What did you want her for?"

"If she had wanted a drive home I would have taken her."

"And you didn't see her again that evening."

"No."

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury.

HIS BROTHER THOMAS ALSO UNDER ARREST CHARGED AS AN ACCESSORY.

Jury Were Out Three-Quarters of An Hour—Edward Jardine Declares That Other Witnesses Lied About Him.

Dr. Gallow, one of the doctors who conducted the post mortem, said that if Lizzie Anderson had eaten the buns at 6.30 or thereabouts he would imagine that she died around eleven o'clock.

"There were some fresh grapes in the stomach," said the doctor, "and these must have been taken almost immediately before death."

The doctor said that there were a number of abrasions on the girl's back that had evidently been made after death. They were likely made through the girl being dragged by the limbs up the stairway, an effort apparently having been made to get her upstairs.

Dr. Macklin, the second doctor at the post mortem, agreed with his colleague as to the condition of the girl's stomach.

"The blood marks on the stairs," he continued, "seemed to be in a double row."

Chief of Police Postlewaite said the girls clothes looked as though they had been cut off by a knife.

Nebraska Man to Pay Death Penalty

Lincoln, Neb., Oct. 26.—Unless saved by a respite Bert H. Taylor, convicted of murder will be executed at the State penitentiary late to night or early Saturday morning. Taylor's crime was committed in the town of Minden, more than two years ago. He attacked his sister-in-law, Pearl Taylor, and abused her younger sister. He then set fire to the house and fled. Pearl Taylor died as a result of the assault some days later. Taylor escaped to California, where he was captured several months later and returned to Nebraska.

CANADIAN BANKING.

Professor Johnson, Dean of New York University School of Commerce Accounts and Finance, has written an interesting article on the subject of Canadian Banking which will repay perusal and which is a very flattering testimonial to the Canadian system.

He points out one objectionable feature, which, however, has not escaped the notice of other writers on the subject. The system of large banks with a number of branches scattered throughout the country has many advantages but it has this disadvantage—that the smaller places are not so likely to have their financial wants attended to as they would be if every place had its own bank established by local men as is the case in the United States. There, any place of three thousand people or even less has a bank controlled by local capitalists. The bank does business only with the local men; it has no branches. The result is that the prosperity of the bank is dependant upon the prosperity of the town and surrounding country. The management are actively interested in promoting the welfare of the particular locality. Of course, there is necessarily a danger in this—if hard times come in any one place, the bank there is likely to suffer. Yet it is unquestionably true that the small local bank does help the town in which it is located.

In speaking of the personnel of the bank managers and clerks, Mr. Johnson calls attention to the fact that the men in Canadian banks are thoroughly trained [illegible] young and gradually work up to the leading positions. "They are," as Mr. Johnson says, "professional bankers, and untrained outsiders cannot break into the Canadian banking business as they do in the United States." For that reason Mr. Johnson hopes that through the Canadian Bankers' Association, some further provision will be made for the intellectual growth of the young men in their employ.

On the whole, Mr. Johnson's article is very flattering to the Canadian banking system which in most respects he pronounces superior to that of the United States. Following the report of the United States National Monetary Commission, which also spoke in highly eulogistic terms of our system and pointed out how in many respects the United States might well adopt much of the Canadian system, it is evident that in banking at least our neighbors across the line can learn much from Canada.

TAXING IMPROVEMENTS.

The measure introduced at the last session of the legislature A. E. Fripp, M.P.P., to empower municipalities to tax improvements at a lower rate than the bare land will be again brought up at the coming session.

The movement in this direction seems to be steadily gained ground. It has many stalwart advocates and is championed by practically all the leading papers in the province.

The idea of the bill has been actually carried out in Vancouver, B.C. Within the last year that city, which has been experimentally lowering its assessments on improvements for some years past, decided to remove all taxation from buildings and other improvements and to raise its revenue from a tax on land values only. Mayor Taylor reports that largely in consequence of this progressive step, building operations have been far more extensive this year than ever before in Vancouver's history, and it naturally follows that the increased distribution of wages through the building trade has brought prosperity in an unprecedented degree to all lines of business.

It is difficult to see on what ground the legislature could possibly reject Mr. Fripp's proposed measure. The bill is merely permissive. It provides for the adoption of the change by the municipality only on a majority vote of the property owners so that no municipality need adopt the differential assessment unless the people immediately and directly concerned, the actual property owners, desire to do so.

A Clever Ruse

But It Was Very Unexpectedly Executed.

By WILLARD BLAKEMAN

Copyright 1910 by American Press Association

On coming home from business I found my wife in the dumps.

"What's the matter, dearie?" I asked.

"It's all up with us."

"Bottom dropped out of the universe?"

"Worse. Aunt Abigail will have to live with us. She's written that her friend with whom she has had a home is to give up her house the 1st of May, and that throws her out. I am her only relative, and of course she expects me to take her in."

"She's a bit cranky, isn't she?"

"Cranky is no name for it."

"Well, we'll have to make the best of it."

Aunt Abigail arrived. We had previously considered our home entirely our own. With the coming of our relative we saw at once that all this was changed. She settled herself down with an appearance of permanency that made my blood run cold.

"Well," she exclaimed, looking about her, "how did you ever come to build this house down in a hollow—it must have been a swamp once—when you could as well have put it up on that hill, where you could see something?"

"We live here winter and summer, Aunt Abigail. Up there we would freeze in cold weather."

"Freeze! Nonsense! Some people are always afraid they'll breathe a little fresh air. I'm not. I sleep with my window open, and I like to have a gale blowing in right on me. You should have fronted your house to the south."

"I can't stand this. We must get rid of her, I said to my wife."

"To turn her out would be awful."

"We needn't do that. We can fix it so that she will go of her own accord."

"For heaven's sake explain."

"You know the homeopathic principle—like cures like. Well, my Uncle Robert is more disagreeable, if that is possible, than your Aunt Abigail. He is a dictatorial old curmudgeon, with no respect for any one's opinion but his own. He is as poor as a church mouse, living in a miserable room in a rookery by himself. He amuses himself abusing his neighbors from his window and shying anything he can get his hands on at the cats. Now, it has occurred to me to bring him here as a foil for your aunt. She can't possibly endure to stay in the house with such a man, and when she's gone I'll find a way to get rid of Uncle Robert. Perhaps they may both go to get rid of each other."

"Your plan seems rather impracticable to me, Billy, but I have a good deal of confidence in those roundabout ways of yours. Suppose we try it?"

So I wrote Uncle Robert offering a home temporarily and, if he liked it, as long as he lived. He accepted eagerly, and it was not long before he was down upon us bag and baggage.

"My dear boy," he exclaimed, patting me on the back, "how you do remind me of your father! He and I were inseparable as boys, and I've carried you on my shoulder often. And to think that I'm to have a home with you! Put me anywhere. A garret is good enough for a broken down old codger like me. Phew! Somebody's been smoking here. Do you smoke? How I hate tobacco! It makes me sick."

"I won't smoke any more in the house since you've come, uncle," I said.

"Oh, don't mind me. I can stand anything; got to stand it. I've made a dead failure of life and don't deserve anything else. You don't mind my opening the window, do you—just to let the odor out?"

"Fanny has a bad cold, you know."

"Just the thing to cure her. Let her breathe the cool air of heaven."

Up went the window and out of the room went Fanny. Half an hour after my uncle arrived dinner was announced. I was watching our guests when they entered the dining room. It was like a dog and a cat at first catching sight of each other. Both seemed to crouch for an encounter. Neither spoke to the other for some time after taking seats at table. Then a remark of Uncle Robert's ruffled Aunt Abigail.

"This women's voting craze"— he was beginning.

"Voting what, sir?"

"Craze, madam," raising his voice.

"I'm not deaf. I heard you well enough. I object to you calling woman's suffrage a craze."

"Are you an advocate of woman's suffrage, madam?"

"I most assuredly am."

"I believe in any one who advocates a principle standing by that principle and not attempting to straddle"—

"Sir!"

"That is, to equivocate or knuckle down, defending the cause with all his or her strength. Per contra, I reserve the same privilege for myself. Woman's suffrage I consider the most abominable, diabolical, illogical rot that was ever sprung on a Christian people."

"And I consider it one of the holiest causes"—

"Aunt Abigail," interposed my wife, "do let me help you to this little bit of wing. You're not eating enough to feed a sparrow."

"I'm inclined to think," remarked Uncle Robert, "that there's a good deal in this new idea of diet. This man

Grand Trunk Engineers.

For the past few weeks a committee representing the engineers of the Grand Trunk Railway System has been in conference with the superintent of motive power. So quietly did they carry on their negotiations that although twenty-six of them were domiciled at a Montreal hotel for weeks there has been no publicity about the matter. The negotiations were carried on with the best of good feeling on both sides and now, it is pleasant to record that an agreement has been reached satisfactory to all concerned. The engineers asked for a substantial increase of pay, amounting it is understood to something like 12 per cent. The Grand Trunk was willing from the first to grant them an increase and the result of friendly negotiations is the agreement concluded Thursday. The representatives of the engineers left for their home Friday last entirely satisfied with the result of their mission to Montreal.

106 acres of absolutely proven oil land on Sulphur Mountain, adjoining and between the Liberty and Puritan Oil Companies' property. Ten miles from Santa Paula, Ventura Co., Calif.

FACTS—The property is absolutely proven territory, lying as it does with the UNION OIL CO. producing on the south, the LIBERTY OIL CO. producing on the west, Puritan Oil Co. to commence drilling on the east. Also it is located in a district of BIG PRODUCING COMPANIES, such as Ojai Petroleum, Pyramid Oil Co., Canadian Queen, Capital Crude, Bard Oil and Asphalt Co., and others. THERE'S NO QUESTION ABOUT THE COMPANY GETTING OIL. It is possible that Liberty Oil Company's new well will be a gusher, which would make the ATLANTA OIL COMPANY stock worth par. Mr. Cowell, our Superintendent, knows every foot of the ground, and having his log book of Liberty property, which adjoins our land, and an experienced OIL MAN and we consider ourselves fortunate in obtaining his services. VENTURA CO. OIL represents the cream of the industry. It is the home of HIGH GRAVITY OIL. VENTURA COUNTY OIL means $1.00 a barrel at well. Costs from 2c to 6c to produce it. THE GREAT UNION OIL CO. got its start in VENTURA CO. and has paid over twenty-two millions in dividends. These GREAT ASSETS had a small beginning in the WILD BILL GUSHER, within SIGHT OF ATLANTA OIL CO. property. The demand for refining oil FAR EXCEEDS THE SUPPLY. The 25 refineries in California are over for the product. The eastern high gravity fields are diminishing. The OHIO FIELDS, FOR INSTANCE, have fallen off one-third. The demand is caused by the increased market for gasoline. Throughout the world the number of automobiles and internal combustion gasoline engines is forcing up the price of high gravity crude petroleum. Eastern operators are now looking to VENTURA COUNTY, which are held to be the most extensive known. THIS IS THE FIRST ANNOUNCEMENT of ground floor offering of ATLANTA OIL CO., and may be oversubscribed at any time. One day's delay may mean you are too late. ACT NOW. WRITE FOR LATEST NEWS OF VENTURA OIL FIELDS.

RAILWAY REGULATIONS.

Although there was little novelty in the railways' presentation of their case for the advance of their rates, there was much that was novel in the shippers' contentions. In Chicago it was testified by one railway that forty million dollars of earnings had been put back into the property. In this city it was testified that some thirty five millions of dollars of earnings had been expended upon the new Pennsylvania terminal. This was in accord with the formerly approved rule of practice by the best roads—"a dollar for dividends and a dollar for betterments. It was this principle of plowing the earnings back into the property which has kept down the capitalization of American railways at the same time that their rates have not risen with other prices for services and goods.

On this formerly approved principle the shippers' counsel joined issue, taking their cue, it must be admitted, from certain rulings of the Inter-State Commerce Commission. These improvements made from earnings were regarded as grievances, and in themselves a proof of extortion. It was asserted as a right that the roads should reduce their rates by whatever sums of earnings they have been accustomed to devote to improvements. Even the misfortunes of the railways were imputed to them for a fault. For example, it was alleged that because one road had lost large sums by equipment frauds and had prospered nevertheless, therefore it had overcharged by the amount it had lost by embezzlement, and should be held to reduce its rates by the amount of its losses. The broad position of those assuming to act for the general public is that the railways should be allowed to charge no more than would just prevent their setting up a defence of confiscation. And, in estimating the permissible income the railways are held by these spokesmen to be entitled to no more than a reasonable income upon the amount of their own funds which they have devoted to the public use.

These gentlemen seem in some danger of winning a battle and losing a campaign. It is conceivable that they may prevent an advance in rates, and come to regret the consequent lack of vitality in the railways. American roads are far from having attained their growth. They are in need not only of income enoughto sustain their life but to stimulate their growth. There is a certain justice in having the funds necessary for their growth contributed by those whose patronage of the railroads is a source of profit, rather than by the general public whose gainfrom the railways is less direct. If the railways are held to capitalize their betterments, and must borrow the money, interest must be paid on the money borrowed, and the rates must be adequate to pay the interest and providing a sinking fund for the establishment of the debt. As interest and sinking fund must come from earnings, it would seem to come to the same thing in the end.

Whatever the merit of this argument on either side, it is plain that a new light is thrown upon what is thought to be regulation of rates. Heretofore it has been thought that the function of government was merely to assure that rates were reasonable and just, that is, neither extortionate nor discriminatory, toward either persons or places. If the position assumed on behalf of shippers is sustained there is no detail of the management of the railroads too trivial for examination and control

EDITORIAL NOTE.

A Western Ontario newspaper comments on mayoralty rumors as "without authority other than Mrs. Grundy." Such a reference to the good dame is hardly correct, as her name stands for social criticism rather than for public conjecture. It is interesting to recall that this lady has now adopted the average vocabulary for over a century. In Tom Morton's "Speed the Plow," Mrs. Ashfield is continually quoting neighbor Grundy, and farmer Ashfield says to her: "Be quiet, Nell ye! Always ding dinging Dame Grundy into my ears. What will Mrs. Grundy say? What will Mrs. Grundy think?"

A Clever Ruse

want's blasphame who is proving that the less we eat the more work we can do is going to create a revolution."

"Have you adopted his idea?" asked Aunt Abigail spitefully.

Considering that I had just filled Uncle Robert's plate for the second time this was unkind.

"I have not, madam, for the reason that I am not yet satisfied that his views are correct. I'm nothing if not scientific. I must see a thing proved before I adopt it."

"Would you prove woman's suffrage before adopting it?"

This was quite bright of Aunt Abigail.

"I admit," replied Uncle Robert, "that to prove it before adopting it would be impossible. It isn't necessary to prove it. Any fool can see that the idea is ridiculous."

"Uncle," I interrupted for the purpose of calling a truce and preventing Aunt Abigail from firing a return shot, "let me fill your glass."

"No, sir," putting his hand over it—"not at all, sir. I drink just one glass of wine with my dinner. And that's enough for any man."

"Quite right," I replied and filled my own for the third time.

"One is too much for any man, especially an old man," snapped the aunt. "Nothing is so disgusting to me as an old toper."

The shot, while it applied partly to me, was fired at Uncle Robert.

"Not at all," he replied. "One glass is good for the system. You know what St. Paul says, 'Take a little wine for the stomach's sake.'"

"Yes," retorted Aunt Abigail, "and I know that the devil can quote Scripture."

This was so well turned that I felt like patting the old lady on the back. But it did not squelch Uncle Robert for the simple reason that he was unsqueichable. The skirmishing went on, getting hotter and hotter, till at last, to prevent an open rupture, my wife arose from the table. She, poor woman, was dreading a fracas, and I was not anxious to have a break occur so early in the game.

As soon as Fanny and I were alone together we sat down and laughed.

"Did you ever see anything work more beautifully?" I said, slapping my leg.

"Never."

"Let them go their own gait. My opinion is that one or the other will get out within a week."

Every day my uncle came to me and said that he couldn't live in the same house with a cat and was going to-morrow. Every day Aunt Abigail went to Fanny and said she could not possibly endure that opinionated old heathen and she was casting about for another home, but it was dreadful that she should be alone in the world, with no one to love but Fanny, and Fanny must needs be incumbered by all her husband's relatives. I told my uncle that if I were deprived of the comfort of caring for my father's brother in his old age it would break my heart. Fanny made faint hearted attempts to quiet her aunt and agreed with her that my uncle was a trifle hard to get on with, regretting at the same time that he had the same claim on me that her aunt had on her. It is true that occasionally there would be a lull in the hostilities and we would find the two chatting quite amicably. But this was when they happened to strike some subject which was a pet with both. As soon as they drifted into topics on which they disagreed the war of battle recommenced.

Several weeks passed in this way, and Fanny and I were getting impatient for the denouement, when one day uncle came to me and said that he would like to have a few words with me and Fanny alone. He looked very serious, and I felt quite sure he would announce his departure. He was a born gentleman, and nothing would be further from his nature than to hurt one's feelings, and to appear ungrateful would break his heart. I called Fanny into the library, shut the door and waited for the old man to speak.

"My dear boy," he began, taking my hand, "and my dear little girl," taking Fanny's hand, "I have something to announce which will surprise you. I am going to leave you!"

"Oh, uncle!" we both exclaimed, trying hard to appear much disappointed, even shocked.

"Yes, I am going away, and your aunt is also going."

This was indeed a surprise.

"Your kindness has brought about a great change in two lonely lives. For a time it seemed to both of us that we must thwart your plans for the happiness of both of us. It has not seemed that we can live under the same roof together."

He paused, and I thought he was going to shed tears. Then he added abruptly:

"We are both going to leave you to-morrow."

"Both?"

"Yes, both. We are to be quietly married at 9 o'clock and leave on a short wedding trip on the 10 o'clock train."

"Goodness gracious!" from Fanny.

"Great Scott!" from me.

"But we shall be gone only a few days."

"And then!" exclaimed Fanny and I breathlessly.

"And then," resumed the old man, putting a hand on each of our heads, "we return to spend the rest of our lives with our dear niece and nephew."

Heaven helps those who help themselves. At any rate, heaven came to our relief. I inherited $20,000 from a maternal uncle. Of this I put $5,000 in a house for the old couple and invested the rest in an annuity for them. Strangely enough, they are quite contented together.

Don't wash and scrub, bend and rub over a hot wash tub; sift a little GOLD DUST in the water, loosen the dirt, and save rubbing

Soap is not a bit of cleansing good until it is mixed with water and made into suds. And then it still needs the rub-rub-rub of human muscle.

GOLD DUST works in an entirely different way—instantly and totally dissolves in hot or cold, hard or soft water—and, without any aid from you, starts to cleanse.

GOLD DUST is more than soap—better and more economical. It is a powder of magic power—but rightly directed power, that leaves the wash white, sweet, wholesome.

Case Was Settled.

At the session of the local fall assizes Wm. B. Warne of this city, claimed one thousand dollars from the C.P.R. as result of alleged damages to an automobile by a tram at the company's crossing. A settlement was reached, the plaintiff receiving $225, each party paying its own costs. O'Connell and Gordon appeared for the plaintiff and Angus McMurchy, K.C., for the defendant.

Motor Bicyclist in Near Danger.

Yesterday afternoon a man mounted on one of those gasoline propelled bicycles turned the corner of Simcoe and George streets, going west on Simcoe street. Just as he passed Barrie's store a farmer's rig drawn by a horse with more vim than common sense, ran a close shave of running over the automobile cyclist. Fortunately the cyclist had that sixth sense, which warned him of the danger coming behind and steered quickly to the gutter. Thus he saved himself from bruises and his machine from pending annihilation.

LOCAL GAGS AMUSE AUDIENCE AT ROYAL.

The vaudeville at the Royal Theatre yesterday was exceptionally good. Mr. Charles H. Sanders, the vocalist and monologist, got off some smart verses to the popular air, "There will be a hot time in the old town tonight," full of gags and replete with current local significance. Among the diggrel lines, sung by him to that tune were the following which will be understood by every intelligent man in the city, particularly the Attle skit anent the Water Commissioners. The verses ran as follows:

Now about the papers, I'll mention
In my rhymes.
They'll publish all the news if its considered prime.
Review the Examiner and keep up with The Times
And have a hot time, etc.

$120,000 for the dam, they did request
To finish $20,000 more, they must invest!
And we're all going "Hoppey" now to see who'll get the rest.
They'll have a hot time, etc.

Sell eggs and poultry by the pound
a law for it they beg.
Some seem to think the grocers are pulling people's legs.

Make hens lay larger eggs.
He'll have a hot time, etc.

NOT LIKELY TO UNITE.

Sentiment in Fort William Strongly Against Amalgamation.

Fort William, Oct. 26.—It will be years before Fort William can receive benefit by joining hands with Port Arthur, is the opinion of Jas. Murphy, former mayor and president of the Fort William Board of Trade. Many prominent statesmen including Sir Wilfrid Laurier this year told the Twin Lake Cities that it would be to their mutual advantage to become one, and they have made similar suggestions about once a year since Fort William and Port Arthur were given space on the railway maps. But Fort William will have nothing of it.

The two cities were never xclose to getting together than they were at the recent unification banquet, yet they stood no greater chance of becoming one than they did when the memorable rivalry for the Grand Trunk Pacific terminals was at its hottest.

One of Fort William's foremost citizens said today, "We may be linked to Pittsburg and Boston, Port Arthur has the residential locality, we have the industries and the industrial sites. If we should join hands the population would earn its money here and spend it in Port Arthur."

Most of the Fort William business men present at the big banquet last week advocated a closer understanding—an alliance—but they were emphatically against once city at the head of the lakes.

THOUGHTS OF A BUSY FELLOW

On Past, Current and Coming Events of Local and General Import.

Matrimonial advertisements are not usually taken serious, but here is one that stands alone for uniqueness:

"A young gentleman, on the point of getting married, is desirous of meeting a man of experience who will dissuade him from such a step."

PREPARE TO DIE

It is asserted that the ordinary colored stockings worn so commonly by ladies are injurious to health, in support of which a medical man cites the case of a woman who died from blood poisoning produced by "poisonous dye." Well, if women are silly enough to wear these dyed garments they must be prepared to die themselves.

Ontario Sunday School Workers.

Oshawa, Oct. 25. Opening with a large attendance and everything in good working order, the forty-fifth annual convention of the Ontario Sunday School Association bids fair to be the medium of much accomplishment in the Sunday school field in this section of Canada. Today was devoted chiefly to the opening formalities. The sessions will continue until Friday. Marion Lawrence, general secretary of the International Association; Mrs. Pheobe A. Curtiss of Columbus, Ohio; Rev. J. C. Robertson, general secretary of Sabbath schools of the Presbyterian Church, and other church leaders and Sunday school workers of international reputation are included in the list of speakers.

Ald. Morgan thinks that prices paid for eggs and chickens in Peterborough are too steep. Some 17851 citizens of this burg will agree with him in that sentiment.

Canadian Chicle Co. Get a Site for $300

Matron for Isolation Hospital will Cost $600 a Year, the Year Round--Adding Machine for City Treasurer's Office

The city fathers met in special session last night, when there were present: Mayor Morrow, Aldermen Loftus, Duncan, Bradburn, Gillespie, Metheral, Graham, Batten, Phelan, Buller and Hicks.

ILLUMINATED SIGN.

The Grafton Co., again wrote, asking council to reconsider their application for permission to erect an illuminated sign in front of their premises.

Ald. Bradburn could not see how such permission could be granted. The sign is 12 feet long and would extend two feet over the edge of the sidewalk.

This matter was left in abeyance.

TRIBUTE TO AN EX-MAYOR.

Moved by Ald. Phelan, seconded by Ald. Batten, That this council desires to place on record its appreciation of the services rendered to the community by the late James Stevenson, who passed away on Tuesday last at the age of 85 years. During his long residence in this municipality of seventy years, Mr. Stevenson took a leading part in business life and was foremost in advancing the interests of the city. He was mayor of Peterborough first in 1851, and in all served ten years as head of the council, besides being a member of the council in other years, and served the municipality as a City Trust Commissioner for forty nine years, a large part of that time as chairman of the commission. He also for two terms represented the constituency in the Parliament of the Dominion, during which time he was influential in securing the building of the Trent waterway, and as a member of the Board of Education for over fifty years, a director of the Horticultural Society, a member of the Nicholls Hospital Board, and in other positions he rendered the community valuable services. At a time when the foundations of the prosperity of Peterborough were being laid Mr. Stevenson was active in securing railway facilities and manufacturing industries, and his efforts were valuable in the development of the city. Although during the past few years Mr. Stevenson had retired from active business the services he had rendered the community were most valuable and permanent in their results. We also desire to tender Mr. Stevenson's family our sympathy, and to assure them that the work he did for Peterborough is appreciated, and will not be forgotten.

This resolution was passed unanimously by a standing vote.

SITE FOR CHICLE CO.

A bylaw authorizing the conveyance to the Canadian Chicle Co. 50x100 feet of city property at the corner of George and Romaine streets, for the sum of $300, passed it several readings.

It is understood that this company are now preparing to erect a four storey building on the land in question for manufacturing purposes.

PUBLIC LIBRARY FIXTURES.

A bylaw authorizing the execution of an agreement with Alexander & Miller for supplying this institution with electric light fixtures for the sum of $562, passed its several readings.

To Ald. Hicks Ald. Duncan replied that the cost of operating the new public library is in the hands of the new Library Board.

AN ADDING MACHINE.

On motion of Ald. Bradburn, seconded by Ald. Gillespie, the city will procure an adding machine for the city treasurer's office. The cost to be $525 and an additional $6 for a stand.

Ald. Bradburn reported that the Water Commissioners agree to pay half the cost of this machine, which being a discount instrument, can also be utilized by Tax Collector Green. Payment for this will be arranged out of next year's revenue.

On motion of Ald. Hicks, payment for material furnished for the south end sewer and drainage system will be made on certificate of the engineer.

$600 a YEAR FOR MATRON.

Ald. Duncan reported that it is impossible to get a matron for the Isolation Hospital for less than $600 a year permanently. No one will accept the position at $50 a month when on actual duty only.

The chairman of the Property Committee and Medical Health Officer Dr. McPherson have authority to act in this matter.

A city nurse will be sent to train in the Montreal Isolation Hospital to qualify her for her duties here as matron. The city will pay her railway fare only.

THE BUILDING BYLAW.

Ald. Gillespie thought that the building bylaw should be looked into, as there appears to be considerable kicking about it.

Ald. Graham offered that it should certainly be revised if necessary, and definitely so.

The council, however, appeared to favor this measure being sent along to their predecessors, so no action was taken.

Council adjourned until the call of the mayor.

LAID AT REST.

The Funeral of the Late James Stevenson Took Place Yesterday.

During the funeral services held at the late residence of Mr. James Stevenson, ex-M.P., Rev. Mr. Henderson of Charlotte street Methodist church read some verses from the Scriptures. Rev. Canon Davidson, rector of St. John's church said the prayers, and Rev. Mr. Shaver, of Cobourg, a former pastor of the church at which Mr. Stevenson worshipped, paid a strong tribute to the memory of the deceased.

Among those attending the funeral were representatives of the City Council, of the I.O.O.F., the Board of Education, and other city institutions.

The floral emblems were numerous and were sent from many friends and the different city bodies.

The services at the grave were conducted by the above clergymen.

THE WATER COMMISSIONERS HAVE NOTHING TO CONCEAL FROM THE RATEPAYERS

Their Books and Minutes are Open for Inspection, if so Desired--$20,000 Worth of Debentures will be Issued for Extension Costs--Actual Cost of New Dam Can Not be Computed

The City Water Commissioners met the city fathers last night re the issuing of the $20,000 worth of debentures needed.

Ald. Bradburn enquired if any portion of the contingent fund had been spend on the new dam.

Commissioner T. F. Matthews expressed his surprise that such a question should be thought necessary, as the auditor's reports of the commissioners' expenditures had been issued. The contingent fund had not been interferred with for any construction work at the dam. The $20,000 was needed for street extensions only.

Ald Hicks here enquired under what act council was legislating under in passing the bylaw to authorize the issuing of debentures.

The city clerk under the act of [illegible].

Ald Hicks then explained his attitude on this question. He believed the ratepayers would like to know whether in paying the present cost for waterworks service and extensions, cheap water is being provided for future generations at the expense of present ratepayers. Ald. Hicks then went on to enquire if, under the act of 1908, the commissioners could not use as $4000 this week and, $4000 the next, and so on, for other purposes than those of extension. Would not such a course be keeping within the $5,000 limit of the act.

His worship replied that only $5,000 could be used for any one purpose without council consent.

Commissioner Matthews laughingly remarked that Ald Hick's idea was a new one to him. The former gentleman here said that he was not very familiar with the council operations and had thought that usually when a bylaw was read the first time its case was assured. Hence the commissioners did not wait for its second reading the other night. But perhaps it was well we left early if the presence of the Water Commissioners hampers the council discussions." He was surprised that the commissioners' intentions regarding these debentures should be questioned, and thought that perhaps it was the wish of certain aldermen that a plebescite of the people should be taken as to whether the waterworks should be operated by a commission or by a committee of the council. He was quite willing that such a plebiscite be taken next January. He could readily understand a natural desire to "make good" with the ratepayers at this time of the year.

Ald. Hicks, in reply, said the commissioners had every opportunity of becoming familiar with the council's operations, both in committee and open meetings, through the press, and the same opportunity for the public to keep in touch with the commissioners operations would be appreciated. The ratepayers and the council are equally anxious to know what the commissioners are doing. Regarding his own personal attitude on the question in hand Ald. Hicks cheerfully admitted that he was always anxious to "make good" to the ratepayers, at any and all seasons.

Commissioner Matthews, "The commissioners do not desire to hide anything from the ratepayers, and the public are welcome to become acquainted with our operations. Our minutes and books are open for inspection by any one, at all times, and the press are welcome to be present at all meetings.

Continuing Mr. Matthews said there is just one point I cannot give any information on, and that is the cost of the new dam. All the contracts are not settled yet, and as some matters are in dispute it would not be wise to discuss that question at present.

Ald. Hicks replied that he did not wish to discuss in public any questions that might embarass the commissioners in their operations.

The bylaw authorizing the borrowing of $20,000 for water works purposes by the issuing of debentures then passed its second and third readings.

Toronto, Oct. 28.—Two thousand delegates representing almost every portion of the United States and Canada will fill Massey Hall today at the opening of the thirty-seventh international convention of the Young Men's Christian Associations. The initial session, devoted mostly to the exchange of greetings, will be marked by a display of great enthusiasm. Business sessions, interspersed with features of entertainment will keep the delegates busy during the next three days. An international athletic meet and demonstration of physical work will be held tomorrow afternoon and on Sunday a notable programme of religious exercises will be carried out.

Orinoco Case Comes Up.

The Hague, Oct. 28.—Following the preliminary exchange of briefs last month the international court of arbitration met today to begin the hearing of arguments in the Orinoco claims case in dispute between the United States and Venezuela. The claim is that of the Orinoco Steamship Company, an American corporation, against the Venezuelan government for more than $1,000,000 for the alleged arbitrary distruction of certain exclusive privileges by the government of former President Castro. The claim was originally submitted to the American Venezuelan mixed commission in 1903, which tribunal awarded the company about $8,000 damages. The question for the international court to decide is whether the award of the mixed commission is valid, and if it is not, to what sum the claimants are entitled.

Jas. Gorham Was Found Guilty of Murder---Jury Out for Three Hours

A STRONG RECOMMENDATION FOR MERCY, WHICH WILL BE FORWARDED TO OTTAWA.

Counsel for Crown and Counsel for Defence Did Not Address the Jury—Jury Out About Three Hours.

All day yesterday, the court at the Peterborough Fall Assizes heard the evidence in the case against the young man, James Gorham, charged with murdering his mother.

Most of the evidence in this "cause celebre," was given in yesterday's issue of The Times.

During the morning session, John Gorham, the prisoner's oldest brother was heard. He stated that he was not at home on the day of the shooting from 2.30 until 3 the next morning. He saw the prisoner between 2 and 2.30 o'clock on the afternoon in question. He was playing catch with some other boys. Witness had noticed one thing about his brother's conduct that whenever he did anything that was wrong he did not seem to realize that he should not do so. When spoken to about it, he would only laugh. He was restless at night and in the morning complained of a sore tongue. He would often talk to objects as if they were animate things. The witness gave instances of this feature of his brother's conduct. He had a recollection of his frothing at the mouth on different occasions. On four of these occasions he had liquor in him, on the other two he did not think that he had. As far as inflicting punishment on him, it would have no effect upon him in the way of subduing him. He corroborated the evidence of the rest of the family as to the prisoner's habit of eating his meals alone. Only four times in the last three years had he had supper with the rest of them. The longest he had ever worked for any one was about a month. Sometimes he would not work for six or nine months.

To Mr. Meredith:

"Do you mean to tell us that the prisoner did not know what he was saying when he was talking to the family?"

"No, I would not say that exactly. He did not seem to know things altogether as established between right and wrong."

Gordon Kellar testified that he had been in Lindsay with the prisoner, three days before the shooting. They had gone up to see about a gasoline engine. Gorham was drinking on the a bit. They had returned to Peterborough on the evening of the next day. Gorham was drinking whisky and gin. On their return to Peterborough they had remained up until 2 or 3 o'clock in the morning. Witness saw Gorham at noon on the day of the shooting, and saw him later, about 1.30 in the afternoon. The prisoner was helping to cut wood on the old Ashburnham wharf. Frenden-burg, Mr. Todhunter and the prisoner was drinking. They had a dozen bottles of ale with them. The prisoner was staggering when the witness left at 4.30 o'clock. Witness was at the corner of Maria street and the C.P.R. track when Gorham came out of the house and fired a shot into the air. He had known the prisoner three or four years. He saw him saturate a cat with coal oil and apply a match to it. Another time he chased a cat around until it lost its mind.

"Were you and your brother ever up in the local police court?"

"I don't remember."

Witness went on to say that the prisoner was all that could be desired except when drinking.

"Was he sober when you saw him at noon on the day of the shooting?"

"Yes, sir."

The witness stated that when he saw Gorham at 5 o'clock in the afternoon the prisoner was staggering.

Geo Dineen testified that he was manager of the George street Roller rink. The prisoner frequented the rink when it was first opened, and sometimes was disorderly.

Patrick Lavery testified that he had known the prisoner for some time. He had worked with him in the Geo. Matthews Packing House. The prisoner at one time was playing with other employes and fell a distance of fifteen feet to the ground, alighting on his head and shoulders. He was unconscious for ten or fifteen minutes.

To Mr. Meredith the witness said that Gorham came to work the day after the accident.

Thos McGinty stated that he had worked with the prisoner a year ago on the McDonald Lumber Company's camp. The prisoner took a kind of a fit one night and fell on the floor. He recovered consciousness after three or four minutes. He had noticed the prisoner acting queerly on some occasions.

License Inspector Joseph Stewart testified that Gorham was not on the black list, nor as far as he knew had there been any talk of it.

Dr. St. Charles stated that he had spent eight years in the insanity work at Mimico, Orillia, and other asylums in Ontario. He had examined the prisoner on October 20th for the purpose of ascertaining his mental condition. He had found from the examination and the history of the case that the prisoner was suffering from cleptic insanity.

Dr. Bruce Smith, inspector of prisons and public charities, said he had examined the prisoner on June 1st. He found the prisoner able to give fairly intelligent answers as to his parentage, his early life and every day occurrences. He had examined the prisoner on Monday and Tuesday of the current week. He found his condition very much the same. The prisoner had been for years mentally defective to such an extent that we regard him as belonging to the degenerate class, which includes seven tenth of those sent to prison.

"Is the prisoner sane or insane?"

"He is not insane. He would not be regarded as a suitable case for asylum treatment."

Dr Edward Ryan, superintendent of the Hospital for the Insane at Kingston, was the last rebuttal evidence called by the Crown. He had examined the prisoner in company with Dr. Smith, and believed that was defective, degenerate and alcoholic. He thought he knew right from wrong. There was no evidence to show that the prisoner was epileptic.

Chancellor Boyd said that the charge was a most serious one. If the jury believed the Crown witnesses they had to consider it a case of murder.

The jury went out to consider their verdict at 12.55, and were out till about 4 p.m. They then brought in a verdict of murder with a powerful recommendation to mercy. His lordship on hearing the verdict, told the prisoner he would suspend sentence and refer the matter to the Crown authorities.

Clubman to Be Released From Jail

Chicago, Oct. 28.—The Cook county jail will lose one of its most distinguished inmates tomorrow when Willis Counselman, wealthy clubman and broker, bids adieu to the institution where he has spent the past three months behind the bars. Counselman's confinement in the county bastile came as a sequel to matrimonial difficulties which caused him to become involved in contempt proceedings. During his stay in jail he has been employed as an assistant nurse. The work, however, has not been altogether to his liking and he is joyously anticipating his release tomorrow, when he can resume his old place in the world.

The Lindsay Ozone Plant is a Failure

Toronto, Oct. 27.—The ozone plant at Lindsay, which has been set up as an improvement on Toronto's filtration plant, is condemned as practically useless, in the special and final report of the Provincial Board of Health.

"It's no good, in plain words," said the secretary of the board, Dr. McCullough this afternoon. "Ozone cannot be brought into contact with the water except by a very expensive process."

Nearly all the benefit in the Lindsay plant comes from the filtration process in connection with it. In fact, colon bacilli (sewage matter) were found in the water in six samples of ozonized water out of 11.

This late report made at the request of Mr. J. D. Flavelle, chairman of the Lindsay Water Commission, vindicates the previous report by the Provincial Board. The first report was made by Dr. T. D. Archibut, as J. H. Bridge, the engineer, admitted afterwards, the water had been doped by chloride of lime. The report signed by Dr. G. G. Nasmith and Dr. Archibald, says in part:

"In the eleven series, colon bacilli (traces of sewage) were present in the raw water nine times, in the filtered water five times, and in the tap water six times.

"It quickly became evident that the purification system was working much the same as Dr. Nasmith and Dr. Philip found during the winter of 1909-10.

"As the results obtained were decisive, the chairman of the water commissioners, Mr. J. D. Flavelle, agreed that any further testing of the water would be useless until improvements were made in the method of getting the ozone into contact with the water. We had also we believe, concluded that the water had unknown to Dr. Archibald, been tampered with during Archibald's investigation.

"Averaging the eleven series grown at 18 to 22 degrees C., it will be seen that the filters have removed 66.9 per cent of the bacteria. Omitting series 2, which was overgrown with spreaders, and series 1, during which the ozone was not being generated, the reduction was found to be 37.1 per cent due to the ozone. Taking the ten series from 2 to 11, the total reduction by filters and ozone was 80.4 per cent. Omitting series 2, which was overgrown with spreaders, and series 1, the filters removed 66.5 per cent of the bacteria grown at 37 degrees C."

Norwood Trainman Killed in Accident

Norwood, Oct. 27.—John R. Cuthbertson, a former Norwood boy, was run over by an Illinois terminal train at Wood River and died shortly afterwards in St. Joseph's Hospital, where he was taken for treatment. Cuthbertson at the time of the accident was trying to operate a refractory knuckle of an automatic coupler when the car was struck by a cut-off car sent on to a flying switch. One leg was cut off just below the thigh. Deceased was forty-three years of age and leaves a wife and two children. His wife is a daughter of Thos. Elliott, of Norwood. William H. and Hugh Cuthbertson and Mr. Isaac Puffer of this place are brothers and sisters of deceased.

Mrs. Deline May Have Been Suffocated

The case of Hugh Deline, charged with wife murder, has been postponed till the next assizes as the result of the exhumation of the body. A second post mortem examination, it is said, showed that death was due to suffocation not to shock, as heretofore believed, the scratches on the dead woman's face evidently being caused by her assailant trying to prevent her screaming.

INVESTIGATING THE BI-LINGUAL SCHOOLS

Toronto, Oct. 27.—The Ontario Government is spreparing to grapple with the question of bilingual schools.

That the question is by no means a dead one was shown today by the visit to Premier Whitney of an influential deputation of Orangemen and the premier's assurance to it that the government was making a thorough investigation of the matter and expected to be able to report the results of this investigation in the near future.

THEY WANT TO KNOW.

The deputation which called to day represented a sub committee of the joint Legislation Committee of the Orange Lodges of Ontario, east and west. The same deputation had stated its complaints to the government in February last, and today it called merely to find out what was being done about it.

The complaints made in February in regard to which enquiries were made today, related not to the county of Essex, but to the Eastern counties of Stormont, Russel, Dundas, and Glengarry. In regard to these counties the Orangemen complained that in districts where Roman Catholics predominated. Separate schools were being sold, at nominal prices, that in bilingual schools French rather than English was being taught, and that in some Public schools Roman Catholic prayers and catechism were being taught.

SAME VIEW AS BISHOP

In the matter of bilingual schools and the predominance of French therein to which the Orangemen attach a very great importance, they are at once with Bishop Fallon. As far as the particular circumstances in Essex are concerned, they are, it would seem, willing to leave the matter with the bishop, feeling that he in his condemnation of the bilingual school in the West has materially strengthened them in their complaints against the similar schools in the East.

Sir James gave them a very emphatic assurance that all of the complaints in every district referred to were being thoroughly investigated by a representative of the government. It had taken longer than the government had anticipated. Sir James explained. The government had to wait until the schools were opened before it could look into the conditions, and some of the schools had been late in opening.

The members of the deputation were T. B. Collins, Millbrook; William Banks, Sr., Benjamin Kirk, William Bush, Ewan McLean, Newcastle, Duncan Munroe of Cornwall, and Harry Lovelock.

Warning to the Public

When you send for Zam Buk, impress upon the messenger or keep it in mind yourself, it having that you may strike a dealer who will try to substitute some other preparation on which he makes more profit, by telling you it is just as good as Zam Buk.

If so, be ready for him. No dealer or druggist knows what is in Zam Buk, as it contains several ingredients which cannot be analyzed. So if any dealer tells you that something else is "just as good," ask him how he knows! Refuse absolutely to have anything but Zam Buk, for depend upon it, if the "biggest profit lines," which such dealer endeavor to push at your expense, were any good, they would sell on their merits.

They would not need to be palmed off on Zam Buk's reputation. When you ask for Zam Buk you want the real thing the gold. When you accept any of the substitute "just as goods," instead of the gold you get the "gold brick."

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury.

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used, except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

MOW COMMISSION RULE WORKS.

In the last several weeks two or three American cities have joined the growing group of commission-governed municipalities. Perhaps the "rush" is over for the present, and people generally are disposed to await the results of the experiments already undertaken. But there is no evidence 6or intimation6 from any quarter that commission government has been disappointing. On the contrary, all the reports so far are highly encouraging.

Keokuk, Iowa, has just published a statement covering the first six ment all along the line. Bonded in ment all along the line. Bonded in debtedness has been reduced; a cash balance has taken the place of a shortage and floating debt; the city has been drawing interest instead of paying it; rents and fines have been collected where they had never been collected before, more and better work has been obtained in the street repairing department, and at lessened cost, and so on.

The application of ordinary business efficiency and method has brought about these results. A few responsible men have accomplished what many politicians under a system of misdirected checks and balances could not or would not accomplish.

A PEOPLE MISLED.

Mr. Bourassa and Sir Wilfrid Laurier are face to face in Drummond and Arthabasca. The Nationalist leader will denounce all contribution to naval defence. The premier may be expected to follow the trend of his speech at the Monument National when he was singularly timid and apologetic. Sir Wilfrid Laurier in British Columbia found his soul pulsating with pride in the British Empire and its glories. He had subdued himself before he reached Montreal. Yet there was his opportunity to declare his belief in British institutions and tai recite what the empire and its potential pawers gave done for Canada.

The French speaking people of this Dominion do not hear both sides of the argument. The majority of them—at least the majority of those in the rural districts do not read English. They get all their information from the French papers. Unfortunately some of those newspapers have misrepresented persistently the attitude of Ontario and of the West towards Quebec and the French people. "The fanatics of Ontario" is a common expression in their editorial columns. Only a few days ago L'Action Sacsale, a clerical daily of Quebec, called on the French-Canadian to awake and resist their enemies in Ontario. This sort of pleading is mischievous and well as mendacious. Some of the political and clerical leaders of the French people stimulate racial feeling against the English speaking Canadians. The object is plain, to consolidate the whole people in suspicion against their neighbors, so that the politician and the churchman may drive them more easily. In order to do this, facts are distorted and the seeds of discord and hatred are sown broadcast.

Surely it is time for a broadminded French-Canadian like Sir Wilfrid Laurier to take a stand against political pettifoggery which is too common on both sides. The Nationalists with Mr. Monk—and the French supported by L'Action Sociale and the House, rage through the constituencies like fire-brands, and are ably supported by L'Action Sociale and other journals of similar recklessness. Quebec owes something to Britain. Quebec leaders owe it to themselves to refrain from making mischief by deliberately trading in racial and religious prejudices for personal and political purposes.

THE LARGEST STEAMER IN THE WORLD.

BELFAST, October 20th.

The White Star Line's great steamer "Olympic" was launched successfully today. As fifty thousand spectators watched the monster mail glide swiftly down the ways the Countess of Aberdeen, wife of the Viceroy of Ireland, christened the ship. The Olympic is the largest steamer now afloat.

The White Star Line's triple screw steamer Olympic exceeds by nearly 100 feet in length and 13,000 tons any other steamship afloat. Her principal dimensions are:

	Feet
Length over all	882½
Breadth over all	92½
Breadth over boat decks	92½
Height from bottom of keel to boat deck	95
Height from bottom of keel to top of Captain's house	105½
Height of funnels above casing	72
Height of funnels above boat deck	81½
Distance from top of funnel to keel	175
Number of steel decks	11
Number of watertight bulkheads	15

The gigantic measurements of this vessel are best appreciated when it is known that in length the "Olympic" overtops the height of the Metropolitan Tower in New York by 182 feet, is twice as long as the height of the dome of St. Peter's at Rome, and equals in length the total drop of the famous Bridal Veil Fall in the Yosemite Valley. Indeed if the "Olympic" and her sister-vessel "Titanic" (soon to be launched) were placed end to end under the Brooklyn Bridge, they would completely block the East River, and extend over the shore one hundred feet on each side. It is also interesting to note that the length of each of these ships is four times the height of Bunker Hill Monument.

In each ship three million steel rivets, weighing in all 1,200 tons, have been employed to bind the massive steel plates, insuring the greatest stability; and the rudder of each vessel weighs 100 tons, yet will be removed by electricity almost as lightly as a feather.

These monsters of the deep will each accommodate 2,500 passengers, carrying a crew of 860, and because of the enormous size of the ships the accommodations, both as regards the several public apartments and the passenger staterooms, will be exceptionally spacious, while the beauty and luxury of the appointments will surpass anything hitherto attempted. Special attractions such as a Turkish and electric bath establishments, swimming pools, tennis courts, sun parlors, sports decks and palm courts will be provided in addition to restaurants, dining saloons, lounges, smoking apartments, elevators, etc., all of which will add much to the pleasure of a voyage on these marvels of marine achievement.

The "Olympic" and Titanic" will be propelled by a unique combination of reciprocating engines with a low pressure turbine, such as the White Star Line has employed so successfully on its Canadian service steamer "Laurentic." By this ingenious system vibration is eliminated and mal de mer conquered. A speed of 22 knots per hour will be maintained.

Since the advent of the "Great Eastern" in 1858 no steamer has created such general interest as the "Olympic," not only on account of her surpassing size, but also because of the immense forward steps thus marked in other lines of marine accomplishment, the outcome of many centuries of conflict with the sea.

The "Olympic" will join the White Star Line's mail service between New York, Plymouth, Cherbourg and Southampton next summer, followed by the "Titanic" in the early fall.

DAMMING ST. LAWRENCE.

The Project Up for Discussion Again.

Montreal, Oct. 25.—The damming of the St. Lawrence river to generate power may yet be a reality. It will be remembered that some time ago this was talked of. An Ottawa despatch says:

The project of damming the St. Lawrence river at the Long Sault for purposes of power development, is again coming to the front in Ottawa. It will be recalled that this is the project touched upon by Hon. Clifford Sifton, chairman of the Conservation Commission, in his recent address in St Catharines, and who declared that the proposal as made to parliament was against the best interests of the public.

not worthy of parliamentary support then it surely cannot be now. It is one thing to interfere with rights already vested and another thing to decline it.

The theme has not been changed to give concessions to consumers who have no vested rights. The Long Sault Development Company has not expended great sums in plants and machinery to develop power along the Sault or the question would assume quite a different aspect. As it is, Canada must guard her natural resources against the monopolies of interests that are seeking such valuable franchises.

INQUEST ON GIRL'S BODY.

Parents Certain the Remains Found in Westmount are Their Daughter.

Montreal, Oct. 25.—The inquest opened this morning over the body of nlitle Michaud, whose decayed remains were found in a vacant lot in Westmount on Sunday afternoon. Two men, Albert Chevrier and Lucien Perrault, who were out on bail on a charge of abducting the girl, and were yesterday afternoon rearrested on a charge of murder were present in charge of detectives.

That there could be no possible mistake in the identification of the remains was shown by the testimony of the parents of the girl, Mrs. Michaud, the mother, declared that at the time her daughter disappeared she was wearing her mother's coat and that the coat found on the body in Westmount was the same. She was able to identity other articles of clothing positively.

The medical evidence showed that the body was that of a girl between 13 and 14 years of age. Dr. McTaggart, who performed the autopsy declared that he had not been able to discover the cause of death, but proposed to make a furth investigation to see whether there were any traces of poison.

The parents of the girl told the story of the disappearance from her home in August last. Cecile and a friend of hers, named Bernadette Dagenais, had been accosted on the street by two men, and after talking with them for some time had agreed togo for an auto ride with them on the following evening. On the following evening the two girls went out and that was the last they had seen of their daughter.

Atlanta Oil Company

Capital Stock $600.000---Par Value $1.00

No Preferred Stock. Lease Runs 40 Years One-Sixth Royalty. No Bonds or Free Stock. All Stock in Treasury for Benefit of Holders. No Bonded Indebtedness Incorporated Under Laws of State of California.

106 acres of absolutely proven oil land on Sulphur Mountain, adjoining and between the Liberty and Puritan Oil Companies' property. Ten miles from Santa Paula, Ventura Co., Calif.

FACTS—The property is absolutely proven territory, lying as it does with the UNION OIL CO. producing on the south, the LIBERTY OIL CO. producing on the west, the BARD OIL CO. producing on the north, which only recently erected its 30th rig, and Puritan Oil Co. to commence drilling on the east. Also it is located in a district of BIG PRODUCING COMPANIES, such as Oja Petroleum, Pyramid Oil Co., Canadian Comm., Capital Crude, Bard Oil and Asphalt Co., and others. THERE'S NO QUESTION ABOUT THIS COMPANY GETTING OIL. It is possible that Liberty Oil Company's new well will be a gusher, which would make the ATLANTA OIL COMPANY stock worth par. Mr. Cowell, our Superintendent, knows every foot of the ground, and having his log book of Liberty property, which adjoins our land, and an experienced OIL MAN and we consider ourselves fortunate in obtaining his services. VENTURA CO. OIL represents the cream of the indistry. It is the home of HIGH GRAVITY OIL. VENTURA COUNTY OIL means $1.00 a barrel at well. Costs from 8c to 6c to produce it. THE GREAT UNION OIL CO. got its start in VENTURA CO. and has paid over twenty-two millions in dividends. These GREAT ASSETS had a small beginning in the WILD BILL GUSHER, within SIGHT OF ATLANTA OIL CO. property. The demand for refining oil FAR EXCEEDS THE SUPPLY. The 3 refineries in California are crying for the product. The eastern high gravity fields are diminishing. The OHIO FIELDS, FOR INSTANCE, have fallen off one-third. The demand is caused by the increased market for gasoline. Throughout the world the number of automobiles and internal combustion gasoline engines is forcing up the price of high gravity crude petroleum. Eastern operators are now looking to VENTURA COUNTY, which are held to be the most extensive known. THIS IS THE FIRST ANNOUNCEMENT of ground floor offering of ATLANTA OIL CO., and may be oversubscribed at any time. One day's delay may mean you are too late. ACT NOW. WRITE FOR LATEST NEWS OF VENTURA OIL FIELDS.

The lumber for the derrick is on the ground and machinery has been ordered. Well No. 1 will be started as soon as drilling is installed. It should not take over six months to complete first well. Well No. 2, by conditions of lease, must be in operation by February 14th, 1911.

DID NOT HIDE BABE'S BODY.

Bracebridge, Oct. 25. The fall assizes for the district of Muskoka opened yesterday before Judge Riddell. The docket contained two criminal cases one of murder, two of shooting with intent to kill, and one of concealment of birth. The grand jury brought in true bills against all four accused in the murder case and in one of the cases of shooting with intent to kill the accused is an Italian and in consequence there were many of the sons of sunny Italy in court.

The first case taken up was that against Norah Purcell, alias Norah Reynolds of Huntsville, charged with neglect to provide assistance at the birth of her child, and with concealment of birth, and that she hid the body of the infant under the floor of the laundry of the Kent House, Huntsville, on May 21st last. T. C. Robinette, K.C., of Toronto, appeared for the accused.

The jury brought in a verdict of not guilty.

SHOT AT HIS WIFE.

Mary Ann Smith testified she had been married for twenty three years. Neil McLean, brother in law, had been circulating reports about the witness and on the day of the shooting the accused came home and said "he had no further use for McLean's mistress." The accused used a strong et word, which she did not care to repeat. Witness got on with her husband all night, except when he drank. Her husband asked her to take action against McLean, but witness had said she could not. On August 3, her husband was intoxicated, and witness had caught his hand when he drew out a revolver before he had time to aim the weapon.

A FIGHT WITH A BEAR.

Saved By His Scotch Terrier From Death.

A Philadelphian named Stickler spend several weeks each year in the Catskill Mountains. He had an exciting adventure one year. Stickler left his retreat, which nestles among tall pines in a picturesque valley, early in the morning. He took with him a double barrelled gun, and a small Scotch terrier dog followed at his heels. Following mountain paths he soon came in sight of the Hotel Kaaterskill, where he dropped a short time and chatted with friends, who bantered him about shooting a bear. Stickler took the jests good natured-ly, and remarked that he would return with a bear. Bidding his friends good bye, he sallied forth on what he anticipated would be an enjoyable day's sport. Stickler soon came to the brow of the hill which overlooks a deep valley south of the hotel.

The hunter descended the mountain side into the valley which he crossed and then he tramped on a mile or two. Stickler kept a sharp look out for game. His little dog kept several yards ahead of him. Suddenly he heard it bark, and it ran back to him. It acted as if it were badly frightened. Advancing cautiously, Stickler saw something that filled him with pleasure, and his pulse quickened with excitement. Between four tall trees, which formed a space of about twenty feet, were two cub bears at play. Their antics amused him, and it was sometime before he awakened to his senses that what he had started out for was right before him. Raising his gun, he took aim at the largest of the cubs and fired. The little animal was badly wounded and it set up a crying that could be heard a long distance. The plaintive sounds were heard by the old mother bear, who was feeding on berries. It went tearing through the bushes to its young, licked the wounds of its offspring, and looked around for the hunter. The old bear caught sight of Stickler, and with growls that sent cold shivers up and down his spinal column, it made for him.

Between the place where Stickler was standing and the spot where the cubs were, there was stretched a huge trunk of a tree, which had been denuded of its branches. The log rested in such a position that a small animal could crawl under. This proved a fortunate circumstance for Stickler, for his life was saved by it. Bruin was rapidly approaching, and the hunter raised the gun to his shoulder and took careful aim, as it was the only charge he had. In the excitement that followed the shooting of the cub he had forgotten to reload the other barrel. The charge hit the bear near the shoulder and inflicted a terrible but not fatal wound. This only served to enrage the shaggy brute still more, and it reached the log and had its forepaws on top of it when the little terrier, which had stood trembling with fear by its master, darted under the log and caught the beast by one of its hind legs. The bear turned its attention to the dog, which slipped back under the log.

The new turn of affairs encouraged Stickler, who did not let the chance slip by. Grasping his weapon by the barrel, he advanced and struck the brute on the head. Bruin did not seem to mind the blow, and it again mounted the log, and the little dog again repeated the performance. Stickler began to reload one barrel of his gun, but so nervous was he of the result that he spilled the powder on the ground. He managed, however, to get a charge in just as the bear was on the top of the log for the third time. He fired and the terrier at the same instant went for the bear's hind quarters. This time Bruin did not turn back, and Stickler realizing that it was life or death with him, again rushed forward to club the animal. He had the weapon elevated when the bear raised its forepaws and struck him a terrible blow in the breast, and he fell unconscious to the ground. When he opened his eyes he saw the bear lying by his side. It was dead. It had struck the hunter in its last death struggle.

Stickler found that the last shot had entered the bear's mouth, which he remembered, as it came across the log, was wide open. The brute's tongue was cut off at the roots and was filled with shot.

Grand Trunk Engineers.

For the past few weeks a committee representing the engineers of the Grand Trunk Railway System has been in conference with the superintendent of motive power. So quietly did they carry on their negotiations that although twenty-six of them were domiciled at a Montreal hotel for weeks there has been no publicity about the matter. The negotiations were carried on with the best of good feeling on both sides and now, it is pleasant to record that an agreement has been reached satisfactory to all concerned. The engineers asked for a substantial increase of pay, amounting it is understood to something like 12 per cent. The Grand Trunk was willing from the first to grant them an increase and the result of friendly negotiations is the agreement concluded Thursday. The representatives of the engineers left for their home Friday last, entirely satisfied with the result of their mission to Montreal.

HUNTED BY ARABS.

A White Man's Thrilling Adventure in Central Africa.

On Mr. Deane's retreat from the Stanley Falls station, Congo Free State, Central Africa, some years ago, when it was attacked by Arabs, he had one of the most exciting experiences that ever befell a white man in Africa.

Before the station fell to armed men and been almost entirely exhausted and the greater part of before had skirted down the river, leaving only two men. In the darkness of the night Deane and his comrades, Dubois, with three or four Haussa soldiers, stole away from Stanley Falls and necessarily made their way westward along the river bank. It was not long before Dubois, slipping upon a stone at the water's edge, fell into the rapid current and was drowned. Deane was left alone with his few black comrades, and the prospect that they would escape was very slight.

They pushed on all night, but in the intense darkness they were able to make their way only a few miles through the thick undergrowth. Thoroughly tired out they stopped at daylight for a short rest. The rain which had been falling at night ceased, and Deane took off his drenched garments to partially dry them. While his clothes were hanging on the bushes, shouts were heard a few hundred feet behind the party. The Arabs had discovered their retreat, and were in hot pursuit. They were so near that Deane could hear the grass rattle as the enemy sprang through it rapidly following the muddy tracks of the fugitives. Deane had just time to throw his clothes over his arm and start at full speed through the bush, followed by his Haussa attendants. They could hear shouts of the Arabs who were on the trail for hours, and every nerve was strained to outdistance the pursuers. At last the cries behind them grew fainter, and about noon it was evident that the enemy had grown weary of the chase. Then the haunted little party stopped for a breathing spell.

It was a woebegone and almost hopeless band of fugitives. In the mad race for life every Haussa lost his gun, and not a weapon of any sort was left in the party. One by one Deane had dropped his garments, and he had nothing left except a small military cape, which he threw over his shoulders. In the midst of an African jungle, he had not the slightest protection for his bleeding feet, and even if he had saved his boots he would not have dared to put them on, for the tracks would have instantly revealed to any prowling Arab or hostile native that a white man was in the neighborhood. A cannibal tribe with whom Deane himself had had a serious fight lined the river below, and he dared not appeal to them for succor. He was about three hundred miles from the nearest white station at Kangala. All that could be done was to struggle down the river, through the dense bush and forest of several miles land, avoiding all the tribes except one or two that were known to be friendly and living on whatever they could pick up that would afford nutriment.

For four weeks this white castaway in Central Africa, almost naked and weak with hunger and fatigue, wandered through the solitudes of the country. The nights were cold, but the only covering the fugitives had were thick leaves, which they heaped over themselves as they lay down on the bare earth under the trees. They found many wild grapes, and some other fruits of the forest, but these alone would not give them strength to keep up the march. An occasional monkey or bird would have been a delightful addition to their food supplies, but without ammunition they could not obtain game of any sort. They did what anyone else would do when fighting against starvation. Many African tribes esteem fried ants as a great delicacy. When ever our fugitives came to a prosperous colony of ants they laid in a supply. Then many caterpillars crossed their path, and these treasures were carefully stowed away in a cartridge box. At dinner time the party would build a fire, roast their ants and caterpillars, and dispose of these solid viands as much as possible with mouthfuls of grapes and other fruit. It was anything but palatable food, but it kept life in these bodies, though the poor fellows became so weak that they could travel only three or four miles a day.

At last they came to the Bakuma tribe, who live along the river, and the fugitives thought they might safely reveal themselves to these people. Their confidence was not betrayed, and the fugitives were supplied with provisions which very agreeably varied their caterpillar diet. Meanwhile the Bangala who deserted Deane at Stanley Falls had reached home in canoes, and informed Captain Coquilhat of the unhappy plight of his brother officer. The Captain at once started to the rescue on a little steamer. He found Stanley Falls station burned to the ground, and as he lay in the river he had a hot exchange of compliments with the Arabs in a rattling fire of musketry. It was evident that Deane had either been killed or was making his way down the stream.

Then began a search along the river banks for the unfortunate white man, but no trace was found until Coquilhat reached the Bakuma, who told him that two days before they had relieved the necessities of the fugitives. A few miles inland in a deserted hut the rescuers found the naked white man. It was time, Deane was absolutely worn out. His face was badly swollen, his eyes were sunken, and he could hardly crawl. He had no disease, but famine had nearly used him up.

This bitter experience did not wean Deane from his love of African adventure. Later he lost his life in an elephant charge, while out hunting. He remained in the service of the Congo Free State, and he is one of the very few white men who have ever perished in a charge of entraged elephants, though Baker and several writers have given vivid descriptions of this danger which hunters sometimes encounter.

Mrs. Harry Keeler of Port Hope, who has been visiting her sister, Mrs Harry Pearson, Antrim street, for the past week, has returned to her home.

Sports for Thanksgiving Day.

The big sporting events of Thanksgiving Day are—the Examiner road race in the morning and the rubby game between Peterborough Collegiate and the Jarvis street Collegiate of Toronto at Riverside Park in the afternoon. The Toronto team is a big heavy outfit, who will undoubtedly take a lot of beating and the game should be well worth seeing. The local team has been practicing industriously since their last game and are in fine shape for Monday's battle.

POLICE COURT.

At the police court yesterday four drunk and disorderly cases were on the list and all pleaded guilty and paid a fine of $7.85, increasing the city treasury by $23.40.

Fred Sullivan appeared in the police court on October the 20th charged with entering the store of James Edgar on the night of Oct. 6th, and taking therefrom a quantity of tobacco, cigars and gum, etc., to the value of $25 and was remanded until yesterday. He elected to be tried by a jury at the assizes.

SOCIETY EVENTS

The Times will be pleased to receive notices of Weddings, Social Events, Personal Announcements, which will be published in this column free of charge.

Mr. J. H. Brandon, Fenelon Falls, was in town yesterday on business.

Mr. Frank Sommerville, C.E., a former resident of Peterborough, was in the city yesterday and attended the funeral of the late James Stevenson, ex M.P.

Rev. Mr. Shorey, a former pastor of the Charlotte street Methodist church, came to the city yesterday to take part in the obsequies of Mr. James Stevenson, a former parishioner of his.

Mr. George Stevenson, formerly secretary-treasurer of the Peterboro Lock Co., but now engaged in promoting a big mausolium company in Toronto, spent Wednesday night in this city, coming to pay last respects to his uncle, the late Mr. James Stevenson, ex M.P.

Among those from outside the city who came to attend the funeral of the late James Stevenson, ex M.P., were his son, Mr. Rufus Stevenson, formerly collector of customs of this port but now manager of the gas works at Brazil, Ind., Mrs. F. C. Grenside, Guelph, niece of the deceased and his brother, Mr. William Stevenson of Port Hope.

LITTLE LOCAL LINES

The choir of St. John's church held a practice last night.

Charlie Thorpe has entered for the Examiner road race on Thanksgiving Day.

The midweek service of All Saints was held last night in the church instead of the parish hall.

The choir of the Mark street Methodist church met for practice of Thanksgiving music last night and will meet again on Friday night.

The Boy Scouts will meet at the market square this evening at 7.30 and headed by the bugle band, will march to the armories.

A graceful tribute was paid yesterday afternoon to the memory of the late Mr. James Stevenson, ex-M.P., when the big bell of St. Johns church tolled its farewell peals.

Notwithstanding the inclement weather and continuous rain fall of yesterday the funeral of the late James Stevenson was very largely attended.

SOMETHING DOING IN THE Y.M.C.A. BOYS' DEPARTMENT.

A Lively Time With the Century Hikers' Club.

One of the liveliest and most enjoyable outings that has been conducted since the inauguration of the Boys department in the local association, was pulled off on Saturday afternoon last, when over twenty of the members left the building at 1.15 p.m. for a 7 mile cross country walk in their first tramp in connection with the newly organized Century Hikers Club.

What the Club Is.

The Century Club is an outing club formed for the purpose of encouraging Saturday afternoon walks, the distance of each trip is credited to the boys till they have accomplished 100 miles, when this has been completed each member is entitled to a Century Hikers pin. This has become a very popular pastime among the Y.M.C.A. Boys throughout Canada, and a large number of Senior members are also taking it in.

Good Work Among the Boys.

Since Mr. Tait, the new boys' secretary's arrival, many new phases of work has been introduced, and a splendid interest shown by the members. On Sunday morning, Oct. 16, a school boys' early morning Bible class was organized, at which there were 12 boys in attendance, and last Sunday morning there was an increase in this number, which manifest, the good work that can be done. On Friday night next Mr. Galley will organize a business boys' Bible class. Mr. Galley is a popular young man around the association and undoubtedly will have a good turnout. Taking all things into consideration, the Y.M.C.A. of Peterboro is well on its way into the most successful seasons work that has yet been accomplished.

Oh, You Boy Scouts.

It was clearly demonstrated on Friday evening last, that the reorganizing of the Y.M.C.A. Scouts added to many new clubs of the department, one that is up to date, and one that appeals to every boy. Boys have many hobbies, but the scout movement has supplied them with one that is not only new, but to every boy that lives up to the scout laws instructive in many ways and will make a boy manly, active and useful. The Eagle and Wolfe Patrols were formed, a short talk on scouting and a Scout story was told by the boys' secretary, Mr. Tait, who will be in charge. It was decided to meet every Friday at 8.15 in the boys' club room, where instructions on scouting will be given, examinations tried and general business transacted. Every Saturday will see something doing in the scouting line which will be very interesting and appeal to every boy. Next Saturday Indian and White Man will be a feature event of the day. All members are invited to take part in these games, as this is simply one of the activities of the department. Don't forget

The time, Friday next at 8.15.

DUKE AND DUCHESS OF CONNAUGHT TO OPEN FIRST PARLIAMENT.

Pilgrims are Making Their Way to Cape Town to Welcome the Royal Visitors at the Opening of Parliament.

Cape Town, Oct. 29.—From every part of the Transvaal, the Orange River Colony, Natal and Cape Colony pilgrims are making their way today to Cape Town to take part in the welcome here on Monday of the Duke of Connaught, who comes to attend the opening of the first parliament of the South African Union. Preparations which have been under way for months are virtually completed, and when the royal party land from the liner Balmoral Castle, which is conveying them from England, the machinery will be set in motion for what is expected to be the most remarkable demonstration of its kind ever seen in this part of the world.

His Royal Highness is accompanied by the Duchess of Connaught and Princess Patricia. The royal party is attended by a numerous suite which includes Lord Hamilton of Dalzell, Sir Francis Hopwood, Commodore R. Erskine Wemyss, Captain T. H. Rivers Bulkeley and several others.

Immediately after landing the Duke of Connaught will be escorted to the City Hall, where he will be officially welcomed by Viscount Gladstone, Governor-General of the South African Union, Premier Botha and other leading public men of the country. In the evening there will be a private dinner at the Government house.

The week that the royal party will spend in Cape Town will be crowded with notable functions, the chief of which, of course, will be the opening of parliament next Friday. Other functions and ceremonies in which His Royal Highness will participate will be a grand military review at Green Point common, the Opening of the South African Medical Congress, the inauguration of the Selborne Dock at Simonstown, and the laying of the foundation stone of University Hall.

After leaving Cape Town the royal party will travel to Bloemfontein by a train which has been specially built for the occasion by the Central South African Railway. The Victoria Falls will be reached November 12, and the journey will be continued to Salisbury and Bulawayo. One of the curious features of the visit to northern Rhodesia will be the reception of Lewanika, chief of Barotesland, with a parade of Barotse police.

Police Discover Plot

(Special to The Times.)

Paris, Oct. 28.—The Patrie today publishes a Brussels despatch to the effect that a plot to assassinate Kaiser Wilhelm on his present visit to Brussels was discovered by the Belgian police just before the attempt was to be made, and was frustrated by German and Belgian Police acting together.

FLYING MACHINE CROSSES CANADA

MYSTERIOUS AIRSHIP SEEN CROSSING AT NIGHT FROM WEST TO EAST.

Has Red and Green Lights—It Was Reported in Quebec, Ontario and Saskatchewan—What is It?

Swift Current, Sask., Oct. 27.—A flying machine carrying red and green lights on the rear end and a powerful searchlight passed over here shortly after one o'clock yesterday morning, traveling about six hundred feet high. People of Irvine, Alberta saw it at 4.35 going west.

This despatch coupled with other provides a mystery. It raises the question whether some air pilot of greater ingenuity and skill than others has devised an airship that can cross the continent, and who is doing it without a lot of preliminary advertising.

A St. Hyacinthe despatch declares a balloon carrying red and green lights passed over that place, 40 miles south-east of Montreal, passing from east to west on Sunday.

On Wednesday the mysterious flyer, still carrying lights, passed over Fort William, and was seen by two train crews some distance apart.

Now comes the third despatch from a point further west, saying an airship going from east to west is going over Saskatchewan.

To cap the climax, Mrs. Grenfell, wife of the noted deep sea missionary, writes that an airship was seen over St. Anthony's, in far northern Labriador a week ago. Is it the same one? Are all the reports imaginary?

Who will be the first to suggest it's a German spy?

The first fall of the "Beautiful" for this season made every thing uncomfortable yesterday.

THE MOST VIOLENT ELECTION CAMPAIGN IN HISTORY OF STATE

NEW YORK STATE IS SEETHING WITH POLITICAL STRIFE.

Democrats Meeting With Success to Fix Blame on Roosevelt for the High Cost of Living.—Voting on November 8th.

New York, Oct. 27.—The election campaign in New York is one of the most violent in the history of that State. Polling day is November 8th.

Roosevelt, as the champion of Stimson, Republican candidate for governor, is being attacked by the Democratic press. The anti-Roosevelt press is being led by the New York World and New York Herald and the ex-president never stood in the face of such a galling fire in his eventful life. The Herald with delight predicts his "Waterloo."

The object of the Democrats is not so much to elect Dix as to put Roosevelt out of business for all time as a presidential possibility. The campaign has a national significance and international interest.

Roosevelt is accused of fostering the trusts, which are alleged to be responsible for the high cost of living. Disinterested people believe that Dix has a chance to win. He will poll a tremendous vote in New York city, and the up-State Republican vote, in the face of the strong independent movement may not be effective on this occasion. The weak point in the Saratoga convention was its adherence to the Payne-Aldrich tariff.

NEW SYSTEM OF FAT REDUCTION.

Heredity, natural tendency, inaction, high living, and inability of the system to dispose of fatty foods are responsible for the pads and rolls of fat which gather on chest, hips, waist, chins, cheeks, and neck, covering up and distorting the lithe, graceful figure beneath. To remove or prevent these unwelcome deposits—control their quantity and location without paying the price of violent exercise, dieting, self-denials or impairment of health in short, to find one's own slim self beneath the fatty sheath — has been made possible by a noted physician, whose Marmola Prescription helped thousands of over fat men and women to reduce safely and surely from 10 to 46 ounces per day, until the natural health of the system is restored and slimness results. Marmola Prescription Tablets the new form of this great remedy, each contain an exact dose of the famous Marmola Prescription. Like the original prescription, they are absolutely sure and harmless. Nearly every druggist keeps these wonderful little tablets, or they may be secured direct by mail from the Marmola Co., 1192 Monroe Ave., Detroit Mich. 75c. for a large case is the uniform price.

Inspection of the Scugog

Port Perry Star: Something over a year ago a deputation from Port Perry went to Fenelon Falls to interview Hon. George P. Graham Minister of Railways and Canals. The purpose of that visit was to induce the government to build a dam at Lindsay, as the initial step in conserving the waters of Lake Scugog. That dam is built, and is a creditable piece of work that will last many generations. In the actual results for Scugog and Port Perry there is still room for improvement, because the water is not kept level with the dam, but is being used for industrial purposes by a mill at Lindsay.

One member of parliament, Mr. Fowke, has been advised of this condition of affairs quite frequently, and he has busied himself to find out what steps would be necessary to meet the reasonable demands of Port Perry people. With a view to discovering the actual conditions a trip was proposed and undertaken the other day, from Port Perry to Lindsay by boat.

This party went on a little steam craft called the Flo Mac, drawing about three feet six inches of water. We managed to reach Lindsay about six o'clock, discovering on the way that the water was quite shallow in many places, so shallow that the boat was often scraping along the bottom.

Mr. McClellan took in the situation thoroughly. He stood in the front of the boat all the way, and when he reached Lindsay had a proper appreciation of the actual conditions and probably had made up his mind to the remedies necessary to apply.

When we reached Lindsay we found that the water was ten inches below the top of the dam. The first and most important step to be taken must necessarily be to maintain the water at its highest possible level.

Condemned Man Calls Judge Unfair

SAYS HE IMPROPERLY ALLOWED EVIDENCE IN, AND HE THERE FORE APPEALS.

Offers to Miss Leneve—Sixteen Proposals of Marriage and Many Music Hall Contracts.

London, Oct. 27.—Since her acquittal on the charge of being an accessory after the fact to the murder of Belle Elmore, wife of Dr. Hawley H. Crippen, Miss Ethel Leneve has been in the country under the protection of Arthur Newton, Crippen's counsel. Mr. Newton has been swamped with offers for Miss Leneve's services from music halls, beauty doctors and others.

He has received for her sixteen offers of marriage. These offers, all of which are signed, and unquestionably genuine, illustrate the odd effect of notoriety upon comparatively degenerate minds. Miss Leneve also has been offered $1,000 for the first statement of her life with Dr. Crippen. This offer came from a London paper, but she is holding out for more money.

She said yesterday that she never had been photographed, and that none of the alleged pictures of her that have been published were genuine. She certainly looks very little like any of the published pictures. She is slender, with a small nose, little eye brows, receding chin, rather dark eyes, and has a shy, retiring almost cringing manner.

Mr. Newton, after a conference with Dr. Crippen yesterday, announced that the case would be appealed. Dr. Crippen appeared very cheerful during the conference, and expressed his satisfaction over the acquittal of Miss Leneve.

In his appeal Crippen lays much stress on the alleged prejudice that existed against him on the part of Lord Alverstone, who presided at the trial. Because of this prejudice Attorney Newton asserts, illegal and improper evidence was permitted to be presented by the Crown. The entire evidence is summed up in the appeal an dthe question then asked whether the verdict was not contrary to the weight of this evidence.

MARRIAGE WAS DELAYED

(Special to The Times.)

Goderich, Oct. 28.—No license has been issued for the marriage of Albert Jardine, brother of the young man accused of murder, to Miss Anderson, sister of the victim of the recent murder. It was reported that the date has been set for Monday last, but a postponement has been effected.

Were the Witnesses Tampered With?

The Toronto News of yesterday's date, contains the following:

Peterborough, Oct. 28.—As the result of the Gorham murder trial, a peculiar situation has developed in the city which may result in one or more persons being arrested charged with intimidation of the Crown witnesses and the detention also of of some of the witnesses as material witnesses against the accused.

The alleged intimidation was first detected by Crown Prosecutor E. Meredith of Lonhon. He noticed it during the examination of the witnesses, and held a conference with Crown Attorney Wood. Chief of Police Thompson was notified, and an investigation was commenced immediately.

TAMPERING WITH WITNESSES.

Crown Attorney Wood when seen by the News was very reticent in speaking about the affair. "All I can say is that we have good reason to believe that our witnesses have been tampered with, and I have instructed the police to hold a full investigation into the affair.

The chief admitted he was holding an investigation, but was also incommunicative. "I believe we know who the guilty persons are, but I will make no definite statement," he said.

George Gordon, of O'Connell and Gordon, counsel for the defence, when seen by the News, denied all knowledge of anything improper about the trial. "The only thing that I can think of that would look as if the Crown witnesses had been approached was when I spoke to them to ascertain a general outline of their evidence.

PROTECTING HIS CLIENT

"I did this only to protect my client," continued Gordon. "I never spoke to any witness about changing a line of his evidence, but I did want to know what he knew, before he was seen by the police. I am ready to answer any charge the police like to bring against me, for I know that we conducted the trial in a fair manner."

Reach the South Pole

Christ Church, New Zealand, Oct. 28.—The British Antarctic expedition headed by Captain Scott, arrived here today on board the exploration ship Terra Nova. All on board were well.

The 10,000 mile voyage into the Antarctic will be continued from here and members of the expedition stated that they hoped to arrive at the South Pole some time in December, 1911.

There are 55 men aboard the Terra Nova. Lieut. E. R. Evans, second in command, declared that there is no possible chance for failure, as it is the best equipped exploration party ever sent out.

HALF A MILLION BULBS.

C.P.R. Have Over Fifteen Hundred Gardens on System.

The Canadian Pacific Railway Co. inaugurated its floral scheme sixteen years ago with the result that there are now over 1500 gardens on the whole system. The employes are, of course, floral amateurs, but their taste and example have spread all across the continent. The enthusiasm this year has been greater than ever before, and the success that has followed their efforts shows the good use that has been made of the thousands of packages of seeds, plants and shrubs, which were distributed early in the spring. Prizes were awarded all over the system for the best gardens, and the winners' names will be announced shortly.

The company is now sending out over half a million bulbs for fall planting and early bloom in the spring of next year.

All new varities of flowers are procured yearly, and the markets of the world are sought for seeds and bulbs.

The work of transforming a transcontinental highway into a flower path is being successfully carried on by the C.P.R. floral department and already its beautifying effects are admiringly noticed by the thousands of travelers over the route.

TO PROMOTE BETTER TRADE BETWEEN DOMINION OF CANADA AND HOLLAND

Representative of Dutch Government Arrives in Ottawa.

Ottawa, Oct. 29.—With the idea of promoting trade between Canada and Holland, of investigating the field for investment in this country, and of finding out what the conditions are like for immigration and to what extent Hollanders have immigrated to this country already, the government of the Netherlands has sent an official to Canada to make an exhaustive report. The official is Mr. Ayan de Sando Baklnuyzen, one of the officials of the Netherlands Consular Service, The Hague, and he is in Ottawa. He has been in Canada about two weeks, having spent that length of time in Toronto and Montreal.

He is conferring with the government, obtaining statistics and information which will guide him in the investigations he intends to make in the Canadian West, where he will visit the Dutch colonies in Saskatchewan and Alberta, and ascertain how the colonists are succeeding in the new country. His report, he says, if favorable, will probably do considerable to promote still larger immigration from Holland to this country. It is also certain, he says, that there will be a very considerable increase in the amount of capital which will be invested here by Dutch capitalists.

Fear There Will Be a Wholesale Invasion of the British Isles

THE ENGLISH PROTESTANTS WANT TO KEEP THE PORTUGUESE OUT.

Are Urging the Government to Take Steps in This Direction— Don't Want the Monks.

London, Oct. 28.—For fear that there will be a wholesale invasion of the British Isles by expelled members of Portuguese religious orders, militant Protestants in England are today urging the government to take steps to prevent such an outcome to the recent Portuguese revolution.

In the last four years, it is pointed out England has received nine-tenths of the monks and nuns driven from France. They have settled all over the country, and build large monasteries and convents. The ultra Protestants see in this Catholic increase in the population an enormous increase in the pope's power in England and, quite apart from religion, English Protestants have an inherited dislike of the vatican.

NORMAL SCHOOL LIT.

Good Speeches and Arguments in Favor of Education.

It has been decided that the official colors of the Peterborough Normal School Literary Society, shall continue to be gold and green. At the meeting when this was discussed a splendid musical program was rendered.

Mr. Clubine, the president, spoke on the "Aims of the Society and the Benefits to be Derived Therefrom." Among other points well worth remembering he said that the Literary Society, would encourage (1) the essay, (2) the debate, (3) the impromptu speech, (4) music, (5) general culture and pointed but some of the benefits derived from public speaking.

Miss Gordon, 1st vice, spoke briefly on "The Benefits of the Social Side of the Society."

The 2nd vice-presicent, Miss Garrow in a few well chosen words pointed out the many advantages to be derived from the debate. Mr. Winsor, the secretary, spoke along the argument that a musical training to a public speaker was of great benefit.

THOUGHTS OF A BUSY FELLOW

On Past, Current and Coming Events of Local and General Import.

CHARACTER BUILDING.

There surely is much earnest need for moral education in schools and colleges. These days the world seems to be saturated with crime, and youthful depravity is prevalent. In Chicago, for instance, 65 to 70 per cent. of the criminals going through the courts are boys between the ages of 16 and 25 years, utterly insensible to their moral degradation. In Canada the increase of crime is appalling, quite disproportionate to our growth in population. And the limitation of drink apparently has not had an appreciable detergent effect upon crime in general. Then something must be lacking in the superstructure of "civilization" upon which nations are being built, for with our 20th century advantages of higher education, including the teaching of sociology and pure philosophy, a tendency to moral degeneracy is painfully evident. And that something wanting seems to be character building, commencing in the public schools, and continuing onward through all educational institutions; a character building resting upon the surest foundation this world has ever offered—religion. Were the rising generation instructed in the spiritual and moral development of mankind and the problems of modern religious life—in fact in Biblical religion—we might reasonably hope to, in Canada, generate a great and influential nation, so thoroughly inculcated with the doctrine of moral duties and ethics that crime would be rare.

Crime, however, is ever present with us today, and on the increase. Chancellor Boyd truly remarked that there has been too much executive clemency of late in capital offences. The punishment for murder is death, and commutation is a travesty of justice in which the victim is forgotten and living monsters encouraged. Much as may be said of the awfulness of life incarceration in prison, the tenacity with which convicted murderers fight for even that state of existence in place of extermination shows pretty conclusively that in the criminal code of a "life for a life," the punishment fits the crime.

MATRIMONIAL ADS.

Matrimonial advertisements are not usually taken serious, but here is one that stands alone for uniqueness:

"A young gentleman, on the point of getting married, is desirous of meeting a man of experience who will dissuade him from such a step."

THE CHINK.

The Canadian Laundryman, in dealing with the Chinese question, says: "Of course, some short-sighted moralists exclaim that British territory is open to all races, and a Chinaman has as much right to live there as any other person—

But the right of a Chink to live,
Tra, la!
Has nothing to do with the case:
We don't have to take under our wing,

THE SANITARY INSPECTOR.

Medical Health Officer McPherson urges that a Sanitary Inspector is needed. Well, we've heard all that before and council appointed an Inspector, whose duties, if properly carried out, would have entailed the up-keep of a horse and rig, and regular trips up the river and around contingent lakes—all for $700 a year. The Council did not wish to stint themselves in this connection, and even went so far as buying for the

MORE HUNTERS LEAVE.

A busy scene was enacted yesterday on Brock street, in front of the George Fitzgerald Carriage Works, when the Eagle Lake Hunt Club were loading up the three wagons required to carry the canoes and camp paraphrenalia to the coming scene of their deer and bear slaughter. Six canoes and fourteen men will be factors in the Eagle Lake Hunt Club's fun of this season. To the novice who has never sat out on a rock at a lake side, as the snow fell, waiting for a deer to take to the water, stimulated by the rythmic baying of the hounds, as they follow the scent of the deer, excited by the coming chance of bringing home a splendid head, with antlers attached, the stimulous of the chase is possibly inexplicable. Still ask Chas. Gunsolus, Arthur Blade, Geo. Fitzgerald, or even a man, like William Snowden, over whose head have passed the sunny skies and winters' snows of over forty years, and he, all of them, will tell you that the sight of a big buck, with a fine head of horns plunging into the lake, to be followed, as quickly as human muscles can impel a canoe by the paddle brings to the brain of the hunters a wild excitement unknown to the stay-at-home man, who has never hunted. Let the hunter, said a member of the Eagle Lake Hunt Club to a Times man yesterday sit up over a game of "Old Maid," or "Grab" until midnight in the lodge, let him absorb sasparilla, soda or cold tea till his friends take him to bed exhausted from his efforts in the temperance cause, then, let him be called out in a driving, wet, November snowstorm, from the snug blankets of his bed and sleepily be straddled to a bleak rock on a lake side, let him sit there and hear the hounds bay as they follow a deer through the primeval forest, unable as he is to shoot partridge or mink that come possibly within 30 feet of him, as against the etiquette of the hunt lest the deer be turned away, but, stiff, cold, swearing at himself for coming out to the hunt, let him see a deer take to the water and, hey presto, all the cold and all the discomfort is forgotten.

King George Visits The Exiled Monarch

London, Oct. 28.—King George and ex King Manuel, the deposed and exiled boy monarch of Portugal, met at Woodnorton in Worcestershire today, King George personally condoled with the royal exile and Manuel accepted the sympathy in a deeply affected manner, with tears in his eyes.

King George was accompanied by Queen Mary. They went by train and will return to London this evening. Manuel and Queen Mother Amelie are living in strict seclusion upon the Woodnorton estate of the Duke of Orleans. Manuel wept when the British monarch affectionately placed his hand on the studry shoulder of the young man, who six weeks ago, was apparently secure upon the throne of Portugal.

The trip of Queen George and Mary was originally set for last Saturday, but was postponed on account of the death of Prince Francis of Teck, a brother of the Queen. Both the King and Queen were in mourning.

ONE LANGUAGE FOR ONTARIO.

The ambitions of Dr. Hanna let loose what is second published on [illegible] merely one incident in a movement that must sooner or later receive attention at the hands of the people of this Province and the sooner the better, says the Farmer's Sun. The movement originally among certain Quebec extremists has for its object the extension of the French language and the Quebec system in general, beyond the confines of that Province. A regularly organized effort is being made to push French settlements across the Ottawa river into Prescott, Glengarry and other Ottawa Valley counties and to carry with this settlement a school system in which French shall be the language of instruction. A similar effort is being made by the same general form of procedure, to solidify the French settlements in the county of Essex. A proposal is under consideration, it is reported, to colonize three townships in Northern Ontario with French-Canadians. The avowed object behind all this is to create a situation under which blocks of solid French Canadians located in different parts of the Province will hold the balance in the Dominion.

It may as well be understood from the beginning that this proposal will meet firm opposition on the part of the English-speaking people of this Province. There is no desire to interfere in the slightest degree with the peculiar institutions and privileges of Quebec. But the people of Ontario are firmly resolved that here one language shall prevail. They will insist on this in the interests of the State as a whole and of the French-speaking minority as well. There cannot be a really united citizenship where there is division in speech. French children will be seriously handicapped in the battle of life who are not able to speak freely the tongue which prevails over practically all North America. A hearty welcome will be given to those coming from Quebec who come here to assist in developing the agricultural and industrial resources of Ontario, just as a like welcome is offered people coming from Great Britain or from Germany for like purposes. But those who come must be prepared to accept English as the language of the school and the state. There is nothing more disagreeable, nothing is more disturbing than a race or creed conflict; the slow progress made by Canada for many years was largely due to the fact that we have had so many such conflicts in the past. But it is better to have an immediate conflict, if it must be, than the permanent disturbance inseparable from a condition which would exist with numerous blocks of non assimilable colonies located in various parts of Ontario. Better meet the difficulty halfway by abolishing the bi lingual schools now in existence and insisting on English as the sole tongue for use in school work in every part of the Province.

[illegible] a nice new official cap, beautifully fastened in gold, before [illegible] at that time the garbage system, carefully prepared, would not be workable. They said by-laws would entail considerable [illegible] and [illegible] and that [illegible] under local inspector's supervision. Again he had no jurisdiction in town-bin dairies where milk is brought into Peterborough, and as Dr. McPherson truly contends, to safeguard citizens against the possibility of infectious milk outside dairies must be rigidly inspected by a man with authority to enforce sanitation. To be brief, our first sanitary inspector did the best he could under existing conditions, and finally evolved into a joint sanitary inspector and market clerk, to be subsequently retired altogether. This year the only sanitary inspection available is done by the police, who, if memory is not at fault, have authority to waylay any milk wagon and procure samples of milk for analyzing purposes.

The appointment of a sanitary inspector would prove a superfluous expenditure unless a garbage bylaw is enforced, and $700 a year, and uniform would not go very far in this direction. Then to assure a proper degree of milk inspection, active co-operation on the part of adjoining townships would be necessary.

PREPARE TO DIE.

It is asserted that the ordinary colored stockings worn so commonly by ladies are injurious to health, in support of which a medical man cites the case of a woman who died from blood poisoning produced by "poisonous dye." Well, if women are silly enough to wear these dyed garments, they must be prepared to die themselves.

THE WATERWORKS DAM.

Apart from the Water Commissioners assurance that the $20,000 they need are for street extensions, there still remains Commissioner W. H. Moore's statement that the contract price for the waterworks dam, pumping house and equipment will be exceeded by $20,000. And considering that Commissioner T. E. Matthews admits that there will be an excess in this connection, and that Mr. Moore took the trouble to compute the several amounts that go to make up a total excess of $20,000 for the Finance Committee's benefit, one is surely warranted in assuming that Mr. Moore knew what he was talking about. Admitting that he was misunderstood as to the direction in which the proceeds from the debentures being asked for will be applied, there does not seem to be any reasonable doubt but that a second batch of debentures will be needed for the waterworks dam, etc. Otherwise, where is the money to come from?

BUT in this connection the trio of Water Commissioners have undoubtedly exercised their judgment in the city's best interests. The monies spent in acquiring the lands above the waterworks to assure a maximum depth of water commensutate with the dam's possibilities was a wise investment. That the difficulty in reaching rockbottom had not been anticipated was not their fault, but that of Consulting Engineer Kennedy. This city has been satiated, indeed, with underestimating on the part of engineers. Our city engineer, for instance, is very prone to underestimate in order to present a minimum figure for public works. Such a policy is a short sighted one, that invariably results in heavy bills for extras. In this way appropriations are exceeded to the embarrassment of civic committees or commissioners. An object lesson of this is evident in the case of the Smith street bridge, concerning which the city engineer reported that Contractor Conroy is honestly entitled to the excess of contract claimed. The only engineer worthy of consulting is he who will leave ample latitude in his estimates for contingencies and "possibilities."

SELL EGGS BY THE POUND.

Although Ald. Morgan's suggestion that eggs and chickens should be sold by the pound was not taken seriously by the City Council, there is some reason for his advocacy. The ridiculously small eggs sold at 30c a dozen and the diminutive specimens of hens going at 80c a pair warrants Ald. Morgan's reasonable contention that it's time for a change.

CELESTIAL APPENDAGES.

Man's loyalty to woman, his natural disposition to envelop her with the mantle of his protection, his idealization of her as an embodiment of all the virtues, ate fundamental truths poets have exhausted their energy upon and bards worked overtime at. To go further, under man's fostering care, woman has gradually developed into an angel—not in disposition or a material sense by any means, but by virtue of artistic creations. Pictorial canvas utterly fails these days to clothe angels with any other sex than that of the feminine gender, while sculptures' chisels would balk at the mere idea of an angelic creation embellished with the dignity of man. Why this travestry of justice? Where the artists' authority for the same? A study of the scriptures reveals the cogent fact that all angels recorded therein were men, but of course, artists don't read, mark, learn and digest them with becoming earnestness else they would find that a "man" angel wrestled with Jacob; two "men" angels were entertained by Lot, three "men" angels promised Abraham a son, and so on. Then why should woman have usurped man's place in angelic representations? Is it because celestial appendages become her better than they would man? The only wings a woman has ever been known to sport have been on her head, and these she robbed the natural owners of. The gentler sex indeed are prone to expand from the head these days—to the right, left and upwards—and the anathemas of the man behind such unnatural "wings" in public places are anything but angelic. When in the beauty class, man, it must be admitted, takes off his hat to woman, but at moving picture shows angelic women but rarely doffs her hat for man's benefit. But to return to our subject: artists apparently are not on speaking terms with the masculine angels, and even in spiritualistic seances man is given but scant opportunity for celestial popularity; it is usually Little Bright Eyes, the Indian Maiden, or some other petticoated manifestation that secures the plum. 'Tis true children are occasionally called angels regardless of sex, but as an offset to this eulogy some might truly be classified as veritable little demons—at night especially.

The foregoing was inspired by a George street merchant's expressed conviction that while man was essentially a "spiritous" being, wings would not enhance his appearance. This, however, is a debatable question, and artists might give him a chance once in a while to assume his old Biblical character of an angel, when such a celestial being is needed

DAMMING ST. LAWRENCE.

Montreal, Oct. 26.—The damming of the St. Lawrence river to generate power may yet be a reality. It will be remembered that some time ago this was talked of. An Ottawa despatch says:

The project of damming the St. Lawrence river at the Long Sault for purposes of power development, is again coming to the front in Ottawa. It will be recalled that this is the project touched upon by Hon. Clifford Sifton, chairman of the Conservation Commission, in his recent address in St. Catharines, and who declared that the proposal as made to parliament was against the best interests of the public, not worthy of parliamentary support then it surely cannot be now. It is one thing to interfere with rights already vested and another thing to decline it.

The scheme has not been changed to give concessions to economics who have no vested rights. The Long Sault Development Company has not expended great sums in plants and machinery to develop power along the Sault or the question would assume quite a different aspect. As it is, Canada must guard her natural resources against the monopolies of interests that are seeking such valuable franchises.

Seldom Such An Opportunity

is offered to investors as that of the Cartwright Automatic Job Printing Press.

This is the first radical improvement in the ordinary job-presses for over 50 years past.

Meantime great advances have been made in newspaper and book presses, and in type-setting machines, on which fortunes have been made for the Shareholders.

Publishers, printers, and everybody welcome the Cartwright, are buying both the press and the Capital Shares.

The Company are sending out some very interesting literature, which can be obtained for the mere asking.

106 acres of absolutely proven oil land on Sulphur Mountain, adjoining and between the Liberty and Puritan Oil Companies' property. Ten miles from Santa Paula, Ventura Co., Calif.

FACTS—The property is absolutely proven territory, lying as it does with the UNION OIL CO. producing on the south, the LIBERTY OIL CO. producing on the west, the HARD OIL CO. producing on the north, which only recently erected its 30th rig, and Puritan Oil Co. to commence drilling on the east. Also is located in a district of BIG PRODUCING COMPANIES, such as Ojai Petroleum, Pyramid Oil Co., Canadian Queen, Capital Creek, Hard Oil and Asphalt Co., and others. THERE'S NO QUESTION ABOUT THIS COMPANY GETTING OIL. It is possible that Liberty Oil Company's new well will be a gusher, which would make the ATLANTA OIL COMPANY stock worth par. Mr. Cowell, our Superintendent, knows every foot of the ground, and having his log book of Liberty property, which adjoins our land, and as experienced OIL MAN and we consider ourselves fortunate in obtaining his services. VENTURA CO. OIL represents the cream of The Industry. It is the home of HIGH GRAVITY OIL. VENTURA COUNTY OIL means $1.50 a barrel at well. Costs from 3c to 6c to produce it. THE GREAT UNION OIL CO. got its start in VENTURA CO. and has paid over twenty two millions in dividends. These GREAT ASSETS had a small beginning in the WILD HILL GUSHER, within SIGHT OF ATLANTA OIL CO. property. The demand for refining oil FAR EXCEEDS THE SUPPLY. The 35 refineries in California are crying for the product. The eastern high gravity fields are diminishing. The OHIO SHIELDS, FOR INSTANCE, have fallen off one-third. The demand is caused by the increased market for gasoline. Throughout the world the number of automobiles and internal combustion gasoline engines is forcing up the price of high gravity crude petroleum. Eastern operators are now looking to VENTURA COUNTY, which are held to be the most extensive known. THIS IS THE FIRST ANNOUNCEMENT of ground floor offering of ATLANTA OIL CO., and may be overwhelmed at any time. One day's delay may mean you are too late. ACT NOW. WRITE FOR LATEST NEWS OF VENTURA OIL FIELDS.

The lumber for the derrick is on the ground and machinery has been ordered. Well No. 1 will be started as soon as drilling is installed. It should not take over six months to complete first well. Well No. 2, by conditions of lease, must be in operation by February 15th, 1911.

THE LARGEST STEAMER IN THE WORLD.

BELFAST, October 20th.

The White Star Line's giant steamer "Olympic" was launched successfully today. As fifty thousand spectators watched the monster hull glide swiftly down the ways, the Countess of Aberdeen, wife of the Viceroy of Ireland, christened the ship. The "Olympic" is the largest steamer now afloat.

The White Star Line's triple-screw steamer "Olympic" exceeds by nearly 100 feet in length and 13,000 tons any other ship afloat. Her principal dimensions are :

	Feet.
Length over all	882½
Breadth over all	92½
Breadth over boat deck	94
Height from bottom of keel to boat deck	97
Height from bottom of keel to top of Captain's house	105½
Height of funnels above casing	72
Height of funnels above boat deck	81½
Distance from top of funnel to keel	175
Number of steel decks	11
Number of watertight bulkheads	15

The gigantic measurements of this vessel are best appreciated when it is known that in length the "Olympic" overtops the height of the Metropolitan Tower in New York by 182 feet, is twice as long as the height of the dome of St. Peter's at Rome, and equals in length the total drop of the famous Bridal Veil Fall in the Yosemite Valley. Indeed if the "Olympic" and her sister-vessel "Titanic" end to end under the Brooklyn Bridge, they would completely block the East River, and extend over the shore one hundred feet on each side. It is also interesting to note that the length of each of these ships is four times the height of Bunker Hill Monument.

In each ship three million steel rivets, weighing in all 1,200 tons, have been employed to bind the massive steel plates, insuring the greatest stability; and the rudder of each vessel weighs 100 tons, yet will be removed by electricity almost as lightly as a feather.

These monsters of the deep will each accommodate 2,500 passengers, carrying a crew of 860, and because of the enormous size of the ships the accommodations, both as regards the several public apartments and the passenger staterooms, will be exceptionally spacious, while the beauty and luxury of the appointments will surpass anything hitherto attempted. Special attractions such as a Turkish and electric bath establishments, swimming pools, tennis courts, sun parlors, sports decks and palm courts will be provided in addition to restaurants, dining saloons, lounges, smoking apartments, elevators, etc., all of which will add much to the pleasure of a voyage on these marvels of marine achievement.

The "Olympic" and Titanic" will be propelled by a unique combination of reciprocating engines with a low-pressure turbine, such as the White Star Line has employed so successfully on its Canadian service steamer "Laurentic." By this ingenious system vibration is eliminated and mal-de-mer conquered. A speed of 22 knots per hour will be maintained.

Since the advent of the "Great Eastern" in 1858 no steamer has created such general interest as the "Olympic," not only on account of her surpassing size, but also because of the immense forward steps thus marked in other lines of marine accomplishment, the outcome of many centuries of conflict with the sea.

The "Olympic" will join the White Star Line's mail service between New York, Plymouth, Cherbourg and Southampton next summer, followed by the "Titanic" in the early fall.

Grand Trunk Engineers.

For the past few weeks a committee representing the engineers of the Grand Trunk Railway System has been in conference with the superintendent of motive power. So quietly did they carry on their negotiations that although twenty-six of them were domiciled at a Montreal hotel for weeks there has been no publicity about the matter. The negotiations were carried on with the best of good feeling on both sides and now, it is pleasant to record that an agreement has been reached satisfactory to all concerned. The engineers asked for a substantial increase of pay, amounting it is understood to something like 12 per cent. The Grand Trunk was willing from the first to grant them an increase and the result of friendly negotiations is the agreement concluded Thursday. The representatives of the engineers left for their home Friday last entirely satisfied with the result of their mission to Montreal.

DID NOT HIDE BABE'S BODY.

Bracebridge, Oct. 25.—The fall assizes for the district of Muskoka opened yesterday before Judge Riddell. The docket contained two criminal cases, one of murder, two of shooting with intent to kill, and one of concealment of birth. The grand jury brought in true bills against all four accused. In the murder case and in one of the cases of shooting with intent to kill the accused is an Italian and in consequence there were many of the sons of sunny Italy in court.

The first case taken up was that against Norah Purcell, alias Norah Reynolds of Huntsville, charged with neglect to provide assistance at the birth of her child, and with concealment of birth, and that she hid the body of the infant under the floor of the laundry of the Kent House, Huntsville, on May 21st last. T. C. Robinette, K.C., of Toronto, appeared for the accused.

The jury brought in a verdict of not guilty.

Mary Ann Smith testified she had been married for twenty-three years. Neil McLean, brother-in-law, had been circulating reports about the witness, and on the day of the shooting the accused came home and said "he had no further use for McLean's mistress." The accused used a stronger word, which she did not care to repeat. Witness got on with her husband all right, except when he drank. Her husband asked her to take action against McLean, but witness had said she could not. On August 3, her husband was intoxicated, and witness had caught his hand when he drew out a revolver before he had time to aim the weapon.

IT HAS LURED INNUMERABLE COLLECTORS TO DEATH.

Terrible Dangers Constantly Menace the Man Who Seeks the Beautiful Tropical Plants—It is a Task For the Dauntless and Only a Small Percentage of the Men Survive—Cruel Disappointments.

Orchid hunters continually face hardships and terrible dangers and many a collector has paid for his daring with his life. The rarer specimens of these plants are generally found in the wildest depths of tropic forests. They abound in the greatest profusion in the hot, damp parts of the West and East Indies, in Madagascar and other islands in the same region, in the moist forests of Brazil, the warm parts of Central America and western Mexico. Not dependent on the soil for their nutriment, they are mostly found clinging to the trunks and branches of trees and to stones and crags where they vegetate among ferns and other shade-loving plants.

Warmth and moisture are essential to orchids, and warmth and moisture in tropical countries are synonymous with miasma and fever. Wild animals also, and poisonous serpents, abound in the umbrageous depths wherein the rarer varieties lie hidden.

One firm of orchid importers reported a year or two ago that they had five collectors killed in as many months by the wild tribesmen of the western Himalayan slopes; while three others, even more unfortunate, were made prisoners and carried off to undergo the nameless horrors which have from time immemorial been characteristic of Central Asian slavery. If the pay is big, the risks an orchid hunter runs are correspondingly great. Cutting his way through tangled forests, wading often up to the waist through stagnant swamps, always on his guard against beasts and still more savage men, the orchid hunter earns every penny of his money. Even the natives avoid the districts into which the intrepid collector penetrates.

A few years ago eight orchid hunters met at Tamatave, and then separated in search of specimens. Within a year only one of them survived and he had spent months in the most pestilential swamps, from which he emerged with his health impaired. One of the others had been captured by the native priests, who drenched him with oil and burned him to death on the altar.

M. Hameline, one of the most successful of all collectors, and the discoverer of many new orchids in the little-known island forests of Madagascar, tells how, in these regions, "not only was our party exposed to the risk of being strangled by hostile and ferocious tribesmen—a fate which befell many a poor fellow belonging to our expedition—but we had to struggle almost night and day against the wild animals that haunt these primeval forests." He himself, in the same country, had to go through the ceremony of being made "brother-in-blood" to King Moyambassa in order to penetrate the interior of the island, an honor which nearly cost him his life.

Speaking of wild animals he says: "The most terrible of all is the fossa (a carnivorous beast related to the cat tribe), against which we had constantly to be on guard. One of these animals caused the death of the brother-in-law of the king, a fine, handsome, well-built man. It pounced upon his shoulder, rending the flesh from his back, and mangling him in a frightful manner. Being 'brother-in-blood' to the king, and thus a relative of the deceased man, I had to take part in the funeral ceremony and worse than that I had to obey their laws, which command that if any one has the moral responsibility of an accident, and death is the result of it especially of a relative—he has the choice of being greased and burned, alive or of taking the whole family of the deceased and of marrying his wife.

When a hunter finds an orchid there are three ways of getting it. He may cut down the tree to which it clings, he may lasso the branch or limb on which it hangs and draw it to him, or he may cut a sapling, lean it against the tree and climb up and bring down the plant. As a precaution against snakes and scorpions, which are as often found in trees as anywhere else, cutting down the tree is with most orchid hunters the favorite method of securing the coveted plant.

In addition to the dangers and difficulties inseparable from the actual finding of the orchid, there are innumerable troubles ahead of the indefatigable collector before his work is done. The difficulties of getting it out of the country and safely on a home-going boat are almost insuperable and nothing but the most indomitable perseverance could overcome it. Occasionally an unforeseen circumstance robs a collector of the spoils for which he has so strenuously striven. The cruel luck of one unfortunate hunter would be hard to beat. After months of ceaseless toil, exposed to the usual risks and hardships of his profession—occasionally wading up to his waist in mud and at other times venturing into almost inaccessible places—he at last succeeded in collecting between 3,000 and 4,000 orchids of an exquisitely beautiful and rare species. His delight knew no bounds, and with all possible haste he commenced his tortuous journey back to the seaboard, where his precious and dearly-won floral treasures would be shipped to England.

His plants safely on board, that very night a fire broke out in the hold of the vessel and not a single plant was saved. The collector was nearly distracted when he realized what had happened. With a heavy heart he wired to his employers: "Collection destroyed by fire. What shall I do?" Back came the mandate from the disappointed orchid importers: "Go back at once!" And back he went, with the rainy season at hand, to perhaps the wettest country under the sun.

Don't wash and scrub, bend and rub over a hot wash tub; sift a little GOLD DUST in the water, loosen the dirt, and save rubbing

Soap is not a bit of cleansing good until it is mixed with water and made into suds. And then it still needs the rub-rub-rub of human muscle.

GOLD DUST works in an entirely different way—instantly and totally dissolves in hot or cold, hard or soft water—and, without any aid from you, starts to cleanse.

GOLD DUST is more than soap—better and more economical. It is a powder of magic power—but rightly directed power, that leaves the wash white, sweet, wholesome.

Use your brains, not your muscle!

Throw away your soap, get GOLD DUST, and simply use it according to the directions on the package.

"Let the GOLD DUST Twins do your work."

Foley Loses His Suit.

In the case of Foley versus West, in which Edward Foley claimed $3,000 from William West, junior and senior, portable mill owners of Havelock, for injuries which he received, while in their employ, alleging that the machinery broke and a flying piece struck him on the leg, breaking it, The jury brought in the following verdict: "We find that there was no negligence on the part of the defendants, and that the accident was purely accidental."

Work Progressing at Treat Bridge.

A Norwood despatch says that the work at Trent Bridge, delayed on account of trouble with the coffer dam, is now well under way. Concrete work on the pivot pier of the new swing bridge is being put in. In order that the pumps might control the leakage, more than a thousand loads of earth were dumped into the dam. A curious circumstance in connection with the work was that, in excavating for a pier a spring of excellent water was tapped far below the bottom of the river.

A Near Killing at Haliburton.

A commercial traveler, a loaded rifle and particularly that old explanation of stupidity "Didn't know it was loaded," came near snuffing out the life of the proprietor of Watt's Hotel at Haliburton a few days ago. The traveling man, not posted on fire arms was "monkeying" with a rifle, when it was unexpectedly discharged, the bullet missing Mr. Watt's head by only three inches. Another traveler present, who represents an electrical firm, said the amount of actual damage was nearly a "kilowatt."

Rev. Dr. Marsh's Great Invention.

Rev. Dr. Marsh, the eminent astronomer of Springville, has invented an astronomical timepiece that will be hailed with joyous acclamation throughout the whole scientific world. The doctor, at the inception of his discovery of his watch, placed it, for development and full completion in the hands of the T. Eaton Co., who had it perfected at their manufactory in Switzerland. While the timepiece is wholly the invention of Dr. Marsh, he modestly ascribes the success of the undertaking to the enterprise of the great Eaton organization. The watch is adjusted to five positions, compensated for temperature, and owing to the peculiar construction of the face-gear there is no lost motion in the hands.

Inspecting the Scugog

with the appliance now at hand.

This Mr. McClellan had definitely promised shall be done, and that no water shall be used for milling or other purposes unless there is an actual overflow of water. A man will be put in charge of the dam whose only interest will be to see that the laws of the canal system are enforced.

So much is definitely promised and the proposition is thoroughly reasonable. It would not be wise to try other plans before the appliances already at hand, and produced at a great cost, have been properly tested.

It is certain that the new dam has not been properly tested, because (if report be true), the water was higher at the dam the day the trip was taken than it had been for some time previous, with no rainfall to cause the change.

Some other assistance has been promised to increase the utility of Lake Scugog, but these you will appreciate better after you have taken the trip we took to Lakefield and back next day.

An acetylene gas buoy or some other such light will be placed at the Shallows at the foot of Scugog Island. These gas buoys only need lighting once in sixty days, and give an excellent light.

Buoys similar to these are to be placed in Lake Scugog between Lindsay and Port Perry, and when the channel is thus marked, a big boat will be used to force as deep a passage as possible.

The trip and its results, is regarded by the Port Perry deputation with every satisfaction. Mr. Fawke's interests in the matter is appreciated and there is a certainty that the work outlined will be carried out because it is in eminently practical hands when under the control of Supt. McClellan. He is a man of very shrewd, common-sense, who understands his work, and puts his whole life into it.

VOL. XXXIII NO. 248 PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO MONDAY OCTOBER 31 1910 PRICE TWO CENTS

Spain will Revolt Against Papal Rule

Will Soon Throw Off the Bonds Which Keep Her People Poor and Ignorant

Paris, Oct. 29.—Jules Hedeman, a brilliant writer for the Matin and one of the best authorities on foreign affairs in France, has been in Spain carefully canvassing the chances of a republic being set up there.

Premier Canalejas, as might be expected, says the monarchial government is firmly established and that there is no danger of a successful revolution. But Hedeman has found quite the contrary opinion among the leaders of the republican party. Leroux, one of the principal republicans said to him:

"A republic in Spain within three or four years is as certain as that the sun will rise tomorrow. The Spanish people are anti-clerical and anti-monarchists by a large majority. The king is unpopular because he devotes too much of his time to sport and too little to the government. Besides, King Alfonso is sick. He will not live long."

Mr. Hedeman sums up the opinion in impartial circles by saying that the people are strongly against the Jesuits, especially the merchants, who cannot compete with the factories iperated by the religious orders, which pay no taxes. In the army revolutionary propaganda has made great progress.

Hedeman concludes his observations thus:

"Two events outside the death of the king can bring about a republic in Spain.

"First, the capitulation of the government to the Vatican.

"Second, the consent of the military authorities to an extensive program in Morocco, necessitating the sending of many soldiers there, for the people are unalterably opposed to sending troops into Africa."

GALLOWS IS IN SIGHT OF STREET

Weedmark is Careless—Man Who Murdered His Wife is Indifferent Towards Spiritual Advice.

Smith's Falls, Oct. 28.—Ellis, of Toronto, the hangman, who is to officiate at the execution of Rufus Weedmark, of Smith's Falls, condemned to death for the murder of his wife, has been in Perth this week arranging for the event.

It will not be necessary to have a scaffold erected, as a suitable place was sput in at the time the jail was built. The main entrance to the jail is on open space, enclosed only by barred doors and used under ordinary conditions as a place for the prisoners to sun themselves.

On the second storey there is a compartment of the same dimensions and also open except for a railing about three feet high. Here, however is the gallows, the gruesome spectacle always in sight, except when in use, and all that it was necessary for Ellis to do was to stretch and test the hempen cord, and oil the spring and

Every precaution is being taken to have the hanging conducted as privately as possible, and to that end the iron gates leading to the jail yard have been covered with tin to shut out the view of the yard.

Weedmark is the same unconcerned unmoved man that he has been since the day of the tragedy. He appears to be utterly indifferent to the counsell of his spiritual advisers.

NEW RAILROAD.

Peterborough to Have Connection With Toronto and Eastern Railroad.

The Toronto Globe says:

The Toronto & Eastern Railway, for which a charter has been obtained, will in a few months be in course of construction. It is to run from Toronto to Cobourg, with extensions of the system from Port Hope to Peterborough, from Oshawa to Lindsay, and from a point in the Township of Scarboro' to Uxbridge. The surveys are now practically completed, it being expected that they will all be finished this week, as a satisfactory route has been found.

Local capitalists are the provisional directors of the road, and these are backed by influential railway projectors. The scheme has already been successfully financed, and the work of construction is likely to be prosecuted with vigour in the early spring months of 1911. The money is practically all in hand. Mr. R. H. Rothray of Toronto, has recently been appointed Superintendent of the line.

The Prospects.

"You are safe in saying," remarked Mr. F. L. Fowke, of Oshawa, M.P., for South Ontario, from whom The Globe gleaned this information, and who has had charge of the bill in the Legislature, "that the passenger traffic will be considerable from the beginning.

SATURDAY'S MARKET.

An Enormous Crowd and Plenty of Produce.

An enormous crowd was on the market Saturday. It was the largest and best market of the season. There was a magnificent display of turkeys, geese, chickens and ducks on the inside market, while the square was lined with loads of potatoes, apples, and vegetables, as well as fowl. It may safely be said that to-day's market was the most successful of the season. The inside market was so crowded that one found it difficult to get around. And the tables were all filled and many of the people had to pile their fowl on chairs, some even setting the basketsful of butter, eggs and fowl on the floor. The demand for everything was as great as the supply, so that the prices remained stationary, and about the same as last Saturday. The prices on the market square were as follows:

Pigs, $8 per pair.
Potatoes, 85c and 90c a bag.
Pears, 35c and 45c per pk.
Cabbage, 60c per dozen heads.
Onions, 25c per pk., $1 per bag.
Carrots, 15c per pk.

Inside market prices were as follows:
Geese, $1 to $1.30.
Eggs, 29c and 30c.
Butter, 27c and 28c.
Ducks, 70c and 75c.
Turkeys, $1.75 to $3.25.

Not much hay was up for sale today. About four loads constituted the lot. The price asked for the loose hay was $13.00. The farmers stated that it was selling from $13.00 to $16.00 according to quality. Baled hay was selling at $15.00 per ton.

Live hogs were selling Saturday at $7.00. Dressed ones were $9.50, which will also be the prevailing prices for next week. Farmers' hides were 8 cents and butchers' hides 7 cents, no change having taken place since last quotation.

Judgment Reserved in Suit.

In the case of Mrs. Maud Innis, of Havelock, against the Corporation of Havelock, which has occupied the attention of Chancellor Sir John Boyd since yesterday morning, judgment was reserved. The hearing was concluded about 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon. Mrs. Innis was suing to fro ma fall, due to a defective sidewalk. Mr. F. D. Kerr, of Dennistoun, Peko & Kerr, was counsel for the plaintiff, and Mr. L. M. Hays, recover $5,000 for injuries received K.C., and Mr. G H. Watson, K.C., for the defendants.

AWAY TO THE NORTH.

Many Deer Hunters Left on Saturday.

Tomorrow is the opening of the deer shooting season and already several parties from this city have left for their hunting grounds, while some others are preparing to leave this city this morning. The parties will arrive at their homes for the next two weeks in plenty of time to have become settled and have a rest after their long drive before the real day arrives. But when Tuesday does come they will be out bright and early on that morning, ready to down the first antlered monarch that comes into view. If the weather does not get too warm again it will be ideal for hunting deer.

The Bottle Lake Party

The Bottle Lake party left Saturday for their camp, there being seven in their number. Those composing the party are, Dr. C. H. Amys, Gus Corcoran, M. O'Brien, J. Fitzgerald, A. Head, M. Blewett, and P. Westlake. This party has always been very successful in the past and it is hoped that this year their expectations will be fully realized.

WELL FED PIGS.

Produced Something Over Fifteen Dollars.

The annual meeting of the Mission Band was held Friday night and was a very successful event.

During the year Missionary pigs were given to the members of the Band, to fatten, and they did their work well.

All the pigs had been fed fairly well and when killed, without a squeal by Mr. H. Reid and Rev. W. C. Riddiford, their internals produced something over fifteen dollars.

This with the collection and a few more pigs yet to be killed, will bring the Missionary Offering up to twenty-five dollars, which will go for the support of a native worker in India.

The chair was occupied by the pastor, Rev. W. C. Riddiford. During the evening, Miss Ethel Hill sang a solo and Mrs. H. Ellis gave a most interesting address. Miss Bessie Gilhespie, the President and Miss Ethel Eagleson are to be congratulated upon the success of the past year.

Refreshments were served at the close.

NOTED ACTRESS IS SUFFRAGIST

HEROINES OF SHAKESPEARE WOULD WANT FRANCHISE, SAYS ELLEN TERRY.

Question Not New One—Education and Self-Betterment are the Needs of Women Whose Triumph is Inevitable.

New York, Oct. 28.—Beatrice, Rosalind and Portia, heroines of Shakespeare, would all be suffragists if they were living today and probably were in their own time, according to Ellen Terry, the actress, who is in this country to lecture upon Shakespearean women whom she has portrayed so long.

"Surely they would be suffragists today and may be suffragettes," said Miss Terry. "Each generation discovered something for itself and thinks that nothing worth while has gone before it. That is why I believe these women were really suffragists at heart in their own time."

A SUFFRAGIST HERSELF.

Miss Terry, now 62 years old, is a suffragist herself, although not a militant one.

"The question is not a new one by any means," she continued. "A comedy of Aristophanes has just been revived in London which deals with some of the supposedly modern features of the subject. Not long ago I was very much interested to discover in an Italian book of the middle ages a caricature of some very stout women trying to climb into trunk hose. They surely were suffragists.

INDOOR MEET.

Harold Smith Made a Splendid Showing at Port Hope.

Harold Smith, of the Peterborough Y.M.C.A., made a splendid showing at the indoor meet under the auspices of the Port Hope Y.M.C.A. in the skating rink Friday night. The local runner competed in two events the three mile senior and the mile senior. He won the longer route in handy fashion from a field including Moore and Wallace of the Belleville Athletics, Conroy of the Port Hope Y.M.C.A. and Alexander McCreary of the Belleville Y.M.C.A. The prize was a handsome gold medal. The time was 16 mins. 50 secs. McCreary of Belleville was second. In the mile run Smith was second behind J. Caldwell of Trinity College School team Port Hope. Other entries were McConnell of Port Hope Y.M.C.A., Marshall of Belleville Athletics, Ham of Port Hope Y.M.C.A. and Alexander of the Belleville Y.M.C.A.

The T.C.S. team composed of T. Caldwell, C. Martin, Lindsay and MacAulay succeeded in winning the two mile relay race. The other teams were the Albert College of Belleville.

CROWNING THE KING

KING GEORGE TO ECLIPSE THEM ALL.

Superstitions Regarding the Event—How Other Monarchs were Crowned.

(Special to The Times.)

London, Oct. 29.—King George is particularly anxious that his coronation ceremonies next June should be free from any untoward incident which might be construed as ominous. This is not alone because he himself, like all members of the house, is imbued with a certain amount of superstition, but it is likewise because he is thoroughly aware that popular confidence in himself and his reign will be shaken in the event of any occurence at the coronation which could be construed as portending evil.

The coronation of Queen Victoria and King Edward were remarkably free from anything that could be looked upon by the people as a bad omen, though the fact that the coronation of King Edward had to be postponed on account of the illness with which the monarch was suddenly stricken led many persons to predict that his reign would be short.

At the coronation of George IV., the Marquis of Anglesey, officiating as lord high steward, while carrying the crown to the altar let it slip from his hands. When George III. was installed on the throne, Lord Effingham, master of ceremonies, forgot to provide the sword of state and the chair and canopy for the banquet. At the coronation of George II., the Dean of Westminster forgot the chalice and paten, and at the coronation of the ill fated King James I. the communion service was omitted.

At the coronation of Charles I. the wing of the dove on Edward the Confessor's sceptor was broken off accidentally. And the Bishop of Carlisle, in preaching the coronation sermon, selected as his text, "I will give thee a crown of life," a text which put everybody in mind of the funeral service, in which it so frequently figures. It may be remembered that King Charles lost his head on the scaffold.

It is also well to remember, in reading these gloomy catalogues of doom, that such incidents are seldom thought of until an untoward incident has occurred. Then the superstitious mind seeks some occurrence to serve the purpose of an omen, a thing not hard to find, since almost every occasion is attended by some unfortunate accident.

ARRIVAL OF THE DUKE.

Connaught and Party Reach Cape Town.

Cape Town, Oct. 31.—The steamer Balmoral Castle having on board the Duke of Connaught and his party who come to attend the opening of the first South African Union parliament, arrived here this morning. The Balmoral Castle, the convoying cruiser, and the merchant shipping in the harbor are displaying many flags.

The Duke and Duchess, who were accompanied by Princess Patricia, are to be welcomed on the pier by Viscount Gladstone, Governor-General of South Africa Union, and by official representatives of the Transvaal, Cape Colony, Natal and Orange River Colony. A deputation of prominent citizens of Cape Town and a large number of naval and military officers will also be present.

The party will then drive to the City Hall, where a great reception will be held. Loyal addresses will be presented by various societies, and the Duke of Connaught will respond. A private dinner at the Government House will follow later in the day.

To-morrow the Duke will visit the Government wine farm at Constantia and in the afternoon His Royal Highness will hold a review at Green Point Common. Other functions in honor of the royal guests have been arranged for Wednesday and Thursday. The opening of parliament will take place on Friday.

HOUND BITES HUNTER.

Mr. Harry Winch Sustains Injury When Leaving for Ketchecum Lake.

As Messrs. Mayor Morrow, Manson Comstock and Harry Winch were loading up their effects Saturday morning, in front of Gibb's livery barn, preparatory to leaving for a deer hunt at Ketchcum Lake, the last named gentleman attempted to place a collar on the neck of one of the hounds. The dog evidently frightened over the prevailing excitement suddenly turned and bit Mr. Winch through the left hand. The dog's teeth met through the ball of his thumb and tore the flesh considerably. Mr. Winch went to the surgery of Dr. Halliday and had the wound cauterized. He left shortly afterwards for the deer country. There is no fear of any bad results as far as rabies are concerned.

Spain's Parliament Today.

London, Oct. 31.—The feeling of political unrest and uncertainty which has existed in Spain for some months, and which has been intensified by the recent course of events in Portugal, will cause much attention to center in the proceedings of the Cortes, which has been called to convene Monday. According to the latest reports from Madrid, Premier Canalejas will exert all his power and influence to push its programme of liberal measures through parliament.

"There's a Reason"

WOMEN'S HATS PUZZLE PASTOR

Fear to Request Their Removal and Men Quit Attending Church.

Kokomo, Ind., Oct. 29. The perplexing problem of keeping the men in attendance upon the church services and to permit the women members to wear the monster hats they now affect is up to the Kokomo ministers, to whom some of the men have been complaining. Certain men have ceased going to church and have frankly given the reasons. The ministers hesitate to request the women to remove their hats for fear of offense.

TOOTH INSURANCE IS PLANNED.

Hoosier Dentist Will Issue Novel Policy Throughout Country.

Evansville, Ind. Oct. 29.—A tooth insurance company has just been organized here by Dr. Norman Haas, a local dentist. He proposes to insure teeth for $1.50 per year, and if a policy-holder loses a tooth in any way Dr. Haas will replace it with a new one. He plans to operate in every state in the Union and possibly in Canada and Mexico.

FIND MAN IS GOOD MACHINE.

Scientist Compares Human Body With a Mechanical Engine.

Paris, Oct. 29.—In a communication addressed to the Academy of Sciences, Professor Jules Amos, a noted biologist, contrasts the human body with the best constructed machines, after having made elaborate experiments. He says:

"Comparing work done and expenditure of energy I find it to be 25 or 30 per cent. in a normal man. The best engine gives only 13½ per cent. A man should not work more than seven hours a day. In the case of certain laborers, like masons, who expend much energy in going up ladders, the work should not exceed five hours.

"Negroes I have examined in Africa can work longer than white men, but they do not work so fast."

SHE DESIRES TO DIE IN HARNESS

SARA BERNHARDT DREAMS OF PASSING AWAY LIKE THE GREAT IRVING.

Her Arrival in New York—She Warns Girls Seeking Only Money and Vainglory to Keep Off the Stage.

New York, Oct. 29.—"I dream of dying like the great Irving in the harness.

"I want to warn girls who are seeking only money and vainglory to keep off the stage. A girl should try to become an actress for art's sake alone."

"Women have justice on their side in their fight for equal suffrage and I hope they will win."

"I attribute my excellent health in the fact that I have all my life lived outdoors as much as possible."

Sara Bernhardt, the great French emotional actress, made these statements when she arrived on La Provence today for a seven months' tour of America.

PICTURESQUELY ATTIRED.

She was picturesquely attired in a gold mesh toque and a long black fur coat, which, flapping in the wind as she spoke to the reporters on the deck of the liner, revealed a sea green velvet skirt and a white shirtwaist. She wore a belt, with a heavy gold buckle in front and from her hat though she celebrated her 67th birthfloated a long brown feather. Already during the trip she did not look a day over fifty and seemed extremely pleased when the reporters told her so.

She will stay here only a few hours, opening in Chicago on Monday.

"Will this be your farewell tour?" Mme. Bernhardt was asked on the trip up the bay.

"I hope not," was her ready reply. "I dream of dying like the great Irving in my harness. But, of course, it all depends upon my mentality vitality. I like to come to America because your countrymen include some of my greatest and most appreciative admirers."

Biliousness is due to a disordered condition of the stomach. Chamberlain's Tablets are essentially a stomach medicine, intended especially to act on that organ; to cleanse it, strengthen it, tone and invigorate it, to regulate the liver and to banish biliousness positively and effectually. In Throes of Election.

Washington, D.C., Oct. 29.—This week will see the virtual close of the approaching election are viewed, with regard to the State and congressional contests alike, will undoubtedly lead to a whirlwind finish of the campaign in many States where campaigns of a comparatively tame variety have been the rule for many years.

From the first to the last day of the week a flood of political oratory will surge over New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Massachusetts, Missouri, Iowa, California, Wisconsin and numerous other States where the closeness of the contests or issues of more than ordinary importance has created intense interest in the campaigns.

South Africa's Parliament.

London, Oct. 31.—The week will see some notable events in far-off South Africa, centering around the opening of the first parliament of the South African Union, which was formed last year by the federal of Cape Colony, Natal, the Transvaal, and Orange River Colony. The parliament will be opened by the Duke of Connaught, the uncle of King George V., who is due to arrive at Cape Town Monday. Accompanied by the Duchess of Connaught and Princess Patricia, his royal highness will make an extensive tour of the four states of the union following the opening of the parliament, which will take place Friday.

The brigade had a run yesterday afternoon to Wescott street to extinguish a chimney fire. No camage.

Portuguese Upheaval To Accelerate Drift of Capital to Canada

This, with Feeling of Unrest in Britain, Should be a Good Thing for Dominion

London, Oct. 30.—The recent events in Portugal and France, coming at a time when there is a growing feeling of unrest among the masses here, must tend to accelerate the drift of capital towards Canada, not only capital but capitalists. It is not sufficiently realized that any revolutionary movement or radical change in the taxation of land tends to hit the smaller property owner and the manufacturer with a limited amount of capital first. The much talked of "dukes" in most cases can afford to be as indifferent as the millionaires whose investments are practically untouched by the budget.

Unless the portents are altogether mislead ng the old country is in for a very serious bout of political warfare which may have far reaching consequences, though we cannot compare the leaders of the most advanced political parties here with those who have toppled over the ancient dynasty of Braganza in such an ignominious manner.

CANADA TO FOLLOW EXAMPLE OF AUSTRIAN GOVERNMENT

Ottawa, Oct. 29.—It is understood that it is the intention of the government to follow the example of the Australian government and provide officially for the representation of the parliamentary opposition at the coronation of King George.

The question will come up in the House immediately after the opening of parliament next month.

It is probable, therefore, that the Dominion of Canada will be represented at the cornation by twenty Liberal members of parliament; twelve Conservatives, the chief justice of the Supreme Court, Sir Charles Fitzpatrick, and the premiers of the various provinces.

One effect of this will be that the parliamentary session about to open will be short. Prorogation may be expected not later than May. So many of the important men on both sides of the House will be away that the conduct of business will be well-nigh impossible. The coronation takes places in June.

THANKSGIVING SERVICE.

Will Be of More Than Ordinary Interest.

The Thanksgiving service of the Sunday Schools of Peterborough promises to be one of the most conspicuous gatherings that has ever been seen in our city. This is the first time that any gathering including every Sunday School in the city has been arranged.

The Schools in the South end and Ashburnham will leave their respective churches at 9:30 o'clock, sharp and will come in a body by way of George Street and will be joined by the Schools located farther north. The procession will continue to George Street Methodist Church where the service will commence promptly at 10 o'clock. Music by an orchestra and the united Sunday Schools and two ten minute address will complete the programme and the great congregation will be dismissed at a quarter to eleven o'clock. An offering will be taken to defray necessary expenses.

The teachers and officers of the various Schools are asked to accompany the pupils and parents and friends will be admitted until the building is filled to its capacity.

This is not merely a children's gathering and all the Adult classes are expected to be present. This is surely a fitting service for the morning of Thanksgiving Day.

Cuba's Election Day.

New York, Oct. 31.—Tomorrow will be election day in Cuba, when half the members of the senate and of the lower house of the national legislature are to be chosen, together with many local officers. The result of this first election under the administration of President Gomez, and the second to be held by a Cuban Government without the influence of American control, naturally will attract a good deal of attention from the outside world. There has been a great deal of political excitement in the Island for some months, and in Havana five parties have put candidates in the field.

SEPARATION DECREE

STATE AND CHURCH DIVORCED IN PORTUGAL.

Another Decree Published by the Provisional Government Declares for the Freedom of the Press—Press of the Country Favors System of Government Modeled After That of the United States.

Lisbon, Oct. 28.—The separation of Church and State was announced in a decree issued by the Provisional government today. Another decree published declares for the freedom of the press.

The government has declined the invitation to attend a memorial mass for the victims of the revolution on the ground that it desired to remain neutral in matter of religion. The press generally favors the inauguration of a system of government with a president and cabinet saimi to that in the United States, in preference to the system of parliamentary government generally in vogue with a president and cabinet similar on the continent of Europe. Among the measures being prepared by the Minister of Justice is a new divorce law based upon the principle of separation by mutual consent.

Distinguished Speaker at All Saints'

Rev. Mr. Trompour, called by his Lordship Bishop Sweeney of Toronto "The young, ardent and energetic rector of All Saints," is certainly making good under that appelation. WILD HURRICANE SWEEPS THE SOUTH

DAMAGE ESTIMATED AT $15,000,000 REPORTED FROM CITY OF MOBILE, ALABAMA.

One City a Total Wreck—Big Schooner Hoisted Across Tracks—Dead Animals Float on Streets.

Mobile, Ala., Oct. 30.—Reports received here today state that two hurricanes recently swept over the Isle of Pines, doing damage which will amount to $15,000,000. The city of Batubana, after suffering enormous damage as a result of the first storm, was practically wrecked by the second.

Water to the depth of nine feet was driven in upon the city. Stocks of goods in the stores were destroyed, and some vessels were wrecked.

A 30-ton schooner was hoisted squarely across the tracks of the United Railway Company two miles from town, and another one nearly the same size was visible a few hundred yards to the west.

The streets are covered with mud and carcasses of dead animals are floating in every direction. Native shacks have been demolished and scores of more ambitious buildings are practically ruined.

Lame back is one of the most common forms of muscular rheumatism. A few applications of Chamberlain's Liniment will give relief. For sale by all dealers.

OBITUARY.

MONDAY, OCTOBER 31, 1910.

A DIPLOMATIC REQUIREMENT.

The question has frequently been asked during the past week or two whether the powers of Europe, particularly Britain would acknowledge the republican government established in Portugal consequent of the revolution. Being one of the most ancient of European nations the twenty-one guns that announced the uprising in Lisbon naturally shook the whole Iberian peninsula, including the Basque provinces of Spain, but though the overthrow of a monarchy was by an element partly anarchial, the other powers have no course left but to recognize the new administration. Were an alliance to exist between Britain and Portugal, as Germany and Portugal it would not, under the present conditions, give these nations an excuse for ignoring the new republican government. On the other hand had an attack been made on Portugal by an outside enemy the allied nations could step in, if the clauses of the treaty went so far and help defend the crown.

Internal revolution is like a family quarrel in a household. Its consequences may be ever so much deplored by interested relations, yet legally they have no justification for interfering. Republican form of government has long since been proven acceptible, particularly in countries like France, where the people are possessed of revolutionary instincts. It has long been recognized at all courts, and no matter how reluctant they may be to bow to revolutionary factions, diplomats of other lands must acknowledge what the people demand.

The danger which Portugal faces is not that alone of an unsettled people, but the spread of anarchy and atheism. In the wake of republicanism has decimated these destroyers of citizenship. Seditious doctrines have been brewed and spread till they have poisoned the minds of even peasants in Spain and the Spanish throne has been frequently menaced. It is in these that the seeds of national destruction lie. It is through them that a monarchy may again be established in Portugal even though the house of Braganza may never regain its throne.

THE COMING SESSION.

The coming session of parliament which opens on November 17th, is expected to be of more than ordinary interest, says the Ottawa Journal, an independent newspaper, in that there is the possibility that it will be the last before another general election. The opposition, therefore, may be expected to make the most of the chances they will have to harass the administration. The two parties are in the throes of the fight for power. The government is weakn numerically than it has been since 1896, its majority last session having sometimes fallen as low as twenty.

The opposition also is a strong fighting body with young fighting material. It has been said that it is the strongest opposition since confederation.

What will lead especial interest in the coming conflict of parties is the situation in Quebec. Whereas a year ago there was a small outbreak on the part of F. D. Monk on the Conservative side and Colonel McLean on the Liberal side, over the naval policies of their several parties, the outbreak has grown to such large proportions in the government party that actual retention of office is threatened. The Bourassa campaign in Quebec is now of the most serious character to the Liberals, while other incidents which occurred lately have caused the English-speaking supporters of the government to look with suspicion upon its actions.

The ministry hopes to have a short session in view of the imperial conference in May and the coronation in June, both of which Sir Wilfrid Laurier will attend.

BRITISH PROCEDURE.

A striking contrast in the proceedings of courts is furnished in the trial of Dr. Crippen and Miss Leneve. It took the English law but a short time to get at the bottom of the Crippen case, to sift evidence that has startled the entire world, to sum up the whole chain of fact and to announce the punishment that goes to the murderer of appalling crime. In Canada [illegible] tried in America the legal difficulties would have been many, the case would likely have dragged on through the courts for weeks and the outcome in all probability would have been a short sentence in an hospital for the insane or acquittal on the grounds of insufficient evidence.

The insanity plea has been used so much within the last few years that it really has become a subject of ridicule with the public and nearly every man with criminal instincts seems to believe that a clever lawyer can save him from the gallows by attempting to prove him weak mentally.

Lord Alverstone and the London jury have set a good example for Canadian courts.

Mr. Wilt Metheral, caretaker of the armories, who has been ill for the past week, was able to resume his duties yesterday.

TO MAINTAIN PEACE.

Count Katsura, premier and minister of finance, announces that the next Japanese budget will appropriate $40,000,000 for naval increase. This step, he explained, is "made necessary by the sheer requirements of maintaining peace."

Yes, that is everywhere the touble with the peace loving nations. To maintain peace Germany is clouding even her splendid prosperity by war taxation. To maintain peace Italy taxes salt until poor children have rickets, and royalty lavishes the money on Dreadnoughts. To make Germany maintain peace Great Britain imposes the heaviest of war taxation, the Young Turks, administering a nation on the brink of bankruptcy, have just humiliated themselves before all Europe to wheedle another $30,000,000 loan for war purposes—to maintain peace. To maintain peace the United States according to Mr. Tawney, devotes 70 per cent of its $3,567,685.66 a day of national expenditure to war disbursements. To maintain peace, the British Chancellor of the Exchequer tells us, "the countries of the world are spending annually 45 millions ($2,250,000,000) upon the machinery of destruction."

If only it weren't for this need of maintaining peace which obsesses statesmen, how peaceful the world might be!

THE OLD SWEETHEART.

Ah, you smile 'tis but a gentian
In my "Chaucer" deftly pressed,
Pale and languid in its beauty,
Like a flower gone to rest.
Do you wonder why I keep it
Where it hides a pretty line?
Why, its faded petals link me
To an old sweetheart of mine.

All along life's vanished vistas
Lies a long forgotten bloom,
And in Recollection's garden
Lingers still a rich perfume.
Little things we pass unnoticed
Often touch a chord divine,
As this flower keeps the memory
Of an old sweetheart of mine.

She would laugh, I know, to see it,
With its leaves so few and white;
They were crimson in their beauty
Where she gathered it one night.
If you look a little closer
Holding it where sunbeams shine,
You may see the kiss imprinted
By that old sweetheart of mine.

But you will not see the fingers
Which about it gently met,
And you cannot hear the laughter
I am hearing even yet.
No! 'tis love that holds the mirror,
Now in shadow, now in shine—
Keeping fresh and lustrous beauty
On an old sweetheart of mine.

Though she rocks a dainty cradle
In a home my heart may miss,
Though she dews a baby's forehead
With a mother's holy kiss,
I am not the one to bluster,
Not in sorrow to repine;
She is still, despite life's changes
An old sweetheart of mine.

Thus for me this faded flower
Has a thrill you cannot know;
It has fingers, lips and footsteps,
Haunting life's fair long ago;
From its heart, enshrined in beauty,
Peeps a face almost divine,
And I stoop to smooth the tresses
Of an old sweetheart of mine.

GIVE THEM A PLACE TO PLAY.

Denis A. McCarthy, in the Springfield Republican.

Plenty of room for dives and dens
(glitter and glare and sin!)
Plenty of room for prison pens (gather the criminals in!)
Plenty of room for jails and courts
(willing enough to pay!)
But never a place for the lads to race; no, never a place to play!

Plenty of room for shops and stores
(Mammon must have the best!)
Plenty of room for the running sores that rot in the city's breast.
Plenty of room for the lures that lead the hearts of our youth astray,
But never a cent on a playground spent; no, never a place to play!

Plenty of room for schools and halls,
plenty of room for art;
Plenty of room for teas and balls, platform, stage and mart.
Proud is the city—she finds a place for many a fad to-day,
But she's more than blind if she fails to find a place for the boys to play!

Give them a chance for innocent sport, give them a chance for fun—
Better a playground plot than a court and a jail when the harm is done!
Give them a chance—if you stint them now, to-morrow you'll have to pay
A larger bill for a darker ill, so give them a chance to play!

HALF A MILLION BULBS.

C.P.R. Have Over Fifteen Hundred Gardens on System.

The Canadian Pacific Railway Co., inaugurated its floral scheme sixteen years ago with the result that there are now over 1500 gardens on the whole system. The employes are, of course, floral amateurs, but their taste and example have spread all across the continent. The enthusiasm this year has been greater than ever before, and the success that has followed their efforts shows the good use that has been made of the thousands of packages of seeds, plants and shrubs, which were distributed early in the spring. Prizes were awarded all over the system for the best gardens, and the winners' names will be announced shortly.

The company is now sending out over half a million bulbs for fall planting and early bloom in the spring of next year.

All new varities of flowers are procured yearly, and the markets of the world are sought for seeds and bulbs.

The work of transforming a transcontinental highway into a flowery path is being energetically carried on by the C.P.R. floral department, and already its beautifying effects are admiringly noticed by the thousands of travelers over the route.

160 acres of absolutely proven oil land on Sulphur Mountain, adjoining and between the Liberty and Puritas Oil Companies' property. Ten miles from Santa Paula, Ventura Co., Calif.

FACTS—The property is absolutely proven territory, lying as it does with the UNION OIL CO. producing on the south, the LIBERTY OIL CO. producing on the west, the HARD OIL CO. producing on the north, which only recently erected its 30th rig, and Puritas Oil Co. to commence drilling on the east. Also it is located in a district of BIG PRODUCING COMPANIES, such as Ola Petroleum, Pyramid Oil Co., Canadian Queen, Capital Crude, Bard Oil and Asphalt Co., and others. THERE'S NO QUESTION ABOUT THE COMPANY GETTING OIL. It is possible that Liberty Oil Company's new well will be a gusher, which would make the ATLANTA OIL COMPANY stock worth par. Mr. Cowell, our Superintendent, knows every foot of the ground, and having his log book of Liberty property, which adjoins our land, and an experienced OIL MAN and we consider ourselves fortunate in obtaining his services. VENTURA CO. OIL represents the cream of the industry. It is the home of HIGH GRAVITY OIL. VENTURA COUNTY OIL means $1.00 a barrel at well. Costs from 5c to 6c to produce it. THE GREAT UNION OIL CO. got its start in VENTURA CO. and has paid over twenty-two millions in dividends. These GREAT ASSETS had a small beginning in the WILD BILL GUSHER, within SIGHT OF ATLANTA OIL CO. property The demand for refining oil FAR EXCEEDS THE SUPPLY. The 35 refineries in California are crying for the product. The eastern high gravity fields are diminishing. The OHIO FIELDS, FOR INSTANCE, have fallen off one-third. The demand is caused by the increased market for gasoline. Throughout the world the number of automobiles and internal combustion gasoline engines is forcing up the price of high gravity crude petroleum. Eastern operators are now looking to VENTURA COUNTY, which are held to be the most extensive known. THIS IS THE FIRST ANNOUNCEMENT of ground floor offering of ATLANTA OIL CO., and may be oversubscribed at any time. One day's delay may mean you are too late. ACT NOW. WRITE FOR LATEST NEWS OF VENTURA OIL FIELDS.

The lumber for the derrick is on the ground and machinery has been ordered. Well No. 1 will be started as soon as drilling is installed. It should not take over six months to complete first well. Well No. 2, by conditions of lease, must be in operation by February 14th, 1911.

SWINDLING BY TELEPHONE.

A Sharp Piece of Rascality Played on a Chicago Broker.

"It is a well known fact that no other section of the population avail themselves more readily and speedily of the latest triumphs of science than the criminal class," said a police inspector. "The educated criminal," he continued, "skims the cream from every new invention, if he can make use of it. No safe has yet been constructed that keeps out the shrewd and determined burglar, and that's the way in everything. But I don't recall a case in which this truth was more brilliantly demonstrated than the Maxwell case."

"What case was that?" queried an old newspaper man present. "I don't recollect of ever hearing of it before."

"No, I suppose you don't," said the inspector, musingly. "The fact of the matter is, it never was a case that properly belonged to the department, but I can speak of it now. You see it was at the time when the telephone had just been introduced into business and private use. George Maxwell—that's not the real name, but it will do as well—was at that time one of the most successful speculators on the Board of Trade, and was currently reported to have some time ago tipped the scale which marked the million. He was a young and handsome man, and he had just married a charming woman. It was an out-and-out love match. A score or so of messages were dispatched every day during business hours. They contained such imported queries as : 2 p.m.—How are you now, lovey?' and replies like this : '2.35 p.m.—I sigh for you. How is my sweetheart?' Well, to save expenses and to increase the facility of communication, Mr. Maxwell connected his office with his home on Ashland Avenue by private telephone wires. He was one of the first men in Chicago to do so. About five out of six business hours were now spent by him at the 'hello.'

One day just before the close of business there was a ring at the telephone. The devoted husband, with a jump, was there. "What does my sweet pet wish?" he murmured.

"I' no pet. You mistake, me, sir,' came the reply, in an unmistakably masculine voice, a voice gruff and rasping, but very distinct.

"Who are you, then?" asked the astonished millionaire.

"I'm Thomas Jefferson Odell, the accomplished burglar, if you want to know."

"Repeat, please," gasped the other.

"Odell, the burglar,' came the answer over the wire.

"The devil!" exclaimed Mr. Maxwell.

"No, only one of his faithful servants. But now listen. I have no time to fool away. I and two of my pals have gained access to your house. The cook, the chambermaid, and your wife are lying here bound and gagged. The nigger coachman has been disposed of. Some bundles of dirty rags have been judiciously distributed about the house, ready to be ignited.

"You bloody scoundrel!" shouted the agonized husband, whose eyes were bulging during the recital.

"Don't excite yourself. Now, sir, here is my proposal. If you should disappear from the telephone without acceding to it I shall set fire to the house. It's no use applying to the police, for we'd be too quick for them. You will see, Mr. Maxwell, that you are completely in my power. The only sensible thing you can do is to listen to my proposal and to agree to it."

"Oh, I wish I had my hand at your throat, you infernal villan!" shouted the millionaire, mad with rage.

"But you know you haven't, so what's the use of talking that way! Let us talk business instead. I need a loan of $20,000 cash. I need it at once. If you are inclined to lend me that sum without guarantee, I shall leave your house with my pals in exactly the same condition in which I found.'

"You are ruining me,' groaned Maxwell. 'And I don't think I have that much money in cash in the office safe.'

"You'll force me to commit an atrocious deed,' came the remorseless reply.

"All right, then- yes, I'll pay, but to whom?"

"It is now 5.15 exactly. At this very moment my pal has entered your office to receive the money. You will pay him and he will tell you the watchword agreed to between us, which you will telephone to me at once.'

"Mr. Maxwell turned round. A stranger of pleasant mein, dressed in the height of fashion, stood before him. Said the visitor 'I have called to collect a little matter of $20,000 for a friend of mine, Thomas Jefferson Odell.'

"'Correct!' replied Mr. Maxwell, who went to the safe, took from it two bundles containing $10,000 each, and handed the money to the stranger. The latter ascertained that the amount was correct, then placed the money inside his two breast pockets.

"'And the watchword?' queried Mr. Maxwell.

"'Do right and interfere not!' replied the burglar's confederate with a great deal of dignity, and strode out of the office with all the grandezza of a Spanish hidalgo.

"'Do right and interfere not!' joyfully shouted Mr. Maxwell through the telephone. 'And now you'll leave my premises, Mr. Odell, won't you? And as for my wife—

"'Have no fear Mr. Maxwell,' replied the man at the other end 'You have to deal with a burglar and a gentleman.'

Mr. Maxwell locked his office, got into his buggy, and drove out to his house at a Maud S. pace. The more closely he approached, the keener his fear of catastrophe became. But as he stopped at the gate he noticed nothing out of the way. He sprang up the stairs, two at a time, and entered the pretty boudoir of his prettier wife. She was quietly reading

"How you must have suffered, my angel!" he cried, and a sob shook his voice.

"The young wife looked up astonished. Suffered? I?"

"That burglar, you know—it must have been awful. Oh, you poor darling!"

"Why, George dear, what is the matter? You speak in riddles.'

"But didn't he gag you," he asked.

"'Now, see here, I wish you would talk sense. What do you mean?'

"After Mr. Maxwell had finished the recital of his adventure, he asked 'Wasn't there somebody here using my telephone?'

"'Why, yes, there was,' replied Mrs. Maxwell. 'A young and well-dressed man, came in, introduced himself to me as Mr. Thomas Jefferson Odell, a speculator, and requested permission to make use of your private telephone to send you a message. Of course, I gave him permission. He used the telephone but a couple of minutes and then came back into the parlor, thanked me for the favor I had done him and went away, saying the telephone was a very useful invention—it facilitated business so much.'

"'And that was all?' asked Mr. Maxwell; 'he didn't gag you and the servants? He was alone? He didn't offer violence to you?'

"'Why, no! He was very polite and gentlemanly—quite as much as you are at present, George.'

"'Oh, the devil!' exclaimed George, with a wild outburst. 'What an infernal ass I've made of myself. Excuse me, pet, but I can't help it. I'll drive over and tell the police about it.'

"That's what he did," concluded the inspector, "and that's the way I came to know about it. But after talking the thing over with me, and after consulting with the smartest detectives we had at the time, we came to the conclusion that there was no chance of recovering the money. The pair were too slick. And in spite of all we've done since then we've heard nothing more of the $20,000, nor of Mr. Thomas Jefferson Odell and his pal."

A PECULIAR THEORY.

People of Small Stature Better Natured Than Those of Average Size.

"I have a theory," said a Pittsburg man, "which is not founded on anything that I ever read or anything that I ever heard anybody say. It is entirely original with me, though it is quite possible a good many other people may have entertained the idea before."

"Produce your theory, please, and end this terrible suspense."

"The theory is concerning little men and women. I believe that people of small stature are far better natured than those of the average size. Did you ever see a small man who wasn't good natured and inclined to take a rosy view of life? And did you ever know a little woman who wasn't jolly and full of fun? I've studied humanity a good deal and I never yet have encountered a small person who was surely a misanthropic. Who are the pessimists? Lank, tall, raw boned, dyspeptic individuals almost invariably. Did you ever see a man of five feet six inches that was melancholy? No, and you are not likely to. I tell you the world would be a mighty lonesome place without the little grown up people. They make more than half the fun there is in this vale of tears.

"Little men are invariably good story-tellers. They are hearty laughers; they are quick to see the humorous side of any question and they relish a joke, even if it is at their own expense. They make the firmest friends, and adhere to those whom they like through thick and thin. They are seldom quarrelsome, and never conceited. They are often sensitive, but quick-witted people generally are. Altogether they are the best folks in the world to get along pleasantly with, whether in a business or social way."

Big Apple Show in Vancouver.

Vancouver, B.C., Oct. 29.—Many magnificent exhibits of apples are being installed in the arena of the Horse Show Building in readiness for the opening next Monday of the first Canadian National Apple Show. In addition to all portions of the Dominion exhibits have been sent from England, Australia and the United States.

Lord Kitchener to Be Best Man.

London, Oct. 28.—Lord Kitchener, the most distinguished batchelor in the United Kingdom, is to go to the altar next week, but needless to state it will not be as bridegroom. He has consented to act as best man at the wedding of another celebrated military officer, General Sir Archibald Hunter, whose marriage to Mary Lady Inverclyde is to be celebrated Tuesday at St. George's, Hanover Square.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury.

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used, except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Halls Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co., Testimonials free.

Don't wash and scrub, bend and rub over a hot wash tub; sift a little GOLD DUST in the water, loosen the dirt, and save rubbing

Soap is not a bit of cleansing good until it is mixed with water and made into suds. And then it still needs the rub-rub-rub of human muscle.

GOLD DUST works in an entirely different way—instantly and totally dissolves in hot or cold, hard or soft water—and, without any aid from you, starts to cleanse.

GOLD DUST is more than soap—better and more economical. It is a powder of magic power—but rightly directed power, that leaves the wash white, sweet, wholesome.

Use your brains, not your muscle!

Throw away your soap, get GOLD DUST, and simply use it according to the directions on the package.

"Let the GOLD DUST Twins do your work."

Poisoned by Canned Salmon.

As a result of eating canned salmon, Mrs. Timothy Garvey, of the Township of Douro suffered considerable pain on Friday from ptomaine poisoning. The woman had the salmon for supper last evening, and immediatel yafter eating it, she was taken violently ill and a doctor had to be called. Dr. McNulty attended the woman and found her to be suffering from ptomaine poison, the cause of which he attributed to the salmon. Although still feeling pretty ill, Mrs. Garvey is some better to-day.

Scarlet Fever in Otonabee.

An outbreak of Scarlet Fever has taken place in the neighborhood of Zion, Otonabee and Hall's Bridge. Some of the younger members of the families of Mr. Walter Dickson and Mr. Robert Jackson, on the Otonabee side of the river are ill with the disease while Mr. Norman Breckenridge and some of his family in South Monaghan are also afflicted. The children of Messrs. Jackson and Dickson have been attending the Zion school. The Municipal authorities are looking after the matter. There is no accounting for any particular cause of the outbreak but credit is generally given to the water.

Tag Day for Children's Aid.

Possibly no public institution in Peterborough carries with it a more general wave of sympathy than the Children's Aid. The officers of this most estimable society have arranged to hold a "tag day" crusade, to take place in the near future. For the benefit of those who do not understand just what a "tag" campaign means, it may be explained that a large number of young ladies will be set at work soliciting donations for the Children's Aid Society and will give in exchange a tag showing that the wearer has paid his financial tribute to the work of the society. It is thought that about fifty girls will take part in the "tag day" crusade, throughout the central business part of the city. Now! Look out for the "Tag Girl," and when you see her "BUY."

Today Mayor Morrow, instead of having to give his time in deciding whether a sidewalk on a street shall be 3 feet 4in., or 3 feet 5 in., wide, is possibly wondering which sight should be raised on his rifle when a deer enters the lake. Let us hope that the mayor's aim at the deer may be as true and to the end as has his business career.

LITTLE LOCAL LINES

Ducks about the size of a well-fed canary bird, were sold Saturday for $1.35 a pair. One grocer on George street obtained a "job lot," and as a favor to favored customers supplied the latter with those birds at $1.10 a pair. Prices of living are a "holy terror" as one man remarked.

A gentleman on Saturday asked us to note and quote the price of Thanksgiving turkeys. Unfortunately our telescope broke a lens so we could not see the prices and, thus, cannot quote them. We understand thought that, anywhere from $1.75 to $4.50 was asked.

One local party starting for the north yesterday morning, on a deer hunting expedition was delayed three quarters of an hour because the captain had lost his corkscrew. These tomato ketchup bottles are a nuisance anyhow!

WEDDING BELLS.

BAPTIE-FOSTER

A pretty house wedding took place at Rosemount, residence of Mr. Joseph Foster, Bolivar street, Saturday afternoon at two o'clock, when his only daughter, Miss Edith, was united in the bonds of Holy Matrimony to Mr. Harold Baptie, of Springville, by Rev. G. W. Henderson, pastor of Charlotte Street Church. The ceremony was performed beneath a vine arch and in front of a bank of ferns and roses, many other beautiful decorations in the room, also contributed to the brightness of the occasion. The young couple were unattended.

The bride was prettily attired in a dress of ivory gray duchess satin and carried a bouquet of cream roses. The groom's present to the bride was a beautiful gold pin set with pearls.

After the ceremony the guests sat down to a sumptuous wedding repast. Mr. T. Hooper acting as caterer. Only a few immediate friends attended.

WAGER-PENROSE

A quiet but very pretty house wedding took place at 548 Sherbrooke St., the home of the bride, Saturday afternoon at two o'clock, when Miss Lizzie Maud, daughter of Mr. J. Penrose, and Mr. Luther Wager, were united in the holy bonds of matrimony. The ceremony was performed by Rev. H. J. Keith, pastor of Knox Church.

The bride, who was attractively attired in a beautiful costume of cream serge trimmed with silk net carried a bouquet of white roses and was given away by her father.

The bridesmaid was Miss Kathleen Wager, sister of the groom, while Mr. Roy Penrose assisted the groom.

At the close of the ceremony, the guests who were cofposed of only a few immediate friends sat down to a sumptuous wedding repast, after which the happy couple left on the 4.38 C.P.R. train for Toronto and points west on their honeymoon.

EXAMINER ROAD RACE.

This Big Event Will Be Pulled Off This Morning.

If the weather man is propitious the annual road races of the Examiner this morning promise to be the most successful in the history of the event. The arrangements are now completed and everything is ready for what give indications of being the two most exciting races since the contests were inaugurated. If the same brand of weather which has always smiled on the event is forthcoming on Monday, there is every reason to expect that a record crowd will watch the finish of the contests and the vicinity of the Examiner office will be the scene of an enormous gathering. The co-operation of the spectators is asked for in helping to keep the course, at the finish, clear, so that the contestants will be able to finish without being interfered with. Last year there was very little trouble, and if the crowd on Monday will conduct itself in a similar manner there will be little complaint from the management. The spectators should bear in mind the fact that the race is not over as soon as the first man has breasted the tape and they should allow the others a chance.

Special arrangements are being made to ensure the contestants a clear road through the crowd.

The two races will be started simultaneously at 10.30. At the same time that Starter Graham gives the word to the dozen senior starters at Lakefield, Starter O'Brien will send away his field of forty young Marathoners. The youngsters should reach the oil belt shortly before 11 o'clock. And the Seniors should be at the Examiner office about 11.25.

The probable result of the senior race is causing a great deal of interesting speculation. The starters, upon whom there are any bnes to go on, are Albert Smoke, the Chemong Indian, who won last year; for the past two years; George Robinson of the Otonabee Athletic Club, fourth in 1909, and Morris Montgomery, and Charlie Knapp, who have been starters for the past two years. Added to this field are Walter Cole, the Y. M. C. A. entry; Ernest Coons, the well-known Lakefield and Bridgenorth soccer player; J. E. Lean, a Normal School student, who hails from Cambourne, Ont.; Chas. Brimble and John Campbell, two unattached local entries, and Jimmy McMartin, of the Otonabee A. C., who has been in two Junior Examiner races.

If the senior race is hard to dope, it is almost impossible to attempt to name out the Junior contest. With forty-one starters of all sizes and ages from ten up to eighteen, there is not much use in trying to select a winner. Willie Edwards, the Keene boy, who won the event last year, in record time, has entered again and will be favoured by many on account of his excellent performance last year. If he gallops home in front of the big field again on Monday, his performance will indeed be a creditable one. Nagle Phelan of the T.A.S., who was sixth last year, is a plucky runner, who will have to be counted on. The two Chemong Indian boys, Allan Knott, and Russell Taylor, may be dangerous, and Holnbeck, the Cobourg "kid," will, undoubtedly, be somewhere near the top. J. B. Mann of Bridgenorth, is another outside runner, and there is a vast horde of local youngsters. There will undoubtedly be a hard fight for the four prizes.

A CLOSE GAME.

Peterborough Nosed Out Ahead With One Point.

Peterboro 1—Port Hope 0—Several weeks ago the local youngsters journed to Port Hope and were beaten after a hard game by 1—0. Saturday morning the same two teams battled on the slushy sward of Riverside Park, and when time was called the score was identically the same, but this time the one point scored was chalked up to the credit of the Peterborough team. That makes exactly two points for both teams in two games, and pretty nearly constitutes a record.

The game was played under anything but favourable weather conditions. The ground was a combination of snow and slush, into which the players sank ankle deep, making the footing treacherous, and the ball heavy and hard to handle. However, the youngsters gave a good exhibition in all departments of the game, the tackling being especially good. Laing for Peterborough, was the star for both teams and got away with a lot of pretty ones, while he backed nicely. The only point was scored on a kick into touch in goal by Laing in the middle of the second half. The teams were evenly balanced in weight.

The line up follows:

Peterborough Collegiates — Backs, Loves, Smith, Laing, quarter, S Lees, scrimmage, Knapman, Conroy, Routley, wings, Carlisle, Huycke, Matthews, Armstrong, Bewson, Long.

T. C. S. — Back, Stenton; halves, Smith, Waller, Ketchum; quarter, Grylls, scrimmage, McDonald, Wilson, Vibert, wings, Empbingham, Downer, Edwards, McDonald, Evans, Walsh.

Awful Story of Wholesale Typhoid Poison

MANY DIE FROM EFFECTS OF A POISONED WELL.

At a Temperance Hotel at Orono—Guests Partook of Food Infected With the Germs.

One of the most terrible, tragic and almost inexplicable cases of death and sickness, from the effects of these microscopic, and to the naked eye, invisible germs, called "Bacillus Typhosus," or typhoid bacillus, discovered by Dr. Ebenthe in 1880, arose, seemingly from a meal served in a temperance house at Orono, kept by a widow. Orono was in gala attire, its fall fair was in progress, every resident of the village was out for pleasure, and some for incidental profit. Little thought the good people of that little inland town, that in their midst lurked millions, millions to the cubic millinute, of deadly germs, multiplying more rapidly than Rockefeller's dollars, awaiting for human victims. Still, as the bands played, as the proud owners of cattle and horses wearing the awked blue or white ribbons of victory, showed their stock to admiring thousands, as the people applauded the spectacle presented at the show these infinitesimal, but deadly germs, with the long technical name, were awaiting their coming victims in the water of that temperance hotel well.

It seems that a widow lady, in a commendable effort to support herself and family, conducts a temperance hotel in Orono. This hotel, unfortunately is not furnished with modern plumbing and sanitary appliances. The drainage and sewerage of the premises run into a well in the yard from which drinking water for the establishment is drawn. It is said further, that the proprietress, to keep meats and other provisions cool and fresh, lowers such goods to the cold depths of this well. Here comes the alleged cause of the catastrophy which ended in some 50 or 60 cases of typhoid fever, with seven or eight deaths. The sewerage, seeping into the well was full of the typhoid germs. In the water of the well, as the hours went by, these invisible bugs, multiplied in their millions, were conveyed to patrons of the house.

To particularize on fair day at Orono, that two days before the Millbrook fair, many visitors to Orono took meals at this particular hotel. Within a week or so, some 50 or 60 of these who ate at the hotel were siezed with typhoid fever of a malignant nature. Among the sufferers were the only son of Mr. Josiah Perrin of Pontypool, by name of Cecil, who conducted a general store at that village. Mr. Perrin died Monday morning, at his father's residence. Another regretted death, in this connection, was that of Mr. George Bigelow, a young farmer, the only son of a widowed mother who lives south of Enterprise, who also passed away on Monday. A specialist was brought from Toronto to attend to young Mr. Perrin, although Dr. Clark of Pontypool had done all that medical skill had suggested to him for the treatment of the patient. Two members of the Bowmanville band also succumbed to the deadly germs. Another young woman, living at some distance from Orono, but whose mother was employed in the hotel referred to, who went to visit the latter, has also died.

Officers of the Provincial Board of Health, have been sent to Orono, to make a thorough investigation of the matter, which is one of the saddest and, under ordinary exercise of common sense, unnecessary catastrophies that have saddened the Province.

The hotel has since been closed to the public, awaiting the decision of the Toronto Health Officials.

Several of the sufferers have received treatment including Mr. Bigelow, as noted above, and who, notwithstanding the patient, scientific and modern treatment accorded in the local hospital died. His body was was sent yesterday morning to Pontynool for burial.

Big Luage Caught in Town.

On the holiday, during the afternoon Messrs. W. D. Morris and J. F. Thornton of this city, caught a 15-lb. lunge across from T.A.S. Park These gentlemen were still fishing for bass, the one who caught the fish was using only a small gut hook. The lunge, as such fish will, put up a big fight, Just as it was being reeled to terra firma, and about three feet away, it broke the hook off the line and tried to make for deep water However, one of the fishermen grabbed it bodily before it could escape, and, triumpantly carried it ashore.

FOUND DEAD IN A BOX CAR

Belleville, Nov. 1.—A middle-aged man, who is, no doubt, from appearances, a Russian Jew died this morning in a box car near the G.T.R. station here. His name and home are unknown.

The unfortunate man is about 45 years of age, and had evidently been tramping about the country.

"TO CANADA" IS CRY OF GALICIANS

FAME OF THIS LAND AS AN ELDORADO IS DEPOPULATING GALICIA.

Escaping From Tyranny—Polish People in Their Native Land are Starving in the Midst of Plenty.

Crackaw, Austrian Poland, Oct. 30.—Canada has become the cry of Polish immigrants, and the United States is no longer an attractive proposition. The immigration agent traveling through the Polish hunger districts and talking Canada, can always be sure of a welcome.

The fame of Canada as an Eldorado, is depopulating Galicia—all that can get away straining their utmost to do so, and escape Prussian, Russian and Austrian despotism.

These Polish country people, of the majority of them, do not know what a full stomach means. Living in the midst of plent, that is, among waving cornfields, fifty per cent. of them are slowly dying of hunger, because all the land is owned by the aristocrats or by the State.

There are no factories save Schnapps factories and breweries. The peasants are disposing of their small holdings at low prices to get away and the aristocrats and the State buy up more land all the time for a mere nothing. Not only the country districts are depopulated, but a number of rural towns are experiencing the same thing. Pensioners and owners of small independent incomes are buying up property in these towns. They can buy houses at an extremely low figure, but the houses are of the very poorest description. Yet there are few houses, huts or hovels without a frame picture of the late Baron Hirsch, the benefactor of the Jewish race.

PUBLIC SCHOOL FEES WILL BE REDUCED AFTER MIDSUMMER

The Cadet Corps Gets The Government Grant of $25--$700 Spent This Year in New Grade of School Books---Otherwise Reduction Would Have Materialized Next January

The Board of Education met last night in regular monthly session.

There were present, Trustees J. Crane, R. Farr, W. H. Hall D. W. Dumble, B. F. Ackerman, T. P. Adams, Col. Miller and Dr. Burnham.

In the absence of Chairman L. M. Hayes Mr. Dumble presided.

The minutes of the last regular meeting were taken as read.

TRIBUTE TO THE MEMORY OF THE LATE JAS. STEVENSON.

Dr. Burnham moved, seconded by Col. Miller.—That the Peterborough Board of Education deeply lament the death of Mr. James Stevenson, who was a member of this board for a period of over fifty-five years, which is, we believe, unprecedented

Mr. Stevenson gave to the board his valuable time and his best services.

We enter our tribute to his worth upon our minutes and unite in tendering to his bereaved family our heartfelt sympathy. Carried unanimously.

Miss Dela Mater, matron of the Nicholls Hospital, wrote, asking for use of the Assembly Hall, of the Collegiate Institute, in which to hold the nurses graduating exercises—Granted.

The Y.W.C.A. requested the use of the Domestic Science class room in the Central school in which to give instruction in domestic science for a period of twelve weeks. The Y.W.C.A. to assume all expenses. Granted.

Inspector Mowat and Mr. Duncan Walker wrote thanking the board for their appointment on the Public Library Board.

REDUCE FEES AFTER NEXT MIDSUMMER

Dr. Burnham here enquired if it was the board's intention to reduce the public school fees now that the cost of supplies has been practically cut in two.

Inspector Mowat here explained that, while school books have been materially reduced in cost, still this year seven new books had to be supplied, entailing an expenditure of $700—$430 in geographies alone. After next midsummer he could see no reason why a substantial reduction in fees should not be made. Should a reduction be made this January, however, a slight deficit would have to be carried over. He considered each of the new books an improvement over the old ones, the arithmetic especially so. The new geographies at 60 cents each, form the biggest item in new supplies, but Mr. Mowat characterized them as substantial in binding and truly excellent for instruction. The new arithmetic offers larger opportunities to the pupils for acquiring a thorough knowledge of this subject, it is somewhat delicate in binding however, but phenomenally cheap at 30 cents each. Still he had, as yet, failed to notice any signs of the arithmetic books not proving sufficiently durable.

To Dr. Burnham, the secretary and treasurer, Mr. Thompson replied that since the incipiency of the school supplies fund, while some years there had been a slight deficit a surplus was the rule. The one had offset the other.

Dr. Burnham thought that a specific statement should be prepared, showing the manner in which the supplies fund had been applied each year.

Mr. Crane offered that supplies such as wall maps had been furnished from this fund, which, properly speaking, might not be considered as school supplies in the sense for which the fund was created.

Dr. Burnham, "That is just what we want to arrive at."

Dr. Burnham moved, seconded by Col. Miller, that the secretary-treasurer furnish a statement of this supplies account from year to year since the time the system of furnishing public school children with supplies was inaugurated. Carried.

$25 FOR CADETS

The deputy minister sent in a highly satisfactory report on the Collegiate Institute Cadet Corps. The secretary-treasurer has in hand the government grant of $25 in encouragement of this youthful regiment.

Octogenarian Orangeman Visits City

Among the recent visitors to our city for the holiday were Mr. and Mrs. William Bartley of Purple Hill, who visited their son G. Bartley, 135 Rubidge street. Mr. Bartley is in his 81st year and Mrs. Bartley her 78th year. Mr. Bartley has lived under three kings and one queen and has been an active member of the Orange Association for 57 years. He served as recording secretary for 35 years in succession and since that time has been honorary chaplain and is still with L.O.L. No. 399 Cartwright. Mr. Bartley was born in the county Tarmanagh, Ireland, on Oct. 1st, 1830.

ARGUMENT USED IN QUEBEC

Victoriaville, P.Q., Nov. 1.—"We owe nothing to England. The only privileges we enjoy were torn from her by force. England did not conquer Canada for love; she did not plant the Cross as France did, but established counting houses to make money."

This is the sort of thing that the French-Canadian elector is being asked to listen to from some Nationalist speakers with more zeal than common sense. The words quoted were used at a committee meeting here last night. Dr. Beland of Beauce gave the speaker, a petty notary, about what he deserved afterwards. It is scarcely fair to lay this sort of thing at the door of the Nationalist leaders although it was said by a man presumebly speaking for their candidate.

EUGENIE WILL SELL ALL HER LAND

EX EMPRESS OF FRANCE TO CONVERT HER LANDED PROPERTIES INTO CASH.

Plan Is To Avoid Suits—Will Leave All Unincumbered, to the Pretender, Prince Victor Napoleon.

Paris, Nov. 2.—Ex Empress Eugenie, who is now in her eighty-fifth year, is selling all her property in the country over which she once held sway, in order that Prince Victor Napoleon, who is soon to wed Princess Clementine of Belgium, may have no difficulty in gaining possession of all that belongs to her after she passes away.

It is an open secret that she intends making her nephew, the imperial claimant to the throne of France, the principal heir to her great wealth, which has been estimated as high as $30,000,000. To relieve him of a repetition of those long drawn out and costly legal proceedings which worried her so much forty years ago, when the newly formed French republic wanted to keep all the fallen emperor's domains, she wants to turn her landed properties in France into cash now, and leave him money.

Among the estates is that of the famous Solferino Palace, in the south of France. That former imperial residence was to have gone under the hammer here recently, but the sale has been postponed, owing to a difference of opinion over the minimum sum which should be accepted. The ex-empress does not want to part with the palace for less than $120,000, but that sum is considered excessive by her lawyers in view of the dilapidated condition of the chateau.

Solferino was built less than a century ago to commemorate a celebrated French victory in the war of 1866. Originally in a bleak part of the sparsely populated department of Midi, a whole village has since sprung into being around its walls. The emperor was hardly ever in residence there, and all its fittings and furniture were long ago taken away

BOY BURNED IN A BARN

Cornwall, Ont., Nov. 1.—Richard Justus' barns, near Winchester, with all the season's crop, twenty pigs and several head of horses, were destroyed by fire yesterday morning.

A seven-year-old son of Mr. Justus was also burned. The little fellow was not missed until after the fire. His charred remains were found later near the carcass of one of the horses. The loss is about $8,000.

THE PREMIER SEES FRANCE MENACED

PREMIER BRIAND CLAIMS PROOF OF PLOT OF ANARCHY AND CIVIL WAR.

News Startles Chamber—Socialist Demonstration Against M. Lepine Forces Him to Withdraw.

Paris, Nove. 2.—On the reassembling of the chamber of deputies today, after the government had been attacked by the Socialists, Premier Briand created something of a sensation by declaring that he had proof, through confessions of the leaders of the recent railroad strike, that there was a deliberate plot to turn France by violence, anarchy and civil war.

During his address the Premier said that the cabinet was studying a plan to prevent a repetition of such strikes and to guard the legitimate rights of wage earners.

POLICE HEAD ROUTED.

The Socialist members of the chamber of deputies made a violent demonstration against M. Lepine, prefect of Paris, and the head of the police was forced to withdraw. Then they denounced the ministry for throwing the military resources of the country to the service of capital, asserting that such a procedure only increased the war among classes. The discussion went over until Thursday.

CRY "DOWN WITH LEPINE."

The Socialists cried "Down with Lepine," and demanded his expulsion from the building. President Henri Brisson was compelled to adjourn the session, which was resumed after the protest had retired.

Several interpolations on the subject of the recent strike were made some for and some against the right of the railroad men to unionize and strike, and another calling for dissolution of the National Federation of Labor on the ground that it was revolutionary.

How Uncle Sam Trains Officers for Modern War

STORY OF HOW GOVERNMENT IS TRAINING ITS YOUNG SOLDIERS.

To Take the Command of the Largest Army Units in Case of a War—Description of Work.

The story of how the federal government is training its young soldiers, graduates of West Point to take the command of the largest army units in case of war is told by Little McClung in the current number of The Progress Magazine. Starting with the military college on the Hudson as a foundation, the war department has reared upon this an elaborate superstructure a real university for the training of officers in the modern science of war, which is said by military experts to be second to none in the world.

The need for such a higher school of war was realized keenly at the time of the late war with Spain, when officers were needed to command the hundreds of companies of raw recruits which were mobilized in Cuba and along the southern coast. The officers of the regular army accomplished admirable results at that time, but the opinion has held that if this citizen soldiery had been confronted in the campaign which followed by the veteran troops of a first-class European power the outcome might not have been so immediately gratifying to the national pride. The war with Spain caused the foremost strategists of the army to see that there was absolute need of placing the most thoroughly trained specialists in command of the largest army units. Hence, there has come into being these new army universities which beat the same relation to West Point as the professional schools do to our American colleges.

* * * * * *

Three institution now compose the framework of this war university—the School of the Line, the Staff College and the War College—and the method by which men are assigned to special work in these schools is thus told by Mr McClung:

"Every summer graduates of the various garrison schools in the United States and the Philippine Islands selected from the best qualified candidates of the line are designated by the colonels of regiments of cavalry, field artillery and infantry for entrance into the Army School of the Line at Fort Leavenworth. The course here is strictly competitive and is probably as rigorous and thorough as that of any college or university in the world. There are as many instructors as there are officer-pupils. The twenty graduates who stand highest at the end of the session are detailed for a second year's course in the Army Staff College at Fort Leavenworth.

"In this institution the course is not strictly competitive although a record is kept of the work of the officers. At the end of the year the academic board recommend certain officers for special duties in the army. Each year also certain of the most promising graduates of the staff college together with especially qualified officers of the army at large, are designated for a course in the New Army War College in the City of Washington, this being the capstone of the educational structure.

* * * * *

"A complete description of the work done in these colleges would require volumes rather than pages. It is the most rigorous of any army in the world. But while the work is continuous and difficult, there are other rewards besides the knowledge gained. Every year in the school of the line there are five honor graduates, and also distinguished graduates. The former are exempt for five years from examinations for promotion to the grade next above, that held by them at graduation in all subjects they have satisfactorily completed. 'Distinguished' graduates are exempt for three and a half years and graduates of the staff college for five years.

"The course of study in the School of the Line is embraced in four departments—military, art, engineering, law and languages. The first includes such branches as the organization of troops on the march, in camp or on the field of battle, tactics combining all three arms of the service; the most effective use of the modern weapons, the movements of cavalry, and military geography and history, which means a review of the great campaign from Marathon to Santiago.

With the newer and more complicated engines of destruction which have added appreciably to the horror of war in the past decade, a much longer course of training is deemed requisite for officers than that afforded by West Point alone, and the officer who hopes to rise in the service must subject himself to a much more rigorous educational regime.

Board of Education Committee Reports

At the meeting of the Board of Education held last night the following reports were presented.

SUPERVISION COMMITTEE.

Gentlemen.—Your Supervision Committee beg to report and recommend as follows:

That the use of the Y.M.C.A. gymnasium and services of the instructor be secured for the pupils of the Collegiate for a term of five months from Nov. 1st, 1910, for sum of $500 payable $100 monthly, the time table and other necessary arrangements being left to the principal of the Institute.

Your Committee has purchased two underwood typewriters, one ordinary and one wide carriage, two Oliver typewriters, and one Monarch and have sold two old Remingtons, the whole at a net cost of $298. This equipment gives the commercial department a total of nine machines, all in first-class repair.

That six Imperial dictionaries be supplied the Institute to be placed on the desks of the rooms not at present supplied.

Judgment is Given Out in big Action

TO THE SHAREHOLDERS UNDER THE DOUBLE LIABILITY CLAUSE IS COMING.

Judgment In Big Action—Bank of Montreal Wins From Contributories Who Disputed Its Claim.

Toronto, Nov. 1.—According to the decision of the Judical Committee of the Privy Council in England, made public today, the agreement made between the Bank of Montreal and the Ontario Bank at the time the latter institution went under is valid.

That means that the Bank of Montreal is now empowered to go ahead and collect an item of about one million and a half dollars, and as the assets of the defunct institution fall far short of meeting the liabilities, the consequence is that those shareholders of the Ontario Bank who are worth it, financially, will be called upon for their double liability under the Bank Act.

WAR ALL ALONG LINE.

The decision which will hit many of the shareholders of the Ontario Bank pretty hard is one which was given by Referee Kappelle, before whom the matter first came, and upheld by Mr. Justice Britton, to whom an appeal was made by the Court of Appeal, and finally by the Privy Council.

Pro. Hockey for Petes

Guelph, Nov. 1.—The fact that an Ontario professional hocker league with an eastern and western division is being organizid was learned here this morning.

The well founded report states that there are to be two divisions with four teams in each. The Western Ontario division will have Guelph, Berlin, Waterloo, and Brantford, and the Eastern division will include Peterborough, Belleville, Picton and Port Hope. Organization of this league is said to be already well under way, and arrangements for a meeting to elect officers are being made. The idea in having the two divisions is to spread the interest over a larger portion of the Province, and the pro. championship of Ontario can be decided by the winners of the two divisions playing off.

In Guelph the rink company will finance the team, with Jimmy Cookman, the Lincoln, Nebraska, third baseman, who is home for the winter, acting as manager.

SMOKE WINS THE BIG LAKEFIELD-PETERBORO' RACE

Peterborough's fixed, great annual event, the Examiner road race has again been won by a descendant of the aborigines, who, before the advent of the white race, owned the continent.

Albert Smoke, a young Indian from Chemong Village, who defeated all comers last year, on Monday again loped in ahead of the bunch. Smoke was a good half mile ahead of his nearest competitor. He made it over muddy roads, from Lakefield, to the Examiner office in 55 minutes 15 2-5 seconds, which is 53 1-5 seconds faster than his performance last year and 3-5 of a second ahead of the record of 55 min. 16 secs., put up by Ernie Wilson, when he won the honors in 1907.

THE JUNIOR RACE.

Willie Edwards of Keene, won the junior race in good style. He made the pace in 29 minutes, which was only 30 seconds behind his last year's time of 28 minutes, 30 secs.

RUGBY.

The Jarvis Street Collegiate Institute Rugby team defeated the local Collegiate team on Thanksgiving Day.

CHURCH ENLARGEMENT.

Charlotte Street Methodist Church Considers Various Propositions.

It is an open secret that the Charlotte Street Methodist church is inadequate in size to accommodate its congregation. It will be remembered that Senator Cox, always a friend of this particular church had made them several offers of assistance. The congregation have voted upon enlargement propositions, and the vote stood as follows:

Offer No. 1, of building a new church on the present site, or reconstructing the present building—173 votes.

Offer No. 2.—Of building on the Aaron Cox site—5 votes.

Offer No. 3.—Of building on the A. L. Davis site—62 votes.

The Board will hold a meeting in the near future to go into the matter.

THE DEVELOPMENT OF WESTERN CHINA.

The vast Chinese Empire has its westward movement as this continent has. only in the case of China the world hears little about it. The filling up of the waste areas is the most conspicuous characteristic of the Chinese Empire today. A most interesting and enlightening account of the movement of population into the unoccupied regions of China is given in the course of a series of articles in which the Pekin correspondent of the London Times has been describing the journey which he made in the first six months of the present year from East to West across the West of vast Empire. Between the end of the Chinese railway system and railhead of the Russian railway system he rode 3,760 miles.

Some parts of his wanderings were in regions where no newspaper representatives, and very few Europeans of any sort, have ever been before. Yet his lines seem to have fallen in pleasant places. Everywhere he was received with courtesy and respect, and was treated with kindness by high and low alike. The Times, commenting upon his experience says:

"Our correspondent believes that the cordiality he experienced was to some extent due to the fact that he was a Britain, and he scouts the idea that British influence is waning in China. 'At Kuldja he was the accidental witness of an accident which will touch a responsive chord in all British hearts. He noticed the flags at half mast, and heard a Chinese read to a crowd the message from the Wai-wu-pu announcing the death of the Emperor of the Great British Nation.' It was a spontaneous tribute, for our correspondent's advent at that moment could not have been anticipated.

His meetings with the Russian officials across the border were equally friendly, and The Times, in commenting upon them, reflects upon the change in British and Russian relations in Central Asia which agreeably reflects upon the important modification of international policy, since the days when Kipling wrote about the Bear that walks like a man.

The letters of The Times correspondent tells of sea-like prairies where Mongol tribes used to roam, being brought under the plow. Even the Gobi desert is shrinking. He reports that the belt of cultivation on these borders is said to be advancing at the rate of several miles every year, and the climate grows milder in consequence. The stricken province of Kansu, whose population was reduced from thirty millions to six millions during the Mahomedan rebellion, is recovering something of its old prosperity.

China rises afresh from gigantic disasters which would ruin less populous Empires. It derives accessions of strength even from its tremendous misfortunes. The rich and flourishing provinces of Szechuan owes its present fortunate condition to the westward flight of millions of people at the time of the Tae-ping rebellion. Yunnan, under the stimulating influence of the railway, is reviving once more. In the north the soya bean, which has suddenly brought so much wealth to Manchuria, is being planted more extensively in other provinces.

Apparently no degree of misgovernment can neutralize the effect of the astonishing industry and enterprise of the masses of the Chinese race. And the story is not really one of misgovernment alone, for in many places the Times correspondent found evidences of good administration and enlightened attempts at education and the encouragement of industries.

Of course, the picture has its sombre side. The Times correspondent reports that nothing effective is being done to upset the day when the great Yellow River, the bane of Northern China, will assuredly burst its frail bonds and carry a fresh war to the sea, overwhelming countless millions in destruction. Public works are not maintained. When the Chinese build a bridge they never take the trouble to keep it in repair. Better means of transportation are required. The whole Chinese West is crying out for railways.

Occasionally signs of military activity were encountered by the Times correspondent, but the forces were generally defective in equipment and not numerous. China does nothing practical to guard her western frontier. A fort which figures bravely on maps proved to contain four worn out guns. Before the Times correspondent writes:

"On the four Chinese who hold this frontier west and represent the masters of China, two at the time of my visit were weeding in the fields, another was washing some onion sprouts, and the fourth clad only in a jersey and pants was selling the basic at a cake stall in the street. No one was in uniform. All were ragged and unkempt. Their arms, which I saw in one dirty room, were rusty old tower muskets, emblems of author ty not weapons of offence."

He says further that "this frontier stronghold would fall before the resolute attack of three old ladies armed with broomsticks." His letters convey a strong impression of the peacefulness of those vast Chinese prairies.

A STRANGE CASE FOR THE HAGUE COURT.

For months England and France have been engaged in a diplomatic controversy over a Hindu refugee named Savarkar. This alleged offender escaped by swimming from a British ship that was conveying him as a prisoner to India, where a trial for a political offense awaited him. He made his escape from a bathroom through a porthole while the ship was waiting for passengers at Marseilles. He swam to the quay ran along it naked and reached the customs barrier. He appealed to a French gendarme to take him before a magistrate, but British detectives were after him, crying "Stop thief!" and the bewildered gendarme, innocent of legal knowledge, surrendered him to the representatives of King George.

Was this a violation of the right of political asylum? Is Savarkar entitled to freedom as a refugee, or can he be taken to India and tried, in spite of the Marseilles episode?

There has been much discussion of the subject, and the radical press in France has been greatly agitated over it. English radical papers sympathize with the defenders of Savarkar. The facts were not clearly established at first, and the two governments could not agree about them. Now, however, it has been decided that the case is a proper matter for arbitration by The Hague Tribunal. As it involves international law and treaty construction. If there were not so much unrest and danger in India, the Asquith government would hardly insist on arbitration, but would let France have her way. As it is, a display of strictness is considered necessary and wise.

"LADY WITH THE LAMP."

Dr. Ryan Praises Her Work in the Asylums.

A bulletin of the Ontario Hospitals for the Insane for October contains an interesting article from the pen of Dr. Ryan, Medical Superintendent of Rockwood Hospital, under the heading, "Training Schools for the Nurses at Ontario Hospitals for the Insane."

It is pointed out that it is incumbent on all the hospitals for mental diseases in Ontario that training schools for nurses shall be established, that the training shall be of a high standard, that thoroughness and efficiency in study and work shall mark the course from the beginning to the end. Examinations, both written and oral, are conducted by a competent board of examiners, selected by the Provincial Secretary, and certificates are issued to successful candidates.

Already the success of the movement has been placed beyond the realm of doubt, not, it is true, without the expenditure of time and labor that have brought their own return.

"We are witnessing," continues Dr. Ryan, "the passing of the asylum, with its depressing surroundings, its stigma, its hopelessness, and in its dreaded place we see the evolution of the hospital, with its trained nurse, with buoyant hopeful influence, with its atmosphere of advanced medical life. The idea of cage, restraint and a doomed life has given away to the new idea of modern nursing by day and night, to medical treatment to recovery, to a life of usefulness restored to family and to friends. The forbidding walls, the rooms locked and barred are giving place to well furnished wards, to open room with the sick patient and its trained nurse."

Even now it was not too early to speak of results. Already in those Ontario Hospitals, where the trained school had been conducted with the proper spirit, the statistics with respect to recoveries told their own story. There was even a greater return that might act as a sweet compensation. There was about the hospital another life, another atmosphere; there was the pleasure of giving and imparting to others something of one's own fire and enthusiasm, thus making a surrounding at times depressing and irksome become both a pleasure and a joy.

"And so," concludes the writer, "we can look forward with confidence to the future of the Ontario hospitals, to work well done to the award that waits on energy well directed and above all to the timely influence, the meritorious public service of the lady with the lamp."

HALF A MILLION BULBS.

C.P.R. Have Over Fifteen Hundred Gardens on System.

The Canadian Pacific Railway Co., inaugurated its floral scheme sixteen years ago with the result that there are now over 1500 gardens on the whole system. The employes are, of course, floral amateurs, but their taste and example have spread all across the continent. The enthusiasm this year has been greater than ever before, and the success that has followed their efforts shows the good use that has been made of the thousands of packages of seeds, plants and shrubs, which were distributed early in the spring. Prizes were awarded all over the system for the best gardens, and the winners' names will be announced shortly.

The company is now sending out over half a million bulbs for fall planting and early bloom in the spring of next year.

All new varities of flowers are procured yearly, and the markets of the world are sought for seeds and bulbs.

The work of transforming a transcontinental highway into a flowery path is being energetically carried on by the C.P.R. floral department, and already its beautifying effects are admiringly noticed by the thousands of travelers over the route.

JONATHAN'S EMANCIPATION.

His Sister-in-law Helped, and the Widow Helped Too.

By HELEN T. QUIGG.

Jerusha Amanda Dibbs was his brother's wife and had asserted and maintained her authority over both his brother and himself ever since she had become a member of the family. All morning he had been wondering uneasily for whom the storm was brewing, and, as her husband had got out of the house unscathed, he feared that he was in for it. He was standing by the window now, looking out aimlessly, wishing that it were over and yet not daring to avoid it, and when she entered the room in which he stood, clearing her throat emphatically, he turned toward her with a shiver of apprehension. He was a stout man with an air of mild indecision about him; about his soft, sandy hair, about his broad, rounded shoulders, about even his easy grayish lace sack coat.

"It's pretty capers you've been cutting around that Jennet widow," she said.

Jonathan looked, it must be confessed, not only surprised, but worried. "I hope I have not made any trouble for her," he said doubtfully.

"It's absurd, positively absurd," continued Mrs. Dibbs, dropping into a chair. "The idea of marrying that silly little fool, without a cent to her name, and at your age too."

Her brother-in-law had not really had an intention of any sort in regard to the widow. Indeed, he had never had a decided intention in regard to anything since Mrs. Dibbs had taken possession. Nevertheless he felt mildly indignant enough to make a faint retort. "I am sure, Amanda, you were not much younger when you married Lucien," said he in his quiet way.

The curling pins in which Mrs. Dibbs' front locks were confined bristled with anger.

"I should like to know," she began in a deep ominous voice, "what business that is of yours. And you know well enough, Jonathan Dibbs, that when I married your brother I was not nearly as old as you are. But anyhow"—her tone had become loud and resonant—"anyhow I never was such a childish simpleton as you are and always will be to the end of your days—to be fooled and taken in by a designing, no account little creature that's been dabbling for a husband ever since that poor invalid man of hers died, worried to death by her flightiness, I'll warrant! That's a pretty thing to happen to a man like you, isn't it?" Here Mrs. Dibbs choked, and Jonathan took advantage of the momentary check in her assault to inquire, "Who told you I was going to marry her, Amanda?"

"Who told me?" she burst out. "Who told me? Why, hasn't the little fool herself been telling it all around the town that you wanted to marry her and," in a high, simpering falsetto, "that she didn't know whether she ought to think of it or not, but that Mr. Dibbs was such a nice man and such a friend of her poor, dear Arthur and she would hate to disappoint him? Oh, the idiot!"

Jonathan Dibbs looked thoughtful. Suddenly the figure of the widow in question appeared before his mind's eye. It was a neat, retiring little figure, with soft brown hair and a small face, slightly sunburned, but sweet and tender, and with an individuality of its own that only a patient, conscientious life could have given it. He compared it with the large, obtrusive face and figure of his sister-in-law, and gradually he began to smile. A sudden sense of relief came to him in the contemplation of the little widow and a strange, unusual sense of pleasure, the joy of the awakening of a desire and a will in him which he had never before suspected.

"I guess the little woman really did think I wanted to marry her," he remarked pleasantly.

"Of course she did," replied Mrs. Dibbs smartly in her loud, scornful voice, not noting the change in her victim's attitude toward her. "Of course she did, the conceited little piece."

"I wouldn't be absurd if I were you, Amanda," said Jonathan Dibbs. "It doesn't suit your size." He had stopped very slowly and smoothly, but he gasped a little now that he had achieved this crude but radical assertion of his freedom. He had reason to gasp.

"What! You dare! You dare!" She stood before him glaring, and his unaccountable inclination to laugh at her frightened him more than her passion did. "You dare!" she shouted. "You—you brute! I knew that little fool had you in her clutches. I knew it. Did she tell you to say that? I might have known she would bring you to forget all honor and truth and duty. Don't you dare bring her to this house, you brute! Size, indeed! She isn't the size of a fence rail. That's your idea of beauty, I suppose. Just you dare to marry her!"

Jonathan Dibbs, though his heart quaked within him, walked boldly past her to the door. There he turned. "I may send you an invitation to the wedding if she cares to have you come. Anyhow I'll send you an announcement. Say goodby to Lucien for me, will you? Poor Lucien!" He grinned happily into her blazing eyes and, shutting the door with a bang as he went through the house, strode out into the street.

Mrs. Dibbs sank into a chair and after repeating several times the

He flung the gate of the little yard wide open and walked quickly along the path by the side of the house. The widow was on the porch trimming out some lace when he approached, and she looked up with face aglow when she perceived who it was. He lost no time in announcing the object of his visit. He took her hands in his and looked into her wide eyes. "Lillian," he said, "there is a train that leaves here for the city in forty minutes. I want you to get ready and go with me on that train if you can do it in so short a time."

The widow flushed and paled. "What for?" she asked.

"Why, to get married, of course," he said, surprised that she did not know. There was a silence, and when his arm stole around her, "Hurry up!" in a low voice and a tone whose anxiety did not refer to catching the train.

"I didn't know," she began slowly—"I didn't know we meant to get married. But if you wish it very much—oh, dear!" She hid her face suddenly in his coat.

"Now go," he said after a little, "because we want to catch that train. And wear that blue thing you have with the white spots—you know."

She smiled tremulously. No one had ever noticed her clothes before, and she had always half worshiped him anyhow, and now she was very much confused and very happy.

They managed to catch the train by means of a little running for it, and they rode gayly and breathlessly away from home toward the city. She stole a look at his beaming face and after awhile gathered courage to speak.

"Jonathan," she said softly, "how did I—what did I do to make you think of this? I never hoped"—

He laughed. "Oh, me dear," he said with a blush. They used to call him Jack when he was a big, slow, good natured schoolboy. "And what you did was to make a man of me, that is all," he continued. Then after awhile he laughed again. "We have my sister-in-law to thank for some of this," he remarked slowly, "but," he turned to her and spoke with sudden emphasis—"but you must not let it grieve you if we never have a chance to express our gratitude."

An Unintended Error.

The Critic—In the twelfth chapter of your novel you say, "As Clifford Dangerfield came slowly up the long garden walk Clarissa, with maidenly admiration, gazed upon him."

The Author—Well, isn't that all right?

The Critic—Hardly. How can Clarissa "gaze" after she has been blinded?

The Author—After she has been blinded? What are you talking about?

The Critic—Why, in the previous chapter, in which you describe Clifford's planing mill, you say, "For a long, fascinating minute Clarissa rested her beautiful brown eyes upon the swiftly revolving buzz-saw."

The Oldest Known Bookkeeping.

In the primitive villages of the Andes, scattered through Peru, Bolivia and Ecuador, the descendants of the ancient Incas depend upon the "kipu" for keeping all their accounts. It was in use when Pizarro conquered Peru, and the Andean Indians have never improved on it. It is the oldest known form of bookkeeping. The kipu is simply a collection of knotted strings. Differently colored strings denote different articles in daily use and ten distinct knots the ten numerals. In the absence of a written language it is a marvelously perfect system. Large transactions are conducted as accurately by it as if double entry bookkeeping were employed.

Very Fishy.

She was a fisherman's daughter, she wore her hair in a net, and she preferred love in a piscatorial way.

"My love," he whispered, "you hold first place in my heart! Although I flounder about in expressing myself, my sole wish is that you will save me from becoming a crabbed old bachelor. I shall stick to you closer than a limpet. From you a wink'll be the road to guide me. Together we will skate over life's rocks, and when I look at your hand beside me I shall say to myself, 'Fortune was mine when I put her ring there!'"

And then the lady dropped her eyes in sweet confusion and murmured:

"Pass the salt."

Didn't Choose Well.

Some years ago a certain candidate, a relative of one of the present New Brunswick Senators, was running for the House of Assembly of that province. One canvass against him was that he was an infidel; and in the course of his nomination speech an opponent who possessed a rather shady business reputation shouted: "You don't believe there is a God."

"Do you, Mr. B.?" asked the candidate.

"Of course I do," replied the opponent.

"Then why have you served the devil all your life?"

My Unknown Love.

I used to meet her in the park
Behind a prancing pair,
While this poor heart went pitapat
To see a form so fair.

I grew to know her lovely eyes,
Her cheeks that flush and pale.
But who ran see a maiden's blush
Beneath an auto veil?

In winter she's an Eskimo
In heavy furs arrayed.
In summer she is nothing but
A seggied mummy maid.

And so my heart has ceased to throb
At sound of horn or bell.
It might be Angelina.
If it were I could not tell.

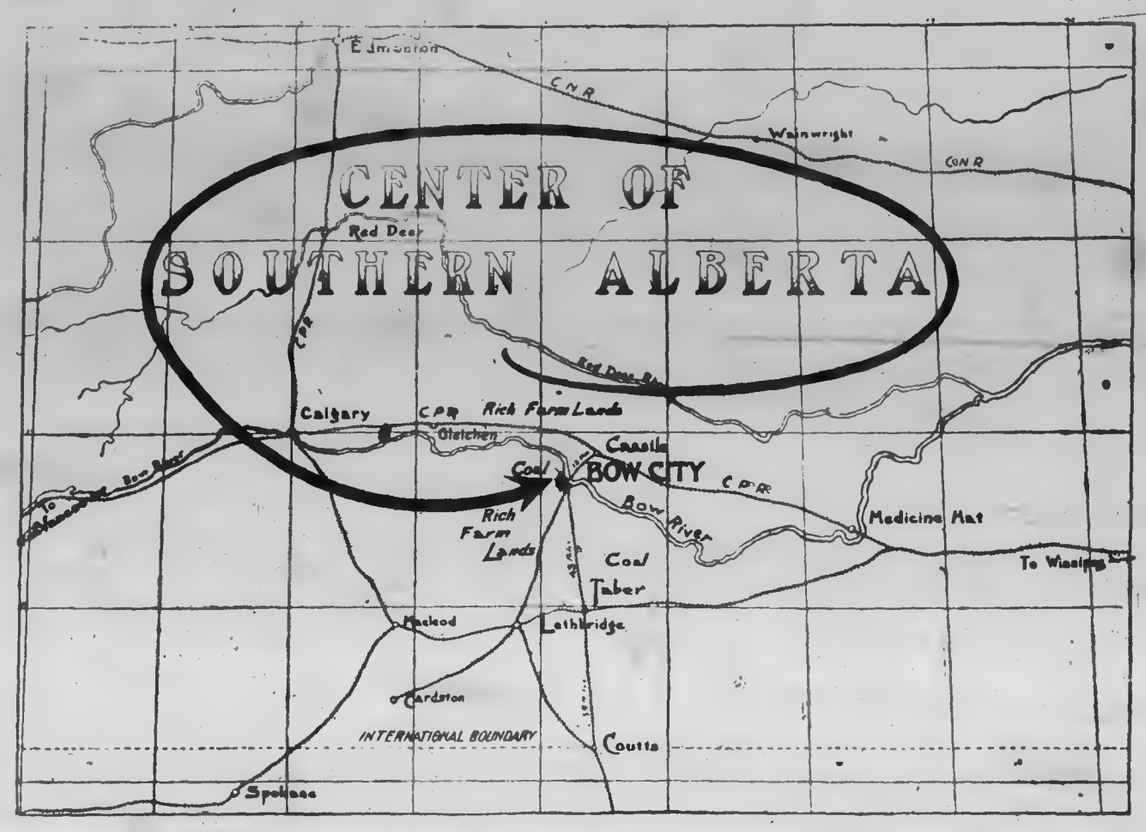
Footnote to the News.

"I see," remarked Mrs. Beemis, who was reading the evening paper aloud because her husband's eyes were tired, "that boots and shoes are going up."

"I wonder," said Mr. Beemis thoughtfully, "if all shoes will be affected. Do you suppose, for instance, that low shoes will be higher?"—Youth's Companion.

"GIVE YOUR SON A DEED"



If, by way of illustration, you will review the history of the men in your town who have made money out of real estate, you will find that in each and every instance their profits were made from real estate acquired at ground floor prices.

More money can be made by those who acquire a realty interest in a town at its inception per dollar invested than from investments made after a period of years.

Do you know that you can purchase with $5 cash a full sized residential lot in Bow City, Alberta

the logical location for a great city, a city which is destined to be known, the world over, as a market place annually for hundreds of thousands of bushels of grain, grown on the vast irrigated fields surrounding Bow City, a shipping point for coal from the great Bow Centre Collieries, and a purchasing depot for hundreds of prosperous farmers resident throughout Southern Alberta.

To-day is your opportunity to acquire an interest in Bow City at the ground floor price.

It will be too late six months hence, to apply for a lot in Bow City at the present prices and on such easy terms as are offered you in this advertisement.

Why not follow Russell Sage's advice given in a letter published some years ago to the fathers in the Western States:—

"Buy your son a lot in a town being the "centre of a great agricultural country—when "he comes of age that lot will be worth consid-"erable money and will provide a handsome "stake for him in life; it is at least most sub-"stantial life insurance—sure and certain."

Buy your son a $50 lot in Bow City, the coming metropolis of the western prairies. In a very short time he can re-sell the same at a big increase, which money he will find advantageous in business pursuits or in a college course.

Bow City, the centre of the great granary of Southern Alberta has a future concerning which no sane business man or banker has any doubt.

When you are assured of the success of the city, when you have proven to you beyond the shadow of a doubt that Bow City will, in the very near future, be one of the most active, one of the most progressive towns on the Western prairies, you should not hesitate to acquire at least one $50 residential lot, when same is on sale on such easy terms as 10 per cent cash and the balance 10 per cent per month until paid—a deed at any time.

Bow City is in the heart of a famous irrigated farming belt whose farmers are assured of a crop every year. They are prosperous and their prosperity will naturally enhance the value of Bow City real estate.

The great coal mines of Bow City will furnish work for 1,000 to 1,500 miners daily, those miners will constitute a substantial basis for a successful city.

The present owners of Bow City have decided that no licenses shall be issued for the sale of spirituous liquors; they intend that this great mining and agricultural centre shall be free from any traffic in intoxicating drinks—it will be a clean city.

Bow City is the headquarters of a railway which taps a territory unparalleled for richness in crops and natural resources.

The Sale of Bow City lots opened but a few days ago

If you are desirous of acquiring a $50 residential lot close in you should lose no time in making application by wire direct to the General Agents of the townsite, or to the nearest sub-agent.

Do not delay by sending your apulication by mail.

Wire at once your reservation for one or more lots

On receipt of wire your name will be placed on the closest-in unsold lot or lots and same will be held in your name, allowing you sufficient time for your cash payment, mailed same day you wire, to travel from your home to the head office.

You may find it to your advantage, if you are desirous of securing a business opening, or a business lot, to write for copy of the plans, booklets and descriptive matter concerning Bow City, all of which may be had on application, free of charge.

ROOSEVELT ON TARIFF.

Says He Had Nothing to Do With Drawing up Platform.

Hot Springs, Ark., Oct. 10.—Theodore Roosevelt got here at eight o'clock this morning after a 27-hour trip from Atlanta. He is to stay here until 5.30 o'clock, when he leaves for St. Louis, for a twenty-four hour stop. Col. Roosevelt reiterated, in a talk on the train this morning as it neared Hot Springs, the declaration he made at Atlanta on Saturday night, that he was not to be held accountable for the tariff plank in the Saratoga platform.

"I have already made my attitude with respect to the tariff known in my western speeches and in those at Saratoga and Syracuse," said the ex-president. "The Saratoga plank was not of my making. I have not changed my position on the tariff."

The ex-president, it was reported this morning would come out in his speech at Indianapolis next Thursday with a severe arraignment of the Payne-Aldrich law. His Indianapolis speech will be an effort to help along the candidacy of United States Senator Beveridge. John Kern who is opposing Beveridge, has stated on the stump that Roosevelt has straddled the tariff question by proclaiming himself as against it in the West and for it in the East through the Saratoga convention plank. The ex-president would not tell how he proposed to handle the tariff question until he gets to Indiana.

"Wait till we are there," quoth the colonel.

If Col. Roosevelt attacks the Payne-Aldrich tariff law in Indiana, it is suggested here that he will find himself in an embarrassing situation when he gets back to New York State to take up the fight for Henry L. Stimson, his candidate for governor.

Col. Roosevelt refused to comment today upon the action of the Indiana Democrats in getting Colonel Wm. J. Bryan to stump Indiana in the trail of the African hunter. Colonel Bryan is to be one day behind Col. Roosevelt, and according to word that has reached the Roosevelt special train, he is to attack Mr. Roosevelt for his attitude with respect to the tariff expressed in the Saratoga platform.

COMPULSORY MILITA SERVICE.

Lord Rosebery Predicts It Will Come Before November, 1916.

London, Oct. 19.—A great deal of controversy has been in evidence over the recent statement said to have been made and backed up by a wager that a compulsory military service will be established in Britain.

It is on record that a bet has been made by Lord Rosebery in a London club with Lord Chancellor Loreburn that by November 1916, compulsory militia service will be established in Great Britain. As Lord Rosebery is an imperialist in his sympathies, and still, nominally at least, a liberal, much stress is laid on his declaration by the makers of conscription literature, which is now enjoying a wide publicity in the United Kingdom. The conversion of such a man as the ex-premier to the belief that Great Britain must take a leaf from the experience books of Continental Europe is considered significant. It would be idle as well as futile to deny that the attachment of his name to the cause of which Spencer Wilkinson and others have been identified, has a certain amount of significance.

His opinion might be regarded unprofessionally, of course, as a greater value than that of Lord Roberts, whose profession would naturally be thought to influence his judgment.

As a historian as well as a stylist, Lord Rosebery commands respect and a large amount of the argument he advances is historical, but historical writers will admit that the parallel he draws between the case of Great Britain of today and the Prussia in the disastrous year of Jena is a stretch on the imagination and there will be a long controversy before John Bull will authorize the "King's press" as a permanent recruiting agent of the fighting forces.

First Offering

Atlanta Oil Company

Capital Stock $600.000---Par Value $1.00

No Preferred Stock. No Bonus or Free Stock. No Bonded Indebtedness
Lease Runs 40 Years All Stock in Treasury for Benefit of Holders. Incorporated Under Laws of State of California.
One-Sixth Royalty.

160 acres of absolutely proven oil land on Sulphur Mountain, adjoining and between the Liberty and Peritas Oil Companies' property. Ten miles from Santa Paula, Ventura Co., Calif.

FACTS—The property is absolutely proven territory, lying as it does with the UNION OIL CO. producing on the south, the LIBERTY OIL CO. producing on the west, the HARD OIL CO. producing on the north, which only recently erected its 30th rig, and Peritas Oil Co. to commence drilling on the east. Also it is located in a district of BIG PRODUCING COMPANIES, such as Ola Petroleum, Pyramid Oil Co., Canadian Queen, Capital Crude, Bard Oil and Asphalt Co., and others. THERE'S NO QUESTION ABOUT THE COMPANY GETTING OIL. It is possible that Liberty Oil Company's new well will be a gusher, which would make the ATLANTA OIL COMPANY stock worth par. Mr. Cowell, our Superintendent, knows every foot of the ground, and having his log book of Liberty property, which adjoins our land, and an experienced OIL MAN and we consider ourselves fortunate in obtaining his services. VENTURA CO. OIL represents the cream of the industry. It is the home of HIGH GRAVITY OIL. VENTURA COUNTY OIL means $1.00 a barrel at well. Costs from 2c to 4c to produce it. THE GREAT UNION OIL CO. got its start in VENTURA CO. and has paid over twenty-two millions in dividends. These GREAT ASSETS had a small beginning in the WILD HILL GUSHER, within SIGHT OF ATLANTA OIL CO. property. The demand for refining oil FAR EXCEEDS THE SUPPLY. The 35 refineries in California are crying for the product. The eastern high gravity fields are diminishing. The OHIO FIELDS, FOR INSTANCE, have fallen off one-third. The demand is caused by the increased market for gasoline. Throughout the world the number of automobiles and internal combustion gasoline engines is forcing up the price of high gravity crude petroleum. Eastern operators are now looking to VENTURA COUNTY, which are held to be the most extensive known. THIS IS THE FIRST ANNOUNCEMENT of ground floor offering of ATLANTA OIL CO., and may be oversubscribed at any time. One day's delay may mean you are too late. ACT NOW. WRITE FOR LATEST NEWS OF VENTURA OIL FIELDS.

The lumber for the derrick is on the ground and machinery has been ordered. Well No. 1 will be started as soon as drilling is installed. It should not take over six months to complete first well. Well No. 2, by conditions of lease, must be in operation by February 10th, 1911.

ADVANCES TO 20c AUGUST 20th.

SWINDLING BY TELEPHONE.

A Sharp Piece of Rascality Played on a Chicago Broker.

"It is a well known fact that no other section of the population avail themselves more readily and speedily of the latest triumphs of science than the criminal class," said a police inspector. "The educated criminal," he continued, "skims the cream from every new invention, if he can make use of it. No safe has yet been constructed that keeps out the shrewd and determined burglar, and that's the way in everything. But I don't recall a case in which this truth was more brilliantly demonstrated than the Maxwell case."

"What case was that?" queried an old newspaper man present. "I don't recollect of ever hearing of it before."

"No, I suppose you don't," said the inspector, musingly. "The fact of the matter is, it never was a case that properly belongs to the department, but I can speak of it now. You see it was at the time when the telephone had just been introduced into business and private use. George Maxwell—that's not the real name, but it will do as well—was at that time one of the most successful speculators on the Board of Trade, and was currently reported to have some time ago tipped the scale which marked the million. He was a young and handsome man, and he had just married a charming woman. It was an out and-out love match. A score or so of messages were dispatched every day during business hours. They contained such imported queries as: '2 p.m.—How are you now, lovey?' and replies like this: '2.35 p.m.—I sigh for you. How is my sweetheart?' Well, to save expenses and to increase the facility of communication, Mr. Maxwell connected his office with his home on Ashland Avenue by private telephone wires. He was one of the first men in Chicago to do so. About five out of six business hours were now spent by him at the 'hello.'

One day just before the close of business there was a ring at the telephone. The devoted husband, with a jump, was there. "What does my sweet pet wish?" he murmured.

"'I' no pet. You mistake me, sir,' came the reply, in an unmistakably masculine voice, a voice gruff and rasping, but very distinct.

"'Who are you, then?' asked the astonished millionaire.

"'I'm Thomas Jefferson Odell, the accomplished burglar, if you want to know.'

"'Repeat, please,' gasped the other.

"'Odell, the burglar,' came the answer over the wire.

"'The devil!' exclaimed Mr. Maxwell.

"'No, only one of his faithful servants. But now listen. I have no time to fool away. I and two of my pals have gained access to your house. The cook, the chambermaid, and your wife are lying here bound and gagged. The nigger coachman has been disposed of. Some bundles of oily rags have been judiciously distributed about the house, ready to be ignited.

"'You bloody scoundrel!' shouted the agonized husband, whose eyes were bulging during the recital.

"'Don't excite yourself. Now, sir, here is my proposal. If you should disappear from the telephone without according to it I shall set fire to the house. It's no use applying to the police, for we'll be too quick for them. You will see, Mr. Maxwell, that you are completely in my power. The only sensible thing you can do is to listen to my proposal and to agree to it.'

"'Oh, I wish I had my hand at your throat, you infernal villain!' shouted the millionaire, mad with rage.

"'But you know you haven't, so what's the use of talking that way? Let us talk business instead. I need a loan of $20,000 cash. I need it at once. If you are inclined to lend me that sum without guarantee, I shall leave your house with my pals in exactly the same condition in which I found.'

"'You are ruining me,' groaned Maxwell. 'And I don't think I have that much money in cash in the office safe.'

"'You'll force me to commit an atrocious deed,' came the remorseless reply.

"'All right, then yes, I'll pay, but to whom?'

"'It is now 5.15 exactly. At this very moment my pal has entered your office to receive the money. You will pay him and he will tell you the watchword agreed to between us, which you will telephone to me at once.'

"Mr. Maxwell turned round. A stranger of pleasant mein, dressed in the height of fashion, stood before him. Said the visitor: 'I have called to collect a little matter of $20,000 for a friend of mine, Thomas Jefferson Odell.'

"'Correct!' replied Mr. Maxwell, who went to the safe, took from it two bundles containing $10,000 each, and handed the money to the stranger. The latter ascertained that the amount was correct, then placed the money inside his two breast pockets.

"'And the watchword?' queried Mr. Maxwell.

"'Do right and interfere not!' replied the burglar's confederate with a great deal of dignity, and strode out of the office with all the grandezza of a Spanish hidalgo.

"'Do right and interfere not!' joyfully shouted Mr. Maxwell through the telephone. 'And now you'll leave my premises, Mr. Odell, won't you? And as for my wife—'

"'Have no fear Mr. Maxwell,' replied the man at the other end. 'You have to deal with a burglar and a gentleman.'

Mr. Maxwell locked his office, got into his buggy, and drove out to his house at a Maud S. pace. The more closely he approached, the keener his fear of catastrophe became. But as he stopped at the gate he noticed nothing out of the way. He sprang up the stairs, two at a time, and entered the pretty boudoir of his prettier wife. She was quietly reading.

"'How you must have suffered, my angel!' he cried, and a sob shook his voice.

"The young wife looked up astonished. 'Suffered? I?'

"'That burglar, you know—it must have been awful. Oh, you poor darling!'

"'Why, George dear, what is the matter? You speak in riddles.'

"'But didn't he gag you,' he asked.

"'Now, see here, I wish you would talk sense. What do you mean?'

"After Mr. Maxwell had finished the recital of his adventure, he asked: 'Wasn't there somebody here using my telephone?'

"'Why, yes, there was,' replied Mrs. Maxwell. 'A young and well-dressed man came in, introduced himself to me as "Mr. Thomas Jefferson Odell, a speculator," and requested permission to make use of your private telephone to send you a message. Of course, I gave him permission. He used the telephone but a couple of minutes and then came back into the parlor, thanked me for the favor I had done him and went away, saying the telephone was a very useful invention—it facilitated business so much.'

"'And that was all?' asked Mr. Maxwell; 'he didn't gag you and the servants? He was alone? He didn't offer violence to you?'

"'Why, no! He was very polite and gentlemanly—quite as much as you are at present, George.'

"'Oh, the devil!' exclaimed George, with a wild outburst. 'What an infernal ass I've made of myself. Excuse me, pet, but I can't help it. I'll drive over and tell the police about it.'

"'That's what he did,' concluded the inspector, 'and that's the way I came to know about it. But after talking the thing over with me and after consulting with the smartest detectives we had at the time, we came to the conclusion that there was no chance of recovering the money. The pair were too slick. And in spite of all we've done since then we've heard nothing more of the $20,000, nor of Mr. Thomas Jefferson Odell and his pal."

A PECULIAR THEORY.

People of Small Stature Better Natured Than Those of Average Size.

"I have a theory," said a Pittsburg man, "which is not founded on anything that I ever read or anything that I ever heard anybody say. It is entirely original with me, though it is quite possible a good many other people may have entertained the idea before.

"Produce your theory, please, and end this terrible suspense."

"The theory is concerning little men and women. I believe that people of small stature are far better natured than those of the average size. Did you ever see a small man who wasn't good natured and inclined to take a rosy view of life? And did you ever know a little woman who wasn't jolly and full of fun? I've studied humanity a good deal and I never yet have encountered a small person who was surely a misanthrope. Who are the pessimists? Lank, tall, raw boned, dyspeptic individuals almost invariably. Did you ever see a man of five feet six inches that was melancholy? No, and you are not likely to. I tell you the world would be a mighty lone some place without the little grown up people. They make more than half the fun there is in this vale of tears.

"Little men are invariably good story tellers. They are hearty laughers; they are quick to see the humorous side of any question, and they relish a joke, even if it is at their own expense. They make the firmest friends, and adhere to those whom they like through thick and thin. They are seldom quarrelsome, and never conceited. They are often sensitive, but quick witted people generally are. Altogether they are the best folks in the world to get along pleasantly with whether in a business or social way."

Cressman's

How to Govern the Actor

The perplexing question of "How to Govern the Actor" has at last been settled, at least, it is settled so far as the New Theatre Company is concerned, and this institution which is so rapidly creating new precedents on the stage, has now set an example which many managers might follow with profit. The answer to the question of how to govern the actor is to let the actors govern themselves. For be it known that because of the nature of his profession, temperamental, and by reason of his being compelled to travel far and wide, he is often petulant, and has often a score of grievances to relate.

Every Rialto is swarming with actors who will tell you how badly they were treated by Manager So-and-So during the season. It may be a matter of dressing-rooms, or parts, or lower berths, or the proper interpretation of certain parts, or costuming or precedence on the programme, but rest assured that your average actor as a rule has a grievance.

Confronted with the usual perplexities of a manager, Director Winthrop Ames, of the New Theatre, decided to go back to the old system of government which his New England ancestors had established, and, therefore, formed a sort of model township government among the three-score members of the New Theatre Company. Under the scheme as worked out by Mr. Ames, the company each month, by ballot, selects a committee of three, which has complete and entire charge and control of the company. This committee hears all grievances if an actor is piqued because of being assigned to a certain dressing room, or if an actress resents the fact that another woman in the company wears the same colored gown as she does, the complaint is laid before the committee and the edict of this tribunal is final. So well has the scheme worked out that Mr. Ames is recommending it with fervor to all the managers and producers.

Under the rules as laid down, no member of the company may serve on the committee two months in succession, nor may any member of the company serve more than three terms in one season. This popular system of government has taken from the shoulders of the director a tremendous amount of detail, and has freed him almost entirely from the tedious task of listening to the complaints of thespians. To carry out further the idea of the old township government, a monthly meeting is held on the order of the old time meetings. There is a general discussion of matters pertaining to the company before the organization went on to-day there was much speculation as to who would get the star's dressing rooms in the various theatres. Inasmuch as the New Theatre is practically an all-star association, no particular player being featured it seemed as if the star's dressing room would have to be locked up to some one's feelings hurt. Mr. Ames presented the matter to the controlling committee and asked it to assign the dressing rooms. This was done, and it so happened that the star's dressing room is occupied by two of the least important members of the company.

During the season at the New Theatre, Mr. Ames submitted copies of each of the new productions to the committee, and it in turn called a general session for the purpose of discussing the play, its theme, and its characters. The actors at the New Theatre have certain advantages which the ordinary actor does not possess. In the first place, there is a library in the building which contains more than 5,000 volumes on the drama and dramatic literature. Then, again, there are no less than five rehearsal rooms where groups of players may hold private rehearsals. In the matter of convenience, the New Theatre player also has quite an advantage over his brothers; each dressing room is fitted out much in the order of a room in a modern hotel, with tub and shower baths, clothes-closets and vari-colored lights to try the effects of different schemes of make-up and cosmetics. Of course some of the dressing-rooms are nearer the stage than others, but all are assigned by the committee, and not once has either Mr. Ames or Manager Lyons been troubled by an actor complaining of his location.

The road tour of the company affords the best opportunity to see the self-government plan in actual operation. The committee serving this month consists of Ferdinand Gottschalk, Miss Olive Wyndham, and Miss Thais Lawton. The women members of the company have equal rights of franchise with the men, and one rule of the organization is there must never be three members of the same sex on the committee at one time. The subjects which the road committee has had to deal with are: The assignment of parlor car seats and sleepers, the selection of dressing-rooms, time for rehearsals, arrangement of baggage, the assignment of certain players to appear at benefits which are always held at various times of the year in different cities, and the supplying of proper reading material for the company in trains, and the location of the best hotels in every city visited. Of course the company is not allowed to interfere in any way with the selection of the repertoire and the assignment of parts, as this is a matter which rests entirely in the hands of the Director Ames and Business Director Lee Shubert. Nor is the choice of plays left to the judgment of the actors, since this is considered strictly a managerial function.

The result of this system has proved highly satisfactory and encouraging, and Mr. Ames believes that it is a safe solution of the perplexing and vexing question which suddenly confronts the manager as to "How to Get Along With the Actor." Every player is bound on his honor to obey the dictates of the committee, and as yet, although the system has been in operation for six months, no rebels have been found in the ranks.

BRITISH JUSTICE.

A Lesson From Crippen Trial for Every Country.

Montreal, Oct. 28—Much favorable comment has been made of the speed and fairness of Rhich British justice is meted out. The recent trial of Dr. Crippen has opened the eyes of the civilized world.

Dr Crippen has been tried and found guilty in the time which would have been occupied by a United States court in securing a jury. There is a brisk and businesslike air about the proceedings in British criminal courts which seems altogether lacking in the tribunals across the border from Canada. The British juror seems less susceptible to freak pleas; the British lawyer seems less prone to make them. Alienists and all that numerous band of experts which are becoming barnacles upon Uncle Sam's law courts are held in restraint by the regulations and practices of English juries.

Canadian courts are at the parting of the ways. There is a general feeling, in Ontario especially, that too many criminals escape unconvicted, that too much attention is paid to technical objections; that there are too many ways of eluding justice. The Dr. Crippen case is a model for the courts of the Province to follow. Such examples of prolonged trials and retrials and final escape as are afforded by the records of United States procedure are the evils which the Province must avoid.

TOOTH INSURANCE IS PLANNED.

Hoosier Dentist Will Issue Novel Policy Throughout Country.

Evansville, Ind., Oct. 29.—A tooth insurance company has just been organized here by Dr. Norman Haas, a local dentist. He proposes to insure teeth for $1.50 per year, and if a policy-holder loses a tooth in any way Dr. Haas will replace it with a new one. He plans to operate in every state in the Union and possibly in Canada and Mexico.

Don't wash and scrub, bend and rub over a hot wash tub; sift a little GOLD DUST in the water, loosen the dirt, and save rubbing

Soap is not a bit of cleansing good until it is mixed with water and made into suds. And then it still needs the rub-rub-rub of human muscle.

GOLD DUST works in an entirely different way—instantly and totally dissolves in hot or cold, hard or soft water—and, without any aid from you, starts to cleanse.

GOLD DUST is more than soap—better and more economical. It is a powder of magic power—but rightly directed power, that leaves the wash white, sweet, wholesome.

Use your brains, not your muscle!

Throw away your soap, get GOLD DUST, and simply use it according to the directions on the package.

"Let the GOLD DUST Twins do your work."

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

MONTREAL MURDER

Being Sifted Out By Detectives of That City.

Montreal, Oct. 27.—The authorities think that it will be a long time to clear up the mystery in the murder of thirteen year-old Cecile Michaud, because there is such a wide range of missing evidence between the girl's disappearance and the discovery of the body.

It was decided by the Board of Control yesterday to offer a reward of $500 to any person who would bring evidence sufficient to lead to the arrest of the guilty parties in connection with the girl's death.

That Petrault and Chevrier, who are now held on suspicion, are not the culprits at all, but that the girl was led away by other parties staying in the Belliveau Hotel that night, is regarded by the authorities as the most probable theory. This is strongly supported by what happened in the hotel, just prior to the girl's disappearance. First, the two girls—Cecile Michaud and Bernadette Dagenais were with Perrault and Chevrier in a parlor of the hotel. Then the Dagenais girl went home, and Perrault went away, according to the evidence. At this point Chevrier was called downstairs, owing to a dispute about the payment of his bill. It was then that other parties in the hotel that night probably stepped in and played an important part in the story.

The disappearance of Gaudet, the waiter at the Belliveau Hotel, where the girl was last seen with Chevrier, has complicated things. The detectives are searching for Gaudet, and think that he is in the city. The doctors have not been able to determine the cause of death.

WOMEN'S HATS PUZZLE PASTOR

Kokomo, Ind., Oct. 29.—The perplexing problem of keeping the men in attendance upon the church services and to permit the women members to wear the monster hats they now affect is up to the Kokomo ministers, to whom some of the men have been complaining. Certain men have ceased going to church and have frankly given the reasons. The ministers hesitate to request the women to remove their hats for fear of offense.

Hurt Whilst Out Shooting.

Mr. Wm M. Jones, an employee of the Canadian General Electric Company, who resides at 299 Pearl Ave., was the victim of a painful accident on Monday. While out shooting with a companion he slipped in walking along a log and fell heavily, fracturing his hip bone. His friend went for assistance, and Mr. Jones was brought to the city where his injuries were attended to by Dr. McCullough.

Age Certificates in Junior Race.

It seems that the junior race on Thanksgiving Day was run under protest, some of the junners complaining that Willie Edwards of Keene, the winner, and G. Holnbeck of Cobourg, who finished third, were not eligible under the age clause. Both boys claimed that they were under eighteen. Before the prizes will be awarded, however, they will be compelled to produce birth registration. Otherwise the prizes will be awarded to Frank Leahy first, Cecil Armstrong, second, J. B. Mann, third, and Nagle Phelan fourth.

Chief Howard Made Auditor.

The Provincial Fire Chiefs' Convention yesterday morning in Toronto, decided to seek legislation that would give their apparatus right of way over all other traffic on streets. The following officers were elected:—President, John Atkin, London; Vice Pres., J. S. France, Woodstock, Secretary, L. G. Finch, Guelph; Treasurer, Kerr, Galt; Auditor, D. Collins, North Toronto, Wetman, Sault Ste. Marie, W. A. Howard, Peterborough. The next convention is at Sault Ste. Marie.

All Saints' Weekly Program.

The Rural Deanery will meet in new All Saints' Church, at the invitation of the rector, on Thursday and Friday of this week. On Thursday evening at 8 o'clock divine service will be held at which Venerable Archdeacon Warren will be the special preacher. On Friday morning there will be Holy Communion at 8 o'clock, and on Friday an address will be given on Temperance and Moral Reform by Rev. J. Bennet Anderson, and Rev. Mr. Carpenter of St. John's church, will read a paper.

Local Runners Win Cups.

Harold Smith and W. Willis of the Y.M.C.A. cleaned up their races in the athletic meet at Deseronto Monday, which had been postponed from Labor Day. Smith won the two-mile affair, setting up a new record while Willis was an easy winner in the five mile race, each getting a handsome silver cup for their good work.

Lecture at All Saints' Church.

On Friday evening next, November 7th, a lecture will be given in All Saints' Parish Hall by Dr. Symonds. The following ladies have kindly consented to act as patronesses: Mrs. D. H. Lundy, Mrs. R. A. Morrow, Mrs. (Hon.) Hamilton, Mrs. R. R. Hall, Mrs. Jas. Kendry, Mrs. A. E. Coulthard, Mrs. H. S. Bennett, Mrs. E. A. Langfeldt, Mrs. J. R. Stratton and Mrs. John Crane.

Tribute to Late Mr. Stevenson.

With the broad-minded views that characterize his actions, Rev. Canon Davidson, rector of St. John's church at the Sunday morning service in that church, made a reference to the death of Mr. James Stevenson. He said that many citizens present hardly understood how large a factor Mr. Stevenson had been in the upbuilding of Peterborough. Mr. Stevenson's work for the city continued even in his declining years and was exemplified in his personal work at Central Park. Mr. Stevenson had worked for the people at large and had served in many public offices. Canon Davidson hoped that other local citizens might emulate Mr. Stevenson's example.

Advice to Water Consumers.

The following advice was received yesterday by the Times from the Chief Health Officer for Ontario, and speaks for itself:

A level teaspoonful of chloride of lime should be rubbed into a teacup of water. This solution should be diluted with three cupfuls of water, and a teaspoonful of the whole quantity should be added to each two gallon pail of drinking water. This will give .4 or .5 parts of free chlorine to a million parts of water and will in ten minutes destroy all typhoid and colon bacilli or either dysentery producing organisms in the water. Moreover, all traces of the chlorine will rapidly disappear.

This method of purification has been tested with Toronto Bay water inoculated with millions of bacteria. Every germ has been destroyed and it has been unnecessary to boil the water.

ENGINE REACHES COBOURG.

First One Steamed Into Town Last Week and Sheds are Going Up.

Cobourg, Oct. 27.—Work was started this week on the freight sheds of the Canadian Northern Ontario Railway here. They will be located about two hundred yards east of Division street. The work of excavation for the station is also begun. The steel is laid for the C.N.R. from Brighton to Cobourg, and this week the first engine steamed in to the town. The gang of Italians who have been working between here and Grafton have gone on down to Shannonville, where construction work is in progress.

English Regt Coming

London, Nov. 1.—The Pall Mall Gazette says preparations are being made to send King Edward's Horse formerly the King's Colonials, to Canada in 1911. At present it is not decided whether the tour will have financial aid from the home government or not, but the undertaking will be independent of such help, since a band of rich Londoners are prepared to foot the bill.

The proposed visit of King Edward's Horse was no doubt inspired by the success of the Queen's Own visit to England.

"I do not believe there is any other medicine so good for whooping cough as Chamberlain's Cough Remedy," writes Mrs. Francis Turpin, Junction City, Ore. The remedy is also unsurpassed for colds and croup. For sale by all dealers.

ARREST CREATES SURPRISE.

Luther Bucker Says He Is Not Guilty of Shooting Maude Washington.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Oct. 31.—The arrest of Luther Buker as being the assailant of Maude Washington has created a great deal of comment. Buker, who is a well known carpenter, has a wife and two children and resides on Gray street. He has hitherto been looked upon as a man of integrity and good character.

The woman was a tenant of his home some time ago and he had trouble with her about the non payment of rent. Buker was compelled to eject her from the house, and it is said, from the life the woman led and being a cocaine fiend and a physical, if not a mental wreck, with three bullets in her head, she probably gave the name of Buker as her assailant to the police in her partial consciousness.

For pains in the side or chest dampen a piece of flannel with Chamberlain's Liniment and bind it on over the seat of pain. There is nothing better. For sale by all dealers.

A BITTER FIGHT WILL BE WAGED

London, Nov. 1.—After a conference of judges and attorney today, it was decided to hear Dr. Crippen's appeal next Saturday instead of next Thursday, the original date decided upon.

Huntley Jenkins, of Crippen's counsel, requested during the conference that the hearing on the appeal be postponed in order to give the defence more time to prepare for it. Justice Darling granted the request.

London, Nov. 1. — Announcement was made today of the plans for the appeal of Dr. H. H. Crippen, under death sentence for the murder of his wife, Belle Elmore Crippen. They revealed that the fight will be the most bitter waged for a generation in British criminal courts to save the life of a condemned man. The question at issue involves a triple contention, for Crippen is not alone in the fighting against his conviction and sentence upon points of law and fact, but he is battling to be present when the arguments are presented on Thursday.

CRIPPEN WANTS TO ATTEND.

Crippen's appeal will be heard by Justices Darling, Pickford and Coleridge of the Criminal Court of Appeals.

Barrister Newton, chief counsel for Crippen, has directed an appeal against the decision of Justice Ridley, forbidding Crippen to be present when the arguments are presented.

The contentions, as outlined today by Mr. Newton, set up the claim that Dr. Crippen was not convicted either by the facts or the law governing criminal cases. Mr. Newton will claim that sufficient evidence was not adduced to show that the remains found in the cellar of Crippen's home at 39 Hilldrop Crescent, North London, were those of Belle Elmore.

Just why Crippen is so anxious to be present in person Mr. Newton did not reveal.

Crippen is under sentence to die upon the scaffold on November 8th. It was reported today that a stay of execution would be hardly granted as the decision of the appeal judges would likely be handed down before that time.

TO SHUT CRIPPEN OUT.

London, Nov. 1.—Justice Ridley today refused Crippen leave to be present at the hearing of the appeal. Mr. Newton, on behalf of Crippen, appealed against the refusal.

VOL. XXXIII NO. 248 PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO THURSDAY NOVEMBER 3 1910 PRICE TWO CENTS

WILL REPORT ON BI-LINGUAL SCHOOLS

DR. F. W. MERCHANT HAS BEEN SENT FROM TORONTO TO ESSEX AND KENT COUNTIES.

Sketch of His Career—Yachting Is His Recreation—Thorough and Systematic in His Work.

Toronto, Nov. 2.—The Ontario Government has sent T. W. Merchant, B.A., D. Paed, to investigate the bilingual schools in the counties of Essex and Kent. To find a man to look into the question the government did not have to go out of its own Department of Education. For the last two years Dr. Merchant has been connected with that department as inspector of inspectors.

Dr. Merchant was educated chiefly at Albert College, Belleville. From that he went to educating others and the youth of Ingersoll, Port Dover, Owen Sound, Stratford, and London have known and respected him. In 1899 he was appointed principal of the London Normal school, where he remained until his appointment to the Provincial Department.

Dr. Merchant's chief hobby is education. When he was just a teacher he put strange things into test tubes to illustrate to youthful minds the laws of chemistry. He wrote a text book on physics. He has also sufficiently studied the youthful mind and the best means of overcoming its deficiencies to get his doctor's degree in pedagogy, with high honors at Toronto University.

Dr. Merchant realizes that a man cannot spend all his time educating or being educated, and when he wants a change he goes in for yachting. He is the proud possessor of a steam launch. He is a Presbyterian and, some people say, a Liberal, but if that is true, he never made much noise about it, and has generally been ranked as a neutral.

Among those who know his work, Dr. Merchant is noted for his thoroughness.

"He is systematic and logical," said one, "and anything he undertakes he will carry out to its logical conclusion no matter whom it hurts. I think we may look for a good independent report on the schools in Essex."

HALL'S BRIDGE.

We were treated to a genuine snow storm on Friday of last week, which has left the roads in a very bad condition.

The steamer Water Lily passed through on Saturday with her scow load of pigs for the Matthews Co., Peterboro, which Mr. Stabler has been fatting for the market.

Deer hunting is the order of the day now.

Miss Beatrice Clarkson of Lakehurst is at present the guest of her brother Mr. John Clarkson.

Mrs. Thos. Fulton and Miss Edith spent Thursday in Lakefield.

Miss Mary Pearson spent Sunday at home.

Mr. Caldwell preached his farewell sermon on Sunday on the Presbyterian Circuit. A student from Queen's University, Kingston, is expected to fill the pulpit on Sunday next.

Mr. James Irwin returned last week from visiting friends at Edmonton, Vermillion, Sask., also in Northern Ontario.

Mr. A. G. Shearer spent a couple of days in Peterboro last week.

Big Convention of Teachers.

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 3.—The school teachers of Wisconsin will be much in evidence in Milwaukee during the remainder of this week. The fifty-eight annual convention of their State association will begin today with a record-breaking attendance, two theatres and several large halls being necessary to accommodate the general sessions and side conferences. Features of the opening session this morning were an address of welcome by Mayor Seidel and the annual address of President G. H. Landgrof of Marinette. Other prominent speakers to be heard during the three days' convention include Prof. P. P. Claxton of the University of Tennessee, Isabel Bevier of the University of Illinois, Dr. Ida C. Bender of Buffalo, Mayor John Lamont of Wausau, Dr. A. E. Winship of Boston, Prof. J. C. Monaghan of New York and Dr. Hartin G. Baumbaughm of Philadelphia.

PRESENTED A PARSONAGE.

Donation of One to the Methodist Church at Omemee by J. C. Eaton.

Lindsay, Nov. 2.—Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Eaton of Toronto, presented the new John McCrae Memorial Parsonage to the trustees of the Methodist Church at Omemee Monday, the ceremony being a very interesting one. A large number were present from outside points, including a large number from Toronto, who arrived on the private car "Eatonia." The house is up-to-date and modern in every respect.

OLD RESIDENT GONE.

Mr. John Bennett of Otonabee, Joins the Great Silent Majority.

Yesterday morning, one of Otonabee's oldest and best known residents, in the person of Mr. John A. Bennett passed away, at his residence, lot 22, concession 13, at the age of 64 years. He was a son of the late John Bennett. He was also well known in the city, being a member of Mark street Methodist church. He leaves to mourn his loss a wife, one daughter and two sons. The daughter is Miss Mable, residing at home, and the sons are Messrs. John Bertram and Robert Matchett also residing at home.

The funeral will take place tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock from the family residence to Little Lake cemetery.

Capetown, Nov. 3.—The Duke of Connaught will today inaugurate the great Selborne Dock recently completed at Simonstown. Tomorrow His Royal Highness will attend the opening of the first Union parliament. The event will be marked by elaborate ceremonies.

Pennsylvania Congress of Mothers.

(Special to The Times.)

Chester, Pa., Nov. 3.—Delegates and visitors from far and near have arrived here to take part in the eleventh annual convention of Pennsylvania Congress of Mothers and Parent Teachers' Association. The gathering has its formal opening tonight and the sessions will continue over Friday and Saturday. Mrs. George K. Johnson of Philadelphia will preside and many prominent women will be included among the speakers.

PREMIER BRIAND WAS ASKED TO FORM A NEW CABINET

FRENCH PREMIER STEPS DOWN OWING TO SOCIALISTIC ATTACKS.

Resignation of "Great Socialistic Cabinet"—Retiring Premier Defended His Course in Crushing the Recent Disorders and Thereby Invoked Attacks from Socialists.

Paris, Nov. 2.—Premier Briand, who, with the other members of the Fienco cabinet resigned today, this afternoon was asked by President Fallieres to form a new cabinet.

M Briand asked until tonight to return a reply, stating that he wished to consult with his friends and political associates.

Paris, Nov. 2.—Premier Briand today tendered the resignation of the Cabinet to President Faillieres. The country now faces a ministerial crisis as the result of the Socialistic attacks upon the government following the great railway strike. Briand was forced to abandon office by the assaults of the Socialists, who declared that he had betrayed them. The present cabinet was formed July 24, 1909.

SOCIALISTS ARE JUBILIANT.

Socialists, who rejoiced when Briand was chosen as premier, were jubilant today. For his work in crushing disorder during the recent strike he had been branded as a traitor to the party tenents.

The interpellations of the Socialists and the subsequent disorder in the Chamber of Deputies last week, was the final act that caused the premier's action today.

THE RETIRING CABINET.

The cabinet which retired today was made up as follows.

Premier and Minister of the Interior and Public Worship—Aristide Briand.
War—General Brun.
Marine—Admiral de la Payrere.
Justice—M. Barthou.
Foreign Affairs—M. Pichon.
Finance—Georges Cochery.
Education—M. Doumergue.
Public Posts and Telegraphs—M. Millerand.
Commerce—Jean Dupuy.
Agriculture—M. Ruau.
Colonies—M. Troullot.
Labor—M. Viviani.
This cabinet was formed by Briand and after a great deal of difficulty, and was hailed at that time as "the great Socialistic Cabinet."

BRIAND WAS PIVOT.

Briand was the pivot on which the whole drama ending in the cabinet's fall turned. Smarting under the repeated attacks of M. Jaure, leader of the Socialists, and others, he leaped to his feet during a meeting of the deputies, and defending the cabinet's suppression of the strike as a "revolutionaty outbreak," exclaimed:

"If the actual laws had been insufficient, we would not have hesitated to resort even to illegality for the purpose of preserving the fatherland."

AN UPROAR FOLLOWED.

A tremendous uproar followed this declaration, and one Socialist tried to fight his way to the tribune to attack Briand. He was freely denounced for "throwing the military resources of the country to the service of capital."

Briand will probably be asked to form a new ministry.

Paris, Nov. 2.—The entire French Cabinet, headed by Premier Briand, today tendered its resignation to President Fallieres. The resignation it is understood is for the purpose of reorganizing and dropping from the cabinet certain ministers whose views are not in accord with those of Briand. President Fallieres, requested the ministers to assure him that they would remain in their positions for a short time.

It is believed that a new cabinet headed by Briand as prime minister will be ready for presentation to the Chamber of Deputies tomorrow, for confirmation.

The resignations of the ministers were tendered after a stormy session of the cabinet.

In forming the new cabinet, Aristide Briand will likely remain Premier and Minister of the Interior and Public Worship, and retain the following: M. Millerand, Minister of Public Works, Posts and Telegraphs; M. Pichon, Minister of Foreign Affairs; Dupuy, Minister of Commerce; General Brun, Minister of War; Admiral B. De La Payrere, Minister of the Navy; and M. Cheron, and M. Dujardin-Beaumetz.

THE CAUSE OF IT ALL.

The cause of the resignation is said to be the difference of opinions between the ministers, reaching a climax in the recent railway strike, which Briand put down by the free use of the troops, and the ordering of the strikers to the colors as reserves, and forcing them to fill their own places; under military supervision It is said that several of the ministers desired to resign at the time, but all agreed to retain their portfolios until the affair had ended and the storm in the Chamber of Deputies weathered.

Briand by his sensational speeches in the chamber Saturday and Sunday, in which he declared illegal methods of government were excusable to put down illegal acts of citizens

PREMIER TO FORM NEW MINISTRY

(Special to The Times.)

Paris, Nov. 2.—Premier Briand tonight informed President Fallieres that he would accede to latter's request to form a new cabinet.

NEW REPUBLIC IS IN DANGER

(Special to The Times.)

Lisbon, Nov. 2.—The new Republic of Portugal is threatened with a military revolution. The second and 5th regiments today addressed a round robin to Provisional President Braga, declaring that they were prepared for an insurrection if they were not granted the promised promotions and pensions for helping overthrow the monarchy.

The government probably will yield.

GAVE BLOOD TO SAVE BROTHER

BY GIVING QUART OF HIS BLOOD —REMARKABLE OPERATION AT GENERAL HOSPITAL.

Both Young Men Survive and the Amputation of the Leg of Norman Allen Is Also Avoided—Great Precautions Taken—And Sixty or Seventy Doctors Watched Rare Operation in Toronto.

Toronto, Nov. 2.—This afternoon at the General Hospital a number of doctors had presented to them a "specimen patient" who stands unique in the record of medical science in Toronto. Most people have read of the rare and somewhat dangerous operation known as the "transfusion of blood," by which the blood of one person is pumped into the veins of another, but never until the last week has the operation been performed in Toronto. The operation is rare, first because it is not often that there are patients with the peculiar conditions that require such drastic treatment, and second, because it can only be performed when the patient has a friend who is willing to risk his life for him. In this case the sacrifice was offered by the patient's brother, who, knowing the risks and counting the full cost displayed by his act a fraternal affection as beautiful as any told in story or legend.

SEVERED MAIN ARTERY.

The patient was a young man from Sutton, Ont., near Lake Simcoe, named Norman Allen, who while working in an ice house with a chisel bar, the sharp instrument used in chiselling ice, had the misfortune to gash his leg below the knee, severing the main artery and losing a tremendous amount of blood. The wound was treated at the hospital and for a while the patient seemed to be doing well, but the hemorrhages recurred and his system was so depleted of the vital fluid that his life was despaired of. It looked as if it would be impossible to get the wound in the leg to heal and the surgeons knew that the patient could not afford to lose any more blood on its account. Even the drastic treatment of amputation was precluded because the young man had already had his resistance so lowered that he was not a fit subject for the operation.

So the men of science were in a dilemma, and the patient appeared to have a very slim chance of recovery indeed. And then, as a last desperate resource, it was decided to attempt to restore to the devitalized system by the transfusion of enough blood to help him fight his way back to life and health, and that unhampered by the loss of his limb.

A transfusion, as stated, is a very rare and dangerous operation. Its success depends upon the most rigid precautions and the finest technique. Briefly, it is carried out by opening the artery of a healthy person generally the brachial artery of the arm and leading therefrom a slom pipe to the corresponding artery of the sick man, and of course, a flow of blood takes place towards the latter. But this simple statement of fact gives no idea of the great difficulties that have to be surmounted. In the first place the opening of a large artery subjects both the healthy and the sick man to grave perils. Infection may take place, and a species of fatal blood poisoning result. Or in sewing up the wound in the vessels stech may protrude the inner surface of the wall, and then the blood infallibly clots around it, and eventually shuts off the blood supply to the forearm and hand, which in that case, becomes gangrenous. Furthermore, it is somewhat difficult to tell if the benefactor will survive the loss of the large quantity of blood which must be taken from his system to benefit the patient.

DR. PRIMROSE OPERATED.

But a younger brother of young Allen decided to take all the risks that his brother might be given at least a fighting chance for his life. So the two were brought down, to one of the operating rooms of the hospital.

ELOPING COUPLE CAUGHT IN TORONTO

HUSBAND HAD SEARCHED SEVEN MONTHS FOR MISSING WIFE.

Prosperous Railway Man—Mother Brought Son to Toronto and His Letter Gave Recreant Couple Away.

Dear Father:

"If I do not get money right away I will kill myself. I will go to bed and turn on the gas and die. My new father is very cross and beats me. I want to leave him.

"(Signed) Freddie."

Toronto, Nov. 2.—The foregoing letter posted Toronto, and written by little 11 year old Freddie Grafe to his father, in New York, complaining against the treatment he was receiving from the man with whom his mother eloped.

It was from this letter alone that A. Grafe, his father, was able at last to bring to a successful termination a hunt for his wife that had lasted over seven months, although at one time the husband was so close in his chase after the runaway couple that he came into the same town just two hours after they had left.

The two elopers were Lewis Pirisinsky and Mrs. Clara Grafe. The story was that of a poor man's infatuation for a rich woman. Pirisinsky was a painter in New York, while Grafe has a high position with the New York Radial Railway and occupies a large house at 953 Prospect avenue.

Pirisinsky was engaged in January by Grafe to redecorate his home, and it was there that he met the wife. They became very friendly and within a couple of weeks after his first appearance they eloped, taking with them Mrs. Grafe's only son, Freddie. Mrs. Grafe is 35 years of age.

When the husband returned home from work that evening he found the house locked. He suspected something immediately, and notified the police. A search was commenced, but no trace of the two could be found.

EATON GAVE $5,000.

Contributed Generously to the New Y.M.C.A. at Oshawa.

Oshawa, Nov. 2.—The new Y.M.C.A. building, costing $25,000, beautifully built and equipped in the latest manner was dedicated last night by Archdeacon Cody of Toronto. To the cost Mr. Robert McLaughlin and Mr. J. C. Eaton, each contributed five thousand dollars. A special service, largely attended by the townspeople, was held in the Simcoe St. Methodist church, after which Archdeacon Cody and the officials, along with a big representation of the public inspected the beautiful building.

There is No Revolution in Spain as Reported

PREMATURE REPORT OF REPUBLICAN EFFORT GETS INTO THE ENGLISH PAPERS.

Outbreak Did Not Occur—Cable Direct From Madrid Disposes of the Daily Telegraph's Story.

Madrid, Nov. 2.—The rumors of revolutionary out breaks in Spain, particularly in Barcelona, are without foundation. Calm is reported throughout the country.

The above despatch direct from Madrid, disposes of the rumor given currency last night of a revolutionary outbreak in Spain. A despateg from Paris to the London Daily Telegraph stated that a rebellious movement had been begun in Madrid and other papers printed rumors.

While the reports of serious clashes are denied, it is known that the situation may become serious at any moment.

London, Nov. 2.—An official denial that there had been a revolutionary outbreak in Madrid or any other part of Spain was received here this afternoon.

Reported That Sheldon Has Been Arrested

Montreal, Nov. 2.—A despatch to the Montreal Star, published in an extra at noon today, is as follows:

"Bermuda, Nov. 2. An officer having in custody Chas. D. Sheldon, the 'get rich quick' man who fled from Canada last month, has sailed for Montreal. Sheldon was apprehended here by Pinkertons who followed him since his flight from Canada. He was arrested upon their identification and is now on his way to Montreal, where he is said to have collected a million ormore of other people's money."

The above despatch comes to the Star through a New York News agency. At the time of going to press it was impossible to obtain confirmation, official or otherwise of the news.

THE "INTERNATIONAL LIMITED."

One of the most artistic folders issued by the Grand Trunk is a brochure just out giving information regarding the "International Limited," which is heralded as Canada's fastest train, as well as its finest. The booklet is prepared in most attractive style, well printed and illustrated, while the asthetic relation of type and illustrations is maintained to a notable degree. The story of "International Limited" is a familiar one to Canadian, as well as American, travelers, but as shown in the latest publication of the Company, it is still not merely interesting, but attractive. A full description of this train between Montreal and Chicago is given, together with all the information regarding time and accommodation, that any passenger could require, the whole tastefully put together and artistically illustrated. A copy may be had free on application to Grand Trunk City Office, Mr. W. Buntin, Peterboro.

TORONTO LAWYER STRUCK ANOTHER

J. B. M'KENZIE, PROSECUTING ATTORNEY IN CASE AT CHESLEY LOST HIS HEAD.

Mr. Mickle the Man Hit—He Did Not Offer to Retaliate—Mr. McKenzie Says He Is Sorry He Did It.

Chesley, Ont., Nov. 2. The case of the King versus Durst came up for trial before Magistrate Macnamara at Walkerton yesterday. Mr. Durst, who was charged with perjury in connection with an affidavit made in the Chesley local option case before the High Court of Justice, was acquitted.

Mr. Durst was defended by Mr. Mickle of Chesley, who in the course of the trial, referred to J. B. McKenzie of Toronto, the prosecuting attorney, as the private prosecutor. Mr. McKenzie was enraged at the insinuation, and, running around to the other side of the table, struck Mr. Mickle a blow. The magistrate ordered Mr. McKenzie to sit down. Mr. Mickle did not offer to retaliate.

"I am sorry that I did strike him," said Mr. McKenzie at noon today, when seen in Toronto on his return from Walkerton. "I told him so.

"He had referred to me the day before as the private prosecutor, and it annonyed me seriously, because I was not private prosecutor, but counsel, and recognized as such by the attorney-general's department."

A Barnardo Boy Tried to Committ Suicide

Lindsay, Nov. 2.—A Barnardo boy working at the home of Mr. Thomas Reed, Reaboro, attempted to take his own life the other day. When found in the shed hanging by the neck he was blue in the face, and was unable to talk when cut down. However, aid arrived in the nick of time, and life was restored. It appears that the young boy and the hired man had a "spat," and to spite the hired man the Barnardo boy tried to take his life. He was removed by the Toronto inspector.

THIRD ARREST MADE.

Montreal, Nov. 1.—A new phase has developed in the mystery of the death of Cecile Michaund, a thirteen year-old girl, whose body was found two weeks ago in a vacant lot in Westmount.

The little girl disappeared from her home at the end of last August. It was then learned that she had been taken out for an auto drive on August 30 by two young men. Perrault and Chervrier, who are under arrest. Since that date the coroner's inquiry has been proceeding, and as a result Achilla Derome, the chauffeur who drove the party to Belle-vau's roadhouse on Lachine road, has been placed under arrest, charged maliciously killing Cecile Michaund. At the examination he told contradictory stories about his movements on the night of the tragedy.

A sensational development in the case is that another man was seen with the girl the day following Aug. 30, according to a cabman. Not for many years has there been such a mystery in the city. Doctors now state that the girl's body must have been burned with lime, which indicates that it was placed where found after death. Derome, the chauffeur arrested on the charge of murder.

WHAT MAKES A GOOD COMPLEXION?

You are just about to commence the season's programme of evening parties, social events, etc. Why not look your best? Why let your complexion suffer by contrast with other ladies'? Why not ensure a good complexion? You can do this on sound natural lines by using Zam-Buk, nature's herbal balm.

Zam-Buk is a skin food; and complexion is purely a matter of skin health. Zam-Buk smeared lightly over the face, each night, acts as a skin tonic. It stimulates the cells beneath the cuticle to healthy action, makes the capillaries and blood vessels work, and the vigorous circulation, thus started, carries away secreted impurities. Waxy, sallow deposits are thus removed. Hard pimply growths are softened and disappear.

That yellow tinge gives place to the pink of health, and the white velvety "look" and "feel" which healthy skin should have.

Isn't this wiser than relying upon talcum powder and cosmetics? These only put on a "complexion" from the outside. It doesn't last. Zam-Buk helps nature to build up a complexion from blood and tissue. It lasts! It won't rub off!

Be wise as well as womanly! Let Zam-Buk help you to look your real best!

Zam-Buk cures skin diseases, pimples, ulcers, abscesses, blood-poisons, eruptions, cuts, burns, scalds, chapped places, scalp sores, piles, etc. 50c box, all druggists and stores, or Zam-Buk Co., Toronto.

ELECTRIC POWER HOUSE ON WHEELS.

Glasgow has just turned out an invention which may help us in solving the traction problem. This is a new form of engine which has been having its preliminary trials on the Caledonian and North British railways. It is called the "electric turbo locomotive," and is really a traveling electric power house on wheels.

Ever since the invention of a practical electric motor there have been propositions to install a machine power plant on an electric locomotive and to train the locomotive with the electric current independent of electric trolleys and conductors. Various types of the kind have had a brief career and disappeared, but there is a prospect that the present invention will be successful. It works out in practice and does not cost too much in money. the problem of railroad electrification ought to be considerably simplified.

A BOUNTIFUL YEAR.

Throughout Canada there just cause for sincere thanksgiving at this season of the year. The broad acres from the Pacific slope to the rich valleys of Nova Scotia have yielded abundantly in response to the hand of the husbandman. the mines have divulged their stores to the value of millions of dollars. the forests have furnished continued wealth for those engaged in the lumber and building trade and the giant smokestacks have ceaselessly poured out the volumes that indicate humming wheels and busy producers.

There have been years several of them when the outlook for an abundant winter was not so bright as this season. Workmen have been idle, the money market has been tight and the industrial activities have not been joyous with orders booked ahead. Further, other countries have passed and are now going through troublous times. In the old world conditions are decidedly unsettled the revolutionary spirit having got a grip on the fancies of the people.

In our broad Dominion there is practically nothing that we can look out upon but prosperity and good times, unless it be certain phases of our national life that need reform and elevation. These come in their time, but so far as trade labor and money are concerned, Canada has had a bountiful year and all Canadians should join in giving thanks to the provider of all things.

NO CAUSE FOR FRICTION.

Say Many French-Canadian Papers in Lower Provinces.

Montreal, Nov. 2. In dealing with the Bilingual school question many of the French-Canadian papers see no cause for friction looking at it from their standpoint of view.

Omer Heroux, writing in Mr. Bourassa's paper, Le Devoir, deals with the question of Bilingual schools, and scouts the notion that the champions of these schools are hostile to the teaching of English. Mr. Bourassa sees no cause for friction provided the right to the teaching of French is recognized. Bishop Fallon says that in many schools neither English nor French is taught. Windsor French Canadian repel with indignation the charge that the Essex bilingual schools foster illiteracy. Evidently there is little disagreement as to what ought to be done, however much there may be as to what is done.

Another comforting feature of the situation is that Protestants and English speaking people are not massed on one side, French and Catholics on the other. The materials for one of the old time race and religious quarrels are lacking. French Canadians and Roman Catholics are more likely to come to a right conclusion when there is no suspicion of pressure from their Protestant fellow citizens, when neither their race nor their religion is under fire.

But while there is no pressure or interference from outside, all Canadians have a common interest in the broad question of education whether that education be conducted in a Public school, a Separate school or a bilingual school. There may be freedom and diversity in the methods of education, but the same in all the essential citizens of Canada. We [illegible] and no legislation that has ever been, or this case are deserved of something more than remark. It may be that we are entering upon a period of discussing these problems. Which questions of education are decided with questions of race, language and creed? These may be discussed with less temper and less suspicion, and with more breadth and sympathy. This period is often spoken of as Canada's growing time and there is a demand for hope that the growth is in more than population crops of wheat and trade important as these are. Those differences in religion and racial origin, which are sometimes deplored may become a help instead of a hindrance to the development of Canada. There may be something better even than toleration a liberal sympathetic outlook upon these differences, a majority which does not necessitate uniformity and a hearty co-operation in all the common work of Canadian citizenship.

A PEOPLE MISLED.

Mr. Bourassa and Sir Wilfrid Laurier are face to face in Drummond and Arthabasca. The Nationalist leader will denounce all contribution to naval defence. The premier may be expected to follow the trend of his speech at the Monument National when he was singularly timid and apologetic. Sir Wilfrid Laurier in British Columbia found his soul pulsating with pride in the British Empire and its glories. He had subdued himself before he reached Montreal. Yet there was his opportunity to declare his belief in British institutions and tai recite what the empire and its potential powers gave done for Canada.

The French speaking people of this Dominion do not hear both sides of the argument. The majority of them - at least the majority of those in the rural districts—do not read English. They get all their information from the French papers. Unfortunately some of those newspapers have misrepresented persistently the attitude of Ontario and of the West towards Quebec and the French people. "The fanatics of Ontario" is a common expression in their editorial columns. Only a few days ago L'Action Saciale, a clerical daily of Quebec, called on the French-Canadian to awake and resist their enemies in Ontario. This sort of pleading is mischievous and well as mendacious. Some of the political and clerical leaders of the French people stimulate racial feeling against the English speaking Canadians. The object is plain, to consolidate the whole people in suspicion against their neighbors, so that the politician and the churchman may drive them more easily. In order to do this, facts are distorted and the seeds of discord and hatred are sown broadcast.

Surely it is time for a broadminded French Canadian like Sir Wilfrid Laurier to take a stand against political petitfogery which is too common on both sides. The Nationalists with Mr. Monk and the French supported by L'Action Sociale and the l'Ouest, rage through the constituencies like fire brands, and are ably supported by L'Action Sociale and other journals of similar recklessness. Quebec owes something to Britain Quebec leaders owe it to themselves to refrain from making mischief by deliberately trading in racial and religious prejudices for personal and political purposes.

CELESTIAL APPENDAGES.

Man's loyalty to woman, his natural disposition to envelop her with the mantle of his protection, his idealization of her as an embodiment of all the virtues, are fundamental truths poets have exhausted their energy upon and bards worked overtime at. To go further, under man's fostering care, woman has gradually developed into an angel not in disposition or a material sense by any means, but by virtue of artistic creations. Pictorial canvas utterly fails these days to clothe angels with any other sex than that of the feminine gender, while sculptures' chisels would balk at the mere idea of an angelic creation embellished with the dignity of man. Why this travestry of justice? Where the artists authority for the same? A study of the scriptures reveals the cogent fact that all angels recorded therein were men, but of course, artists don't read, mark, learn and digest them with becoming earnestness else they would find that a "man" angel wrestled with Jacob; two "men" angels were entertained by Lot, three "men" angels promised Abraham a son, and so on. Then why should woman have usurped man's place in angelic representations? Is it because celestial appendages become her better than they would man? The only wings a woman has ever been known to sport have been on her head, and these she robbed the natural owners of. The gentler sex indeed are prone to expand from the head these days to the right, left and upwards—and the anathemas of the man behind such unnatural "wings" in public places are anything but angelic. When in the beauty class, man, it must be admitted, takes off his hat to woman, but at moving picture shows angelic women but rarely doffs her hat for man's benefit. But to return to our subject: artists apparently are not on speaking terms with the masculine angels, and even in spiritualistic seances man is given but scant opportunity for celestial popularity; it is usually Little Bright Eyes, the Indian Maiden, or some other petticoated manifestation that secures the plum. 'Tis true children are occasionally called angels regardless of sex, but as an offset to this eulogy some might truly be classified as veritable little demons [illegible] especially.

The foregoing was inspired by a George street merchant's expressed conviction that while man was essentially a "spiritous" being, wings would not enhance his appearance. This, however, is a debatable question and artists might give him a chance once in a while to assume his old Biblical character of an angel, when such a celestial being is needed.

ENGINE REACHES COBOURG.

Cobourg, Oct. 29.—Work was started this week on the freight sheds of the Canadian Northern Ontario Railway here. They will be located about two hundred yards east of Division street. The work of excavation for the station is also begun. The steel is laid for the C.N.R. from Brighton to Cobourg, and this week the first engine steamed in to the town. The gang of Italians who have been working between here and Grafton have gone on down to Shannonville, where construction work is in progress.

Capital Stock $600.000---Par Value $1.00

No Preferred Stock. No Bonus or Free Stock. No Bonded Indebtedness
Lease Runs 40 Years All Stock in Treasury for One-Sixth Royalty. Benefit of Holders. Incorporated Under Laws of State of California.

106 acres of absolutely proven oil land on Sulphur Mountain, adjoining and between the Liberty and Puritas Oil Companies' property. Ten miles from Santa Paula, Ventura Co., Calif.

FACTS—The property is absolutely proven territory, lying as it does with the UNION OIL CO. producing on the south, the LIBERTY OIL CO. producing on the west, the HARD OIL CO. producing on the north, which only recently started its 30th rig, and Puritas Oil Co. to commence drilling on the east. Also it is located in a district of BIG PRODUCING COMPANIES, such as Ojai Petroleum, Pyramid Oil Co., Canadian Comus, Capital Creek, Hard Oil and Asphalt Co., and others. THERE'S NO QUESTION ABOUT THE COMPANY GETTING OIL. It is possible that Liberty Oil Company's new well will be a gusher, which would make the ATLANTA OIL COMPANY stock worth par. Mr. Cowell, our Superintendent, knows every foot of the ground, and having his log book of Liberty property, which adjoins our land, and an experienced OIL MAN and we consider ourselves fortunate in obtaining his services. VENTURA CO. OIL represents the cream of the industry. It is the home of HIGH GRAVITY OIL. VENTURA COUNTY OIL means $1.50 a barrel at well. Costs from 2c to 5c to produce it. THE GREAT UNION OIL CO. got its start in VENTURA CO. and has paid over twenty-two millions in dividends. These GREAT ASSETS had a small beginning in the WILD BILL GUSHER, within SIGHT OF ATLANTA OIL CO. property The demand for refining oil FAR EXCEEDS THE SUPPLY. The 38 refineries in California are crying for the product. The eastern high gravity fields are diminishing. The OHIO FIELDS, FOR INSTANCE, have fallen off one-third. The demand is caused by the increased market for gasoline. Throughout the world the number of automobiles and internal combustion gasoline engines is forcing up the price of high gravity crude petroleum. Eastern operators are now looking to VENTURA COUNTY, which are held to be the most extensive known. THIS IS THE FIRST ANNOUNCEMENT of ground floor offering of ATLANTA OIL CO., and may be oversubscribed at any time. One day's delay may mean you are too late. ACT NOW. WRITE FOR LATEST NEWS OF VENTURA OIL FIELDS.

The lumber for the derrick is on the ground and machinery has been ordered. Well No. 1 will be started as soon as drilling is installed. It should not take over six months to complete first well. Well No. 2, by conditions of lease, must be in operation by February 14th, 1911.

ONE LANGUAGE FOR ONTARIO.

The publication of this Hanna letter, and what is behind publication, form merely one incident in a movement that must sooner or later receive attention at the hands of the people of this Province and the sooner the better, says the Farmer's Sun. This movement, originally among certain Quebec extremists, has for its object the extension of the French language, and the Quebec system in general, beyond the confines of that Province. A regularly organized effort is being made to push French settlements across the Ottawa river into Prescott, Glengarry and other Ottawa Valley counties and to carry with this settlement a school system in which French shall be the language of instruction. A similar effort is being made by the same general form of procedure, to solidify the French settlements in the county of Essex. A proposal is under consideration, it is reported, to colonize three townships in Northern Ontario with French Canadians. The avowed object behind all this is to create a situation under which blocks of solid French Canadians, located in different parts of the Province will hold the balance in the Dominion.

It may as well be understood from the beginning that this proposal will meet firm opposition on the part of the English-speaking people of this Province. There is no desire to interfere in the slightest degree with the peculiar institutions and privileges of Quebec. But the people of Ontario are firmly resolved that here one language shall prevail. They will insist on this in the interests of the state as a whole and of the French-speaking minority as well. There cannot be a really united citizenship where there is division in speech; French children will be seriously handicapped in the battle of life who are not able to speak freely the tongue which prevails over practically all North America. A hearty welcome will be given to those coming from Quebec who come here to assist in developing the agricultural and industrial resources of Ontario, just as a like welcome is offered people coming from Great Britain or from Germany for like purposes. But those who come must be prepared to accept English as the language of the school and the state. There is nothing more disagreeable, nothing is more disturbing than a race or creed conflict; the slow progress made by Canada for many years was largely due to the fact that we have had so many such conflicts in the past. But it is better to have an immediate conflict, if it must be, than the permanent disturbance inseparable from a condition which would exist with numerous blocks of non-assimilable colonies located in various parts of Ontario. Better meet the difficulty halfway by abolishing the bi-lingual schools now in existence and insisting on English as the sole tongue for use in school work in every part of the Province.

TEACHING OF FRENCH.

Frequent Complaints About Teaching That Language in Protestant Schools.

Cornwall, Oct. 31.—Complaints have been made frequently about the teaching of French in Protestant schools.

In the Protestant schools of Montreal recently the boys entered a Protest against the methods used in French teaching. They complained that they were taught to know French but not to speak it. That is the common fault of most of the French teaching, not only in Montreal, but in Ontario. One does not blame the teachers in the High schools. The time allotted to French is too brief to allow the pupils to gain more than a general knowledge of the grammar and the ability to translate with some freedom. A boy cannot be taught to think in French if he gets only two lessons a week. Moreover, it seems difficult, in the multiplicity of subjects to spare any more time from the weekly program.

But it might be possible in the Public schools to lay a foundation for proper High School teaching by occasional lessons in French conversation. Young children learn easily because their imitative faculty is lively. Later in life, when it has been dulled by lack of use, the pronunciation of any foreign language becomes a block of stumbling French should be more easily acquired in this country than anywhere else. Certainly it is necessary for business men, professional men, and indeed, for everyone. But even though the knowledge of the language were not put to practical use, there is great educational value in acquiring a second language.

Don't wash and scrub, bend and rub over a hot wash tub; sift a little GOLD DUST in the water, loosen the dirt, and save rubbing

Soap is not a bit of cleansing good until it is mixed with water and made into suds. And then it still needs the rub-rub-rub of human muscle.

GOLD DUST works in an entirely different way—instantly and totally dissolves in hot or cold, hard or soft water—and, without any aid from you, starts to cleanse.

GOLD DUST is more than soap—better and more economical. It is a powder of magic power—but rightly directed power, that leaves the wash white, sweet, wholesome.

Use your brains, not your muscle!

Throw away your soap, get GOLD DUST, and simply use it according to the directions on the package.

"Let the GOLD DUST Twins do your work."

HIGHER FEES.

An Increase In Scale of Fees Charged By Doctors.

The following is from the Canadian Journal of Medicine and Surgery under the title "The High Cost of Living Calls for a Rise in the Doctor's Fees."

"The members of the medical profession in Canada, at least a good many of them, are much in the same predicaments, as were fifty seven preachers in a Western State, who withdrew from the exercise of the ministry, because the salaries paid them ($500-$700) did not suffice to support a family. In pioneer days a preacher could raise a family on that kind of a salary, but during the past fifteen years things have changed and preachers, many of them university graduates, feel compelled, with reluctance no doubt, to forsake the harvest of souls for less congenial but more lucrative employments.

"If members of the medical profession are unwilling to continue practising for the small amount of patronage received, they are at liberty to leave the profession, but unfortunately, there are others, of supposedly equal ability, ready to take their places. To make matters worse for physicians of any school—regular, homeopathic, or eclectic—hygiene has cut the ground from beneath their feet. Then the public do a vast amount of self-doctoring, and only call in a physician after the domestic therapeutic armamentarium has proved unavailing.

There is an ever-expanding horizon opening before the student of the medical sciences and medical literature, and if the cultivation of science and literature provide a sufficient financial return, there is but little to complain of. Science herself is priceless; of herself a reward exceedingly great. But, if the student of medicine is looking towards medicine as a desirable trade, he had better pass it by, and seek for more lucrative employment. Owing, besides, to the high level of scholarship, preliminary and professional, the great length of the curriculum, the difficult examinations, one would say that there ought to be a falling off in the number of medical students offering themselves for study, and, for the material reasons advanced here, it is desirable that this falling off should occur.

"The sons of wealthy parents may study medicine and graduate as doctors, with no intention of practicing, being satisfied with the intellectual training received. Perhaps, also, in a country where academic titles give some distinction, the title of doctor may be sought after, as it raises its owner a little above the common people. If medical graduates step into the arena to fight for a living they must be prepared for hard knocks and small pay. With higher pay in all classes of labor, trade or profession, it would be strange if physicians should be held to the fees current fifteen years ago. The pill will have to be sugared to to suit the popular taste; but demos knows as well as his doctor that the purchasing power of a dollar is not as great as it was fifteen years ago. Medical associations should take up this question and give to the outcome of their deliberations on the tariff the sanction of their united opinions, which will exercise more weight with patients than individual opinion. People naturally think that the doctor, who displays such menactivity in diagnosing obscure diseases, ought to recognize the signs of the times and appreciate the fact that a hight cost of living necessitates a rise in the doctor's fees."

Railway Landscape Gardening.

In recent years many of the American Railways have given a great amount of attention to the beautifying of the grounds surrounding their stations, freight sheds, etc. The Grand Trunk Railway System have not been behind in this good work as is observed by an editorial in the October number of the "Railway Master Mechanic" Published in Chicago.

They say, "If anyone doubts that landscape gardening has no place in railway repair shop operation let him visit the 'gold plated' shops of the Grand Trunk at Battle Creek, Mich. While threading his way through the beds of geraniums, poppies, pansies and orchids which bedeck the grounds, the doubter, if he is a pessimist, will perhaps offer the opinion that probably gardening and not locomotive repairing is the specialty of the shop. Indeed, if the comparisons are carried far enough one is inclined to wonder if there may not be some connection between this devotion to the aesthetic and results as evidenced in quality and quantity of the output of repair shop work."

BEFORE TREATMENT.

AFTER TREATMENT.

Peter E. Summers relates his experience: —I was troubled with nervous debility for many years. I have to built-erring and excesses in youth. I became very despondent and didn't care whether I worked or not. I imagined everybody who looked at me guessed my secret. Imaginative dreams at night worked me—my back ached, had pains in the back of my head, hands and feet were cold, tired in the morning, poor appetite, fingers were shaky, eyes bloodshot, hair loose, memory poor, etc. Nature nestin the fingers set in and the doctor told me he feared paralysis. I took all kinds of medicines and tried many famous physicians, wore an electric belt for three months, but received little benefit. I was induced to consult Drs. Kennedy & Kennedy, though I had lost all faith in doctors. Like a drowning man I commenced the NEW METHOD TREATMENT and it saved my life. The improvement was like magic—I could feel the vigor going through the nerves. I was cured mentally and physically. I have sent them many patients and continue to do so.

St. John's Church Festival.

Sunday next will be St. John's dedication festival, the church having been opened after renovation. This is the 75th anniversary of the first opening of St. John's church in July, 1835. Next Sunday the parochial communion will be celebrated at 8 and 11 o'clock. Special sermons at the morning and evening services, and also special music.

Work Plentiful in Peterborough.

Judging by the report sent to the Labor Gazette by Mr. J. A. Sharpe, local correspondent, the various trades in Peterborough seem booming. From Mr. Sharpe's report we take the following. Bricklayers, masons, carpenters, joiners, lathers, plasters and painters were busy. Plumbers and gasfitters were active. Builders' laborers were very busy. Iron moulders, iron workers, helpers, core makers and machinists were active. Electrical workers and linemen had all they could do. Blacksmiths and boilermakers active. Printers had a good month and tailors and garment workers had plenty of work. Bakers and confectioners were busy. Butchers and meat cutters were also busy. Cigar makers report business improved. Leather workers had a good month. Railway and street railway employes were active. Teamsters and express men report business good. Unskilled labor was in good demand.

SOCIETY EVENTS

The Times will be pleased to receive notices of Weddings, Social Events, Personal Announcements, which will be published in this column free of charge.

The Misses Little are visiting friends in Montreal.

Miss Ethel Pierce has returned after visiting her friends over the holiday.

Yesterday morning a Scotchman got six months in Central Prison, in Toronto, because he interferred in a quarrel on a Toronto-Montreal train. On Thanksgiving Day, right here in Peterborough, a young man butted in and tried to stop a fight between two associates of his. The peacemaker now has an eye in mourning and a jaw that requires special lubrication to make it work.

LOCAL CHEESE BOARD IN FINAL MEETING.

The Peterborough Cheese Board held their last meeting for this season yesterday morning. There were 3,062 cheese boarded, and the prevailing prices were 11 3-16 cents, and 11 1-8 cents. The president of the board, Mr. Switzer, was in the chair, and before the bidding was started Mr. F. E. Ellis of Farm and Dairy addressed the board on the question of installing cool curing plants in the factories. At present there are only four factories on the Peterborough Board who have cooling rooms. While there was no distinction in the price of cool cured cheese he believed that eventually the cool cured cheese would bring a higher price. Several of the buyers spoke in favor of the installation of cool curing plants.

THE CHEESE BOARDED.

The following factories boarded as follows:

Keene	120
Warminster	65
Shearer	90
Central Smith	155
Selwyn	130
Villiers	90

Bensfort	80
Cedardale	90
Stony Lake	32
Cavanville	70
Norwood	130
Fleetwood	150
Killarney	100

THE BUYING.

At 11 3-16 Mr. Fitzgerald called Warminster, Central Smith, Warsaw, East Emily and Fleetwood. Mr. Gillespie bid 11 1-8 cents for the balance of the board, calling Keene, Shearer, Selwyn, Villiers, Westwood, Oakdale, Daisy D, Pine Grove, King Edward, Maple Leaf, Myrtle, Youngs Point, Fraserville, Indian River, North Dummer, Trewern, Bensfort, Cedardale, Stony Lake, Cavanville, Norwood and Killarney. Lakefield refused to sell.

It was decided to hold the annual meeting on the first Saturday in March. A vote of thanks was tendered the Bank of Montreal for the use of their room for the meetings, and also to the press.

INDIAN RIVER RIPPLETS.

The weather being fine, the farmers are busy taking out their roots.

Mr. J. E. Devlin shipped a carload of hogs from here last week.

Mr. R. Telford shipped a carload of cattle from here last Tuesday.

VOL. XXXIII NO. 249 PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO FRIDAY NOVEMBER 4 1910 PRICE TWO CENTS

Violent Storms are Raging Along the Coast of Italy

It is Feared That Loss of Life in the Provinces is Heavy—Shipping is Scattered—The Waves Run Mountain High

Rome, Nov. 3.—A violent storm is raging along the coast of Italy north of Naples as far as the Gulf of Genoa Sixteen lives are reported to have been lost so far. Damage to telegraphs and wireless stations has made communication difficult.

The storm has raged for more than twenty-four hours and a number of shipping disasters has been reported. High winds blew down buildings and caused vessels to break from their moorings. Wreckage strews the coast and life-savers have been kept constantly on the vigil for ships and to look for survivors from wrecks.

Fishing craft is missing. The terrific wind cause the sea to rise up in mountains of water rivaling tidal waves. Those dashed in shore, carrying destruction in their wake. It is feared that the damage and loss of life in remote places is very heavy.

DAMAGE AT ROME.

Rome, Nov. 3.—In this city great damage was done to the construction work on the field where the International Exposition will be held next spring. The Sardinian pavilion, one of the most imposing of the new buildings, is today a mass of ruins and wreckage.

This structure was blown down and demolished, burying ten workmen beneath the debris. Four of them were fatally hurt.

The Romagna pavilion was partly destroyed and other structures of lesser importance were razed.

MANY NARROW ESCAPES.

Many had narrow escapes from death. Traffic was hindered by the debris which filled the streets. Many were hurt by flying wreckage which was carried in some instances for nearly a quarter of a mile by the tremendous winds.

Rain fell in great quantities but the most of the damage was done by the devastating wind.

Government is Heavily Reinforcing the Garrisons in Spain

SOMETHING IS EXPECTED TO BREAK LOOSE AND PREPARATIONS ARE BEING MADE.

Troops Being Rushed In—Over 20,000 Loyal Soldiers Mobilized Under Arms in Madrid, It Is Said.

London, Nov. 3.—Despite the official denial that there has been any revolutionary activity in Spain, it is known here that the government is heavily reinforcing the garrisons at Barcelonia, Saragossa and Sabadell. Moreover the troops sent into these revolutionary centers are being drawn from portions of the army that are recognized as intensely loyal to Alfonso and still uncorrupted by the Republican agents.

An additional 20,000 loyal soldiers have been mobilized under arms in Madrid. The government announces that they were summoned to the capital to participate in a monster memorial to the victims of the battle of Melilla last year. However, no suggestion that such a memorial service was in contemplation had been made until rumors of a revolution reached the outside world, and it is believed here that the "memorial" is merely a subterfuge to fill Madrid with troops without exciting the anger of the populace. In the meantime a strike has been ordered all over Spain, and the order is being generally obeyed. Thousands of workmen have laid down their tools, and business is being greatly depressed.

The military government at Sabadell and Saragossa is rigidly censoring outgoing telegrams, especially those in code, or addressed to newspapers. No ingoing "queries," asking correspondents for the true situation are being delivered in those cities, and mail from Spain shows that it has been thoroughly ransacked and objectionable matter expunged before being allowed to leave the country.

TAMPERING WITH SOLDIERS.

The morning newspapers in London today refer to rumors they have received of an attempt on the life of King Alfonso, but declare that these are wholly unconfirmed.

A despatch from Madrid says that the Republicans have been tampering with the garrison at Badajoz, in an effort to win the soldiers over to the revolutionary cause. High officials are said to have been implicated in the plot, Mayor Santos being under arrest for trying to gain the consent of officers to the revolt.

Senor Blasquoz, president of the Federation of Young Socialists, is under arrest for making an anti-military speech at a mass meeting held to protest against the arrest of Prof. Overgo, of the University of Madrid.

Out of the tangled web of fact and rumor, the situation may be summed up thus:

Something unquestionably has happened that has dreadfully alarmed the Spanish government, and an explosion is momentarily likely.

THE PUPILS WENT ON STRIKE

(Special to The Times.)

Windsor, Ont., Nov. 3.—When Principal Downey, of Park St. School, was unable to attend to his duties through illness, Miss Shinners, a former Separate school teacher, was sent in his place. About twenty of the pupils refused to go to her, and the next day Inspector Meade took charge of the work.

CHURCH TO GET RETURNS

(Special to The Times.)

Auburn, N.Y., Nov. 3.—The First Presbyterian church of this city, in an endeavor to keep men away from the saloons on election night, has arranged to receive election returns by a direct telegraph wire. The Rev. W. H. Hubbard, pastor of the church, will himself read the returns. Buckwheat cakes and coffee will also be served, as free as salvation, according to the announcement.

GILBERT, NATIONALIST WAS ELECTED BY 600

(Special to The Times.)

Victoraville, Quebec, Nov. 3.—Gilbert, the Nationalist, was elected over Perrault, the Liberal candidate by about 500. There were a few places to hear from which will likely increase his majority.

Drummondville, Que., Nov. 4.—The result of the bye-election was no doubt a big surprise to the government, in fact Conservatives conceded that the Liberal candidate would win. There was a large vote polled in the riding. The weather was fair, although the roads were in bad shape in the country. The Nationalist regarded the result as doubtful, although they claimed before the close of the polls that a big surprise awaited the Liberals.

OTTAWA KEENLY INTERESTED.

Ottawa, Nov. 4.—There is much excitement here with reference to the result of the Drummond-Arthabaska bye-election, and little else is discussed in political circles.

STRONG ARGUMENTS.

Victoriaville, Que. Nov. 4.—Some of the arguments used by the Nationals to stampede the French Canadian vote went to the extreme, as follows:

"English lords who do not want to do their duty, to pay the taxes they owe, have come out here to the colonies to make us pay those taxes. I am surprised that one of the members of the House of Commons whom you have enriched, should come to you and say, 'Lie down, crawl before the English who impose their measures on us.'"—Albert Sevigny, a leading Nationalist speaker.

"We talk to you of Canada, our country, not of England. Canada is the land I am prepared to serve. I am ready to fight in Canada for the Canadian flag as my friend fought. I am not prepared to go abroad and fight when we are not consulted.

"To you ladies I appeal as well. I feel I may make the remark without sacrilege that the sacrifice of Cavalry would not have been complete had there not been a woman present to mingle her tears with those of the crucified. You are the ones who will be asked to make the sacrifice. Your sons and husbands will be taken from you to serve in this navy." Armand Lavergne, Mr. Bourassa's lieutenant.

FINTON MURDER TRIAL NEXT WEEK

DEFENCE WILL TRY TO PROVE VICTIM FELL OFF BARN ROOF.

Skull Will Be In Court—E. A. DuVernet of Toronto to Prosecute—Lynch-Staunton for the Defence.

Hamilton, Nov. 3.—The case of Tom Finton, the young man charged with the brutal murder of his aged father, will be tried here next week, and promises to attract wide-spread interest. Chief Twiss of the Wentworth county police, with a photographer and civil engineer, visited the scene of the crime the other day to take pictures and measurements which will figure prominently in the prosecution. Young Finton's lawyers, George Lynch-Staunton, K.C., and S. D. Biggar, K.C., have had several conferences with their client at the jail, and are so confident that he will clear himself, they doubt even of a true bill will be brought in against him.

The Crown Prosecutor will be E. A. DuVernet, K.C., of Toronto. Justice Middleton will preside. There is a long list of civil and three other criminal actions besides the Finton case. The most serious of these is the charge against James Durant, a tramp, of committing a serious offence upon little Kate Langfied of Copetown. Fred Anderson, a former well-known foot runner, will be tried on a charge of highway robbery, preferred by Miss Edith Sauer.

The Finton case will probably not be reached before Tuesday afternoon. The trial promises to develop into a battle of medical testimony. The Crown will seek to show that Tom Finton murdered his father, fearing that the old man was going to cut him off without leaving him a cent. The defence will endeavor to prove an alibi for young Fenton and to convince the jury by expert medical evidence that the deceased met an accidental death. The Crown prepared at the time of the post-mortem to combat this theory. The doctors saved the top of the dead man's skull and pasted the fragments together. This gruesome object will be exhibited at the trial, and the police are satisfied that it will prove conclusively that old Fenton could not have received these injuries by falling the short distance from the barn floor to the stones outside the door.

Elijah Finton was a wealthy old Saltfleet farmer in the Niagara district, where he had lived all his life. He was murdered on April 26th of this year.

"Well, I am going to live the longest because I eat the most," he cheerily remarked as he went out of the house at 7 o'clock in the morning, after having had breakfast. Five hours later his aged brother, George Finton, and his housekeeper, Flora Kerr, found his dead body outside the barn, within fifty feet of the house. The head had been battered in with blows heavy enough to kill an ox, the doctors testified. The weapon was never found.

LINDSAY AFTER C.N.R.

Proposed Grain Line Will Tap South Monaghan, a Rich Peterborough Township.

A deputation of Lindsay citizens, headed by Col. Sam Hughes, have interviewed the C.N.R. magnates in Toronto, with a view of inducing them to run their contemplated grain and tourist routes through the County of Victoria. They were met by Mr. William Mackenzie, president; General Manager Hanna, Hon F. H. Pippin, K.C., and the matter was thoroughly discussed. The gallant colonel, who always has taken an active interest in the affairs of Victoria County, had prepared plans and elevations showing the advantages of a grain route from Midland through Orillia easterly to Kirkfield, southeasterly to Lindsay, on through Durham and Northumberland counties to Trenton. From Kirkfield the proposed line takes a southeasterly direction through the township of Fenelon to Cambray, and on to Lindsay. From Lindsay the route continues through the townships of Ops, Manvers and Cavan in the vicinity of Bethany, through a part of South Monaghan crossing Rice Lake into Northumberland County.

ASTRONOMICAL TREAT.

Prof. De Lury of Toronto University To Speak Here Tomorrow Night.

On account of the entertainment in the Collegiate this evening, the meeting of the Royal Astronomical Society has been postponed until tomorrow evening, Saturday, November 5th. Special preparations has been made for this, the opening meeting of the society for this season: Professor Alfred T. De Lury, of the University of Toronto, president of the Royal Astronomical Society of Canada, will be the speaker of the evening.

"The Astronomy of Today," is the topic chosen by Prof. De Lury, and a large number of lantern slides will be used to illustrate the talk.

One of the features of the evening will be the presentation to the Society of the handsome new telescope which the Hon. J. R. Stratton has donated, and which has already been described in a former issue of The Times.

Teribble Accident at Weston--Three Killed

BODIES STRUCK EVERY GIRDER IN TERRIBLE FALL TO THE GROUND.

Foreman and Two Laborers Had Been Working at Top in High Wind—Watchers See Them Vanish Suddenly.—One of the Worst Tragedies in History of Weston.

James E. McVey, 429 Gerrard St. east, Toronto, foreman.

Robert McGregor, Toronto, laborer.

Elia Mehta, laborer, a Macedonian in Toronto one year.

Toronto, Nov. 3.—Without even time to give a cry of warning three men employed in erecting the huge stand pipe at Weston were hurled from the summit of the tank to the ground, a distance of nearly 80 feet, this morning, and instantly killed by the scaffolding on which they were working collapsing.

The fatality occurred at 11.30 o'clock. The men killed were the foreman and two employes. They were finishing the structure, and were working on a scaffolding which was attached to the inside of the pipe. Over a dozen men were working around them on the ground outside the pipe.

NO WARNING SOUNDS.

There was no noise made by the scaffold when it broke.

The accident was noticed only by two laborers, who were idly watching the men working from their dizzy height. They looked away for a moment, and when they glanced up again the men had disappeared. Immediately afterwards sounds were heard as the unfortunates hit the ground. They were all dead.

BODIES BADLY MANGLED.

The bodies were terribly gashed and bruised, and almost every bone was broken, the men in falling being thrown from girder to girder inside the pipe used for bracing the tank.

Coroner Dr. Charlton was immediately notified. When he arrived the bodies had been moved to a shed and were covered with a cloth. Later they were taken to the James Gardner undertaking establishment.

Coroner Charlton will open the inquest tonight in Gardner's undertaking parlors. The jury will only view the bodies, however, and then an adjournment will be made until next week.

SHOT IN LEG WHILE LIGHTING LANTERN

JOHN ALLAN SHOT THROUGH LEG WHILE FIXING LAMP ON ST. CLAIR RIVER.

His Son Fired On Also—Thought That the Family Had an Enemy—A Thorough Search Is Being Made.

London, Nov. 3.—Detective Acton is in Sarnia today searching for the person or persons who fired shots from a rifle from the Canadian shore below Corunna, and wounded John Allan, of Marysville, Mich., on Monday evening.

Allan has charge of the government range lights in the St. Clair River near Stag Island. Monday afternoon about 4 o'clock he was lighting a lantern at the lower end of the island when he was fired at, the bullet passed through his leg above the knee. He hastened to Marysville for medical assistance, and a search of the island was made for the assailant.

Last evening Allan's son was fired upon at the same place, and the bullet passed close by his head. Another search was made, but did no avail. It is thought that some person has a grudge against the Allans, and is endeavoring to kill them. Allan says he has no enemies that he knows of. Officers are keeping close guard in the vicinity.

MUST HAVE $50 IN CASH

(Special to The Times.)

Niagara Falls, Ont., Nov. 3.—Greater restrictions were yesterday placed on immigration from the United States, when the monetary requirements from prospective entrants were doubled. As it now is, any person more than 18 years of age entering Canada may be asked to produce fifty dollars.

A BIG BEAZE AT GANANOQUE

FACTORY OF GEORGE TAYLOR, THE RETIRING CONSERVATIVE WHIP DESTROYED.

Hundred Hands Affected—Loss Will Reach About 475,000, About Covered By Insurance.

Gananoque, Nov. 3.—The plant of the Ontario Wheel Company was completely gutted by fire here this morning. It started about six o'clock from a cause unknown as yet, and it was four hours later before it was under control. The loss is estimated at about $75,000, fully covered by insurance.

The works are owned mainly by Col. George Taylor, M.P., the retiring Conservative whip, and employed about 100 hands. None of them were at work at the time.

For a while it was feared that the flames would spread to adjacent buildings, and as the local brigade was unable to handle the fire alone a call was sent to Kingston for aid, and an engine was rushed to the scene.

The flames were kept within bounds, however, but all that remains if the plant is the walls.

SOCIETY WOMEN DO PICKET DUTY

DECLARE THEY WILL STAY AT POSTS EVEN IF THERE IS FIGHTING.

Strikers Carry Arms—Attack on Police Reserves Led by a Girl and Officers Found It Necessary to Use Revolvers.

Chicago, Nov. 3.—Reports that many of the 15,000 striking garment workers in Chicago had armed themselves in anticipation of battles with the police, caused a redoubling of caution on the part of Chief Stewart today. This report, however, failed to frighten the society women and working girls who are doing picket duty for the strikers.

They were at their posts early this morning and declared that no matter how much fighting took place they would stay where they were. Until yesterday the police had been able to quell the small riots with their clubs, but following an attack on the police reserves at West North avenue and Wood street, which was led by a girl, the officers found it necessary to use their revolvers. Several of the rioters shot also, but these "gun men" escaped. Seventy-five strikers were arrested.

EFFORTS TO EFFECT SETTLEMENT.

Members of a citizens' investigating committee were today in session in an effort to effect a settlement of the trouble. An effort will be made to bring about a conference between the union officials and the heads of the big concerns.

The strikers are spatting for time to be in a position to determine closed shop conditions.

The society women who were picketing at the Lamm shops were victims of a clever ruse. A. H. Lamm, of the firm, called them in his office and discussed the strike with them, until he had dismissed all his employes. When the women returned to the street they found that there was none that they could induce to strike.

VANCOUVER LOSES FAMOUS CASE IN COURT OF APPEAL.

Western City Will Carry Deadman's Island Trouble to the Privy Council.

Vancouver, Nov. 4.—The British Columbia Court of Appeals has decided Vancouver's famous Dead Man's Island case against the city, and in favor of Theodore Lindgate, formerly of Perterborough, Ont.

The city, which won at the trial, will now carry the case to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council.

The Island, which is twelve acres in extent and lies in Vancouver Harbor, is, according to the city, a part of the thousand acre Stanley Park. The Federal Government gave Mr. Ludgate a long leate of the Island in February, 1899. The city, contending that it possessed a title to it since 1887, which could not be revoked, put police on the Island and drove Mr. Ludgate to the courts for his redress.

Failing at the trial, he has now won on appeal. In the view of the four judges of the court, the Government gave the city in 1887 no more than a license to use the property for park purposes, revocable at will, and adds: "This court cannot substitute its opinion for that of the Governor-in-Council."

Lindsay in O.H.A.

Will Lindsay be represented by a hockey team in the O.H.A.? This query has been heard quite often of late on the streets, and it is up to those who are interested in this great winter pastime to get busy and state their intentions. There is plenty of material for a fast team and an effort should be made to have the town represented in the Junior O.H.A. The youngsters should be encouraged. That is the only way to build up a team, as the juniors of this winter will develop into the intermediate players of a few years hence. It is important that a meeting be held at an early date.—Lindsay Post.

Will Ask to Have the Fire Department Put Under Commission

Chief W. A. Howard returned Wednesday night from Toronto, where he was in attendance at the convention of the Provincial Association of Fire Chiefs. The sessions were well attended and highly interesting and instructive. Chief Howard contributed to the program a paper, which was followed by a long and profitable discussion.

Chief Howard's paper was as follows:

Gentlemen, I am pleased to have the honor of being assigned topic 2. "The advantage of a clean town or city, from a fire standpoint, and how to accomplish the same.

The dangerous habit if carelessly permitting the accumulation of combustible rubbish, to my mind, is nothing short of criminal negligence. And while we as fire chiefs, realize the seriousness of this practice, I fear the general public do not understand that when they are careless in this matter of allowing combustible rubbish to accumulate in and about their premises, they are not only endangering their own property, but they are endangering the lives and property of their neighbors.

A great many serious fires occur during each year that can be traced home to this particular cause, and I think it is the duty of the members of this association to take up a regular campaign to fight this evil. And I would respectfully suggest that those of us who have not suitable bylaws regulating this sort of thing take the matter up with your respective boards, so that in conducting a sincere and earnest campaign against this evil, that will eventually have the effect of decreasing the number of fires from this cause to a very considerable extent, you may have the assistance of your police departments to enforce the measure upon persons who may be obstinate.

It is desirable that the most cordial and friendly relations exist between the members of the police and fire departments. If the heads of these two departments work in harmony, in all likelihood the firemen and policemen will render valuable assistance to each other, in the performance of their duty.

I learn from the public press that some of you conduct a regular systematic tour of inspection of our business houses, which to my mind is a capital idea, and should be productive of much good. The very fact of the chief of the fire department or say one of his deputies, in uniform making periodical visits through the business districts not only has the effect of enlisting the co-operation of the business men, but also acts as a warning to employes, who at times grow careless by smoking, etc. which so often endangers the property of their employers. The note of the warning on the part of the person making these inspections should be given in a friendly manner and should be accepted in the same spirit. I have made practice of conducting these inspections ever since my appointment to office and I have never had occasion to summons any person to the police court. Whenever I find persons persistently and wilfully careless, I notify the chief of police. The chief constable will in turn send a written notice to the offender giving him say twenty-four hours to clean up, and in every instance this has had the desired effect.

Those of you who have not already adopted such a plan, I hope will give the subject some consideration. The number of fires occurring in each year from defective electric wiring is almost appalling, and sometimes a hint thrown out by the chief of the department or his deputy while making an inspection will have the effect of making your merchants and manufacturers take the necessary precautions along this line to safeguard their property.

Respectfully yours,
W. A. HOWARD,
Chief Fire Dept., Peterborough.

The following important motion was introduced by Chief Howard and seconded by Chief Keys of Galt: — That this association send a deputation to meet the ministers of the government with a view to have the government pass an act to compel every municipality in Canada to set aside a given portion of the tax rate for the maintenance of the fire department and with the consent of a majority of the representative municipalities to place every fire department under a commission.

The motion was considered of too serious a nature to be settled off hand, but was finally disposed of by appointing a special committee to go into the matter thoroughly and bring in some recommendation at the next meeting.

Canadian National Dairy Show.

Montreal, Nov. 4.—The Canadian National Dairy Show to be held in this city next week promises to be the largest and most notable affair of its kind ever held in the Dominion. Preparations for the exhibition were practically completed today and many of the exhibits are already installed in the Arena building. The programme for the week with its cence judging of stock, dairy tests and judging of dairy cattle. Exhibits will be made by the leading agricultural colleges of Canada and another interesting feature will be model dairies showing the most improved methods and dairy appliances.

Auto Show Opens in London.

London, Nov. 4.—Eclipsing all of its predecessors in the number and variety of exhibits and also in the amount of interest it has elicited from the general public, London's great annual automobile show, under the auspices of the Society of Motor Manufacturers and Traders, opens at Olympia today and will continue for one week.

The majority of the chasses and cars displayed are British, though foreign productions are well represented. As usual, the gasoline car predominates, its rival being represented by three makes of steam cars.

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 5, 1910.

CLINGING TO THE PAST.

Erckmann and Chatrian in one of their Alsatian romances drew a character whose fatalism was superb. He used to say that the strata of society were divinely ordered; that it was necessary and right for the peasant to look up to the small proprietor, for the small proprietor to respect the squire, for the squire to bow to the nobility, for the nobility to yield homage to the king, and for the king to be subject to the pope. And all this time the French sentinels in cross belts and shakos were marching on the village. In due time the republican watch fires were built in the streets, the republican muskets were stacked, and the lumbering republican guns were belting over the stones. The theories of the good old man were quenched by this overwhelming, unanswerable show of force.

The parallel between this character of fiction and the Free Trade party in Britain is singularly apt. Sir Alfred Mond and other prominent Free Traders in Britain are old timers. They cling to the theories of Cobden when the economic position of Britain has suffered tremendous changes. When Cobden lived British industrialism was supreme. No other nation had approached within seeing distance. British goods dominated the world's markets. There was no danger of hurtful competition from foreign manufacturers either abroad or at home. But even under those conditions Cobden did not foresee that the other nations would decline to follow Great Britain's lead. He thought that the destruction of the British tariff wall would compel an indirect world-wide Free Trade. Britain at the time could afford to make the experiment. But if Cobden were alive today it may be doubtful if he would still advocate a policy which make the United Kingdom the dumping ground of the world, strangles British industry and creates an army of unemployed. Germany and the United States have arisen since Cobden began to speak. A policy well suited for one generation may not be suited for the next. Protection grows in the world.

Sir Alfred Mond and his allies cling to the old time cure all. What has been must be, according to their political creed. They call themselves Liberals, but their whole attitude is conservative. They cannot realize fully that the world has changed. At the same time they hear the tramp of strange hosts and make curious concessions to the new evangel. To benefit the shareholders Bonner, Mond & Co., make trade agreements and dally with other protective devices. The worthy baronet continues to talk well, however, and to flaunt his conservatism in the air.

But some day the hosts of Tariff Reform will take possession of Great Britain and like the Erckmann-Chatrian Royalist, Sir Alfred Mond may find that theories have been quashed by hard facts with points on them.

NEW YORK'S COMING ELECTION.

There is no mistaking the seriousness with which the leaders of the Republican party in the United States regard the fight for the control of the state of New York, which will be settled in less than a week. Senator Elihu Root, on whom has descended the mantle of all the Republican Elijahs of recent years, is mincing no words in his appeal to the stalwarts of the party to stick to their state leaders lest an unmentionable disaster overtake them. Presumably the disaster in mind is the ousting of the party from control of the national government two years hence. According to Mr. Root Theodore Roosevelt is the Moses of today: ensouled, improved and brought up to date. Failing to lead his people out of the house of bondage, he is pictured to break up the house. Students of Mr. Roosevelt's career will have little difficulty in accepting this estimate of him as fairly accurate. The intolerance is that if Mr. Roosevelt's candidate is elected next Tuesday the foundation of the temple of corruption will begin to crack in anticipation, the place of bondage will go down, wages will rise, and the grand old Republican party will be green four years hence in which to erase the tariff down, curtail the predatory corporations, and generally make it uncomfortable for malefactors of great wealth and other undesirable citizens.

It is almost unique in New York politics that both parties have nominated men for the governorship who appear to be absolutely worthy of that honor. Neither Mr. Stimson, the Republican candidate, nor Mr. Dix the Democratic, have a flaw in their record against which a strong attack can be directed. Consequently the issue is being largely fought out on national issues, and the chief national issue seems to be Roosevelt. It is interesting, although it may not possess any special significance, to note that the betting by which Wall street connects itself with any election of importance is at the odds of two to one on the Democratic party's chances.

A DIPLOMATIC REQUIREMENT.

The question has frequently been asked during the past week or two whether the powers of Europe, particularly Britain would acknowledge the republican government established in Portugal consequent of the revolution. Being one of the most ancient of European nations the twenty-one guns that announced the uprising in Lisbon naturally shook the whole Iberian peninsula, including the Basque provinces of Spain, but though the overthrow of a monarchy was by an element partly anarchial, the other powers have no course left but recognize the new administration. Were an alliance to exist between Britain and Portugal, or Germany and Portugal it would not, under the present conditions, give these nations an excuse for ignoring the new republican government. On the other hand, had an attack been made on Portugal by an outside enemy the allied nations could step in, if the clauses of the treaty went so far and help defend the crown.

Internal revolution is like a family quarrel in a household. Its consequences may be ever so much deplored by interested relations, yet legally they have no justification for interfering. Republican form of government has long since been proven acceptible, particularly in countries like France, where the people are possessed of revolutionary instinct. It has long been recognized at all courts, and no matter how reluctant they may be to bow to revolutionary factions, diplomats of other land must acknowledge what the people demand.

The danger which Portugal faces is not that alone of an unsettled people, but the spread of anarchy and atheism. In the wake of republicanism has decimated these destroyers of citizenship. Seditious doctrines have been brewed and spread till they have poisoned the minds of even peasants, in Spain and the Spanish throne has been frequently menaced. It is in these that the seeds of national destruction lie. It is through them that a monarchy may again be established in Portugal even though the house of Braganza may never regain its throne.

THE COMING SESSION.

The coming session of parliament which opens on November 17th, is expected to be of more than ordinary interest, says the Ottawa Journal, an independent newspaper, in that there is the possibility that it will be the last before another general election. The opposition, therefore, may be expected to make the most of the chances they will have to harass the administration. The two parties are in the throes of the fight to power. The government is weaker numerically than it has been since 1896, its majority last session having sometimes fallen as low as twenty.

The opposition also is a strong fighting body with young fighting material. It has been said that it is the strongest opposition since confederation.

What will lead especial interest in the coming conflict of parties is the situation in Quebec. Whereas a year ago there was a small outbreak on the part of F. D. Monk on the Conservative side and Colonel McLean on the Liberal side, over the naval policies of their several parties, the outbreak has grown to such large proportions in the government party that actual retention of office is threatened. The Bourassa campaign in Quebec is now of the most serious character to the Liberals, while other incidents which occurred lately have caused the English-speaking supporters of the government to look with suspicion upon its actions.

The ministry hopes to have a short session in view of the imperial conference in May and the coronation in June, both of which Sir Wilfrid Laurier will attend.

BRITISH PROCEDURE.

A striking contrast in the proceedings of courts is furnished in the trial of Dr. Crippen and Miss Leneve. It took the English law but a short time to get at the bottom of the Crippen case, to sift evidence that has attracted the entire English-speaking world, to sum up the whole ghastly affair and to announce the punishment that goes to the perpetrator of appalling crimes. Had Crippen been tried in America the legal defence would have been insanity or brain storm, the case would likely have dragged on through the courts for weeks and the outcome in all probability would have been a short sentence in an hospital for the insane, or acquittal on the grounds of insufficient evidence. 6

The insanity plea has been used so much within the last few years that it really has become a subject of ridicule with the public and nearly every man with criminal instincts seems to believe that a clever lawyer can save him from the gallows by attempting to prove him weak mentally.

Lord Alverstone and the London jury have set a good example for Canadian courts.

TO MAINTAIN PEACE.

Count Katsura, premier and minister of finance, announces that the next Japanese budget will appropriate $10,000,000 for naval increase. This step, he explained, is "made necessary by the sheer requirements of maintaining peace."

Yes, that is everywhere the trouble with the peace-loving nations. To maintain peace Germany is clouding even her splendid prosperity by war taxation. To maintain peace Italy taxes salt until poor children have rickets, and royalty lavishes the money on Dreadnoughts. To make Germany maintain peace Great Britain imposes the heaviest of war taxation, the Young Turks, administering a nation on the brink of bankruptcy, have just humiliated themselves before all Europe to wheedle another $30,000,000 loan for war purposes to maintain peace. To maintain peace the United States according to Mr. Tawney, devotes 70 per cent. of its $1,567,685.66 a day of national expenditure to war disbursements. To maintain peace, the British Chancellor of the Exchequer tells us, "the countries of the world are spending annually 45 millions ($2,250,000,000) upon the machinery of destruction."

Our Cousins in London

The booklet by this name issued by the London Traffic office pictures and paints the exterior and exterior of the new Grand Trunk Building in Cockspur Street. The location is one of the best in all London and the new building has already become one of the show places of London.

On the first floor of the building will be found a spacious room "all Canadian Furnished" where Canadian and United States newspapers are on file and where facilities are provided for conducting correspondence.

A private room is provided to which patrons may bring their business associates wherein to transact business. Adjoining this room is the office of the Grand Trunk Industrial Agent, who will give information and facilitate transportation and commercial transactions between any country.

Visitors may register their address for the information of their friends or business acquaintances.

A copy of this booklet may be obtained on application to Grand Trunk City Office.

ENGINE REACHES COBOURG.

Cobourg, Oct. 29.—Work was started this week on the freight sheds of the Canadian Northern Ontario Railway here. They will be located about two hundred yards east of Division street. The work of excavation for the station is also begun. The steel is laid for the C.N.R. from Brighton to Cobourg, and this week the first engine steamed in to the town. The gang of Italians who have been working between here and Grafton have gone on down to Shannonville, where construction work is in progress.

106 acres of absolutely proven oil land on Sulphur Mountain, adjoining and between the Liberty and Puritas Oil Companies' property. Ten miles from Santa Paula, Ventura Co., Calif.

FACTS—The property is absolutely proven territory, lying as it does with the UNION OIL CO. producing on the south, the LIBERTY OIL CO. producing on the west, the HARD OIL CO. producing on the north, which only recently erected its 30th rig, and Puritas Oil Co. to commence drilling on the east. Also it is located in a district of BIG PRODUCING COMPANIES, such as Ojai Petroleum, Pyramid Oil Co., Canadian Queen, Capital Crude, Bard Oil and Asphalt Co., and others. THERE'S NO QUESTION ABOUT THE COMPANY GETTING OIL. It is possible that Liberty Oil Company's new well will be a gusher, which would make the ATLANTA OIL COMPANY stock worth par. Mr. Cowell, our Superintendent, knows every foot of the ground, and having his log book of Liberty property, which adjoins our land, and an experienced OIL MAN and we consider ourselves fortunate in obtaining his services. VENTURA CO. OIL represents the cream of the industry. It is the home of HIGH GRAVITY OIL. VENTURA COUNTY OIL means $1.00 a barrel at well. Costs from 3c to 5c to produce it. THE GREAT UNION OIL CO. got its start in VENTURA CO. and has paid over twenty-two millions in dividends. These GREAT ASSETS had a small beginning in the WILD BILL GUSHER, within SIGHT OF ATLANTA OIL CO. property. The demand for refining oil FAR EXCEEDS THE SUPPLY. The 3 refineries in California are crying for the product. The eastern high gravity fields are diminishing. The OHIO FIELDS, FOR INSTANCE, have fallen off one-third. The demand is caused by the increased market for gasoline. Throughout the world the number of automobiles and internal combustion gasoline engines is forcing up the price of high gravity crude petroleum. Eastern operators are now looking to VENTURA COUNTY, which are held to be the most extensive known. THIS IS THE FIRST ANNOUNCEMENT of ground floor offering of ATLANTA OIL CO., and may be oversubscribed at any time. One day's delay may mean you are too late. ACT NOW. WRITE FOR LATEST NEWS OF VENTURA OIL FIELDS.

The lumber for the derrick is on the ground and machinery has been ordered. Well No. 1 will be started as soon as drilling is installed. It should not take over six months to complete first well. Well No. 2, by conditions of lease, must be in operation by February 14th, 1911.

HOW COMMISSION RULE WORKS.

In the last several weeks two or three American cities have joined the growing group of commission governed municipalities. Perhaps the "rush" is over for the present, and people generally are disposed to await the results of the experiments already undertaken. But there is no evidence for intimation from any quarter that commission government has been disappointing. On the contrary, all the reports so far are highly encouraging.

Keokuk, Iowa, has just published a statement covering the first six ment all along the line. Bonded indebtedness has been reduced; a cash balance has taken the place of a shortage and floating debt; the city has been drawing interest instead of paying it; rents and fines have been collected where they had never been collected before; more and better work has been obtained in the street repairing department, and at lessened cost, and so on.

The application of ordinary business efficiency — and method has brought about these results. A few responsible men have accomplished what many politicians under a system of misdirected checks and balances could not or would not accomplish.

ALLEGED ABUSES IN NEW ONTARIO.

Reeves and Clerks of Rural Municipalities Discuss Taxation Strong Resolution Passed.

"We settlers did not come here as a charitable institution to pay for the roads and improvements to increase the value of the farms for these speculators."

These emphatic words were spoken by Mr. Houser, a leading citizen of Armstrong Township, Southern Temiskaming, at a meeting of reeves and clerks of rural municipalities held at New Liskeard last summer.

Those present were :—
Mr. Houser, Armstrong.
Reeve Neely, Hilliardton.
Clerk Ager, Hilliardton.
Reeve Judge, Casey.
Clerk Reavie, Casey.
Clerk Stephenson, Dymont.
Ald. Goodman, New Liskeard.
Ald Stephenson, New Liskeard.
Mr. Keyes, Casey.
Mr. John Legrow, Harley.
Wm. Legrow, Harley.
Editor Roebuck, of "The Herald," New Liskeard.

The way the real settler is handicapped by the speculator is a very live question in Northern Ontario.

Mr. Houser, a leading citizen of the Township of Armstrong, which is not yet organized, referred to the hardships of the early settlers. The first comers toted their effects into the unbroken bush and then paid fifty cents per acre for the land and went to work to clear the country. The price being charged for the homesteads is fifty cents per acre still and many of those who have come in at that figure are holding for speculation and loafing.

"I know cases," he declared, "where men have located lots for all their relatives. They are doing what regulation work they have to and are putting the inspectors on the back. It is not right. In our township there is not one farm which is more than a mile and a half from the graded road. Every farm is worth much more than fifty cents per acre."

The Chairman : "Ten dollars per acre."

"And who does that value belong to?"

Reeve Judge, of Casey Township : "To the actual settler."

Mr. Houser : "Right, the actual settler is the one who has made it valuable. I told Mr. Sutherland, of the Colonization Department, that were I in authority I would send inspectors through this country and cancel right and left without fear or favor. When a lot is cancelled I would put a value on it and sell it for what it is worth. Then let the government take its fifty cents per acre, if it wants it, and spend the balance on the roads past the very farms themselves. It would not cost a cent in this way to make good roads through the township."

"I hold that the increase in the value of these farms belongs to the settlers who have opened up the country. It is theirs. The spending of the money on the roads of the township would increase the value of all the farms."

Mr. Houser : "Exempt the improvements from taxation and then the fellow who does not improve will pay his share. Then the speculator will either sell out or do something. These two plans will work together."

Taxation the Cure.

Reeve Judge, of Casey Township : "I have known men to hold farms for the past fifteen years and they have not five acres cleared today. Some of these fellows do not want to pay any taxes at all. Some of the actual settlers who have cleared and built are paying as much taxes as are five others who are loafers, put together, and on less land.

"I have asked some of these fifteen year guys why they did not clear, and the answer was, 'A man would be a fool to clear land in Temiskaming.' I said, 'I guess you are about right. A man would be a big fool to clear land, let so doing, pay the other people's taxes.' I have the timber out and ready for the building of a barn, but I will not build, for if I did I would have to pay still more taxes. I now pay as much as halfa dozen of fellows who have done nothing and I am not going to pay still more than that. I am going to buy a tent in which to store my grain and hay. This can be folded up and hidden when the assessors comes around.

An Example.

Mr. Judge illustrated the inequity of the situation by quoting the assessment figures. "I am assessed for $1,750," he said, "on 132½ acres of land with their clearings and buildings. A neighbor of mine who has done nothing, cleared nothing, is assessed $465 for 181 acres. This latter farm is not on quite so good a road as I am but it is not dissimilar in other ways. It is just the same land as mine. He has done nothing to improve and develop the country, while I have fifty acres cleared, with their fences and buildings. The result is that I pay six times the taxes that he is called on to pay."

Mr. Judge was asked whether the maximum rate allowed by law when levied against the land only, would raise sufficient taxes to run the township. It was agreed to by all present that it would raise ample. The maximum rate allowed is 30 mills and the townships raise only from ten to fifteen mills, and, in addition to this, were it necessary, the assessment could be bolstered.

Would Bonus Improvements.

Continuing Reeve Judge declared that the question of exempting the improvements had been submitted to the ratepayers of the Township of Casey and had carried almost unanimously. The vote had been put at as ratepayers' meeting and had carried 25 to 2. The reeve had taken legal advice and at a second adjourned meeting of the ratepayers, the question was put to a vote by a secret ballot. This time it carried 24 to 3. Mr. Judge had worked out a method by which the will of the electors could be given expression in actual practice. The Assessment Act will not permit the exemption of improvements, but it says nothing against the passing of bonuses. It was therefore planned in Casey to give a bonus on all clearings over five acres and all buildings and improvements to the exact amount of the taxes levied. In this way, the Reeve hoped to evade the foolish law for the taxing of improvements. The bonus could be made equal to the taxes, he said, or, "if you want to crack it to the speculators," it could be made a little more.

It was reported that the County of Waterloo was exempting improvements in spite of the Assessment Law, and, according to Mr. C. C. James, the Deputy Minister of Agriculture, Waterloo is the only county in Ontario that is holding its own in point of population. In all other parts of the province farmers are emigrating to the West.

A Strong Resolution.

It was moved by Reeve Judge, of Casey, and seconded by Reeve Neely, of Hilliardton, that :

Whereas a large number of lots in Temiskaming are being held for speculation purposes to the serious injury of the country's development.

And whereas the present system enforced by the Assessment Act lays the greater portion of the burden of taxation on the shoulders of the industrious settler.

Now, therefore, be it resolved that the government be petitioned to immediately amend the Assessment Act in order to permit the municipalities to exempt improvements from taxation upon a vote in favor of the measure being carried by the electors. The Square Deal.

TAXING IMPROVEMENTS.

At Lower Rate Seems to Be Steadily Gaining Ground.

The measure introduced at the last session of the legislature A. E. Fripp, M.P.P., to empower municipalities to tax improvements at a lower rate than the bare land will be again brought up at the coming session.

The movement in this direction seems to be steadily gained ground. It has many stalwart advocates and is championed by practically all the leading papers in the province.

The idea of the bill has been actually carried out in Vancouver, B.C. Within the last year that city, which has been experimentally lowering its assessments on improvements for some years past, decided to remove all taxation from buildings and other improvements and to raise its revenue from a tax on land values only. Mayor Taylor reports that largely in consequence of this progressive step, building operations have been far more extensive this year than ever before in Vancouver's history, and it naturally follows that the increased distribution of wages through the building trade has brought prosperity in an unprecedented degree to all lines of business.

It is difficult to see on what ground the legislature could possibly reject Mr. Fripp's proposed measure. The bill is merely permissive. It provides for the adoption of the change by the municipality only on a majority vote of the property owners so that no municipality need adopt the differential assessment unless the people immediately and directly concerned, the actual property owners, desire to do so.

Don't wash and scrub, bend and rub over a hot wash tub; sift a little GOLD DUST in the water, loosen the dirt, and save rubbing

Soap is not a bit of cleansing good until it is mixed with water and made into suds. And then it still needs the rub-rub-rub of human muscle.

GOLD DUST works in an entirely different way—instantly and totally dissolves in hot or cold, hard or soft water—and, without any aid from you, starts to cleanse.

GOLD DUST is more than soap—better and more economical. It is a powder of magic power—but rightly directed power, that leaves the wash white, sweet, wholesome.

Use your brains, not your muscle!

Throw away your soap, get GOLD DUST, and simply use it according to the directions on the package.

"Let the GOLD DUST Twins do your work."

Local Hunters Get Good Weather.

The local hunters out at Ketchecum, Eagle, Gold and other northern lakes, are certainly having good weather provided "Old Probs" hands the deer slayers out the same sample he is distributing here. It makes a great big difference when the cook at a hunting lodge wakes you up with a hot cup of coffee, or a gin cocktail, as individual desire regulates, and you turn out to sit for hours, on the watch, by the shores of a congealing northern lake, whether your head and shoulders are covered with snow flakes or are warmed by the welcome rays of a November sun.

A Parallel Case With Peterboro.'

Two French-Canadians have recently sold stock in Cobalt, in a mining proposition that was presumably to produce gold. Right here in Peterborough, thousands of dollars were invested in "Myers Cave," from which virgin silver in shiploads was to be extracted. The Cobalt proposition produced granite, after the money had been spent, and the Myer's Cave showed up what the government analyist described as, "A good sample of building sand, if properly sifted, but no silver."

Provincial Officer Dr. R. W. Bell, formerly a physician practising in this city, is watching closely the boundaries between Ontario and Michigan, as maglignant smallpox has broken out in that State.

Expert on Local Water Power.

It was rumored last night among some of those who ought to know, that a skilled engineer will arrive in the city today to look into the matter of Peterborough's water, and consequent power supply. It seems that the alleged paucity of water, that turns the wheels in Peterborough is attributable to the handling of the supply between Nassau and the city. With this expert to investigate, and the intelligent methods of Superintendent McClellan, its likely that the said shortage will cease.

Alleged Abuses

ors of real property for the city of Cleveland is an attractive publication of sixty-two pages that deserves to be carefully studied by every assessor and every municipal officer in Ontario.

This Cleveland assessment is probably the first in which the public were fully taken into the confidence of the assessors.

The Public Assist.

In the course of their report the Board say:

"The system adopted by the Board admits, in our opinion, of no improvement. It is the first city of the United States which has been fully and thoroughly valued on the Somer's plan. The Board, first acquiring extended knowledge of the town values, through consultation with leading experts, such as W. A. Greenland and J. G. Cowles, placed tentative values on the down town section, published the same for criticism, and held numerous meetings thereon. This, once established and thoroughly circulated, the people seemed to take to this idea with avidity. It was apparent at a glance that such a system had no place for favorites; that favoring one lot meant favoring the street, and this again requiring a change of the next street, and so on until the whole neighborhood and district would be reduced, all of which individual, location and sectional favoritism would immediately and readily be discernable even by the uninitiated.

The Plan Popular.

"The Board, from the very day of its organization, was thoroughly imbued with the idea that in taxation matters any method whereby the taxpayer would be assured that all benefits and immunities enjoyed by his neighbor would also be enjoyed by himself would appeal to him with greater force than a system whereby friends are rewarded and enemies penalized. Everywhere and at all times we heard the welcome cheer: 'If you get me in as my neighbor I won't kick.' Indeed, so popular and commendable has the system proven itself that we confidently believe any future assessment, not based thereon would ipso facto impeach the honor and integrity of the assessors.

Fair Valuation Assured.

"Never before, we believe, in assessing the land values of a large city, has the community participated to the same extent in its valuation. The Chamber of Industry through its six or seven committees on the West Side, the South Cleveland Improvement Association, the 16th Ward Improvement Association, the 17th Ward Improvement Association, the Kinsman Road Improvement Association, the Dugway Brook Association, the Collinwood Board of Trade, the Cleveland Manufacturers' Club, and last, but not least, the members of the Cleveland Real Estate Board, all were enlisted in the work of securing a fair and honest appraisal at 100 per cent. Indeed to the many objections of our valuations, this Board had but one reply, viz.: 'Give the Real Estate Board an option for thirty days at our appraisal. If they can't sell it we will reduce it.' This procedure proved of incalculable benefit to the citizens of Cleveland. In but one instance was our request complied with.—The Square Deal.

VOL. XXXIII NO. 250 PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO SATURDAY NOVEMBER 5 1910 PRICE TWO CENTS

Sbarretti will Not Come Back to Canada

APOSTOLIC DELEGATE TO CANADA IS RETIRED AND SUCCESSOR IS APPOINTED.

Mgr. Stagni is Coming—Bishop of Aquila is Named By Pope to Succeed Him at Ottawa.

Rome, Nov. 4.—Mgr. Stagni, Archbishop of Aquila, has been appointed as apostolic delegate to Canada, to succeed Mgr. Sbarretto.

Monseigneur Sbarretti was appointed Apostolic Delegate to Canada on Nov. 26, 1902, succeeding Monseigneur Falconio, the present papal delegate to the United States.

Mgr. Sbarretti returned to Rome last spring, and since that time there have been persistent rumors that he would not again resume his duties at Ottawa. The French claimed that he favored the Irish, and since his removal to Rome declared he was responsible for the appointment of Archbishop Gauthier to Ottawa. Mgr. Sbarretti was born at Spoleto, Italy in 1856. He was formerly an attache of the papal legation at Washington, and was subsequently Bishop of Havana.

While in Canada Mgr. Sbarretti conferred with Sir Wilfrid Laurier and other politicians about the autonomy bills, when perpetuated Separate schools in the new Western Provinces, and he became a political issue himself.

NOT AT EUCHARIST CONGRESS

Ottawa, Nov. 4.—A cablegram received last night confirmed the report that Mgr. Stagni has been appointed papal delegate to Canada, succeeding Mgr. Sbarretti.

Mgr. Sbarretti was called to Rome during the summer, and the fact that he did not return to Canada for the Eucharistic Congress practically confirmed previous rumors that he would never come back.

POPE SAID TO BE SERIOUSLY ILL

(Special to The Times.)

Rome, Nov. 4.—The condition of Pope Pius, whose heart is said to be very weak, is giving his physician, Dr. Marchiafava, considerable anxiety. It developed today that the physician urged the pope to give up his daily audiences for two weeks. Pius refused, though he has lessened the number of persons he receives daily. Worry over the Portuguese situation is held responsible for his present condition. His general health is satisfactory, but the state of his heart is understood to be such that, at times of unusual stress, the physician thinks he should exercise the utmost caution.

The Immense Loss Caused by Fires

Right here in our busy little city of Peterborough is laid an egg that may hatch into a national affair. The old saying that straws show which way the wind is blowing, may be amplified and demonstrated by the action, briefly referred to in yesterday's issue, begun by Chief Howard, head of the local fire brigade. At the last meeting of the Provincial Fire Chiefs, he strongly recommended that the Dominion Government be memorialized concerning the immense loss incurred annually in Canada by fire. A loss, as he explained, that amounted to more than the whole municipal collection of taxes. The local chief suggested that the Dominion government take such steps as to promulgate legislation whereby all the various municipalities, throughout all Canada be impelled to lay aside a fixed per centage of their taxes collected, said reserve of funds, to be applied arbitrarily towards the maintenance of fire brigades and necessary equipments. The expense of such brigades and equipments to be fixed pro-rata as to population of the various communities. In this connection, it might be mentioned that Chief Howard has received a letter from Mr. John A. Robertson, secretary of the Canadian Fire Underwriters' Association, expressing keen sympathy with the local man's ideas. Now as every intelligent merchant and manufacturer knows full well, the Canadian Fire Underwriters' Association of Canada is a strong factor in determining the rate for fire insurance demanded, or to be demanded in every city, town, hamlet or county of Canada for insurance. Should Chief Howard's ideas be adopted, and the Dominion government pass the legislation proposed, Peterborough will have the honor of promugating, and successfully carrying out, one of the broadest and most stringent, at the same time, most defensive acts yet placed on the books of Canada's legislation.

In proposing this suggested legislation, Chief Howard in his speech, clearly intimated that before any such law, as asked for, be passed, that each and every municipality, large or small should have the right and opinion of expressing its individual opion as to the law proposed

SERIOUS TROUBLE MAY FOLLOW BRITISH INVASION OF PERSIA

THE BRITISH COMMANDER AND SEVERAL SERVICE SAILORS WERE INJURED.

Grave Trouble to Follow—Russia, France and Germany May Be Included — England and Russia in Accord.

Teheran, Persia, Oct. Nov. 4 The English invasion of Persia has begun with a pitched battle, in which it is reported that the commander and several of the sailors of the British Cruiser Prosperine were wounded.

Serious trouble, even to the point of involving Russia, France and Germany, is expected to follow.

According to advices which have been received here, the Prosnerine landed a force of marines several days ago at Lingah, in Laristan, on the Gulf of Persia. An additional force of blue jackets was landed today, and it is reported here that they were attacked by the Persians, a pitched battle resulted. The number of casualties is not reported, nor is it definite who won a victory.

Though ostensibly for the purpose of "maintaining and preserving order in the British sphere of influence in Persia," there is every reason for the belief that the British invasion is part of a well founded program between England and Russia for the protection of the little Shah's Kingdom.

NEW SYSTEM OF FAT REDUCTION.

The saying that "there is nothing new under the sun" does not apply to fat people. Here is something new for them—a new sensation, a new pleasure, a new and graceful figure, easily found by anyone who is passing beyond the limits of slimness. Everyone has heard of the Marmola Prescription, that harmless combination of fat defying elements discovered by one of our foremost physicians. Now, from the same high authority there comes another idea the idea of condensing these same pure harmless ingredients into a pleasant little tablet. Taken after eating, and at bedtime they help the stomach to dispose of all the fatty foods, converting them into compact solid flesh, muscle and energy, without dieting or exercise. Marmola Prescription Tablets regulate the entire system—do for you what bodily exertion and self denial can not do, and the fat once routed, is gone for good. You can prove all this at a trifling cost. Marmola Prescription Tablets are sold by all druggists or sent post paid by the Marmola Co., 1192 Monroe Av., Detroit, Mich. A large case, sufficient to bring lasting results is but 75c.

CZAR OF RUSSIA VISITS KAISER

HOPED THAT BETTER RELATION BETWEEN THE TWO COUNTRIES WILL RESULT.

The Czarina Quite Ill—Elaborate Precautions Taken to Guard Them From Assassination.

Berlin, Nov. 4 The Czar of Russia, arrived at Potsdam today, on a brief visit to Kaiser Wilhelm. The Czar came from Friedberg, where he has been the guest of his brother-in-law, the Grand Duke of Hesse. The Czar was not accompanied by the Czarina, whose condition of health makes it impossible for her to participate in public functions. During his stay in Potsdam, Nicholas will be the recipient of many marks of honor.

Elaborate precautions have been taken to guard the two emperors from assassination.

Great importance is attributed in political circles to this meeting, because the relations between Germany and Russia have not been over-friendly in the past, and it is expected that a better understanding will follow the present series of conferences.

HOW IT CAME ABOUT.

The history of the bringing about of the meeting contains amusing features. When the Czar came to Germany in August, on his way to visit his brother-in-law, he merely telegraphed Wilhelm a message of polite greeting, with no intimation that he would live to meet the Kaiser. Almost immediately the official German papers, inspired by the foreign office, called attention to the "rudeness" of visiting a foreign country without paying respect to the head of the country. These articles were brought to the attention of the Czar. The next step in the royal comedy was a message from the Czar to Wilhelm, intimating that Nicholas would be glad to have Wilhelm call upon him in Hesse. The Kaiser sent a polite but evasive answer. The inspired newspapers immediately began to explain that the Kaiser had paid the last visit, and it wasn't up to him to go again, and he couldn't do so with dignity. In due course these utterances were called to Nicholas' attention, and he decided to go and see Wilhelm.

A man and woman arrested on a charge of burglary were married yesterday in Baltimore, Md., Central police station. There are a few young ladies, if a persistent hunt for husbands is any indication, right here, who would marry a burglar, murderer, bank robber or any masculine human being, who would reply, "I will."

100 MINERS ENTOMBED

THOUGHTS OF A BUSY FELLOW

On Past, Current and Coming Events of Local and General Import.

WHAT IS SOCIALISM, ANYWAY?

Considering the important part Socialism is playing in French politics today, it would be interesting to know just what the tenets of Socialism really are. This is somewhat difficult to arrive at owing to the truly complex definition of the aims and objects of Socialism given by its votaries. According to the dictionary the abstract meaning of Socialism is "a social state in which there is a community of property among all citizens;" a new term for agnaticism." When attracted by curiosity, the writer attended some socialistic gatherings in the States, he left impressed with the idea that the society's main tenet called for "a community of free love in which marriage had no place." 'Tis true, considerable emphasis was also given to the need for an equal division of the world's wealth and property. The writer is not to blame should this conclusion be wrong, his views are the result of the speeches delivered at that time

As to a division of the world's wealth, in March, 1848, a revolutionary party of men in Germany set out to secure an equal division of Germany's wealth. After plundering many houses of the rich in Frankfort, they called upon Rothschild and stated their case. Rothschild replied, "we will immediately divide," admitting that he was worth thirty million florins he agreed to divide that amount amongst thirty million Germans that then composed the nation one florin for each German. The revolutionists looked stupidly at each other for awhile, but finally each man took his florin and left. Subsequent events showed that Rothschild's practical demonstration of how far the wealth of the world would go if divided, had the effect of showing the revolutionists of Frankfort what stupid asses they really were.

In this connection, let us take a lesson from the awful reign of Terror in France, which resulted from a mad attempt to institute an era of absolute equality. The populace thought to divide the country like a booty, they abolished religion, acclaimed atheism, and "free love" ran wild. They elevated as Dictator Maximilien Robespierre, a hater of the excesses that tempt to vice and wine, a virgen enemy of capital punishment. But in place of equality and a division of wealth and property, a reign of envy, malice, crime, vice and bloodshed ensued. Robespierre, in order to retain his unsolicited Dictatorship, deluged the metropolis in blood; the butcher atheists were in turn guillotined, as was also the Butcher Dictator; the proclamation of a Supreme Being followed and religion was re-established. And France learnt by fearful experience that a community of property among all citizens and an equality of state are idle dreams.

The writer would say that Socialism really means a desire to shirk the responsibilities of life.

SWEET SIXTEEN.

I am taller far than Bess,
Though she's stouter I confess,
And my shoe-tops meet my dress,
And my hair
Reaches far below my waist,
Which is just a little laced,
And many who have taste
Call me fair.

With the boys I musn't play,
Mamma told me so to-day,
And my dolls are given away
Every one.
I'm too old to run about,
I must learn to live without
Play at tag, or laugh and shout,
Any fun.

If with cousin Tom I walk
Mamma sees me, like a hawk,
And you ought to hear her talk!
Such a tongue!
"You, a school-girl, flirting, fie!
Then I wish that I might die,
Since for any pleasure I
Am too young.

I'm too old to play with toys,
I'm too young for women's joys,
I'm too old to fight the boys;
And the men;
I'm forbidden to regard,
Lest I sister Bess retard,
And I find it rather hard
Now and then!

THE PUBLIC EXECUTIONER.

While the post of public executioner is one that entails social ostracism, still the office is necessary, and calls for a certain amount of skill.

Anniversary of Gunpowder Plot.

London, Nov. 5 The 305th anniversary of the discovery of the Gunpowder Plot was celebrated by the youthful population of England today with the customary pranks and festivities. The day is popularly known as Guy Fawkes Day. It was on November 5th, 1605, that the memorable conspiracy for springing a mine under the houses of parliament and destroying the three estates of the realm—king, lords and commons—was discovered. The plot was projected by Robert Catesby, and several Roman Catholic persons of rank were leagued in the enterprise. Guy Fawkes was discovered in the vaults under the House of Lords preparing a train of 100 barrels of powder to be fired the next day. Fawkes and many of his co-conspirators were executed. The vault called Guy Fawkes' cellar, remained in the basehouses of parliament till 1825, when it was converted into offices.

Great Electoral Battle Now Near at Hand

SENATE TUESDAY FORTY FOUR STATES WILL ELECT CONGRESSMAN.

The Present Senate is Composed of Fifty-Nine Republicans and Thirty-Three Democrats.

Washington, D.C., Nov. 5.—Elections will be held in forty four States next Tuesday. Maine and Vermont have already elected State officers and members of the next congress—the sixty second. Arkansas and Georgia have named State officers only, and will select representatives at the coming election. In twenty-seven States governors are to be elected, together with other State officers. The only States that did not choose governors this year are Delaware, Florida, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi, Missouri, Montana, North Carolina, Utah, Virginia, Washington and West Virginia. In nearly all of the States justices of the supreme court or minor State officers are to be chosen

The terms of thirty United States senators—twenty-four Republicans and six Democrats—expire March 3, 1911. The present senate is composed of 59 Republicans and 33 Democrats.

The six Democratic vacancies will be filled by Democrats. Of the 24 Republican vacancies the Democrats have already gained one, in Maine, where a Democrat will succeed Senator Eugene Hale.

Members of the national house of representatives are to be elected. The present house is composed of 217 Republicans and 174 Democrats. Vermont has already re-elected her two Republican representatives. In the recent election in Maine two of the four Republican representatives were replaced by Democrats.

As usual there is one ticket, the Democratic in South Carolina, Colorado leads this year with the greatest number of State tickets eight. They are the Republican, Democratic, Socialist, Prohibition, Socialist-Labor, Platform Democratic, Citizens and Progressive Republican. Pennsylvania comes next, with seven tickets in the field. The Prohibition part has in 21 States and the Socists in 28. The Independence party and the Socialistic Labor party have tickets in a number of States. The American party has one ticket in Utah.

IMMENSE ENTHUSIASM AT THE OPENING OF THE FIRST PARLIAMENT.

Large Crowds Assemble in the Vicinity Long Before the Hour Fixed for the Ceremony—An Impressive Affair.

Capetown, Nov. 4 The royal standard and the Union Jack of old England tugged and tore in the brisk wind from the flagstaffs of the assembly building this morning, a silent token of the fact that the day designated for the opening of the first parliament of the South African Union had arrived. Large crowds began to assemble in the vicinity early in the forenoon and long before the hour fixed for the opening ceremony thousands of persons were massed about the entrances to the legislative hall.

The opening ceremonies were conducted with a dignified impressiveness mixed with a certain amount of glamor and splendor. The presence of the Duke of Connaught, representing His Majesty the King, added much to the public interest in the occasion. A pageant in which a large number of troops, civic organizations and delegations representing the four component states of the Union took part, preceded the inauguration of the parliament. The procession made its way through streets gay with flags and bunting to the assembly building, while all along the route thousands of men, women and children manifested their interest and enthusiasm in the occasion by vociferous cheers.

In the legislative chamber the scene was most impressive when the Duke of Connaught was escorted to the rostrum. His royal highness was accompanied by the Duchess of Connaught and Princess Patricia. The duke's uniform of field marshal was partly concealed by his robes. Grouped about the royal party were seated the high officials of the union government and others who had a conspicuous part in bring the new commonwealth into existence. Among those whose appearance in the chamber called forth enthusiastic demonstrations of greeting were Viscount Gladstone, the governor-general of the South African Union; General Louis Botha, the first premier, and General Christian De Wet.

The address of the Duke of Connaught was, of course, the most prominent feature of the opening ceremonies. His royal highness dwelt at considerable length upon the importance of the occasion as a step in the process of imperial development. In behalf of the King he expressed the regret which his majesty felt over his inability to be be present in person, as he had originally expected but which project he had been forced to abandon amid the multifarious responsibilities immediately following on his accession to the throne. The speech of the Duke of Connaught was made in a loud clear tone, amid impressive silence. At its conclusion the formal ceremony came to an end.

The launching of the South African Union on its parliamentary life today is regarded as in one sense an even greater event than the launching of the commonwealth, over which the King himself presided ten years ago. In a way it marks the complete fulfilment of the process of imperial development which began with the Confederation of Canada in 1867, and was carried yet a step further by the federation of Australia in 1900.

That the four provinces of Natal, Cape Colony, the Transvaal and the Orange River Colony should within the decade that saw the outbreak of the war in South Africa, unite of their own free motion to form one state, with a single parliament, under the general supervision of the Imperial Government, is regarded as a striking example of the essential vigor and soundness of the British political system.

The constitution of the new commonwealth provides for more than union for substantial unification. The government is to be strongly centralized, following the Canadian rather than the American or Australian plan. Practically all the interests and affairs of the Provinces are placed in the hands of the central parliament, the purely local and administrative business of each province only being in the hands of a provincial council, which also is subject finally to the authority of the central parliament.

The central parliament which met for the first time today is composed of a senate and assembly, or lower house. Each of the four provinces chooses eight senators through the vote of its provincial council and its members of the assembly or lower house, and to these are added eight senators nominated by the governor-general in council. The members of the house of assembly, or lower body of the national legislature, are chosen by the provinces substantially according to the adult male European population. At the outset the division is: Cape Colony, 51; Natal, 17; Transvaal, 36; Orange River Colony, 17.

WAS BURNED AT THE STAKE

(Special to The Times.)

Rock Springs, Texas, Nov. 4.—Antoine Rodriguez, of Las Varas, Mexico, 20 years old, was burned at the stake last night by a mob, following his confession that he shot and killed Mrs. Lem Henderson, wife of a ranchman, yesterday, because she spoke "mean" to him.

NO STANLEY CUP TEAM IN EDMONTON

JACK WINCHESTER, GOALKEEPER, HAS APPLIED FOR REINSTATEMENT AS AMATEUR.

No Stanley Cup Quest—Edmonton Tired of Expensive and Futile Trips to the East—"Whitty" Quits Hockey.

Ottawa, Nov. 4. A letter received here from one of the Edmonton hockey players states that Edmonton will not send a team east this year in quest of the Stanley Cup. Edmontonians are heartily tired of these vain trips after the silverware, and although there was some talk of making a third attempt it has been abandoned.

Fred Whitcroft will spend the winter managing Fred C Lowe's new Calgaryt rink. "Whitty" recently received an offer, and has been down at Calgary to close with the directors. He announced yesterday that he has decided to accept. Whitcroft's recent trip to Nelson was not for the purpose of signing up the Patrick boys. He went there to see the Nelson stadium, and to get a few ideas on rink construction.

Whitcroft met Lester Patrick, but no hockey offers were exchanged, although Patrick is still buzzing with the Stanley bee, and talks of organizing another team at Nelson. Last year he had closed with Lalonde, Millar, Phillips, and Griffis, when the trustees stepped in and called his trip off.

There will be no professional hockey at Edmonton, the amateurs having full sway during the coming season

FIT THE GROCER.

Wife Made the Suggestion.

A grocer has excellent opportunity to know the effects of special foods on his customers. A Cleveland grocer has a long list of customers that have been helped in health by leaving off coffee and using Postum.

He says regarding his own experience:

"Two years ago I had been drinking coffee and must say that I was almost wrecked in my nerves.

"Particularly in the morning I was so irritable and upset that I could hardly wait until the coffee was served, and then I had no appetite for breakfast and I did not feel like attending to my store duties.

"One day my wife suggested that inasmuch as I was selling so much Postum there must be some merit in it and suggested that we try it. I took home a package and she prepared it according to directions. The result was a very happy one.

"My nervousness gradually disappeared and today I am all right. I would advise everyone affected in any way with nervousness or stomach troubles to leave off coffee and use Postum."

"There's a Reason." Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

Ever read the above letter. A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

Local Suit Over Sale of House.

Yesterday morning his honor Judge Huycke presided at the monthly session of the Division Court. One case occupied the attention of the court almost the entire morning. A well known citizen who recently disposed of his residence to another citizen, apparently did not come to a satisfactory arrangement as to who was to have the fixtures in the house. The recent purchaser was suing the man he bought it from for sixty dollars. He claims that the defendant had no business removing the fixtures after he (the plaintiff) had bought the house. Several witnesses were called for both sides, but argument in the case was reserved until next Tuesday. Mr. W. H. Moore K.C., appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. R. E. Wood for the defendant.

SCIENTIST ON SOCIAL PROBLEM.

In commenting on the paradoxes and contortions of Chesterton's book on "What is Wrong with the World" we ventured to suggest that the real trouble with humanity was its youth, its inexperience. Exactly the same view has just been expressed by Sir Oliver Lodge, the eminent English scientist.

In a lecture on life and human development Sir Oliver pointed out that "we were still barely emerging from the ruthlessness of savage competition;" that the earth was still full of darkness and cruelty, and that our civilization is still raw and cruce. Humanity, he was sure, is good enough where it has a chance, and the paramount problem is to give it a chance. "There is room for everybody in a properly organized universe"—room as well as food, comfort, joy. Our business is to organize our little universe, to establish justice and eradicate the survival of savagery.

This business, as evolutionists like Spencer have demonstrated, could not be carried on by nations and societies that regarded war as a normal condition. Peace, industry, commerce, the accumulation of capital, the application of science and art to production and exchange, the abolition of privileges and evils inherited from a dark, military, feudal past; the realization of equal opportunity, the enactment of laws shackling greed and cunning without discouraging legitimate ambition and enterprise—these are the conditions of future advance. In these lies the hope, the certainty, of humanity.

The problems presented to us by modern industry and modern politics and complex and difficult, but we shall prove equal to them. Corporations will be peopleized, law will be moderized, unfair privileges will be done away with, undeserved pauperism and misery will be prevented through insurance, compensation, pension systems. Political machinery will be simplified and perfected. All we need is time, courage, sympathy and earnest efforts to "get understanding." Happily, being human, we have all of these requisites. The seer, the scientist, the student of history, cannot possibly "land" in pessimistic conclusions.

In Canada and England the law requires that the victim's neck shall be broken, thus clothing his despatch with 20th century consideration. Thus it is the executioner's duty to calculate a depth of drop that will break the neck without risk of mutilation. Should the drop be greater than the victim's physical power of resistence, then beheading in a revolting manner results, and, on the other hand, if the drop be not deep enough to break the neck, strangulation occurs. Hence, from a humane standpoint, it is necessary that the government retains a duly qualified executioner.

A horrible sample of bungling on the part of an executioner occurred at Norwich, England, on November 30th, 1885. Robert Goodale was the victim, and Berry of Bradford, the hangman. Goodale was brought from the condemned cell, and met by the executioner, who quickly pinioned him, and the procession then moved on towards the scaffold, which was over a deep pit. When Berry pulled the lever the trap-door fell away, and Goodale, who weighed fifteen stone, and had a six-foot drop, disappeared. To the horror of the bystanders, the rope rebounded. It was thought it had become unfastened. On looking down into the pit, however, the officials were horrified at beholding on its floor, the decapitated body with blood oozing from the trunk. The head, with the white cap on it, was lying against the feet.

On December 2nd, 1883, Binns who succeeded Marwood, as England's hangman, was censured by the prison authorities at Liverpool for not allowing murderer Dutton sufficient drop to break his neck. The victim's pulse did not cease beating until eight minutes after the bolt had been withdrawn.

ASSESSMENT AND TAXES.

There seems to be a fear in some quarters that high assessment necessarily mean high taxes.

The fact is just about so much money per capita of population must be raised to meet public expenses, and under assessment means a high rate.

For example, take the three townships of Goderich, Aberdeen and Derby. The following table shows the population, the assessed value of land per capita, and the assessed value of buildings:

	Popu.	Land.	Bldgs.	Rte
Goderich Tp...	1,870	$766	$166	6.2
Aberdeen Tp...	1,873	370	70	114
Derby Tp.....	1,862	340	170	114

It will be noticed that in Aberdeen and Derby, the assessment on land is only about half as much as in Goderich, but the tax rate is about twice as high. The low assessment does not lessen the tax burden.

There can be no doubt on the other hand that the practice of underassessing property does lead to inequalities, and that nothing would do more to establish equitable assessments than the enforcement of the rule that all property shall be assessed at full market value.

From the figures given above it appears that in Derby, buildings bear one-third the tax burden, while in Goderich they bear only one fifth.

Either the assessors on the latter two township have discriminated in favor of the improver, or the assessor in Derby has discriminated in favor of the speculator.

This discrimination between the two classes of property by the assessors is not legal, but it is practised simply because there is no check at present on the assessor's work.

Where the assessor discriminates in favor of improvements, most progressive citizens will approve his action.

At the next session of the legislature a measure will be introduced asking that municipalities be granted the right to do legally what assessors have for years been doing, to discriminate between the different classes of assessments. The proposal is that the municipalities be allowed to place a lower rate on buildings, improvements, income and business assessments than on land values.—The Square Deal.

WARD SYSTEM FOR ELECTIONS.

At the next elections aldermen will be elected under the ward system, by which each ward will have its own representatives on the Council Board. The change is hardly necessary now, however, for East City, which has at present in Alderman Morgan a full trio of representatives at the City Hall during the past year our City Council have been kept pretty wide awake to the needs of East City (nee Ashburnham.)

The method of electing School Trustees is not to be changed. As heretofore, they will be selected by a general vote.

THE OLD WAY.

About 20 years ago the chief requisites for a successful collection of bad debts in a certain Southern State was humorously illustrated by the following genuine advertisement:

WE DESIRE AN ABLE-BODIED, hard-featured, bad tempered, not-to-be-put-off, and not-to-be-backed down young man to collect for us; must furnish his own horse, saddle-bags, pistols, bowie knife, and cowhide; we will furnish the accounts; to such a person we promise constant and laborious employment.

THE BELMONT IRON MINE.

Sir William Logan a great geologist, years ago predicted that Canada would eventually become one of the greatest iron producing countries in the world, but the population is too scattered to support extensive iron manufacture, and distances too great to encourage home manufacture on a large scale.

But while Canada is suffering for want of a market, many parts of the United States would be benefitted by the free admission of Canadian ores. The Eastern States could get cheap ores from Quebec and Nova Scotia, and many Pennsylvania furnaces could obtain Bessemer ores from Ontario at much lower rates than they are now paying for imported foreign ores.

In this connection Mr. T. D. Ledyard was reported in the Toronto Mail of October 9th, 1890, as saying: "About 110 miles east of Toronto, six miles north of the branch of the Canadian Pacific railway between Toronto and Montreal, on lot 19, in 1st concession of the township of Belmont, County of Peterborough, is found a large deposit of rich magnetic ore closely resembling in mode of occurrences some of the Lake Superior mines. Experts estimate that this ore-bed contains at least 1,000,000 tons of ore within 100 feet of the surface, from which there should be no difficulty in producing 400 or 500 tons a day. The ore is very high in metallic iron, and by no means refractory in the blast furnace. Samples taken from the pits possess a fine texture, and show but small traces of phosphorous and sulphur, with a high percentage of iron, constituting an almost ideal Bessemer ore.

The stripping is so light that the ore should be mined by the use of compressed-air drills, at a cost of 50 cents per ton, being so free from rock matter that little culling will be required. No trouble with water is to be anticipated, the ground possessing a natural drainage to the west, which can be improved and utilized at slight expense.

A special feature of this deposit is its proximity to the surface, necessitating but little expense for stripping, as mining can be done in pay rock almost from the commencement. Some hematite is found on the east side in conjunction with soapstone.

Prof. Chapman said: "This is an exceedingly good ore, not too dense in texture, rich in metal, quite free from titanium, and practically free from phosphorus and sulphur, and is well adapted for the Bessemer process."

If reciprocal relations with the United States would only give us a ready market to warrant the mining of our iron ore, of which we are assured there is abundance in Ontario, the sooner reciprocity comes the better.

FAMOUS ACTRESS.

Speaks Strongly—Dukes are Not Worth a Dame.

New York, Nov. 3.—Geraldine Farrar, the grand opera star, enriched the language with a little picturesque profanity when she arrived today from Europe.

This is what the naughty Miss Farrar said:

"Dukes, I've met many of them, and believe me, taking them individually and collectively, they are not worth a damn."

But the way Miss Farrar said it took the curse off. What had prompted the remark was a question from one of the ship news reporters who boarded the ship at quarantine. Miss Farrar had been telling of the trip which she and Caruso made to the Kaiser's summer palace on the occasion of the celebration of the czarina's birthday.

"You know that by appointment I am one of the court singers of the German court and I am supposed to be in attendance whenever my services are needed," she said. "This however, was my first appearance before their imperial majesties. After the concert the kaiser chatted with me for about twenty minutes very pleasantly. I was much struck with his strong personality. He seemed annoyed when I told him it was soon my intention to return to the States and asked me why I was not content to stay in Berlin and sing. I told him that I was an American and proud of it, and that I never expected to forsake my own country people."

"May be, if you had consented to stay, you might have contracted a matrimonial alliance with a duke or somebody and acquire a title?" suggested one of the interviewers.

The singer's aristocratic nose ascended and she sniffed. And then she raised her voice so that all nearby plainly heard, and uttered the remark touching on the worthiness of dukes singly and in bulk.

CALIFORNIA OIL

First Offering

Atlanta Oil Company

Capital Stock $600.000---Par Value $1.00

No Preferred Stock. Lease Runs 40 Years One-Sixth Royalty. No Bonus or Free Stock. All Stock in Treasury for Benefit of Holders. No Bonded Indebtedness Incorporated Under Laws of State of California.

100 acres of absolutely proven all land on Sulphur Mountain, adjoining and between the Liberty and Puritan Oil Companies' property. Ten miles from Santa Paula, Ventura Co., Calif.

FACTS—The property is absolutely proven territory, lying as it does with the UNION OIL CO. producing on the south, the LIBERTY OIL CO. producing on the west, the HARD OIL CO. producing on the north, which only recently erected its 20th rig, and Puritan Oil Co. to commence drilling on the east. Also it is located in a district of BIG PRODUCING COMPANIES, such as Ojai Petroleum, Pyramid Oil Co., Canadian Queen, Capital Creek, Bard Oil and Asphalt Co., and others. THERE'S NO QUESTION ABOUT THE COMPANY GETTING OIL. It is possible that Liberty Oil Company's new well will be a gusher, which would make the ATLANTA OIL COMPANY stock worth par. Mr. Cowell, our Superintendent, knows every foot of the ground, and having his log book of Liberty property, which adjoins our land, and an experienced OIL MAN and we consider ourselves fortunate in obtaining his services. VENTURA CO. OIL represents the cream of the industry. It is the home of HIGH GRAVITY OIL. VENTURA COUNTY OIL means $1.00 a barrel at well. Costs from 20 to 40c to produce it. THE GREAT UNION OIL CO. got its start in VENTURA CO. and has paid over twenty two millions in dividends. These GREAT ASSETS had a small beginning in the WILD BILL GUSHER, within SIGHT OF ATLANTA OIL CO. property. The demand for refining OIL FAR EXCEEDS THE SUPPLY. The 25 refineries in California are crying for the product. The eastern high gravity fields are diminishing. The OHIO FIELDS, FOR INSTANCE, have fallen off one-third. The demand is caused by the increased market for gasoline. Throughout the world the number of automobiles and internal combustion gasoline engines is forcing up the price of high gravity crude petroleum. Eastern operators are now looking to VENTURA COUNTY, which are held to be the most extensive known. THIS IS THE FIRST ANNOUNCEMENT of ground floor offering of ATLANTA OIL CO., and may be oversubscribed at any time. One day's delay may mean you are too late. ACT NOW. WRITE FOR LATEST NEWS OF VENTURA OIL FIELDS.

The lumber for the derrick is on the ground and machinery has been ordered. Well No. 1 will be started as soon as drilling is installed. It should not take over six months to complete first well. Well No. 2, by conditions of lease, must be in operation by February 14th, 1911.

ADVANCES TO AUGUST 20th.

Don't wash and scrub, bend and rub over a hot wash tub; sift a little GOLD DUST in the water, loosen the dirt, and save rubbing

Soap is not a bit of cleansing good until it is mixed with water and made into suds. And then it still needs the rub-rub-rub of human muscle.

GOLD DUST works in an entirely different way—instantly and totally dissolves in hot or cold, hard or soft water—and, without any aid from you, starts to cleanse.

GOLD DUST is more than soap—better and more economical. It is a powder of magic power—but rightly directed power, that leaves the wash white, sweet, wholesome.

Use your brains, not your muscle!

Throw away your soap, get GOLD DUST, and simply use it according to the directions on the package.

"Let the GOLD DUST Twins do your work."

A LITTLE DUBIOUS.

The W.C.T.U. Have Doubts About Boy Scouts.

Owen Sound, Nov. 2.—The morning session of the Ontario Women's Christian Temperance Union opened with a full attendance of delegates, Mrs. McKee in the chair.

Military training was the subject of a paper by Mrs. Asa Gordon. She stated that an offer of $10,000 per annum from Lord Strathcona for the encouragement of military drills in the schools of the Dominion will tend to make the military instructions in schools a success, the object being the development of moral, physical, and intellectual qualities. Could this all be accomplished in home and gymnasium and save the youth of our land from thinking that muscle is more than mind, speed than spirit, and force than faith?

It was suggested that literature be sent to summer encampments and that the W.C.T.U. stand for peace and arbitration. In view of this should they support the government teaching of military drill in schools? was asked.

"No," saith one voice. "How can we endorse military schools or boy scouts?"

"Boy scouts are different from cadets," said another voice.

"Scouts pledge themselves against tobacco and liquor," spoke a member.

"I'm in favor of military drill," spoke another member. "In time of peace prepare for war."

"I also am in favor of military training," said Mr. Pethick, missionary of the W.C.T.U. "I know boys need training and discipline. If you don't give them something to do they'll do something wrong."

"You should not confuse boy scouts with military cadets," said Mr. Beale. "This is the wrong time to endorse any military movement. All the good points of military training can be accomplished by the boy scouts."

Mr. J. Willoughby Cummings spoke on the government annuity scheme.

EXPERT EVIDENCE.

By Medical Men in Murder Cases Conflicting.

Toronto, Nov. 3.—In many of the recent murder trials in which medical men have given evidence tends to throw discredit on that body if men.

Ther eis some danger that the medical profession will be discredited by the cofflpetition for expert witnesses in damage suits and criminal cases before the courts. In some instances the witnesses seem to become advocates for one side or the other, and the conflict of opinon does not tend to confidence either in the courts or in the profession, says the Toronto News. Is it impossible to have a physician or a board of physicians of high standing appointed by the Crown, or retained as Crown counsel are retained in criminal cases?

al cases? If this is practicable, and there may be many objections which the News has not considered, the evidence of such experts would be available alike for prosecution and defence. Judges and juries would have reports in which they could repose a greater degree of confidence and in many cases perhaps a sounder administration of justice would be assured.

THE AGITATORS.

Farmers Have No Assurance That They Would Gain By Reciprocity.

Toronto, Nov. 4.—The agitators for reciprocity throw out a bait to the farmer that they would derive untold benefit from reciprocity with with the United States.

What assurance have the farmers that they would gain anything from a reciprocity treaty? Some years ago "in the farmers interest" the Ottawa government removed the duty on galvanized wire for fencing purposes. But the change has brought no benefit to the agricultural community. There has been no reduction in the price of wire, and fencing costs as much as ever. The abolition of the duty has merely had the effect of confining the manufacture mostly to the United States. The great American steel mills have their Canadian rivals at their mercy. They practically dictate how much barbed and galvanized wire the Canadian factories may turn out each year, and the price at which they may sell it.

Not only this! The United States combination virtually compels the Western Canadian settlers to buy in the United States. If a Winnipeg dealer should order from an eastern Canadian mill the American trust would swamp his market. Some years ago Canadians had the audacity to import some iron rods from England, but they were soundly punished. The United States mills, which control the situation, actually compelled the Canadians to pay into the combine treasury a forfeit of $2 per ton on all the rods they had thus secured in the British market.

These instances are cited to show what Canada would have to expect from a general reciprocity treaty with the United States. Canadian industries would be at the mercy of the larger American combines. They would not be allowed to grow and to establish large industrial centres. They would be allotted a small proportion of the available business. The cost of goods to the consumer would not be reduced, and the farmers only satisfaction would be that of seeing the work and wages that ought to go to Canadian workmen transferred to employees of factories located south of the international boundary. The industrial development of the Dominion would be checked, and the home market which our farmers find in the rising industrial trial centers, would be impaired. But for the factory towns and cities the agriculturist would not be getting 40 cents a dozen for his eggs and 35 cents a pound for his butter. The Western farmer has to pay too much for his implements, and the government should afford him some relief, but we must take care not to interfere with the national prosperity which has been so marked of late years.

DOCTORS FAILED. RESTORED BY PERUNA

Catarrh of the Lungs Threatened Her Life.

Miss Ninette Porter, Braintree, Vermont, writes: "I have been cured by Peruna.

"I had several hemorrhages of the lungs. The doctors did not help me much and would never have cured me.

"I saw a testimonial in a Peruna almanac of a case similar to mine, and I commenced using it.

"I was not able to walk on myself when I began using it. I gained very slowly at first, but I could see that it was helping me.

"After I had taken it a while I commenced to raise up a stringy, sticky substance from my lungs. This grew less and less in quantity as I continued the treatment.

"I grew more fleshy than I had been for a long time, and now I call myself well."

Fire Brigade in Quick Action.

A prominent manufacturer of Montreal, was in the city yesterday, and made a call at the Aylmer street fire hall. Owing to the prominence of the gentleman an impromptu alarm was rung. By actual time, as recorded by a stop watch, the horses, harnessed in place, had the rigs out on the street in 25 seconds.

Good Speaker at St. Luke's.

Rev. J. Bennett Anderson, the noted Anglican evangelist and world-wide missionary, whose somewhat extraordinary life work, in the cause of Christ, was given in detail in our issue of Oct. 18th, delivered one of his eloquent, impressive and characteristic addresses in St. Luke's church last night. His lecture was the cause of raising much enthusiasm in the missionary cause. Rev. Dr. Langfeldt, rector of St. Luke's, in securing the presence of Mr. Anderson, demonstrated the intelligently applied interest the former clergyman always displays in advancing the best interests of the church.

KICKS AGAINST ASSESSMENT.

Court of Revision Considers Thirty-six Complaints.

Protests against the assessments of this year are coming in. Thirty-six appeals were heard at the meeting of the Court of Revision. Those at the seat of Solomon were Messrs. W. Langford, in the chair; W. F. Johnston and B. Morrow.

W. A. Bailey and J. Bradshaw thought that they were wrongly assessed. The appeals were dismissed.

Mr. F. Butcher and sons appealed but the matter was laid over until the next sitting.

Chas. J. Caley's assessment was confirmed.

Wm. Collins said that he was wrongly assessed as a Separate school supporter and for a dog. The assessment showed that he was assessed as a Public school supporter and not for a dog.

J. C. Davidson, M. J. Dunsford, Joseph Foster and James Fox complained of being over-assessed. The latter had his assessment reduced $108.

Mrs. Ann Graham said that she was over assessed. Mr. J. W. Bennet appeared for Mrs. Graham and withdrew the appeal.

N. Greenhalgh and Miss A. F. Hamilton appealed on the ground that they were wrongly assessed on income, but the appeals were dismissed and the assessment confirmed.

Messrs. C. Heffernan, James Hetherington, George Hutton, Elizabeth Jackson, Mrs. A. W. Leavis, J. B. Minns, A. Rountree, the Dickson Co. Bennet & Goodwill appealed against their assessment, but the appeals were dismissed.

Miss A. Houdrey had her business assessment on Dalhousie street, reduced from $3,220 to $1,000.

Richard Lees said that J. McAvay should not be assessed for 14 Gilmour street, and that he (Mr. Lees) should be assessed as a Public School supporter. It was decided to strike Mr. McAvay's name off and assess Mr. Lees as a Public School supporter.

James Montgomery said that he was wrongly assessed for income. Assessment was reduced from $730 to $370.

Mr. G. N. Gordon, on behalf of the Peterborough Ceral Co., said that this company was wrongly assessed. Judgment — Assessment of $11,940, business assessment for schools only struck off.

Mr. J. H. Larmonth for the Peterborough Light and Power Co. stated that they were wrongly assessed for N. Brock e. George Pt. 1.— Judgment, business assessment of $950 struck off.

John Riddell said that he was over assessed for 530 Homewood Ave., and for income. Assessment of land reduced from $500 to $400, and assessment of $60 for income struck off.

Business assessment of $240 for J. J. Turner & Sons was struck off.

Duke to Lay Cornerstone.

Capetown, Nov. 5.—The last of the public functions attending the visit of the Duke of Connaught in Cape Town will take place today, when his royal Highness officiates at the laying of the foundation stone for the new university to be erected here. The first of the week the royal party will leave for their tour of the Orange River Colony, the Transvaal and Natal.

Good Program at Y.M.C.A.

There will be a most interesting meeting tomorrow afternoon in the Y.M.C.A. An orchestra will accompany the singing of the hymns, and there will be some special singing by male members of the George Street Methodist Church choir. In addition Rev. W. C. Riddiford will speak. This meeting is open to all men of the city, with no collection.

Broken Arm From Runaway.

Mr. Alf. D. Garlock of this city, on Thursday, sustained a fracture of his arm between the elbow and the shoulder. It seems that Mr. Garlock whilst driving towards Lakefield, met an automobile driven by a former local citizen, but now a prosperous merchant of our northern suburb Mr. Roland Johnston, Mr. Garlick's friends, getting out of their rig, held their horse till the bubble waggon passed by. However, notwithstanding these precautions, the horse becoming frightened, bolted, like a flash of lightning. Mr. Garlick was thrown out of the conveyance and sustained the injury as noted as above. Mr. Johnston brought Mr. Garlick to Nicholls Hospital where his broken arm was attended to.

More Power for Peterborough.

Mr. J. H. Larmonth, of Belleville, formerly managing director of the Peterborough Light & Power Company, as authority for saying that Peterborough will be able to secure from the Electric Power Company, Limited, electrical energy to the extent of 30,000 horse power. The Electric Power Co., with which the Peterborough Light & Power Co., is combined in all the power companies and controls all the power along the Trent canal from Peterborough to Trenton. They have the Healey's Falls power, the power at Ranney's Fall, a mile below Campbellford, the Seymour Electric Company's plant above Campbellford and all the water powers of that district.

Strong Sermon by Archdeacon Warren.

The Rural Deanery of Durham and Northumberland has opened its sessions in All Saints' church. Rural Dean, Rev. Dr. Langfeldt, had charge of the service and a very eloquent sermon was preached by Venerable Archdeacon Warren. He took his sermon from the 3rd chapter of Philippians, and the 20th verse, "Our Conversation is in Heaven." The speaker began by saying that there was a time when the Christian man was filled with the idea that there should be a very great difference between the life of a Christian and a non-Christian. This conviction was impressed more upon the minds of our forefathers than it is on the English-speaking people of today. It is expressed, and we are still reminded by some that the Christians should not be worldly, and especially the clergy should be free from worldliness. Throughout his whole address Archdeacon Warren followed a similar argument, and one that strongly appealed to the audience present.

Mr. C. Stapleton was in Lindsay on Thursday.

Mr. M. C. Switzer of Peterborough was in Lindsay, Thursday, on business.

Mr. W. Galbraith of this city was in Lindsay on Thursday.

Mr. Alf. Dickey of this city, spent Thursday in Lindsay.

Mr. Max Babe, formerly of the Mendel photo studio and later of Kingston, Ont., is in the city again.

Mr. C. F. Smyth, traveling representative of the Oliver Typewriter Company, is in the city on business.

The many friends of Mr. Max Dennistoun, formerly of the local legal firm of Dennistoun, Peck & Kerr, will be glad to learn that our former citizen, has a larger family, a daughter.

Miss Eva Noyes of Ashburnham, has returned after visiting her brother, Mr. W. H. Noyes in Toronto.

Mrs. and Miss M. Cookston have returned home after spending three months in Vancouver, Seattle and Portland on the Pacific Coast.

Mr. T. J. Tilley, manager of the Bell Telephone Company, Lindsay, was in the city on Thursday on business.

Misses Mabel and Kathleen McGrath of Lakefield, are the guests of friends in the city.

BABIES' SORES IN WINTER.

Mothers Should Know About Zam-Buk.

Every mother should realize that the skin of her baby is so tender that the secretions of the body often lead to rashes, eruptions, etc., all of which may be removed by Zam Buk. Scores of restless, crying babies, upon examination are found to be suffering from some form of skin irritation or "heat." Don't let the baby suffer when Zam Buk will cure! Often, too, in winter, the little ones suffer from chaps on the chin, hands or other parts of the body. Zam-Buk applied after the bath, and at intervals during the day, will prevent all trouble.

Mrs. L. Wood, of 475 Alexander Avenue, Winnipeg, says: "I have proved the value of Zam Buk when applied to children's sores. Some nasty sores broke out around my baby's mouth, and despite all the preparations used, they refused to heal. I took him to St. Boniface Hospital and he remained there for two weeks. At the end of that time he was no better, and we again took him home. I was then advised to try Zam-Buk and obtained a supply. The effect of the first few applications was very gratifying, and a little perseverance resulted in a complete cure."

Zam-Buk will also be found a sure cure for cold sores, chapped hands, frost bites, ulcers, eczema, blood-poison, varicose sores, piles, scalp sores ringworm, inflamed patches, babies' eruptions and chapped places, cuts, burns, bruises, and skin injuries generally. All druggists and stores sell at 50c box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, upon receipt of price. You are warned against harmful imitations and substitutes. See the registered name "Zam-Buk" on every package before buying.

PRE-ELECTION ESTIMATES INDICATE A VICTORY FOR DEMOCRATS ON TUESDAY

Both Sides Claim Win Dems. by 100,000

ESTIMATES GIVEN OUT ON SATURDAY AS TO RESULT OF THE ELECTION.

On Eve of the New York State Elections Both Sides Claim Win Democrats by 100,000 Votes.

SOME GUESSES.

—New York Governorship
100,000 for Dix—Rodie, Democratic State chairman.
90,000 for Stimson Prentice, Republican State chairman.

—Congressional Election—

McKinley, Republican national chairman—Republicans will control next congress by a "fair working majority."

Col. Harvey in Harper's Weekly.
Dix, in New York.
Wilson, in New Jersey.
Harmon, in Ohio.
They are all Democrats. Col. Harvey's guess is the Democrats will have 40 majority in next House of Representatives.

New York, Nov. 5.—Estimates were given out today at the Democratic and Republican State Committee headquarters on the possible pluralities of Dix and Stimson in the race for the governorship of the State. The Democrats have their candidate winning by over 100,000, and the Republicans expect to have Stimson made governor by over 90,000.

William S. Rodie, chairman of the executive committee of the Democratic State committee, gave out the statement for the Democrats today. He said he was speaking for Chairman Huppuch, too. Both he and Mr. Huppuch had made estimates of the result entirely independent of each other and had come out not far apart, with Huppuch the more optimistic.

BIG WIN FOR DIX.

"We went over the state county by county," said Mr. Rodie "and based our estimates on district canvassers. As aresult I canvassers. As a result I will not concede it possible for Dix to win by less than 100,000 plurality. I arrived at this conclusion by a very conservative system of estimates, in which I have given the Republicans the benefit of every doubt and every doubtful district.

"Mr. Huppuch has given a bigger plurality for Dix, for he believes that the latter will win by about 150,000. Mr. Huppuch made allowances which cut out and did not give the other side the benefit of every doubt, which of course made his Democratic plurality larger.

"I think Dix will run ahead of the ticket, but not so far ahead as many have believed. I feel certain that we will carry the senate and assembly by a comfortable majority.

To Greet the Rainbow.

Victoria, B.C., Nov. 7.—Courageously blotting from her memory for the time being the results of the great fire which recently devastated a large section of the city, Victoria today donned holiday attire and prepared to give a joyous welcome to the cruiser Rainbow, due to arrive at the end of her long trip from England around the Horn. Elaborate entertainment has been prepared for the officers and men of the cruiser, which has been designated as the first ship of the new Canadian navy on the Pacific coast. A number of eminent representatives of the federal and provincial governments are here to join in the demonstration of welcome. As soon as the formalities of greeting are over the Rainbow will go into quarters at Esquimault.

Mormon Issue in Utah.

Salt Lake City, Utah, Nov. 7. Interest in tomorrow's election in Utah centres chiefly in the fight to control the legislature, which will elect a successor to United States Senator Sutherland. Senator Sutherland, who is a Republican, is a candidate for re-election. The Republicans assert that they will have the legislature overwhelmingly, but the opposition believes there will be enough votes against the Republicans to prevent Sutherland's return. The American party, which is hostile to Mormon Church interference in politics, is expected to play an important part in the election. The party is particularly strong in this city and counts upon electing its legislative candidates. It is therefore regarded as possible that a combination of the Democrats and the American Party might break the Republican control in the next legislature.

Too Sore to Laugh Too Big to Cry

(Special to The Times.)

Ottawa, Nov. 5.—When asked this morning for an expression of opinion on the Drummond byelection, Sir Wilfrid Laurier said:

"The government has received a blow of course, but it should not be exaggerated.

"I feel very much like Abraham Lincoln did on the occasion of just such reverse. He was asked by a friend what he thought of it, just as you ask now. Lincoln replied: 'I feel like the little boy who hurt his toe, too sore to laugh, and too big to cry.

"The charge that Laurier has been hoisted by his own petard is untrue. Laurier has never used his influence with the French-Canadians against English-Canadians, or ever done anything but try to prevent racial prejudice in Canada."

PRINCESS DANCED RINGS ON HER TOES

PLUNGED INTO LONDON SOCIETY AND SQUANDERED MILLIONS OF DOLLARS.

Now the Prince is Dead—Left Debts Due Chiefly to Card and Horse Race Losses—Huntington's Son-in-law.

London, Nov. 5.—Prince Hatzfeldt, who married Clara Huntington, of Detroit, Mich., died today. He was prominent in society, and took a leading part in turf affairs.

Clara Huntington's marriage to Prince Hatzfeldt in 1889, created a big international stir. She was then adopted daughter of the late Collis P. Huntington, the railroad magnate, and it was reported both in England and America that Huntington would prevent the match on account of the bridegroom's debts.

However, he failed to do so. Immediately after the marriage both the prince and princess settled down to entertain more lavishly than the other society people of London. Then the princess went in for charity and caused comment by dancing on her bare feet with rings on her toes at charity bazaars. When Collis P. Huntington died in 1901, he left the princess $1,000,000, but she threatened to break the will unless given another million. She claimed that her social life in England made it necessary for her to have that sum. The claim was adjusted.

Prince Hatzfeldt was head over ears in debt when he was married, but he managed to maintain a garish position in the social life of London. For several years before his marriage it was reported that he had proposed to the daughters of many American millionaires. In short his title was on the market. The prince was not prepossessing in appearance, having red hair and bow legs and an awkward manner. However, he was a brilliant conversationalist.

His debts, chiefly card and horse race losses, were reported to be a million dollars when he married Miss Huntington. He was a frequent visitor to Paris, although he seldom visited the United States.

Germany is Backing Up Turkey England Sure to be Involved in War

TURKEY'S RESISTANCE TO THE DIVIDING OF PERSIA BY RUSSIA AND ENGLAND.

The Turks are Preparing. If War Starts With Russia, England Will Be Surg to be Involved, It Is Said.

Constantinople, via Philippopolis, Nov. 5.—Turkey is so busily engaged today in concentrating troops on the Persian frontier that her troubles with Greece have been temporarily put aside. There are even reports current here that the Sultan's cavalry has crossed into Persia. These reports are unconfirmed, but there is no question that Turkey will resist the plan of England and Russia to divide the Shah's kingdom between them.

Despatches received here indicate that the scene of yesterday's fight between British and Persians was at Birris, instead of at Lingah, as was reported from Teheran. The engagement was between a force of marines from the British cruiser Prosperine and abody of Persians engaged in smuggling in arms to be used against the English.

Cables from London say news agencies there have endeavored to discredit the story by the statement that it was fought in Baluchistan. The story is credited in official circles here.

Though it is positively denied at the foreign office here, there is no doubt that in any move she may make, Turkey will have the moral support of Germany, if not armed support. The Turks are preparing for an active campaign.

It is for war with Russia at first that the Turks are laying their plans, though it is believed that if war is started, England is sure to be involved.

Botha Intends to Pull South Africa Straight

Threatening Attitude of Armed Indians

(Special to The Times.)

Calcutta, Nov. 5.—Much uneasiness is being felt regarding the situation on the Indian Northwest frontier. The frontiersmen are holding "jirgahs" or conventions to discuss the stoppage of the traffic in firearms. They are already well armed and are assuming a threatening attitude, although it is believed that the forces on the scene are sufficient to quell instantly any disturbance that may arise.

SOUTH AFRICA HAS NOW A CONSOLIDATED PARTY.

General Botha Says His Party Achieved Great Victory But Will Not Squeeze Colony Dry.

Welverdiend, Transvaal, Nov. 5.—General Botha, the Union premier, who has been returned unopposed to the Union Parliament as member for Losberg says that the Nationalists had achieved a glorious victory at the recent elections. They now had a consolidated party, and they intended to pull South Africa straight. A great majority of the electors had placed the Nationalists in power. The aim of the Nationalists would be to make South Africa a happy home for all the inhabitants. They did not intend to squeeze South Africa dry, and then throw it away. They were not "pocket patriots," desirous of enriching themselves and then leaving South Africa.

He had frequently been driven out from his positions, but he had always taken fresh and better positions behind another kopje. He was prepared again to jump into the breach for South Africa. He wanted to see it take its place in the empire as a great and prosperous country, containing a great and happy nation.

General Botha went on to say that although he had only played a small part in politics in the past, he intended to play a big part in the future. He had no intention of working on racial lines, but would continue the policy of conciliation and co-operation. General Botha warned the Unionists that if it was forced upon him he would take off the gloves. The people of South Africa had decided once for all to do away with racialism. The government would continue to deal with the mines, commerce and agriculture alike honestly and fairly. He foreshadowed an elaborate land policy and a wholesale development of agriculture that would make South Africa a rival to America in her export trade.

The Appeal Judges Refuse to Grant Dr. Crippen Another Trial

FAILS IN HIS LAST FIGHT FOR LIFE IN CRIMINAL APPEAL COURT.

Solicitor Tobin Outlines His Case in a Well-Reasoned Speech, Basing Chief Argument Upon Incident of Juror's Illness.

London, Nov. 5. Dr. H. H. Crippen's appeal from the verdict of guilty rendered against him when he was tried for the murder of his wife, Belle Elmore Crippen was dismissed today, and the death sentence was reaffirmed on the high court of appeals.

The American's last hope for freedom was doomed when the appeal judges refused to grant him another trial. Crippen will be hanged on Tuesday.

The prisoner took the blow very hard. His face turned ghastly white and he trembled in his chair. Those who looked on thought he was going to faint.

A blow was struck at Crippen's case when the court announced that the illness of a juror could have no effect upon the verdict.

As Crippen's counsel was basing the appeal upon this as a main point, the case practically fell then.

The American took this blow very hard. His face became ghastly and the muscles twitched spasmodically.

London, Nov. 5. Dr. H. H. Crippen's legal struggle to avoid the gallows as the penalty for the killing of his wife, Belle Elmore Crippen, was carried into the High Court today when arguments were present before the Criminal Court of Appeals to give the former Toronto man a new trial. He won a slight victory at the outset.

Dr. Crippen was apparently confident of success, but he was pale and looked somewhat nervous as he was conveyed from the Bentondille prison to the detention room in the court house adjoining the room in which his arguments were to be heard.

CRIPPEN IN THE COURT.

One point of Crippen's case concerned the refusal of Judge Radley to allow Crippen to hear the arguments of his counsel in person. However, the dapper little doctor was conveyed within the precincts of the court in the event that decision in his favor would be granted.

Dr. Crippen was dandified as ever in his fancy frock coat and stylishly cut trousers. He wore spats and patent leather shoes. Although his doom is set for next Tuesday, his appearance did not indicate much fear.

The condemned man had not been seated very long in the detention room before his lawyer entered, with a triumphant look on his face and told him that the court had ruled that he could sit in court and hear the arguments.

Crippen arose with alacrity and accompanied by two warders, entered the court room.

Barrister Alfred Tobin, who actively conducted the defence for the little man at the murder trial, was chief counsel at the hearing of the appeal. He made a convincing argument in favor of the presentation of the appeal, and the court announced that it would hear anything that he might have to say relative to the alleged illegality of the trial, because one of the jurors fell ill and the jurymen were unwatched for a space of two hours.

The solicitor then outlined his case basing the chief argument upon the incident of the juror's illness, although he rounded out his appeal by declaring that Crippen had been convicted on presumptive evidence.

ABOUT ABSENT JURYMAN.

"The first ground for this appeal," said Tobin, "is that while a juryman was present in the course of the trial neither he or the remainder were under charge of proper officers."

At the point the lawyer read an affidavit made by Arthur Newton, as the counsel for Crippen during the murder trial, in which Newton swore that the juryman had been taken into the street from Old Bailey court accompanied by at least two doctors.

"I do not charge that anyone spoke to this sick juryman, air tried to tamper with him," said Tobin, "but I base my contention upon the principle involved. This is a serious matter, and one which should not be treated lightly, especially when the life of a fellow-being is at stake.

"The same thing might happen again and it might give occasion for the grave matter of influencing sentiment in an important case."

CRIPPEN LISTENED EAGERLY.

Dr. Crippen sat listening eagerly to his lawyer, apparently gaining hope from the emphatic manner in which Mr. Tobin presented the case. Occasionally he looked about him, but seldom glanced towards the sombre judges upon the bench.

Replying to Tobin's argument about the sick juror, Crown Prosecutor Richard Muir, who convicted Crippen, said that the sick juror had never been out of the court house, and that he was in charge of a bailiff all the time. Mr. Muir then introducedevidense from Bailiff Phillips, who was in charge of the juror. Phillips said that the juror had been taken to an ante-room and that no one had spoken to him about the trial.

More Money for the Chimes.

Contributions still come in to attest the popularity of the chimes fund. The latest contribution, amounting to $7 was given by the staff of the Bell Telephone Company. The Junior Brotherhood of St. Andrew has contributed $3.15. Mr. Walter Cluxton of Chicago, and Elmer Brown, Des Moines, Ia., have both sent aid towards the fund. One cheque for $25 has been handed in by an old resident of the city, which sums, brings the total amount subscribed up to $5,125. As the price of bell metal is going up rapidly, it is expected that the committee will meet in a few days to see what shall be decided.

Mr. T. H. G. Deane of the Quaker Oats Company, was a Toronto visitor last week.

No Typhoid in Orono

Referring to the reports of a severe typhoid outbreak in Orono Township, Ontario, in which it was stated 20 deaths had occurred from drinking well-water while attending the Orono Fair, Dr. McCullough, secretary of the Provincial Board of Health, stated Saturday that the papers had been loaded up with ancient history.

The latest report, Dr. McCullough said, was that there was no typhoid in Orono. During October the whole township contained 28 cases, one death resulting. The village had been cleaned up and put in a sanitary condition. Four weeks ago twelve samples of well water were taken and all were infected.

Horse Struck by St. Car Succumbed to Injuries

On Saturday evening as a Mr. Young, who lives in the vicinity of Young's Point, was returning to his home from this city, he had the misfortune to have his horse collide with a street car on Water street, north, and the animal was so badly injured that it died yesterday morning. The accident appears to have happened in a rather peculiar manner. It is alleged that the car was almost passed the horse and the iron support on the rear end of the car used by the passengers to enable them to climb the steps into the car, struck the horse and injured it so badly that P. C. Meagher was called to put an end to the poor animal's sufferings, but it was claimed that a veterinary surgeon should be called as some thought there was a chance to save the animal's life, so the horse was not shot Saturday. However, it succumbed to its injuries yesterday. The animal was valued at $150.

DR. SYMONDS PREACHED.

Eloquent Montreal Divine at All Saints' Church.

As usual when Rev. Dr. Symonds, formerly rector of St. Luke's church, but now vicar of Christ church cathedral, Montreal, preaches in Peterborough, he was yesterday heard by a crowded audience at All Saints' church. Dr. Symonds came on the invitation of Rev. Mr. Trumpour, rector of the latter named church to preach in the opening series of sermons, in connection with the opening recently of that splendid new edifice. The Montreal divine was the guest of Rev. Dr. Langfeldt, rectair of St. Luke's. The new church, whilst well filled, was confortable, the new heating system having been installed last week. Dr. Symonds preached at both the morning and evening services.

The morning service was made especially interesting as the local Orangemen and Sons of England to the number of about one hundred and fifty, after meeting at their respective lodge rooms, marched to All Saints' church. Their bright badges made a pleasing toute ensemble, whilst so many manly voices joining in the service, made it very impressive. Dr. Symond's sermon, eloquent, as usual, was specially enjoyed by all present. This morning the latter gentleman will be the guest of the Ministerial Association at luncheon, and will deliver an address before that local body. Tonight he will lecture in All Saints' Parish Hall, taking as his subject "The Life and Writings of Anthony Trollope."

Mail Fist Rules in Spain to Prevent an Outburst

SOME POLITICAL QUERIES

Who will introduce Guilbert, the new M.P., when parliament meets next week?

Though a Liberal he has just emerged from a scrap in which he gave his former friends an awful whaling. They won't welcome him any too warmly, and it may take months to efface the bitterness engendered by the campaign.

There's Monk—he'll do for one, and Blondin, also sitting on the left of the speaker—he'll do for the other. That will make two Conservatives (that were) to introduce a new member who was a Liberal and is.

Another interesting question: will Monk and Blondin be admitted to the Conservative caucus? The speeches of both have been anti-British.

RUMORED KING WAS ASSASSINATED

SITUATION IS CRITICAL AND GROWING WORSE—REVOLUTION EXPECTED.

War Correspondents Leave for Spain—Rumor of Alfonso's Assassination Denied.

London, Nov. 4.—A rumor was current in this city today that King Alfonso of Spain had been assassinated. At the Spanish embassy it was stated that nothing had been heard there, and that it was thought that the report had been circulated to affect the stock market. There was no confirmation of the rumor in official circles.

REVOLUTION IS EXPECTED.

Paris, Nov. 4.—The London rumor that King Alfonso had been assassinated was officially denied at the Spanish embassy here today. That the situation in Spain is growing worse hourly is generally believed however, and the war correspondents ents are leaving for the scene to be on hand when the revolution breaks out.

SCORES OF STRIKERS ARRESTED WHILE SOLDIERS CARRY FIXED BAYONETS.

Proclamation of Weyler—Any Attempt at Revolt to be Quenched in Blood—All Firearms Will Be Confiscated.

Madrid, Nov. 5.—The mailed fist ruled Spain today to prevent an outburst that would plunge the kingdom into a bloody reign of terror.

Barcelona, the seat of a most daring labor and revolutionary demonstration in the history of Spain's recent unrest, was an armed camp with machine guns trained on the streets, thousands of soldiers massed in the barracks and thousands of others patrolling the city.

More than 5,000 strikers from Sabadall marched into Barcelonia to join with the strikers there for their display of hostility against the throne. Scores of arrests were made and sporadic out breaks resulted in attempts by the soldiers carrying fixed bayonets. The prisons are filled.

WEYLER HAS 50,000 MEN.

Captain General Weyler of Catalonia, "the butcher of Cuba," received 15,0000 troops, bringing the total of his army to nearly 50,000 men to quell revolt.

He issued a proclamation couched in the most bitter language this morning, declaring that any attempt to stir up an open revolt would be quenched in blood.

Houses were raided and great quantities of Socialistic literature seized. The municipal guards broke up knots of strikers whenever they assembled in the street.

INNOCENT CITIZENS HELD UP.

All persons were forbidden to carry firearms and many innocent citizens were held up and searched by the soldiers. Fear of a battle in the streets of the city, between the strikers and radical Socialists on one side and the solciery on the other, kept the law-abiding citizens indoors. Many shops were closed.

Barricades were thrown up about some of the plazas, and artillery was placed at strategic points in the streets.

PLANNED A MARCH.

The labor leaders held a secret council early this morning and planned to march through the streets of the city, despite the fact that this had been banned by the military and municipal authorities.

If Barcelona had been in a state of siege in time of actual warfare, the conditions could not have been more military in aspect. Those of the strikers who were daring enough to show Republican colors were cast into jail without ceremony.

ALIMONY CASE SETTLED.

Mrs. Mary M. Appleby, Formerly of This City, Gets her Money.

Referring to the divorce proceedings of Mr. A. B. Appleby, a former resident of Peterborough, a Toronto despatch says:

Mrs. Mary M. Applebys motion for an order directing that one-third of the $9,225, received by her husband, A. B. Appleby, from the sale of property to the Canadian Northern Railway, be set apart as security for her dower, and that her alimony arrears be paid from the remainder, did not come before Mr. Justice Clute in single court this morning.

The case was struck off the list, but it was stated later that a settlement had been arrived at.

Mrs. Appleby lives in Philadelphia. She is 49 years old and lived apart from her husband since April.

In her affidavit, she says that on June 21st, 1909, Judge Benson of Cobourg, allowed her $65 a month alimony.

Mrs. Appleby claimed $357.44 costs alimony, amounting to $975, and $74.48 for other items.

Lindsay Banker Knows Here Leaving

Mr. R. H. Haddon, known to many of our local citizens and formerly accountant of the Farmers Bank, Lindsay, has resigned his position, and leaves on Tuesday for his home in Picton, where he will spend two weeks visiting his parents, before going to Calgary, Alberta, where he becomes junior partner in the firm of Barton & Barton Co.

Don't Go Tagless

Next Saturday one hundred and fifty girls in sympathy with the Children's Aid Society will cover the city from north to south and from east to west to sell tags, to whomsoever will buy. The school children will be tagged on Friday, by having buttons sold them. As the Children's Aid is one of the most commendable, non-sectarian and, as far as its too limited means go, most charitable institutions in the city, it is expected that the brigade of girls will go out to conquer, and that a goodly sum will be realized.

SINGLE TAX IN VANCOUVER.

Our attention has been called to the "single tax" experiment in Vancouver, and we are asked to say something about it. Vancouver, some years ago, exempted buildings by 50 per cent. of their value from taxation, and, that experiment being considered successful, the building exemption was lately increased to seventy-five per cent. The result was a determination totally to abolish all taxation on improvements and raise all revenue from land value alone, and this notable object was achieved on March 2 of this year. The result has been eminently satisfactory, we are told, and it has thus been commented upon by the British Weekly: "If one were to ask some of the leaders of local politics what were the further causes of its prosperity, they would at once refer to the 'single tax' and the principle of taxing unearned increment on land. Vancouver has been with these partially for the last fifteen years, and now has adopted them without reserve. All the municipal services, and they are numerous and better performed than in many English towns, are supported by the proceeds of a tax which is called 'single,' because it is a tax on land alone, and not on the land and buildings. And the land is reassessed at short intervals, so that the community loses little time in drawing its share of the enhanced value, which, according to the theory, is largely due to the growth and energy of the community itself. Other towns have adopted the system wholly or in part." Prince Rupert, the destined terminus of the Grand Trunk Pacific, has, we learn, adopted the single tax principle from the beginning, but none of the other places which have adopted the principle in the Canadian West approaches Vancouver in importance, and none is more satisfied it seems with its success. Says the British Weekly: "The tax is at the rate of 23 mills, which works out at sixpence in the pound on the capital value of the land. The system is attracting attention and inquiry from economists and municipal governments all over the continent. The official reply to all inquiries is the 'Vancouver experiment,' which indeed may no longer be regarded as an experiment at all, has resulted in such a rapid upbuilding of the city that no one, not even the extensive land owner, has any desire to return to the former non-progressive scheme of taxation."

BEATING THE STATES.

The Canadian Gazette, noting the very heavy British immigration to Canada, 80,151 in the six months ending September 30, observes: "What a comment these figures supply upon the recent English agitation against the Canadian immigration regulations. Far from closing her doors, Canada has left them open wide enough to let this phenomenal number through. For the six months in question the British immigration exceeded by 1,000 the immigration from the United States.

THE PROBLEM of POPULATION.

A little thought will show that if every married couple had only one child who reached maturity and married, the population of any country would in a generation be only half what it was, because when the married couple die they leave only one child to represent them. If the married couple left two children, who reached maturity and married, the population would remain stationary, because these two children would just fill the places of their father and mother when they died. From this, it will be seen that, in order to have an increase in population, a married couple must have at least three children who reach maturity and marry. Since many children die before marrying, it will be seen that the number of children who reach maturity must be at least three to produce an increase in population, so that the number of births per family must be more than three.

These considerations have led Mr. Beaulieu, editor of the French Economist, to propose a scheme for increasing the population of France. He would give yearly to every family having three children the sum of $100, and a similar sum for every child over three, this money to be used in their education and up bringing. He would also punish the unmarried man and the childless man by preventing him from sitting in parliament or working in Civil Service; the salary of the civil servant would be in proportion to the size of his family. This scheme, it is estimated, would cost the French government $35,000,000 a year.

The population of France has remained nearly stationary for a number of years, while that of Germany, her great rival, has steadily and greatly increased. And there is the other factor to be taken into consideration, that while Germany has sent hundreds of thousands of immigrants into the United States and other countries, France has sent scarcely any. The French people do not care to leave their own country; they have lost the colonization spirit that characterized the race in the sixteenth and eighteenth centuries.

How far Mr. Beaulieu's scheme will succeed, if it is put into operation remains to be seen. While the French are a hard working, economical people, among the most thrifty in the world, there is a very important fact to be borne in mind in considering this question of population. The agricultural lands are owned in small holdings by the farmers; there are not many large landed estates. The result is, that when there are more than two children to be provided for these small holdings have to be divided into still smaller holdings, if the children marry and stay on the land, and as has already been pointed out, the Frenchman loves his country too well to leave it. These considerations have greatly influenced the matter of population in France, and as far as the rural population is concerned, it would seem as if it would still continue to influence it.

A DIPLOMATIC REQUIREMENT.

The question has frequently been asked during the past week or two whether the powers of Europe, particularly Britain would acknowledge the republican government established in Portugal consequent of the revolution. Being one of the most ancient of European nations the twenty-one guns that announced the uprising in Lisbon naturally shook the whole Iberian peninsula, including the Basque provinces of Spain, but though the overthrow of a monarchy was by an element partly anarchial, the other powers have no course left but recognize the new administration. Were an alliance to exist between Britain and Portugal, or Germany and Portugal it would not, under the present conditions, give these nations an excuse for ignoring the new republican government. On the other hand, had an attack been made on Portugal by an outside enemy the allied nations could step in, if the clauses of the treaty went so far and help defend the crown.

Internal revolution is like a family quarrel in a household. Its consequences may be ever so much deplored by interested relations, yet legally they have no justification for interfering. Republican form of government has long since been proven acceptible, particularly in countries like France, where the people are possessed of revolutionary instincts. It has long been recognized at all courts, and no matter how reluctant they may be to bow to revolutionary factions, diplomats of other lands must acknowledge what the people demand.

The danger wgich Portugal faces is not that alone of an unsettled people, but the spread of anarchy and atheism. In the wake of republicanism has decimated these destroyers of citizenship. Seditious doctrines have been brewed and spread till they have poisoned the minds of even peasants in Spain and the Spanish throne has been frequently menaced.

It is in these that the seeds of national destruction lie. It is through them that a monarchy may again be established in Portugal even though the house of Braganza may never regain its throne.

THE COMING SESSION.

The coming session of parliament which opens on November 17th, is expected to be of more than ordinary interest, says the Ottawa Journal, an independent newspaper, in that there is the possibility that it will be the last before another general election. The opposition, therefore, may be expected to make the most of the chances they will have to harass the administration. The two parties are in the throes of the fight for power. The government is weakrr numerically than it has been since 1896, its majority last session having sometimes fallen as low as twenty.

The opposition also is a strong fighting body with young fighting material. It has been said that it is the strongest opposition since confederation.

What will lead especial interest in the coming conflict of parties is the situation in Quebec. Whereas a year ago there was a small outbreak on the part of F. D. Monk on the Conservative side and Colonel McLean on the Liberal side, over the naval policies of their several parties, the outbreak has grown to such large proportions in the government party that actual retention of office is threatened. The Bourassa campaign in Quebec is now of the most serious character to the Liberals, while other incidents which occurred lately have caused the English-speaking supporters of the government to look with suspicion upon its actions.

The ministry hopes to have a short session in view of the imperial conference in May and the coronation in June, both of which Sir Wilfrid laurier will attend.

BRITISH PROCEDURE.

A striking contrast in the proceedings of courts is furnished by the trial of Dr. Crippen and Miss Leneve. It took th eEnglish law but a short time to get at the bottom of the Crippen case, to sift evidence that has attracted the entire English-speaking world, to sum up the whole ghastly affair and to announce the punishment that goes to the perpetrator of appalling crimes. Had Crippen been tried in America the legal defence would have been insanity or brain storm, the case would likely have dragged on through the courts for weeks and the outcome in all probability would have been a short sentence in an hospital for the insane, or acquittal on the grounds of insufficient evidence. 6

The insanity plea has been used so much within the last few years that it really has become a subject of ridicule with the public and nearly every man with criminal instincts seems to believe that a clever lawyer can save him from the gallows by attempting to prove him weak mentally.

Lord Alverstone and the London jury have set a good example for Canadian courts.

TO MAINTAIN PEACE.

Count Katsura, premier and minister of finance, announces that the next Japanese budget will appropriate $40,000,000 for naval increase. This step, he explained, is "made necessary by the sheer requirements of maintaining peace."

Yes, that is everywhere the touble with the peace-loving nations. To maintain peace Germany is clouding even her splendid prosperity by war taxation. To maintain peace Italy taxes salt until poor children have rickets, and royalty lavishes the money on Dreadnoughts. To make Germany maintain peace Great Britain imposes the heaviest of war taxation, the Young Turks, administering a nation on the brink of bankruptcy, have just humiliated themselves before all Europe to wheedle another $30,000,000 loan for war purposes—to maintain peace. To maintain peace the United States according to Mr. Tawney, devotes 70 per cent. of its $3,567,685,66 a day of national expenditure to war disbursements. To maintain peace, the British Chancellor of the Exchequer tells us, "the countries of the world are speeding annually 45 millions ($2,250,000,000) upon the machinery of destruction."

TURNED TURTLE.

New York, Nov. 2.—The Buffalo Express, of the Lackawanna Railroad, which left Hoboken at 2.25 o'clock this morning, with 300 passengers on board, was wrecked by a misplaced switch at South Orange, N.J., today. The big "Humpback" engine was turned turtle, three cars were demolished and the rest were derailed. A remarkable feature of the accident is that only one person was seriously hurt, while two others were bruised.

Atlanta Oil Company

Capital Stock $600.000---Par Value $1.00

No Preferred Stock. Lease Runs 40 Years One-Sixth Royalty. No Bonus or Free Stock. All Stock in Treasury for Benefit of Holders. No Bonded Indebtedness Incorporated Under Laws of State of California.

106 acres of absolutely proven oil land on Sulphur Mountain, adjoining and between the Liberty and Puritan Oil Companies' property. Ten miles from Santa Paula, Ventura Co., Calif.

FACTS—The property is absolutely proven territory, lying as it does with the UNION OIL CO. producing on the south, the LIBERTY OIL CO. producing on the west, the HARD OIL CO. producing on the north, which only recently started its 30th rig, and Puritan Oil Co. to commence drilling on the east. Also it is located in a district of BIG PRODUCING COMPANIES, such as Oja Petroleum, Pyramid Oil Co., Canadian Queen, Capitol Crude, Bard Oil and Asphalt Co., and others. THERE'S NO QUESTION ABOUT THE COMPANY GETTING OIL. It is possible that Liberty Oil Company's new well will be a gusher, which would make the ATLANTA OIL COMPANY stock worth par. Mr. Cowell, our Superintendent, knows every foot of the ground, and having his log book of Liberty property, which adjoins our land, and an experienced OIL MAN and we consider ourselves fortunate in obtaining his services. VENTURA CO. OIL represents the cream of the industry. It is the home of HIGH GRAVITY OIL. VENTURA COUNTY OIL means $1.00 a barrel at well. Costs from 2c to 6c to produce it. THE GREAT UNION OIL CO. ... its start in VENTURA CO. and has paid over twenty-two millions in dividends. ... GREAT ASSETS had a small beginning in the WILD BILL GUSHER, within ... OF ATLANTA OIL CO. property. The demand for refining oil FAR EXCEEDS THE SUPPLY. The 8 refineries in California are crying for the product. The eastern high gravity fields are diminishing. The OHIO FIELDS, FOR INSTANCE, have fallen off one-third. The demand is caused by the increased market for gasoline. Throughout the world the number of automobiles and internal combustion gasoline engines is forcing up the price of high gravity crude petroleum. Eastern operators are now looking to VENTURA COUNTY, which are held to be the most extensive known. THIS IS THE FIRST ANNOUNCEMENT of ground floor offering of ATLANTA OIL CO., and may be oversubscribed at any time. One day's delay may mean you are too late. ACT NOW. WRITE FOR LATEST NEWS OF VENTURA OIL FIELDS.

The lumber for the derrick is on the ground and machinery has been ordered. Well No. 1 will be started as soon as drilling is installed. It should not take over six months to complete first well. Well No. 2, by conditions of lease, must be in operation by February 14th, 1911.

No less than three enlargements of this piano factory have been made during the past three years to keep pace with the large sale of Willis Pianos and Willis Player Pianos.

Our aim is to make the highest grade of piano or player piano at the lowest price attainable, but never to sacrifice quality for cheapness.

If you will investigate the tone, quality and prices of the Willis Pianos you will decide with others, that they are the best piano value ever offered.

Don't wash and scrub, bend and rub over a hot wash tub; sift a little GOLD DUST in the water, loosen the dirt, and save rubbing

Soap is not a bit of cleansing good until it is mixed with water and made into suds. And then it still needs the rub-rub-rub of human muscle.

GOLD DUST works in an entirely different way—instantly and totally dissolves in hot or cold, hard or soft water—and, without any aid from you, starts to cleanse.

GOLD DUST is more than soap—better and more economical. It is a powder of magic power—but rightly directed power, that leaves the wash white, sweet, wholesome.

Use your brains, not your muscle!

Throw away your soap, get GOLD DUST, and simply use it according to the directions on the package.

"Let the GOLD DUST Twins do your work."

THE "INTERNATIONAL LIMITED."

One of the most artistic folders issued by the Grand Trunk is a brochure just out giving information regarding the "International Limited," which is heralded as Canada's fastest train, as well as its finest. The booklet is prepared in most attractive style, well printed and illustrated, while the aesthetic relation of type and illustrations is maintained to a notable degree. The story of "International Limited" is a familiar one to Canadian, as well as American, travellers, but as shown in the latest publication of the Company, it is still not merely interesting, but attractive. A full description of this train between Montreal and Chicago is given, together with all the information regarding time and accommodation, that any passenger could require, the whole tastefully put together and artistically illustrated. A copy may be had free on application to Grand Trunk City Office. Mr. W. Buntin, Peterboro.

Ancient Egyptian Mortgage.

Of all the numerous Egyptian papyri dating from the Graeco-Roman period and preserved in the British museum none can be said to be of greater interest than those throwing light on the social conditions and manners and customs of the period. Many of these documents are mortgages, bills of sale and marriage contracts. Of the first named class a very interesting one is dated in the twentieth year of Cleopatra and Ptolemy. It appears that a shepherd named Menthe and his mother, Tauser, finding themselves in difficulties, mortgaged their land to a woman named Ete for the sum of 630 pieces of silver, which they promised to repay in eight months' time with interest. In case of failure of this condition they were willing to forfeit the field without further trouble or litigation. After giving the measurements of the land and particulars of its boundaries the document is attested by Heru-se-ei, scribe of Usir ur, alias Amenhetep.—London Globe.

Preserving Spiders' Webs.

Naturalists employ an interesting method to preserve all kinds of spiders' webs. The webs are first sprayed with an atomizer with artists' shellac, and then, should they be of the ordinary geometric form, they are pressed carefully against a glass plate, the supporting strands being at the same time severed. After the shellac has dried the plates carrying the webs can be stored away in a cabinet. Even dome shaped webs may be preserved in their original form by spraying them with shellac and then allowing them to dry before removal from their supports. Many spiders' webs are very beautiful, and all are characteristic of the species to which they belong, so that, from a scientific standpoint, their permanent preservation is very desirable.—Harper's Weekly.

A Country Doctor's Record.

Dr. James Morris, who was one of the oldest medical practitioners in Scotland, has just died at Dunfermline. When he celebrated his jubilee as a doctor some ten years ago he made this statement: "During my fifty years in practice I have attended 50,000 patients, administered chloroform 10,000 times with absolute immunity from fatal results, had 5,000 births (1,000 consecutive cases without a death), made about 1,000,000 visits and traveled about 700,000 miles." Not a bad record for a country medical man.—Westminster Gazette.

Skyscrapers.

The second generation of skyscrapers in lower Manhattan has appeared. The twenty story building at the corner of Wall and Nassau streets is now being torn down as obsolete in order to make way for a new and much higher thirty-two story structure. New York skyscrapers may soon be classified like battleships—at the end of ten years "obsolescent," at the end of twenty "obsolete" and then the scrap heap.—Springfield Republican.

My Unknown Love.

I used to meet her in the park
Behind a practice golf,
While this poor heart went pitapat
To see a form so fair.

I grew to know her lovely eyes,
Her cheeks that flush and pale.
But who can see a maiden's blush
Beneath an auto veil?

In winter she's an Eskimo
In heavy furs arrayed.
In summer she is nothing but
A goggled mummy maid.

And so my heart has ceased to throb
At sound of horn or bell,
It might be Angelina.
If it were I could not tell.
—Harper's Weekly.

Bench Made Joke.

Mrs. Smith-Jones Brown (effusively) Congratulations, my dear! I hear ou just received your final decree.

Mrs. Greene Robinson-Johnson-Jackson—Yes, indeed, and the judge paid me such a pretty compliment.

Mrs. S.-J.-B.—Really? What was it?

Mrs. G.-R.-J.-J.—He said that in view of my excellent record in the divorce courts an honorary decree should be conferred on me.—Illustrated Sunday Magazine.

Family Relations.

"Who is that man you were just talking with?"

"That's my brother-in-law."

"He looks enough like you to be your own brother."

"He is my own brother. We are twins."

"Twins? Then why did you say he was your brother-in-law?"

"Because he is. I have three brothers—one in law, one in medicine and one in the army."

Lindsay Ex-Bank Manager Arrested.

A young man who has been acting manager of the Farmers Bank of Canada at Kinmount for the past ten days, was recently arrested at his home at Waterdown, near Hamilton, charged with forging the signature of John Hughes, a customer of the bank to a cheque for $100, appropriating the fund to his own use. The charge was withdrawn when the young man's father made good the shortage and costs.

Local Pastor in Demand.

As an indication of the popularity of Rev. G. W. Henderson, pastor of the Charlotte street Methodist church it might be noted that, within the past few days he has received two flattering calls, to other parishes. He is wanted in London, Ont., and by the Simcoe street church at Oshawa.

A drawing room meeting will be held in the Y.W.C.A. drawing room tomorrow afternoon at 4 p.m. to meet Mrs. Shaplaigh, of Shaosi, China. Mrs. Shaplaigh is a most interesting speaker and having lived in China for a number of years, will, during the afternoon speak of some of the present conditions of that empire. Ladies will be welcomed.

Rev. Dr. Symonds Dr. Langfeldt's Guest.

Rev. Dr. Symonds of the Cathedral in Montreal, a former pastor of St. Luke's church, of Ashburnham, is the guest of Rev. Dr. Langfeldt, rector of the latter mentioned church. Dr. Symonds, whose eloquent and impressive addresses are equally admired in Montreal and Peterboro, has a host of personal friends and admirers here, who will listen to-day to his sermons in All Saints and St. Luke's churches, during his present visit to Peterboro.

Trouble Over a Hay Deal.

Rather a curious case took place before John Miller, J.P., at Warkworth, on Wednesday morning of last week. It seems that Mr. D. Robertson, representing the Northumberland Paper and Electric Co., purchased a quantity of hay at Mr. Gorman's sale. The contents of one mow was sold previous to the sale, to Mr. Wildman, but Mr. Robertson was not aware of this fact when the balance of the hay was sold. Robertson sent teamsters to get the whole amount of the horse and cow feed. Included in what he purchased was the lot sold to Mr. Wildman. Trouble then began, but an amicable settlement was arranged.

ORANGE CONCERT.

Collegiate Concert a Great Success.

The concert and promenade at the Collegiate Institute, held under the patronage of Mesdames Crane, Hill, Fessenden, Morrison and Pettit, was a success in every respect. The piano solo by Miss Giroux, and the duet by the Misses Gumpright and Greaves, were both rendered in masterly style. The pumpkin drill by eight girls was unique, and produced roars of applause and laughter. Miss Leary's reading was given very effectively. The Misses Kathleen O'Brien, Mabel Patterson and Olive Myers were very clever in "Three Maids of Lee. Miss Nelson, Miss Alica Logan, Miss Elsie Mowat, Miss Marion Pyncheon, Miss Madeline Rutherford and Miss Mary Nesbitt, and Mrs. Pettit carried off the pantomine with honors. There was a good attendance, including a number of Normal school students. The Collegiate pupils are to be congratulated on the success of the evening's entertainment.

Mrs. George A. Cox's At Home.

Mrs. George A. Cox gave one of the largest and most perfectly appointed receptions of the season on Thursday afternoon at her palatial home on Sherbourne street, where the beautiful decorations and many works of art shared the admiration of the guests who numbered some five hundred. Huge standard vases of American beauties were arranged about the drawing room while the same flowers with golden baskets of chrysanthemums and tropical plants were in the hall and sun room, an orchestra being stationed at the head of the wide stair case. Mrs. Cox received in the drawing room and was wearing a handsome and becoming gown of soft yellow satin with overdress of white net run with goin and pale blue filoselle in a pattern of flowers, she was assisted by Mrs. H. C. Cox and Mrs. Edward Cox, the former in a clinging gown of palest yellow chiffon and satin and the latter wearing a triumph of the dressmaker's art in white satin, black ninon and silver and black embroidery. In the dining room the table was centered with an enormous basket of American beauties and yellow butterfly orchids tied with beauty ribbon, small brass baskets of the same flowers and violets being about the table which was presided over by Mrs. Aaron Cox and Mrs. John Morrow assisted by Mrs. Doherty, Mrs. Goldsmith Mrs. Ardagh, Misses Sterling, Mrs. Corrigan, Miss Oliver, Mrs. Palm, Mrs. Bascom, Mrs. Murray, Miss Morrow and Mrs. Ormsby Oliver, each receiving a corsage bouquet of yellow orchids and violets.—Toronto Sunday World.

Thousands Watch Marine Tragedy

LINE THE SHORE HELPLESSLY WHILE BILLOWS POUND BIG SHIP TO PIECES.

Thirty Men in Rigging—Largest Sailing Ship in the World Is Wrecked at Dover After Collision.

Dover, England, Nov. 7.—Within a stone's throw of safety, thirty members of the crew of the five-masted steel schooner Preussen, the largest sailing vessel in the world, are lashed to the rigging of the ship today, while great waves wash over them and threaten any moment to drown them.

Lifeboats and staunch sea going tugs braving the gale, are hovering nearby, but would be dashed to pieces if they attempted to go along side. The storm shows no signs of abating and it is not believed the men can hold on much longer.

Along the shore thousands of persons have gathered to watch the dramatic scene, and though every man is willing to risk his life to save the imperilled mariners, not one can turn ahand.

The Preussen, a German owned vessel, early Sunday collided in the channel with the steamship Brighton. Neither seemed seriously damaged, the Brighton making port under her own steam. Nothing more was heard of the Preussen until she was dashed on the rocks at South Foreland, and it is surmised that her steering gear was disabled by the collision.

For hours fines and tiny lifeboats braved the storm in an effort to take off the crew. Life-lines were fired from shore, but for some unaccountable reason, the crew failed to make them fast. The great ship is now breaking up. From the shore the sailors can be seen clinging to the rigging, with waves breaking over them. They have been in this exposed position for thirty hours, and it is not believed that they can stick much longer.

The Preussen was built in 1902 and was the largest and fastest sailing ship afloat.

THE U. S. HAS NO OFFICIAL INTEREST

ALL EFFORTS ON CRIPPEN'S BEHALF SHOULD GO TO BRITISH EMBASSY.

What Washington Says—Attitude Strictly Proper and Hint Is Dropped to Lawyer Tobin of Philadelphia.

Washington, Nov. 7.—The United States Government has no interest in the case, according to a high State department official, who said today that the effort of Francis A. Tobin, a Philadelphia lawyer, to prove that Crippen's wife is alive in the United States should be directed to the British embassy and not the State department.

Lawyer Tobin had not yet called on the State department up to noon today. If he does put in an appearance he will be told to place his services before the British embassy here or before the British consul in Philadelphia.

The case, added the State department officials, is one entirely in the hands of British criminal authorities. If there is tangible evidence that Belle Elmore Crippen is alive, it should be submitted to the British embassy with the request that it be transmitted to the British Government.

Stopped Runaway Team Mr. Weir's Plucky Act

At about 1.30 yesterday afternoon, one of the pluckiest stoppages of a pair of maddened horses running away and dragging a wagon, ploughing themselves almost to certain destruction, was made by Mr. Geo. Weir, of Omemee, at the brow of the hill leading to Hunter street bridge. It seems that Mr. W. O'Brien, Dunlop, brought his three-year-old team to town yesterday with a load of hay. After selling the hay at the fire station, he went in for his money. The young horses, whether frightened by an argument used by Duty Pondas over the old brigade or not is not known, still they took their respective bits in their teeth and dashed away. Up Simcoe to Water street, and along that thoroughfare to Hunter street they sped at a "Maud S." gait. Just after they passed the Munro House, Mr. Weir pluckily ran out into the street and caught one of the horses by its bridle. The mad emed animals still sped towards the bridge, but Mr. Weir hung on, until he was dragged to Sheridan street. Here his weight, determination and human domination of mind over matter brought the runaway team to their senses and a stop. Had the slightest slip been made by this plucky stopper of a runaway team, that might have caused many deaths to children or adults, he himself, would, most certainly have been trampled under, the iron shod hoofs of the team. As it turned out little damage was done.

Clerical Party was All Powerful in Portugal--Inner History of Revolution

DOM CARLOS WAS PUTTY IN THE HANDS OF THE CLERICAL PARTY.

King Carlos' Extravagance and Queen Amelie's Baneful Influence on Behalf of Church Prepared People for the Final Upheaval—Controlled by the Church.

London, Nov. 7.—The revolt in Lisbon was by no means unexpected by those who are not at all intimately acquainted with the inner history of European politics. For some years past the whole country has been simmering with discontent, and the only wonder is that the trouble has not come sooner. The causes are twofold. In the first place, the late King Carlos was an extremely extravagant man, and, despite repeated warnings on the part of both his ministers and his personal friends, he squandered money at a rate that a comparatively poor country such as Portugal could not possibly stand. Among those who constantly counselled him to retrench was the late King Edward, and the historic meeting between the two Kings at Windsor, only a few months before Dom Carlos died a few months before assassin, was largely concerned with the raising of a very large sum that he needed for his immediate necessities.

Secondly, Dom Carlos was largely influenced by the clerical party, which, until the recent outbreak, was all-powerful in Portugal, as it still is in Spain. History has shown conclusively that a state controlled by a church can never hope for anything but financial chaos and internal dissension. The strong, physical Dom Carlos was as putty in the hands of this party, and he was quite content that this should be the case. He had very few of the qualities that go to make up the real king, as compared to the papier mache substitute that he so often proved himself, and a crisis was bound to come sooner or later.

That this crisis was staved off during his lifetime is a thing to marvel over. He was, however, personally popular with his people, and this served to support his tottering throne.

His assassination will long remain a mystery, though recent events have served to throw some amount of new light upon it. Many Englishmen were present in Lisbon on the day that the murder took place who had some inkling of the real state of some inkling of the real state of that the deed was the work of a group of international anarchists who had a blind fury against all crowned heads, and who found here an almost unique opportunity to wipe out a king and his two heirs at one blow. That they did not succeed in killing the present young king, as well as his father and his brother, must be assigned in some measure to the intrepid bravery of Queen Amelie who with rare courage flung herself in front of her youngest in order to stop with her body the hail of bullets that crashed around the royal carriage.

Queen Amelie, however, cannot be acquitted of complicity in the fate that has overtaken her youngest born. From that day she became Queen of Portugal she wielded an influence that was baneful, not only to the country of her adoption, but to those nearest and dearest to her. So far from exercising a wholesome check upon her husband's extravagance, she encouraged him in it. It was her ambition to stand upon the same plane as the Empresses of Russia and Germany and the Queens of England and Spain! She ignored the fact that her husband's resources were nothing like as considerable as those of the monarchs named, and that the only manner in which money could be raised was either by foreign loans at very heavy rates of interest—or by imposing taxes upon the Portuguese nation that could not be borne.

King Manuel, it must be borne in mind, is only a boy. That he possesses very high aspirations none who have met him can doubt for a moment, and some of these he expressed to the late King Edward when he was in his country last November. He recognized his helplessness to the full. He was in the hands of his mother, who in turn was controlled by the clerical party. The Revolutionists and the Republicans have been growing in strength for many years past, and no real step has ever been taken to conciliate them. When the tragedy in February, 1908, took place, Queen Amelie was earnestly counselled to adopt a more enlightened line of government, and one more in accord with the feeling of the twentieth century.

King Manuel, left to himself, would have handled matters far differently. He had sense enough to perceive, even twelve months ago, whither his country was drifting, but it was outside his power to do anything to save it.

The future of Portugal is very uncertain at the moment. A republic has been proclaimed, but it stands upon a very insecure foundation, and its dissolution, and the recall of King Manuel to the throne of his forefathers, may take place within twelve months. Portugal is suffering at the present time from the lack of a real leader, one who shall give the cue that the nation as a whole will blindly follow. It is often said that "the hour produces the man." Will it do so in this case?

Mr. Samuel Neill of Kingston, was in the city yesterday on business.

IMPORTANT FACTS AND DATES IN THE CRIPPEN CASE

Jan. 31.—Drf Hawley H. Crippen, an American dentist, and his wife, Belle Elmore, an American naudeville artist, gave a dinner party at their house at 39 Hillcrop Crescent, London, and apparently were on the best of terms.

Feb. 2.—Belle Elmore resigned by letter as treasurer of Music Hall Ladies' Guild, saying she was going to California, on March 23.

Mar. 26.—London papers print obituary advertisements of the death of "Miss" Belle Elmore in California on March 23.

Apr. 7.—A similar obituary notice of Miss Elmore appeared in "The Stage."

June 30.—Some professional friends of Mrsf Crippen, members of the Music Hall Ladies' Guild, whose suspicions had been aroused by certain discrepancies in the statements of Dr. Crippen concerning the death of his wife, informed the Scotland Yard of their belief that Mrs. Crippen had been murdered. They had ascertained that Mrs. Crippen had not been a passenger on the liner La Touraine anh had not died in Los Angeles as reported in the obituary notices. They had also found that Dr. Cripuen was living with Miss Ethel Clare Leneve, his pretty typist, at the house No. 39 Hilldrop Crescent, that they claimed to be married and that the girl wore Belle Elmore's clothes and jewels.

Culy 9.—Chief Detective Inspector Dew of Scotland Yard visited and interviewed Dr. Crippen, who told him that his wife, Belle Elmore, was not dead, but that they had agreed to separate and that he did not know what had become of her since she had left him.

July 9.—Early in the morning of that day the discovery was made that Dr. Crippen and Miss Leneve had secretly left the house at No. 39 Hilldrop Crescent. Only Miss Leneve's French maid was left in the house. Dr. Crippenls assistant had received a letter from his employer, authorizing him to sell everything in the house and to use the proceeds to pay the rent arrears and any bills that might have been left unpaid.

July 13.—During a search of the deserted house, No. 39 Hilldrop Crescent, Chief Inspector Dew found the remains of a human body buried in the cellar. These were identified as the remains of Mrs. Crippen.

July 20.—Captain Kendall of the steamer Montrose reported reported to Scotland Yard that Dr. Crippen and Miss Leneve the latter disguised as a boy, were passengers on board his ship, bound for Canada. Immediately upon receipt of this information Inspector Dew hurried to Canada.

July 31.—Inspector Dew of Scotland Yard, disguised as a pilot, boarded the steamer Montrose upon its arrival at the mouth of the St. Lawrence River, and arrested Dr. Crippen and Miss Leneve.

Aug. 29.—Accompanied by Inspector Dew, Dr. Crippen and Miss Leneve returned to England.

Oct. 18.—Beginning of the trial of Dr. Crippen upon the charge of murder.

Oct. 22.—Crippen convicted and sentenced to be executed on November 15.

Oct. 24.—Date for Crippen's execution changed to November 8.

Oct. 25.—Ethel Leneve placed on trial and acquitted.

Nov. 3.—Crippen's case argued before the Criminal Court of Appeal.

Nov. 7.—Crippen granted respite.

Solicitor Arthur Newton is Drafting a Petition for a Reprieve

ON EVE OF DATE SET FOR EXECUTION CRIPPEN'S FAREWELL IS POSTPONED.

Remarkable Story of Dr. Munyon to Effect that Mrs. Crippen is Still Alive, Cabled in Full to England—Will Give Prisoner's Friends Chance to Produce Belle Elmore.

London, Nov. 7.—The execution of Dr. H. H. Crippen, who was convicted and sentenced to death for the murder of his wife, Belle Elmore Crippen, was today postponed until November 23.

This announcement was made in the wake of sensational cablegrams which came from the United States stating the belief that Belle Elmore Crippen still lives and that she has been recently seen either in or near Chicago.

CONFERENCE WITH JUDGES.

Barristers Arthur Newton and Alfred Tobin, who had apparently abandoned hope for Crippen when the appeal was dismissed on Saturday, renewed their efforts today with redoubled vigor. They held a conference with the judges in chamber this morning.

According to the cables Francis Tracy Tobin, a Philadelphia lawyer, has evidence in his possession that Mrs. Crippen fled from England, going to America, where she was first seen at San Francisco. Later she was seen in other Western and Southern cities, and finally in Chicago. She is living under an assumed name, according to Tobin, who claims to have letters to support his claims.

Before the formal announcement of the postponement there were rumors that such action was contemplated, but the rigor of the English law gave rise to a discreciting opinion of the early reports. Even when it was announced that the postponement had been granted little credence was placed in the reports.

TIME FOR INVESTIGATION.

However, it was stated, sufficient time will be given for a full investigation of reports that Belle Elmore Crippen is still alive.

The cables contained the information that Tobin will make a strong plea to Secretary Knox to have Ambassador Reid petition the British courts for a stay of execution until Mrs. Crippen can be produced.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

REMANDED FOR A WEEK.

Officer McGinty Takes Prisoner Charged With Robbing Local Hotel.

Yesterday, shortly before noon, P. C. McGinty, that veteran of the local police force, walked possibly to the air of the "Rogue's March," up the Brock street hill to Castle Nesbitt. This local policeman, whilst his stride is usually full and broad as that of a veteran returning with the Canadian troops after the battle of Batoche was yesterday more like the "goose-step" of a recruit. There was a reason, however! P. C. McGinty was hobbled, not like a horse, but like an officer with an onerous duty to attend to, to a big, well dressed prisoner, chained wrist to wrist, so that said prisoner could not "fly the coop." The prisoner in question, was arrested, charged with theft of certain goods from a local hotel and sent up for a week on remand.

Local Orangemen Hold a Successful Evening

Last night the Foresters' Hall on Simcoe street, was crowded to the doors, with an assemblage invited by the Peterborough District Orangemen, representing Lodges Nos. 80, 1178 and 50. The large and elegantly decorated hall was a scene of wit, eloquence and beauty. Possibly half the audience present consisted of the fair sex, whose smiling faces added to the attractions of the evening.

Mr. John Jones very ably occupied the chair.

A splendid musical program was rendered. Those contributing to the enjoyment of the audience were well received, and, should any of those whose efforts enabled those in attendance to enjoy the evening's program be omitted, such omission could only have been made during the vociferious applause. Those contributing to the evening's program, were Pianist, Harold Foster; a violin solo by Mr. Hackett, a selection by the Ark Quartette from George Street Methodist church, composed of Messrs. W. H. Cunningham, Ed. Walton, Asa Huycke and Geo. Bigh. Messrs Geo. Garside, Jr. and Cranfield gave a touching selection on the mouth organ. Messrs. Goodwin and Garside, Sr., gave an old time, and well received duet on that one time favorite musical instrument the concertina. Their duett displayed, that, whilst the concertina may not be brought to the front at a Vanderbilt reception, or a Goelet Long Branch tea, it still, in the hands of such local artists, holds the smiles or tears of the audience. Henry Goodwin gave a solo on the same instrument to good and general effect. A. C. Huycke gave a vocal solo that was well received.

After the vocal and instrumental enjoyments of the evening had been fully absorbed, the ladies in attendance, passed round dainty refreshments. Taken, as a whole, the local Orangemen last night had an entertainment that reflected credit, though none such is required with this order on the abilities of any body of men, at such short order, to get up an entertainment and give such general satisfaction to all their guests.

The Bitter Contest Comes to a Close

BOTH SIDES IN NEW YORK STATE CLAIM VICTORY THE POLLS TODAY.

"Teddy's" Final Appeal Will Have No Effect, Say Democrats—Tammany Hall Starts Paying Out the Cash.

New York, Nov. 7.—One of the most spectacular and bitterly contested campaigns in the history of New York State politics drew to a close today with both sides professing confidence o victory at the polls tomorrow. Final forecasts by both big parties claimed big majorities for John A. Dix, the Democrat nominee for governor, and Henry L. Stimson, the Republican nominee.

The Democrats express the opinion that Col. Theodore Roosevelt's final appeal to the voters would have no effect. On the other hand the Republican leaders here and elsewhere in the State were supremely sure of victory. Mr Stimson and Col. Roosevelt will address mine meetings here today. Mr. Dix is at his home in Thompson.

CLAIM DEMOCRATIC TICKET.

Democratic State Chairman Hupuch, Tammany Leader Charles F. Murphy and Wm S. Roddie, chairman of the executive committee of the Democrat State Committee, claim election of the whole State ticket. aDemocratic Legislature, and a plurality for Dix of from 90,000 to 150,000.

Republican State chairman Ezra Prentice and County Chairman Lloyd Griscom of New York, predict Stimson's plurality from 25,000 to 181,000

MONEY DOLED OUT.

This was "dough day" at Tammany. The historic Fourteenth street headquarters of Tammany was a beehive of activity all day. Tammany Chief Murphy held a long conference with his aides and lieutenants, while the lesser leaders conferred with th) the lesser leaders conferred with the captains. Money was doled out and the final plans made for tomorrow's work.

Crowning of Siam's New King.

Bangkok, Nov. 8.—Many Americans and Europeans will be included in the large crowds that will witness the commencement today of the elaborate ceremonies in connection with the accession of the new king of Siam. Maha Vajravudha. The ceremonies with conclude with the coronation next Friday.

Wanted to Hang in Crippen's Stead

London, Nov. 7.—An elderly, unidentified man appeared at the Cambridge Police Court today, and requested that he be allowed to hang in place of Dr. Crippen, urging that the professional skill of the latter would prove a blessing to humanity, whereas he, himself was of no value to the world. The man displayed eccentricities, and his sanity will probably be investigated.

DECLARES CRIPPEN'S WIFE IS STILL ALIVE

SO SAYS TOBIN THE PHILADELPHIA LAWYER, WHO IS ACTIN FOR THE DOCTOR.

Evidence is Indisputable—Given Enough Money He Says He Will Be Able to Locate Her.

Philadelphia, Nov. 7.—In spite of the statements made by Duke Munyon, on behalf of his father, Prof. J. M. Munyon, he considers reports that Belle Elmore Crippen is alive in this country are "all bosh." Francis Tracy Tobin, a lawyer of this city, who was related to Barrister A. A. Tobin, counsel for Crippen before the Court of Appeals, declared today that if he was given money to make a search of the western cities he can produce the woman for whose murder Dr. H. H. Crippen was condemned to death.

"Belle Elmore is alive, and in the United States," said Tobin today. "The evidence before me is indisputable. The woman was seen in California, and in and about Chicago by personal acquaintances, who know her beyond a doubt. Whether it is a monstrous jealousy, or, as has been hazarded, theatrical advertising, that explains her continued silence, I would not venture to say. But that she is alive and able to save if she wants to to save her husband's life not a doubt exists in my mind.

"There are four western cities that I would search. That she is in one of them I am positive. I cannot reveal the definite nature of the proofs in my possession, but given the authority to act, I can say that the producing of Belle Elmore, is only a matter of time."

COPYRIGHT LAW.

A national copyright law was bound to come and it is chiefly interesting now from a consideration of the causes that have worked a change in the British mind. When the United States gave copyright, on certain conditions, to British authors, they were naturally pleased for the Republic is an excellent market for many English books. That arrangement, over fifteen years ago, has taught the London publishers that our shrewd American neighbors are always ready for a jug-handled reciprocity, but turn coldly away from any other kind. To secure United States copyright the British publishers had to set up the type of a book in the Republic and print the sheets there. Last year this was amended to include the binding too. In return for this an American book secures English copyright without any of these requirements.

The comments of the press upon this extremely one-sided arrangement—known, of course, at Washington as "reciprocity"—are instructive. From the Quarterly Review to the London Bookseller, British organs of opinion unite in describing the American law as severe, but as it is the best that can be got they do not even hint at a rupture. But the English bill now before Parliament expressly states that practically any copyright law which a self-governing state of the Empire chooses to pass will be recognized. This means that Canada may legislate so as to impart a certain stability, hitherto lacking, to Canadian publishing and give some impetus to Canadian literature. It will also release us from a condition of partial dependency upon the American market, and bring us into closer relations with the English book trade.

As an example of the hard terms exacted by the American trade from their London associates, one instance may be cited: A well-known English work of reference is not sold to any purchaser in North America except from New York with the imprint of the publisher there upon it. A Canadian buys it in that form or goes without. A law passed at Ottawa can modify such conditions so as to confer upon us the power of putting an end to narrow restrictions. It may otherwise, if wisely framed, entail other advantages.

THE PROBLEM of POPULATION.

A little thought will show that if every married couple had only one child who reached maturity and married, the population of any country would in a generation be only half what it was, because when the married couple die they leave only one child to represent them. If the married couple left two children, who reached maturity and married, the population would remain stationary, because these two children would just fill the places of their father and mother when they died. From this, it will be seen that, in order to have an increase in population, a married couple must have at least three children who reach maturity and marry. Since many children die before marrying, it will be seen that the number of children who reach maturity must be at least three to produce an increase in population, so that the number of births per family must be more than three.

These considerations have led Mr. Beaulieu, editor of the French Economist, to propose a scheme for increasing the population of France. He would give yearly to every family having three children the sum of $100, and a similar sum for every child over three, this money to be used in their education and up bringing. He would also punish the unmarried man and the childless man by preventing him from sitting in parliament or working in Civil Service; the salary of the civil servant would be in proportion to the size of his family. This scheme, it is estimated, would cost the French government $35,000,000 a year.

The population of France has remained nearly stationary for a number of years, while that of Germany, her great rival, has steadily and greatly increased. And there is the other factor to be taken into consideration, that while Germany has sent hundreds of thousands of immigrants into the United States and other countries, France has sent scarcely any. The French people do not care to leave their own country; they have lost the colonization spirit that characterized the race in the sixteenth and eighteenth centuries.

How far Mr. Beaulieu's scheme will succeed, if it is put into operation, remains to be seen. While the French are a hard-working, economical people, among the most thrifty in the world, there is a very important fact to be borne in mind in considering this question of population. The agricultural lands are owned in small holdings by the farmers; there are not many large landed estates. The result is, that when there are more than two children to be provided for these small holdings have to be divided into still smaller holdings, if the children marry and stay on the land, and as has already been pointed out, the Frenchman loves his country too well to leave it. These considerations have greatly influenced the matter of population in France, and as far as the rural population is concerned, it would seem as if it would still continue to influence it.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

CATHOLIC PRIESTS FIND DUBLIN STREETS AWFUL.

Protests Against Looseness and Depravity Which Invade Thoroughfares After Nightfall.

Dublin, Nov. —For some time past Dublin has suffered under an unenviable reputation on account of the state of some of its principal thoroughfares at night. The matter was brought to a focus a few days ago by the Rev. Father Gwynn, one of the leading priests of the city, who in a letter to the corporation said:

"The principal streets of the great cities in Germany and France have by no means that air, whatever be the reality, of looseness and depravity, which invades our main thoroughfares at nightfall."

The corporation has appointed a committee tai inquire into this indictment, and some rather hard things have been said of the Metropolitan police in this connection, but I am inclined to believe that the state of affairs has been much exaggerated. It is true that there is too much of the evil that Father Gwynn speaks of in evidence of some of the Dublin streets, but Dublin is by no means as bad as London or as half a-dozen other English cities that could be named. Strangers visiting Dublin are liable to be unfavorably impressed by the rough and vulgar, but quite innocent horseplay that goes on in the streets after nightfall between troops of working girls and young men of the same class. No doubt it is a nuisance to passers-by and might be controlled by the police better than it is, but the suggestion that has been made that these young people should be driven off the streets into the unlighted parks hardly seems to be the way to improve matters.

A DIPLOMATIC REQUIREMENT.

The question has frequently been asked during the past week or two whether the powers of Europe, particularly Britain would acknowledge the republican government established in Portugal consequent of the revolution. Being one of the most ancient of European nations the twenty-one guns that announced the uprising in Lisbon naturally shook the whole Iberian peninsula, including the Basque provinces of Spain, but though the overthrow of a monarchy was by an element partly anarchial, the other powers have no course left but recognize the new administration. Were an alliance to exist between Britain and Portugal, or Germany and Portugal it would not, under the present conditions, give these nations an excuse for ignoring the new republican government. On the other hand, had an attack been made on Portugal by an outside enemy the allied nations could step in, if the clauses of the treaty went so far and help defend the crown.

Internal revolution is like a family quarrel in a household. Its consequences may be ever so much deplored by interested relations, yet legally they have no justification for interfering. Republican form of government has long since been proven acceptible, particularly in countries like France, where the people are possessed of revolutionary instincts. It has long been recognized at all courts, and no matter how reluctant they may be to bow to revolutionary factions, diplomats of other lands must acknowledge what the people demand.

The danger wgich Portugal faces is not that alone of an unsettled people, but the spread of anarchy and atheism. In the wake of republicanism has decimated these destroyers of citizenship. Seditious doctrines have been brewed and spread till they have poisoned the minds of even peasants in Spain and the Spanish throne has been frequently menaced.

It is in these that the seeds of national destruction lie. It is through them that a monarchy may again be established in Portugal even though the house of Braganza may never regain its throne.

CLINGING TO THE PAST.

Erekmann and Chatrian in one of their Alsatian romances drew a character whose toryism was superb. He used to say that the strata of society were divinely ordered—that it was necessary and right for the peasant to look up to the small proprietor, for the small proprietor to respect the squire, for the squire to bow to the nobility, for the nobility to yield homage to the king and for the king to be subject to the pope. And all this time the French "citizens" in cross belts and shakos were marching on the village. In due time the republican watch fires were built in the streets, the republican muskets were stacked and the lumbering republican guns were jolting over the stones. The theories of the good old man were quenched by this overwhelming, unanswerable show of facts.

The parallell between this character of fiction and the Free Trade party in Britain is singularly apt. Sir Alfred Mond, and other prominent Free Traders in Britain are old timers. They cling to the theories of Cobden when the economic position of Britain has suffered tremendous changes. When Cobden lived British industrialism was supreme. No other nation had approached within seeing distance. British goods dominated in the world's markets. There was no danger of hurtful competition from foreign manufacturers either abroad or at home. But even under those conditions Cobden did not foresee that the other nations would decline to follow Great Britain's lead. He thought that the destruction of the British tariff wall would compel or induce world-wide Free Trade. Britain at the time could afford to make the experiement. But if Cobden were alive today it may be doubtful if he would still advocate a policy which makes the United Kingdom the dumping ground of the world, strangles British industry and creates an army of unemployed. Germany and the United States have arisen since Cobden began to speak. A policy well suited for one generation may not be suited for the next. Protection grows in the world.

Sir Alfred Mond and his allies cling to the old-time cure all. What has been must be, according to their political creed. They call themselves Liberals, but their whole attitude is conservative. They cannot realize fully that the world has changed. At the same time they hear the tramp of strange hosts and make curious concessions to the new evangel. To benefit the shareholders Brunner, Mond & Co., make trade agreements and dally with other protective devices. The worthy baronet continues to talk well, however, and to flaunt his conservatism in the air.

But some day the hosts of Tariff Reform will take possession of Great Britain and like the Erekmann-Chatrian Royalist, Sir Alfred Mond may find that theories have been quashed by hard facts—with points on them.

More Money for the Chimes.

Contributions still come in to attest the popularity of the chimes fund. The latest contribution, amounting to $7 was given by the staff of the Bell Telephone Company. The Junior Brotherhood of St. Andrew has contributed $3.15. Mr. Walter Clinton of Chicago, and Elmer Brown, Des Moines, Ia., have both sent aid towards the fund. One cheque for $25 has been handed in by an old resident of the city, which sums, brings the total amount subscribed up to $5,125. As the price of bell metal is going up rapidly, it is expected that the committee will meet in a few days to see what shall be decided.

GIGANTIC TREE STUMPS.

Big Enough to Be Hollowed Out and Used For Houses.

The fine fir of the Pacific northwest are so colossal that after the trees are hewed down the stumps are used for children's playgrounds, houses for families to live in or for dancing platforms.

To make a stump house the material from the interior is removed, leaving only enough to form walls of suitable thickness. A roof of boards or shingles is put over the top of the stump, holes are cut for windows and doors, and a family of five can and often does make it their dwelling. The stump houses are sometimes used by settlers until they can build larger and more convenient homes.

After the stump home has been vacated it is turned into a stable for the horses or sometimes into an inclosure for chickens or hogs.

Next to the big trees of California the fir or spruce of Washington and Oregon has the largest diameter, but they decay rapidly, [illegible] easy. Sometimes the [illegible] used for dance platforms [illegible] them accommodating as many as four couples.

Another [illegible] is to turn the big stumps into playgrounds for the children. The children reach the top by pieces of wood nailed against the sides or by ladders. A beautiful use of the large stumps is making them into bowers or beds and covering them with trailing vines.—Chicago Tribune.

THE WAISTCOAT.

It Became Popular by the Patronage of Charles II.

How men realize how much they are being influenced in their dress by King Charles II., and yet it is to that monarch we owe the adoption of the waistcoat as a regular article of gentleman's dress, says London M. A. P. At least that is so if we are to accept the statement of Pepys, who in his diary under date of Oct. 16, 1666, states: "The king has declared his resolution to set a fashion which he would never alter." and "This day King Charles II. began to put on his vest. It is a very fine and handsome garment."

Prior to this date they were exceptional garments, and there is even some doubt whether they were originally worn by ladies or gentlemen, though there is good reason to believe they superseded the doublet, such as was worn by Raleigh, Essex and other notables of the Elizabethan age.

A vest waistcoat "wrought in silk and gold" is mentioned in "Patient Grissell," 1602, and there is a painting in distemper of a vest on the walls of Winchester cathedral, dated 1489, so that what Charles II. took was merely an existing garment, which he remodeled, and by his patronage so popularized it that it became a standard article of gentleman's dress.

Clever Reasoning.

Rather an original reason in political economy was that once taught by the Japanese nobleman Awoto and then translated by Sir Edwin Arnold in "Seas and Lands:"

One evening as he was going to the palace to take his turn in keeping the night watch he let ten cash drop out of his tinder case into the stream and then bought fifty cash worth of torches to search for the lost coin. His friends laughed at him for spending so much in order to recover so little, and he replied, with a frown:

"Sirs, you are foolish and ignorant of economics. Had I not sought for those ten cash they would have been lost forever—sunk in the bottom of the Namerigawa. The fifty cash which I have expended on torches will remain in the hands of the tradespeople. Whether he has them or I is no matter, but not a single one of the fifty has been lost, and that is a clear gain to the country."

Wedding Ring Mottoes.

When posies or mottoes inscribed inside wedding rings were first introduced does not seem to be known, but from the sixteenth century until the middle of the eighteenth it was customary to have them engraved on rings. These mottoes seldom consisted of more than two lines of a verse, often of only one, but there are a few instances known where three lines were used. Some of these posies are very quaint and curious, and a few reach a high standard of poetic beauty. The South Kensington museum has a good collection of posy rings, and among them are the following inscriptions: "United hearts death only parts;" "Let us share in joy and care;" "Love and live happily."—London Standard.

The Cause.

"Did you hear the awful shriek that engine gave as it flew by?" asked the first man as they approached a railroad crossing.

"Yes. What caused it?" rejoined his companion.

"I presume the engineer had it by the throttle."—Smart Set.

A Mean Retort.

"There goes a man I could have married," she said softly.

"Yes," he chortled, "and I notice that he keeps on going as though he were afraid you might try it again."—[illegible]

Wings of a Gnat.

The wings of a gnat vibrate at the rate of 15,000 times a second, this observation having been recorded through the use of an ingenious musical instrument.

An Old Time Winter.

It was so cold in New York part of the winter of 1779 that residents in the vicinity were compelled to cut down the tall trees that stood at what is now the head of Wall street to make kindling wood.

THE PRINCESS ROYAL.

How Monster Warship Came to Bear That Name.

The Admiralty have paid a neat and appropriate compliment in naming the new Dreadnought, just begun at Barrow, Princess Royal, in honor of the Duchess of Fife. Whether it came by accident or design is another thing. According to one story it came about in this way: The Duchess of Fife was at Marseilles last autumn on her way to Egypt, and expected to find there a telegram from the king. She was told there was none, but had enquiries made, which resulted in the telegram being found, set aside. It was addressed "The Princess Royal," but some official taking the title to be the name of a vessel had noted on it in pencil "ship unknown," and put it by. The story reached the Admiralty just as Sir John Fisher was selecting the names for the four "contingent" Dreadnoughts now being laid down. He had chosen the four, but, on hearing the story, put his pen through the fourth name, Devastation, substituting that of the "ship unknown"—Princess Royal.

As it happens, the name is to the royal navy very far from being that of a "ship unknown." There have been four ladies to bear the style of Princess Royal in England, and each one in turn has had a British battleship named after her. The man-of-war name, indeed, is just as old as the title itself. It appeared first on the navy list in 1728, in honor of George the Second's strong-minded eldest daughter, the Princess Anne, married in 1734 to the Prince of Orange. A second man-of-war bore it in honor of George the Third's eldest daughter, the Princess Caarlotte-Augusta-Matilda, "a chaste and gentle Princess," married in 1797 to the future King of Wurtemburg. The third was given the name in honor of Queen Victoria's eldest daughter, the late Empress Frederick; and a fourth ship now takes it in honor of King Edward's eldest daughter, the Duchess of Fife.

Rigid economy in naval matters and little shipbuilding marked the earlier days of George the Second, so that monarch had to content himself by taking away the name of an old ship and substituting Princess Royal for it. The man-of-war in question was an old two-decker of William the Third's navy, originally named the Triumph. H.M.S. Princess Royal the First lost the only chance she got of firing an angry gun. That was in 1744, when her admiral was Sir John Norris, "Foul Weather Jack"—the first of the two the navy has had. Just as Norris had caught up the French fleet he was chasing and a battle seemed inevitable, one of the admiral's storms burst, and the fleets were forced apart and never sighted one another again.

H.M.S. Princess Royal the Second was launched in 1773, by George the Third's brother, the Duke of Gloucester. The little girl Princess Royal of that day, a nine-year-old child, was sculptured as the figurehead. "The Princess Royal is seen seated on a chair supported on the shoulders of Neptune and Amphitrite, who ride on dolphins. Many Tritons are playing about them." So a newspaper reporter who witnessed the launched at Portsmouth described the figurehead.

"Foul Weather Jack" the second, Admiral John Byron, Lord Byron's grandfather, who "had no rest at sea," was her first admiral, and his ill-luck came on board with him.

Starting from England to take up the chief command off New York in the American war with a fleet of thirteen ships, storm after storm fell on him. Only two ships arrived at the rendezvous, the Princess Royal and another. A third crawled in later on, her masts gone, and leaking badly. Three more had to turn back, battered wrecks, for England. The remainder, with signals of distress flying, put into various American harbors. When Admiral Byron at length got them together and refitted, and was sailing for the West Indies, two of them were wrecked in another storm. He was reinforced and met the French off Grenada, made a blundering attack, and was badly mauled, being lucky to escape defeat and the loss of half his fleet. After that the Princess Royal fought in three battles under Rodney, and then went home to England to be present at the sinking of the Royal George, and to take part with Lord Howe in the final relief of Gibraltar, which closed the great siege. Then came the war with the French revolution, and we see the Princess Royal in the thick of the midnight horrors of the fighting in Toulon Harbor when an "unknown captain of artillery" Napoleon Bonaparte, drove the British fleet out headlong. Two fights with the French in 1795, one off Genoa, the other near Toulon, make up the Princess Royal's record of eight battles. For some years after that the Princess Royal had her place in the Channel Fleet, helping to hold in check Napoleon's intended invasion from Boulogne, one of "those far-distant storm-beaten ships upon which the Grand Army never looked, but which stood between it and the dominion of the world." Her end, to be taken to pieces at Chatham, came two years after Trafalgar.

The third Princess Royal bore the effigy of Queen Victoria's eldest daughter, the Empress Frederick, for her figurehead. A 91-gun screw-propelled wooden two-decker of the "fifties" of the last century, she made a name for herself as Captain Lord Clarence Paget's ship in the Crimean war, serving both in the Baltic campaign and before Sebastopol in the Black Sea.

So we come to the new Dreadnought, the Princess Royal of to-day, a tremendous cruiser-battleship of 26,500 tons, the biggest warship ever yet laid down in the world.

Scotland's Polar Quest.

Scotland refuses to be left behind, and has determined to take part in the international scramble for the South Pole with an expedition of her own. Dr. W. S. Bruce has been chosen to lead the expedition, and funds are being subscribed throughout the country, by rich and poor alike, for the fitting out of the Scottish National Antarctic expedition, as it is not unproudly termed.

Unselfish.

Dad—My son, hard work brings the only true happiness. Why don't you work?

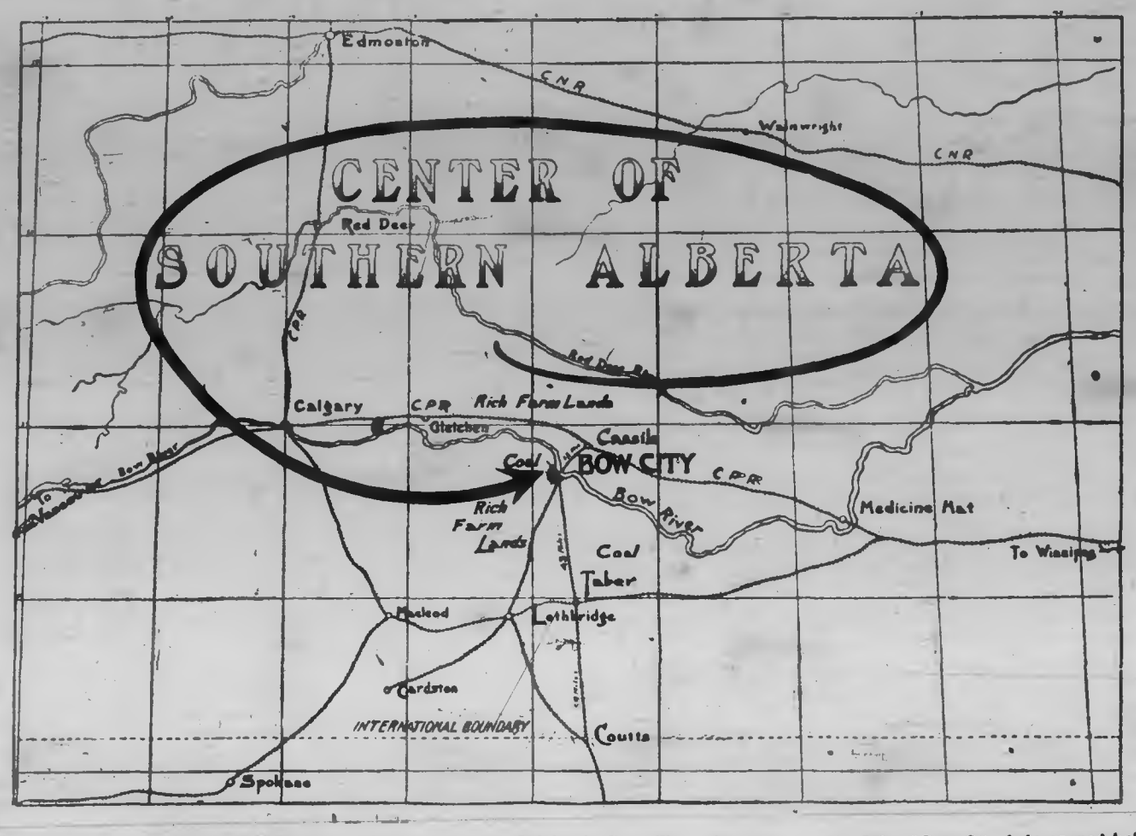
Son—Father, I intend to lead a life of self-denial. Why should I seek selfish happiness? Nay, nay—no work for me!"

Willing to Waive That.

"Miss Angeline," began the poor but proud young man, "if I were in a position to ask you to be my wife"—

"Good gracious, Mr. Thrugson!" she exclaimed. "In a position? The idea! Do you think I would want you to get down on your knees?"

"GIVE YOUR SON A DEED"



If, by way of illustration, you will review the history of the men in your town who have made money out of real estate, you will find that in each and every instance their profits were made from real estate acquired at ground floor prices.

More money can be made by those who acquire a realty interest in a town at its inception per dollar invested than from investments made after a period of years.

Do you know that you can purchase with $5 cash a full sized residential lot in Bow City, Alberta

the logical location for a great city, a city which is destined to be known, the world over, as a market place annually for hundreds of thousands of bushels of grain, grown on the vast irrigated fields surrounding Bow City, a shipping point for coal from the great Bow Centre Collieries, and a purchasing depot for hundreds of prosperous farmers resident throughout Southern Alberta.

To-day is your opportunity to acquire an interest in Bow City at the ground floor price.

It will be too late six months hence, to apply for a lot in Bow City at the present prices and on such easy terms as are offered you in this advertisement.

Why not follow Russell Sage's advice given in a letter published some years ago to the fathers in the Western States:—

"Buy your son a lot in a town being the "centre of a great agricultural country—when "he comes of age that lot will be worth consid-"erable money and will provide a handsome "stake for him in life; it is at least most sub-"stantial life insurance—sure and certain."

Buy your son a $50 lot in Bow City, the coming metropolis of the western prairies. In a very short time he can re-sell the same at a big increase, which money he will find advantageous in business pursuits or in a college course.

Bow City, the centre of the great granary of Southern Alberta has a future concerning which no sane business man or banker has any doubt.

When you are assured of the success of the city, when you have proven to you beyond the shadow of a doubt that Bow City will, in the very near future, be one of the most active, one of the most progressive towns on the Western prairies, you should not hesitate to acquire at least one $50 residential lot, when same is on sale on such easy terms as 10 per cent cash and the balance 10 per cent per month until paid—a deed at any time.

Bow City is in the heart of a famous irrigated farming belt whose farmers are assured of a crop every year. They are prosperous and their prosperity will naturally enhance the value of Bow City real estate.

The great coal mines of Bow City will furnish work for 1,000 to 1,500 miners daily, these miners will constitute a substantial basis for a successful city.

The present owners of Bow City have decided that no licenses shall be issued for the sale of spirituous liquors; they intend that this great mining and agricultural centre shall be free from any traffic in intoxicating drinks—it will be a clean city.

Bow City is the headquarters of a railway which taps a territory unparalleled for richness in crops and natural resources.

The Sale of Bow City Lots opened but a few days ag

If you are desirous of acquiring a $50 residential lot close in you should lose no time in making application by wire direct to the General Agents of the townsite, or to the nearest sub-agent.

Do not delay by sending your apulication by mail.

Wire at once your reservation for one or more lots

On receipt of wire your name will be placed on the closest-in unsold lot or lots and same will be held in your name, allowing you sufficient time for your cash payment, mailed same day you wire, to travel from your home to the head office.

You may find it to your advantage, if you are desirous of securing a business opening, or a business lot, to write for copy of the plans, booklets and descriptive matter concerning Bow City, all of which may be had on application, free of charge.

SINGLE TAX IN VANCOUVER.

Our attention has been called to the "single tax" experiment in Vancouver, and we are asked to say something about it. Vancouver, some years ago, exempted buildings by 50 per cent. of their value from taxation, and, that experiment being considered successful, the building exemption was lately increased to seventy-five per cent. The result was a determination totally to abolish all taxation on improvements and raise all revenue from land value alone, and this notable object was achieved on March 2 of this year. The result has been eminently satisfactory, we are told, and it has thus been commented upon by the British Weekly: "If one were to ask some of the leaders of local politics what were the further causes of its prosperity, they would at once refer to the 'single tax' and the principle of taxing unearned increment on land. Vancouver has been with these partially for the last fifteen years, and now has adopted them without reserve. All the municipal services, and they are numerous and better performed than in many English towns, are supported by the proceeds of a tax which is called 'single,' because it is a tax on land alone, and not on the land and buildings. And the land is reassessed at short intervals, so that the community loses little time in drawing its share of the enhanced value, which, according to the theory, is largely due to the growth and energy of the community itself. Other towns have adopted the system wholly or in part." Prince Rupert, the destined terminus of the Grand Trunk Pacific, has, we learn, adopted the single tax principle from the beginning, but none of the other places which have adopted the principle in the Canadian West approaches Vancouver in importance, and none is more satisfied it seems with its success. Says the British Weekly: "The tax is at the rate of 23 mills, which works out at sixpence in the pound on the capital value of the land. The system is attracting attention and inquiry from economists and municipal governments all over the continent. The official reply to all inquiries is the 'Vancouver experiment,' which indeed may no longer be regarded as an experiment at all, has resulted in such a rapid upbuilding of the city that no one, not even the extensive land owner, has any desire to return to the former non-progressive scheme of taxation."

BEATING THE STATES.

The Canadian Gazette, noting the very heavy British immigration to Canada, 80,151 in the six months ending September 30, observes: "What a comment these figures supply upon the recent English agitation against the Canadian immigration regulations. Far from closing her doors, Canada has left them open wide enough to let this phenomenal number through. For the six months in question the British immigration exceeded by 1,000 the immigration from the United States.

THE "INTERNATIONAL LIMITED."

One of the most artistic folders issued by the Grand Trunk is a brochure just out giving information regarding the "International Limited," which is heralded as Canada's fastest train, as well as its finest. The booklet is prepared in most attractive style, well printed and illustrated, while the asthetic relation of type and illustrations is maintained to a notable degree. The story of "International Limited" is a familiar one to Canadian, as well as American, travellers, but as shown in the latest publication of the Company, it is still not merely interesting, but attractive. A full description of this train between Montreal and Chicago is given, together with all the information regarding time and accommodation, that any passenger could require, the whole tastefully put together and artistically illustrated. A copy may be had free on application to Grand Trunk City Office, Mr. W. Buntin, Peterboro.

160 acres of absolutely proven oil land on Sulphur Mountain, adjoining and between the Liberty and Puritan Oil Companies' property. Ten miles from Santa Paula, Ventura Co., Calif.

FACTS—The property is absolutely proven territory, lying as it does with the UNION OIL CO. producing on the south, the LIBERTY OIL CO. producing on the west, the HARD OIL CO. producing on the north which only recently started its 20th rig, and Puritan Oil Co., to commence drilling on the east. Also it is located in a district of BIG PRODUCING COMPANIES, such as Oja Petroleum, Pyramid Oil Co., Canadian Queen, Capital Creek, Hard Oil and Asphalt Co., and others. THERE'S NO QUESTION ABOUT THE COMPANY GETTING OIL. It is possible that Liberty Oil Company's new well will be a gusher, which would make the ATLANTA OIL COMPANY stock worth par. Mr. Cornell, our Superintendent, knows every foot of the ground, and having his log book of Liberty property, which adjoins our land, and an experienced OIL MAN and we consider ourselves fortunate in obtaining his services. VENTURA CO. OIL represents the cream of the industry. It is the home of HIGH GRAVITY OIL. VENTURA COUNTY OIL means $1.50 a barrel at well. Costs from 3c to 5c to produce it. THE GREAT UNION OIL CO. got its start in VENTURA CO. and has paid over twenty-two millions in dividends. These GREAT ASSETS had a small beginning in the WILD BILL GUSHER, within a mile OF ATLANTA OIL CO. property. The demand for refining oil FAR EXCEEDS THE SUPPLY. The 33 refineries in California are crying for the product. The eastern high gravity fields are diminishing. The OHIO FIELDS, FOR INSTANCE, have fallen off one-third. The demand is caused by the increased market for gasoline. Throughout the world the number of automobiles and internal combustion gasoline engines is forcing up the price of high gravity crude petroleum. Eastern operators are now looking to VENTURA COUNTY, which are held to be the most extensive known. THIS IS THE FIRST ANNOUNCEMENT of ground floor offering of ATLANTA OIL CO., and may be oversubscribed at any time. One day's delay may mean you are too late. ACT NOW. WRITE FOR LATEST NEWS OF VENTURA OIL FIELDS.

The lumber for the derrick is on the ground and machinery has been ordered. Well No. 1 will be started as soon as drilling is installed. It should not take over six months to complete first well. Well No. 2, by conditions of lease, must be in operation by February 14th, 1911.

Don't wash and scrub, bend and rub over a hot wash tub; sift a little GOLD DUST in the water, loosen the dirt, and save rubbing

Soap is not a bit of cleansing good until it is mixed with water and made into suds. And then it still needs the rub-rub-rub of human muscle.

GOLD DUST works in an entirely different way—instantly and totally dissolves in hot or cold, hard or soft water—and, without any aid from you, starts to cleanse.

GOLD DUST is more than soap—better and more economical. It is a powder of magic power—but rightly directed power, that leaves the wash white, sweet, wholesome.

Use your brains, not your muscle!

Throw away your soap, get GOLD DUST, and simply use it according to the directions on the package.

"Let the GOLD DUST Twins do your work."

DEFENCE WILL TRY TO PROVE VICTIM FELL OFF BARN ROOF.

Skull Will Be In Court—E. A. DuVernet of Toronto to Prosecute—Lynch-Staunton for the Defence.

Hamilton, Nov. 3.—The case of Tom Finton, the young man charged with the brutal murder of his aged father, will be tried here next week, and promises to attract widespread interest. Chief Twiss of the Wentworth county police, with a photographer and civil engineer, visited the scene of the crime the other day to take pictures and measurements which will figure prominently in the prosecution. Young Finton's lawyers George Lynch-Staunton, K.C., and S. D. Biggar, K.C., have had several conferences with their client at the jail, and are so confident that he will clear himself, they doubt even if a true bill will be brought in against him.

The Crown Prosecutor will be E. A. DuVernet, K.C., of Toronto. Justice Middleton will preside. There is a long list of civil and three other criminal actions besides the Finton case. The most serious of these is the charge against James Durant, a tramp, of committing a serious offence upon little Kate Langfred of Copetown. Fred Anderson, a former well-known foot runner, will be tried on a charge of highway robbery, preferred by Miss Edith Sauer.

The Finton case will probably not be reached before Tuesday afternoon. The trial promises to develop into a battle of medical testimony. The Crown will seek to show that Tom Finton murdered his father, fearing that the old man was going to cut him off without leaving him a cent. The defence will endeavor to prove an alibi for young Fenton and to convince the jury by expert medical evidence that the deceased met an accidental death. The Crown prepared at the time of the post-mortem to combat this theory. The doctors saved the top of the dead man's skull and pasted the fragments together. This gruesome object will be exhibited at the trial, and the police are satisfied that it will prove conclusively that old Fenton could not have received these injuries by falling the short distance from the barn floor to the stones outside the door.

Elijah Finton was a wealthy old Saltfleet farmer in the Niagara district, where he had lived all his life. He was murdered on April 26th of this year.

"Well, I am going to live the longest because I eat the most," he cheerily remarked as he went out of the house at 7 o'clock in the morning, after having had breakfast. Five hours later his aged brother, George Finton, and his housekeeper, Flora Kerr, found his dead body outside the barn, within fifty feet of the house. The head had been battered in with blows heavy enough to kill an ox, the doctors testified. The weapon was never found.

A WOMAN TRAPPER.

How She Made a Living in Pioneer Days of Kansas.

Near the little town of Haven, fifteen miles south of Hutchinson, Kan. a few days ago, says the Cincinnati Enquirer, there was a neighborhood gathering pioneers which recalled the life and activities of a Kansas woman interest, romance, and adventure played important parts.

Mrs. Warren Jewell, the wife of an early settler on the plains, was easily the centre of interest in the little group of Reno County pioneers who gathered to talk over the old times of 38 years ago.

In 1872, Mrs. Jewell, then Miss Sarah Seley, was known as the "lady trapper of the Ninnescah." The Ninnescah in those days was a treacherous stream plowing through the great plains country to the south of this city. Sarah Seley came to this country with her parents in the early '70's. Both her father and mother died soon after they had settled in Albion Township.

Miss Seley, left alone in the world, took a government homestead claim and earned the money to make the necessary improvements by hunting and trapping along the Ninnescah River. She had a complete trapper's outfit of steel traps and dead falls, and during the winter of 1872-73 she earned enough from the sale of skins and furs to pay for the improvements on her little homstead claim.

The money thus earned by trapping and hunting paid for breaking up 15 acres of land on her claim the first year, enabled her to have built a sod house, in which she lived for several years, and to set out an orchard, one of the first to be planted in that part of the country.

Every day Miss Seley would drive for miles viewing the traps and dead-falls she had set the day previous. She was always armed with a hunting knife and a large revolver. She killed and skinned the game she caught, including wolves, coyotes, mink and such other small game as inhabited the great prairie regions of the Southwest.

When not engaged in trapping Miss Seley earned considerable by teaming driving her own team and hauling freight a distance of 40 miles between the little settlement near her sod house and Wichita. Far and wide she was known as the "lady trapper," and she was respected by all the pioneers of that time for her pluck and heroic disposition.

Of course, romance had a part in this little crama of the plains. While trapping coyotes and wolves the prairie maiden also trapped the heart of a young settler on an adjoining claim. Warren Jewell had taken the homestead next to that of Miss Seley He had constructed a little dugout on his claim, "just big enough for two," but was doing his own housekeeping and living a bachelor's life.

"It was not a pleasant way to live," he told the little company of old settlers who a few days ago met at his home to talk over old days again. "I needed another "Jewell" in that little dugout to make my happiness complete, and it was the the same old story, whether enacted on the bleak prairies of Kansas in the early '70's or in palaces of the rich to-day.

"I fell in love with that plucky girl living alone in the adjoining quarter section. We were wed, joined our fortunes, consolidated our claims, and I am willing to confess that all the wealth I possess and all the happiness I enjoy are due to the help, the assistance and love of that little woman, 'the lady trapper of the Ninnescah.'"

260th BARGAIN ANNEX EVENT. WEDNESDAY. NOVEMBER 9th, 1910

FIFTH ANNIVERSARY

OF THE

Bargain Annex

Registered

Five Years Continuous Running

1905 --- 1910

First Opened November 3, 1905

1905 --- 1910

The "Bargain Annex" originated by this business Five Years ago and Copyrighted by Government Letters Patent two years later, stands unique in modern merchandizing---A department devoted entirely to Goods at Bargain Prices, Open One Day in the Week Only, run on modern scientific principles, not one solitary failure in the 259 Bargain Annex Events.

Every Wednesday a big day in the "Annex," rain or storm, wind or hail, absolutely nothing has interefered to give us even one poor day in the "Annex." That's a record to be proud of. The source of supply for "the Goods at the Prices" has often been a matter of enquiry, both with travellers, outside merchants and our Annex patrons. In explanation we would say we have perfected in these five years what we claim to be the best Bargain Securing System of Buying that is possible to get, which gives us at all times tremendous quantities of desirable goods at remarkably low prices. Our "Annex" customers realize this. That's why every Wednesday sees this department on the fourth floor crowded with eager shoppers.

Never less than 500 customers waited on in the Annex on Wednesday and often hundreds more.

And now for our Fifth Anniversary Bargain Annex Event. We are prepared with a doubly interesting bill of fare—note the rather sensational prices for this day,--Wednesday November 9, Shop early—Bring your list of needs. Note the Two O'clock Specials and plan to spend part of the day at least at

Cressman's Bargain Annex

The Morning Times

PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO

TUESDAY, NOV. 8th, 1910.

Girls Wanted.

A couple of good steady girls wanted at the Times Office, to learn bookbinding. Eight hours per day and permanent employment.

Stoves for Sale.

On account of putting in a steam heating plant in The Times' building, we have a number of stoves for sale at bargain prices. First come, first served.

Local Poultry Supply Limited.

A local chicken buyer, well known throughout the Counties of Peterborough, Durham and Northumberland, yesterday assures The Times that the high prices demanded here for poultry, are not due altogether to exhorbitant profits of local dealers. He had just got back from a trip through the northern part of the county, and assured The Times representative that chickens are scarce, turkeys almost a zero, and geese about as plentiful as canine teeth in a canary bird.

Licenses for Bearers of Guns.

Lindsay sport men are trying to get legislation whereby anyone who carries a gun must have a license. Several Peterborough citizens on Hallowe'en, as peas from air guns and tin tubes, rattled round their windows wished that bearers of said weapons, not only were licensed but in a hotter place than Death Valley, Cal.

Death of Former Local Citizen.

A former resident of this city, Mr. Frederick Mooney, who came here in 1864, has passed away at Minden, at the age of 79 years. The late Mr. Mooney, ten years ago moved to Minden, where he became registrar of deeds. He also was clerk of that township, and later on reeve of the township of Snowden. He accumulated a considerable fortune, as viewed in the back country. Mrs. Mooney died some eight years ago. Mr. Mooney is survived by four sons and three daughters, viz. Lincoln, of Sudbury; Charles, of Winnipeg; Fred, of Duluth; Arthur, of Biggar, Sask.; Mabel, of Toronto; Mildred, of Bracebridge, and May, of Lindsay.

Another Great Song Hit.

The theatrical season is now open in full force in New York, and musical comedy is this year the favorite with the public. Sam Bernard's show "The Man From Milwaukee," now at Shubert's Casino, is beyond doubt the best thing in town, and the New York Sunday World has secured the song hit of the show, "If you were there with me," which will be given free, words and music complete, with next Sunday's World.

A Chance to Visit Toronto.

Account of "Ontario Horticultural Exhibition, Toronto," The Grand Trunk Railway System will issue return tickets at single fare (plus 25 cents for admission to Exhibition), from all stations in Ontario within 83 miles of Toronto. Tickets good going November 15, 16, 17, 18, 19. Return limit November 21st.

Full information and tickets from Grand Trunk Agents.

Pastor Against Blacklisting.

Rev. W. C. Riddiford, speaking in Park street Baptist church, expressed the opinion that "blacklisting" a man for drinking may make him a "worse man than ever." Three or four men of evidently sane mind, who had heard this divine's remarks said yesterday (and none of the speakers were connected, in any degree with the hotel business) to a times representative, "The parson is right in what he says. Still he does not go far enough to give British fair play all round. He may not have looked at the other side. But, how, under the present law can or could any hotelman or bartender recognize "John Smith," "Wm. Jones" or "Thos. Robertson," suppositional names of black-listed men, whose names have been handed into him or them, when he or they have never possibly, or probably, ever seen said Smith, Jones or Robertson?

IS OIL FIT FOR STREETS?

Detroit Finds That It Spoils Macadam Roads and Make Change.

Now that Peterborough has adopted the use of crude oil for laying the dust on her principal streets, it is of interest to learn that the press of Detroit, Mich., claims that oil has ruined the macadam roads, on the boulevards and Belle Isle, and that it will cost from $225,000 to $300,000 to put these highways back into condition. The congregation on using calcum chloride on portions of the boulevards and finds it better than oil for laying the dust. It is also claimed that it likewise tends to preser a rather than to ruin the roadway

SKULL FRACTURED.

Arthur Head Falls From Dam in Stony Lake and Sustains Injury.

The many friends of Mr. Arthur Head, of Bethune street, employed at Geo. Fitzgerald's well known carriage works, corner of Brock and Water streets, will regret to learn that he is in almost a critical state. It seems that Mr. Head, who went out hunting with the Bottle Lake Hunt Club, a few days ago fell off a Stony Lake dam. His fall was due to a raise in the water from rain which made the dam top stop log slippery. Mr. Head was brought with all haste to the city, and was here attended by Dr. Amys, who fears that the base of the injured man's skull is fractured. The doctor, however, entertains hopes of saving his patient, and the many friends of Mr. Head will join in this hope.

Local Excursion to See Stars.

The A.Y.P.A. of St. Luke's church, will adjourn to the nearby village of Springville, where resides the, now, world-wide renowned astronomer, Rev. Dr. Marsh. The immediate cause of this visit is to enable the young people to get full and comprehensive instruction concerning the skies. This visit on astronomy bent will be on Thursday of this week. It is understood that the ladies of the congregation, have not only arranged for transportation to and from Springville but for refreshments required by those who have looked at Jupiter, glanced at Juno, and then, seeing Diana, the goddess of hunting, may look for grub.

Labor Takes Firm Stand.

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 8.—One of the unique features of the election in Pennsylvania today was the general strike of union workingmen throughout the State. In response to the call of the State Federation of Labor 300,000 organized workingmen suspended work for the day in order to take part in the election. The purpose of the twenty-four-hour strike was to give the union men an opportunity to vote and also to work for the candidates indorsed by the labor organizations. Never before in the history of Pennsylvania have the labor unions taken such an active part in a political campaign as they have done this year in an effort to defeat the legislative and congressional candidates who are believed to be opposed to the principles of organized labor.

CAUGHT AFTER A 6,000 MILE CHASE

FOR CRIME COMMITTED IN THE UNITED STATES.

Covered a Large Portion of Europe in an Effort to Get Away, But Was Finally Caught.

Salem, Mass., Nov. 8.—The truth of the old saying in regard to the long reach of the law is illustrated in the case of Wahan Nalbandian, which is to be tried at the special session of the Essex County superior criminal court called to convene here next Monday. Nalbandian, a native of Greece, was captured after a chase of 6,000 miles across the Atlantic Ocean and over a large part of Europe and returned to Massachusetts to stand trial for the alleged murder of Minas K. Monjian, a fellow-countryman.

Nalbandian and Monjian lived together in a lodging house in Lynn. A year ago last July Monjian's body was found in a trunk in his room with a bullet through the heart. He had been dead for several days when found. Nalbandian was missing. The police allege that Monjian had several hundred dollars, which also disappeared.

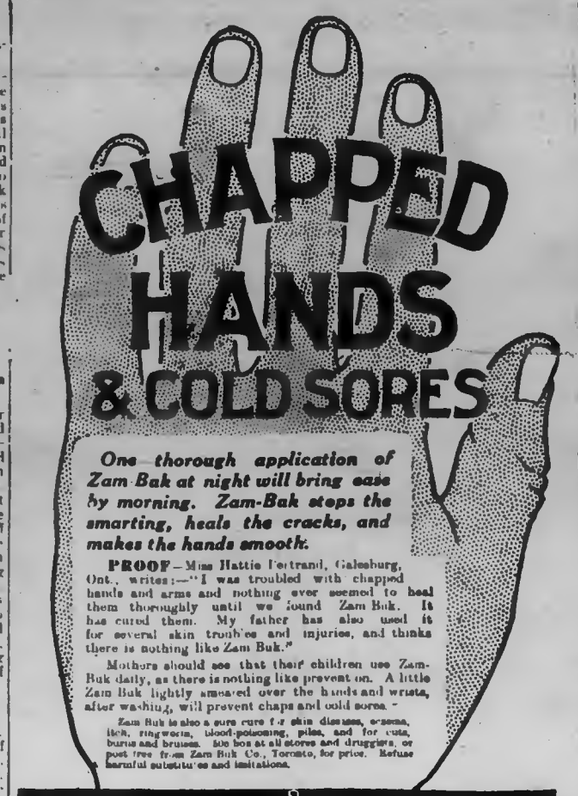
Nalbandian was indicted for the first degree murder and the search for him began. The Lynn detectives traced him to New York, thence to England, and then through Germany. Only by jumping from one city to another did the fugitive escape arrest in Germany. On several occasions foreign officials, acting through instructions from the American authorities, were ready to lay their hands on him only to find he had disappeared.

Nalbandian kept working south through Europe. The police lost trace of him, and then re-located him in Alexandria, Egypt. Through an acquaintance of Chief Burches of the Lynn police, who had been in Alexandria, the chief got in communication with a mission priest in that city and persuaded him to keep Lynn informed as to Nalbandian's movements.

The priest followed Nalbandian to Silistria in Bulgaria. Here Nalbandian evidently thought himself safe, for the police learned that he had started a small clothing store there. At the request of Consul Harvey at Bucharest the fugitive was arrested by the Bulgarian authorities and held until the arrival of two Lynn officers who returned with him to Massachusetts. The hunt for the fugitive occupied eight months and extended through many countries.

The evidence which the police have against Nalbandian is almost entirely circumstantial. At one time during their investigation they were inclined to the opinion that the shooting was accidental and that Nalbandian had fled through fear.

Nalbandian had a good character in Lynn. The theory was at first suggested that the murder was the work of some secret organization. This idea was abandoned, however, and the general supposition is that robbery furnished the motive for the crime. But even the latter theory is not supported by some of the facts in the case so far as Nalbandian is concerned. It has been learned that when he reached Egypt Nalbandian was penniless and borrowed a sum of money from the mission father who was following him.



One thorough application of Zam-Buk at night will bring ease by morning. Zam-Buk stops the smarting, heals the cracks, and makes the hands smooth.

PROOF—Miss Hattie Fortrand, Galesburg, Ont., writes:—"I was troubled with chapped hands and arms and nothing ever seemed to heal them thoroughly until we found Zam Buk. It has cured them. My father has also used it for several skin troubles and injuries, and thinks there is nothing like Zam Buk."

Mothers should see that their children use Zam-Buk daily, as there is nothing like preventon. A little Zam Buk lightly smeared over the hands and wrists, after washing, will prevent chaps and cold sores.

Zam Buk is also a sure cure for skin diseases, eczema, itch, ringworm, blood-poisoning, piles, and for cuts, burns and bruises. 50c box at all stores and druggists, or post free from Zam Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Refuse harmful substitutes and imitations.

Don't wash and scrub, bend and rub over a hot wash tub; sift a little GOLD DUST in the water, loosen the dirt, and save rubbing

Soap is not a bit of cleansing good until it is mixed with water and made into suds. And then it still needs the rub-rub-rub of human muscle.

GOLD DUST works in an entirely different way—instantly and totally dissolves in hot or cold, hard or soft water—and, without any aid from you, starts to cleanse.

GOLD DUST is more than soap—better and more economical. It is a powder of magic power—but rightly directed power, that leaves the wash white, sweet, wholesome.

Use your brains, not your muscle!

Throw away your soap, get GOLD DUST, and simply use it according to the directions on the package.

C. D. SHELDON HAS BEEN LOCATED

Montreal, Nov. 8. The Herald this morning received from its special correspondent in Pittsburg, Pa., information that Sheldon, alias Washburn, had been recognized in the vicinity of Pittsburg by a reliable private detective, who knew him well in Scranton, and that his arrest can be effected immediately on receipt of the warrant from this city.

The name of the detective is in the hands of the Herald, but it is at present withheld to aid the course of justice.

The Herald immediately made application to High Constable Cinq Mars for the issue of a certified copy of the warrant for the arrest of Sheldon on the charge of obtaining money under false pretences, and the document is now on its way to Pittsburg. When endorsed by any local judge of the State of Pennsylvania it will then be sufficient to hold the man until extradition papers can follow.

Washburn is living very quietly in a small town near Pittsburg, passing as a retired financial man of means, but not spending very much money.

THE SEARCH FOR BELLE ELMORE

Chicago, Nov. 8.—Search for Belle Elmore, for whose murder Dr. Harvey Hawley Crippen is sentenced to be hanged November 23, and who was reported to be alive and in hiding near Chicago, centered today near Hammond.

A mysterious note left in the Virginia Hotel Here, mysterious telephone calls and the appearance recently in Hammond of a pretty woman who closely resembled Belle Elmore, have spurred the police to extraordinary efforts to locate the singer.

Meantime, however, a report gained currency among sporting men that the story of Belle Elmore's being alive and in Chicago, was a frame-up for theatrical purposes. The names of Robert E. Cantwell and Jack Curly, the wrestling promoter, were mentioned in connection with the alleged scheme, which is said tobe nothing more than an impersonation by an English actress.

Both these men admitted being interested with F. T. Tobin, an attorney in Philadelphia, in the production of Belle Elmore.

Pius X. Adopts Severe Measures to Suppress Modernism in Germany

FORBID FORMATION OF ANY OTHER THAN RIGIDLY SECTARIAN SOCIETY.

Deplores Strides Made By the Movement Among the Catholic Laity of Austria-Hungary and Germany.

Berlin, Nov. 5.—Pius X has issued instructions to the papal Nuncio of Munich to enforce severe measures of suppression against modernism in German-speaking countries. Pope Pius deplores the strides made by the movement among the Catholic laity of Austria-Hungary and Germany, and explicitly condemns associations constituted on a broad religious basis as recently advocated by Cardinal Fischer of Cologne in opposition to Carcinal Kopp.

The pope, in supporting the latter forbics the formation of any other than rigidly sectarian societies. He enjoins that no dictorates in theology shall henceforth be recognized in case where the students are not conducted on the scholastic system.

All lectures of Catholic professors must be submitted to ecclesiastical censorship before delivery. Moreover every Catholic newspaper asking to be recognized must submit its intended contents to the censor, while all Catholic journalists are required to take the same oath of repudiation of modernistic ideas which the pontiff has recently prescribed for the seminary and university professor.

STORY OF FIGHT BY AN EYE-WITNESS

Portugal's Revolution Worked Like a Charm.

Montreal, Nov. 8.—A student at the English College, Lisbon, writes to a friend in Montreal about the recent Portuguese revolution, under the date of October 18, as follows:

To say that any trivial event could bring about so complete a revolution in less than forty-eight hours would be absurd. The Republicans have been on the alert for the last two or three years at least. But there is no doubt that the immediate cause of the whole affair was the assassinat ion of Miguel Bombardo, a Republican minister, and the greatest freethinker in the country. That day, October 3rd, which was destined to witness the beginning of the end, closed i na mysterious silence. By nightfall all the shops were closed, and angry groups gathered in the streets; something was impending. We, at the English College, went to bed as usual at nine o'clock, but our sleep was rudely disturbed by the report of three blank shots fired from some boat on the river. It was the signal. Ten minutes past one and a sharp rifle duel burst out somewhere in the city. Then the heavy guns began to speak, anc almost incessantly the whole night the cannonade continued. In the morning it became known that the 1st Artillery and part of the 16th Infantry had revolted in the name of the Republic. The fighting had been around the different barracks, and already whole regiments had surrendered to the revolutionaries, and joined the ranks. Moreover, the whole navy as far as it goes had also hoisted the Red and Green. In the night the Revolutionists had selected as the centre of operations the Rotunda.

To follow the fighting it is well to know its position. The Avenida is an avenue about a mile in length. At the top is a large round space known as the Rotunda, beyond which again is King Edward the Seventh's Park. At the bottom is a square called the Rocio. But at the place where the Avenida runs into the Rocio, the English hotel and the Swiss hotel stand out a little, so as to conceal the Rocio altogether from the point of view at the Rotunda. Accordingly the Municipal Guards were ordered to take up their position in the Rocio. This then became the Royalists headquarters. And it was between the Revolutionists in the Rotunda, and the Royalists in the Rocio that the decisive fighting took place, the whole length of the Avenida between them. On the morning of October 4, an artillery duel was kept up, and things were going hard with the Municipal Guards, when a battery arrived from Queluz and took up its position in the rear of the Revolutionists (in King Edward the Seventh Park.) The range was less than 500 yards. The Queluz battery being behind a wall was firing almost straight into the air. Shells were bursting over our college. Accordingly the Revolutionists began to turn their attention in that direction. The wall was soon blown away, and the Queluz battery exposed to a murderous fire. However, it held its own, until there was nothing left of it, but thirty-eight wounded men, strong enough to make their escape.

Meanwhile shameful things were happening at the Royal Palace of Necessidades. We stood watching from the college gardens, the Dom Carlos, 2nd class cruiser, bombarding the palace. Considerable damage was done. Then the mob attacked the building, but were utterly cut to pieces by the Royal Guards. Immediately the King with Queen Maria Pia, and Queen Amelia escaped and went to their palace at Mafra. After this nothing more was heard of His Majesty for some time, when it was found that he had gone to Gibraltar to seek the protection of the British flag. In the meanwhile the battle in the Avenida was continuing. Having silenced the Queluz battery, the Revolutionary artillery turned its attention once more to the Rocio. At first the English and Swiss Hotels were an obstruction to their firing, and as long as they had its protection, the Municipal Guards were safe. But at length the guns began firing clean through the English hotel. It was 8 a.m. on October 5th. The slaughter was tremendous. At last no longer able to hold their own, the Guards surrendered. It was the downfall of the monarchy. Every other regiment had surrendered, even St. George's fort, the citadel of Lisbon was flying the Republican colors. Immediately the republic was proclaimed, and a provisional government appointed. We could hardly believe our eyes.

But the end was not yet. A body of soldiers, the 6th Cassadores came into Lisbon, ignorant of the fact that everything was over. Whilst marching into the Avacnida someone fired at them; the whole place was crowdded with people rejoicing at the proclaimation! But the officer in command drew up his men and opened a murderous fire. For the moment all was panic. Shells were bursting everywhere, one right above our heads.

Children's Aid Agent Makes Strong Plea

A Times representative in conversation yesterday, with Mr. George Cochrane, the indefatigable agent of the local Children's Aid Society, asked that gentleman "What do you think about the result of Saturday, "Tag Day?" As has been explained, in a former issue of The Times, 150 young ladies are to cover the whole city, and do their best to place tags on every one they meet, this being done to raise money for the society. There seems to be a general idea that when a man is met and asked to have a tag applied to his coat, thata fixed price will be asked. Mr. Cochrane told The Times that this idea is erroneous. When the tag is once attached to a man's coat or vest, he is exempt from further importunities or request, and what he gives, in response to the honor of being so tagged, is purely optional with himself. He may give five cents, $5 or $50, just according as to what he thinks of the objects of the society he is asked to contribute to, and what he thinks of the work done absolntely gratis, by the ladies of the city.

Mr. Cochrane, who, as is well known, is an enthusiastic over this society, impressively assured The Times that there are now in the county four cases of destitution, where it simply means that four children will turn out good citizens, by being brought up under the care and auspices of the society, or, if left to their present condition possibly "go under." In the city are four or five children in similar condition that he has under his actual observation. Now, the result of "Tag Day" will determine whether these seven or eight little children will be saved and become good citizens or "go to the devil," as that gentleman expressed it. The society's funds are exhausted. The county grant does not begin to pay expenses of the children sent to the "Aid," from distant points in the county. In this connection it might be noted that the cases of destitution referred to in town and county are only a few of the most pressing cases. Mr. Cochrane having fully double that number on his note book that must be saved or lost.

One point referred to is well worth mention. Mr. and Mrs. W. Henry are the caretakers of the shelter. They get no salary or pay of any kind. They simply get $2 a week to board each child. Any family man knows the appetite of a growing boy or girl. Still, for this little sum of $2 weekly, these children are fed, anc fed so that their limbs are lusty, their cheeks red as Devonshire apples, and their eyes bright as stars in the Southern Cross. Not only that anyone visiting the Shelter cannot but notice how the little ones gather round and show their love and respect for Mrs. Henry and her husband. Out of this $2 weekly for good board, the caretakers sustain themselves. There are nine children now in the Shelter, out at the old Hilliard House, with room for ten or eleven more. The cash returns for tags on Saturday will decide how many rooms will remain vacant, and how many little ones, now living in poverty, dirt and destitution, not to mention, in some cases, in daily sight of vice, will be changed at once, to happy, rosy cheeked little ones, like your own, for whom a life of happiness is assured, and so many good citizens made for Canada, will be the result of the good work done by the 150 kind hearted ladies, doing this work for sweet charity for nothing but charity's sake, and the amount contributed by those "tagged."

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

The Democrats Have Made Big Gains

The Democrats have won. The great Rough Rider, Col. Roosevelt, who, on his return from his spectacular big game hunt in Central Africa, undertook to teach England what her policy should be in Egypt, and, who incidentally gave advice to the crowned heads of several of the countries of Europe as to to the management of their national affairs, this great Col. Roosevelt, with no disrespect to him personally, has lost in the elections of yesterday. The gallant colonel, and, in justice, it should be said no better politician or more broad minded ruler of men has never taken, as yet, the part he played, both during his incumbency of the great office of president of the United States, this officer, to continue, who led the charge up San Juan Hill against the Spaniards, is dead politically. Col. Roosevelt made a last strenuous appeal to the American people, just before the opening of the polls, and his appeal seems to have fallen flat. The Democrats have won. As far as could be ascertained, last night the Democrats swept New York State as clean as would a three months' bride clean up her best rug.

The New York Mail, a Republican paper, and the New York American, Hearst's organ Democratic, or (?) (or Hearst) concede a Democratic victory. New York Democratic headquarters claim a Democratic majority in the next assembly of Congress.

Pennsylvania elected Tanner, Republican, as governor.

Illinois stuck by old Joe Cannon, who was elected for Congress by an increased plurality.

The old-time Republican State of Massachusetts, elects Foss, Democrat, as governor.

The New York Times maintains that Dix has carried New York State by an overwhelming majority.

The little city of Niagara Falls, N.Y., gave 54 majority for Stimson.

In Buffalo, the city in which the late ex-President Cleveland made his rise, gave Dix a plurality of 4,340.

One report received by The Times claimed that New York City gave Dix 113,000 majority.

Kansas went Republican, electing Stubbs, Republican, as governor.

Rhode Island stuck to her old colors, and elected Pothier, Republican as governor.

Whilst the Democrats have made many gains, a late despatch received by The Times indicates that the complexion of the next house is still in doubt.

Ordered the Scots Guards to go to Egypt

FEAR HALDANE HAS SOUNDED THE DOOM OF THE BRITISH GUARDS.

Society Aghast at His Ordering Them to Egypt, and the Guards Themselves are Furious. — A Shame to Ask Ornamental Soldiers to Work.

London, Nov. 5.—Richard Burdon Haldane, the secretary of state for war, is undoubtedly the best abused man in England at present. He has been thoroughly unpopular with the old-fashioned military element ever since he took office with the present Liberal government because he set to work to uproot all the old military abuses and abolish most of the military sinecures, but on the whole society looked on him with a kindly eye, because he was a favorite with the late King, anc after all who cared about the common or gardeb soldiers towards whose improvement his efforts were directed.

Now he has committed the unforgivable sin and society is down on him so hard that it will be interesting to see what will happen, for even in these democratic days in England drawing room influence has a lot to do with a man's success in politics. Haldane has actually had the temerity to order the Guards to get to work and if there is one thing that English society and the Guards themselves think that they are not intended for it is work. Haldane has ordered the Scots Guards to go to Egypt and relieve the battalion of the Coldstream Guards which has been there for a couple of years.

To outsiders it would seem that this is not a very dreadful thing, particularly as one battalion of the Guards relieves another, but the Coldstreamers were sent to Egypt to save them from disbandment. The Liberal party had a severe fit of economy just then and it was proposed to cut down the army. A number of useless corps were disbanded and the Coldstreamers were slated to go, but social influence was too strong for Haldane. Instead of disbanding them he sent them to Egypt to get them out of the way and silence public criticism, but it was understood clearly by the guardsmen at least, that when the fit of economy had blown over they would be allowed to come home agin. They are coming home of course, but it never was contemplated that another regiment gif guards would take their place. Such ordinary drudgery as garrison duty in Egypt was surely work only fit for common soldiers of the line and not for the magnificent Guards.

Everyone who has been in London and who has seen the Guards resplendent in their bright metal breastplates and tin helmets with waving plumes guarding Buckingham Palace or escorting the king when he goes abroad will understand their feeling. No one with an ounce of proper feeling could think of asking such ornamental soldiers to work. The officers when not on duty adorn the London drawing rooms, and the nursemaid or cook who can secure a private of the Guards to walk out with her has attained the summit of her ambition.

And the Guards really have a grievance of sorts. It has always been an understood condition of service for both officers and men that they shall not be sent abroad except in cases of emergency, and it must be said for them that when the emergencies have arisen the Gaurds have fought as well as any other British soldiers. They are paid a good deal more than ordinary soldiers, and physically they are the flower of the British army. Their officers are all sprigs of nobility and the mess room of a Guard's regiment is a lot harder to enter than the most exclusive club in London.

MORE HUNTERS SUFFER INJURY

Duck-Shooter Badly Hurt — Arden Man Careless, and Had to Paddle a Mile With Wounded Man.

Orillia, Nov. 7.—Dr. A. R. Harvie, one of Orillia's leading physicians, was shot through the left arm on Saturday morning by a guide, who mistook him for a deer. The accident occurred in the township of Longford, about fifty miles from here. The doctor was one of the Red Tam Hunt Club, composed of some of Orillia's leading citizens. He had the benefit of the immediate attention of Dr. N. A. Powell of Toronto, who is a member of the above club. Dr. Harvie was brought out to civilization by his companions, anc reached home on Sunday night after a long and trying trip. The shot, after grazing the arm from near the shoulder, passed through the forearm shattering the bone.

HAD TO AMPUTATE ARM.

William Wormswart, of Arden, Ont. was brought to Nicholas Hospital yesterday to be treated for a serious injury he received while duck shooting near Arden. He was out alone in a boat when his gun was accidentally discharged, the charge entering his right arm at the shoulder. He had to paddle a mile home. His arm was amputated at the hospital. Owing to the shock and exposure t s uncertain if he will recover.

Foss Elected Governor

(Special to The Times.)

Boston, Nov. 8.—The returns in the election today which began to dribble in at 2.30 p.m., showed decided Democratic gains, which if maintained throughout Massachusetts, indicate the election of Eugene N. Foss, the party candidate for Governor.

LATER.

Eugene Foss was elected by a large majority.

IS NOT GUILTY OF BLASPHEMY

MAYOR NATHAN OF ROME DEFENDS HIS ATTACK ON LEMPORAL POWER OF VATICAN.

Is a Political Organization—Opposed Power Which Was Against Liberty of Conscious and Civil Progress.

Montreal, Nov. 8.—Mayor Nathan, of Rome, who was recently condemned by resolution of the Montreal City Council at a mass meeting of Roman Catholics for alleged anti-Christian utterances, has sent a strong reply, in which he entirely repudiates any intention of insulting religion. Mayor Nathan's reply, which will be presented at the next meeting of the council is as follows:

"Gentlemen, His excellency the Archbisnop of Montreal, in accordance with other revered and eminent men who constitute the political organism of the Roman Catholic Church, has called a meeting of the faithful to scourge me for blasphemy for insulting God, the saviour, and his holiness the pope. At a meeting of the common council, many of you gentlemen, before approving a similar vote of censure, in the uprightness of your judgments desired to have before you the precise text of the averred blasphemies. I have much pleasure in enclosing you a copy both of my speech and a letter reply to the papal bull. I trust you will perceivethe justice of your reserve, the injusrice of a supposition whereby I am accused of insulting religion and its divine representative.

"A man, who like myself, has a profound belief in religious faith, whatever shape it assumes, cannot be guilty of what is truly blasphemy As the whole gist of my words truly point out, my criticisms do not affect faith. They treat of a political organization waging war in faith's name gainst my country, striving to undo liberty of conscience, power of research, modern science, and civil progress. Men holding public offices have the undeniable right to criticize the hostile attitude, to show as in a picture how different the past Papal sway of Rome was to its present government.

"So much and no more to set forth in my words, whereby if the charity of his reverence the archbishop which beginneth at home has been excessive, surely that excess has been accounted for by the lack of temperance and justice of his un-Christian strictures.

(Sgd.) "ERNESTO NATHAN.
"Mayor of Rome."

HAD 23 CHILDREN.

Woman Who Was Many Times a Mother Suicides.

Ottawa, Nov. 9.—Saturday at her home at Embrun, near here, Mrs. T. Lachapell, aged fifty, mother of 23 children, of whom ten are living, was found dead in the Caster River, near her home. Poor health probably led to mental despondency, which led to her death by drowning. No inquest will be held.

The funeral will be held on Monday. She leaves besides ten sons and daughters, a husband, who has conducted the Lachapell hotel at Embrun for the last 28 years.

Applicants Must Have Passed a University Junior Matriculation Exam., or Possess Qualifications Equal Thereto.

The Public Library Board met last night, with Chairman E. H. D. Hall presiding. There were present Messrs. Ritchie, Mowat, T. F. Matthews (representing the Teachers' Association), Corkery, Kenner, Walker and Dr. McNulty.

Mr. S. R. Armstrong was appointed Secretary.

The chairman and secretary are to sign all orders on the city treasurer and checks on the banks.

The current revenues available to the board can only be used for maintenance and for purchasing books.

The secretary was authorized to procure a minute book, and the necessaty account book or books as the case may be.

LIBRARIAN AND SALARY.

The salary for a librarian was fixed at $800 for the first years with an increase of $50 a year up to $1,000. This was decided on motion of Dr. McNulty, seconced by Mr. Mowat.

The salary of an assistant was fixed at $350, with an increase of $50 a year up to $500. This was the motion of Mr. Matthews, seconded by Mr. Ritchie.

While quite a few applications for the position of librarian and assistant are on fyle, the board decided to advertise for a librarian and one assistant in the local papers.

On motion of Mr. Duncan Walker, applicants must have at least passed a university junior matriculation examination, or possess qualifications equal thereto. Applicants who have had experience in public library work will, of course, be eligible, together with any who have taken a course in a library school.

The magazines, periodicals, etc., for next year have been ordered at a cost of $135.

MEDITATION AND MORALITY.

Meditation, that great and universal instructor of the human race, which presides over all the creations of genius—the parent of philosophy—the sure guide of the arts in all their applications, because it enlightens them with general principles—plays a still more important and more extensive part in the great process of moral development.

It is here that its value is most conspicuous, for it puts man in possession of all his powers, and elevates him to the real dignity of his nature.

In science and in art, thinking elaborates the elementary facts furnished by observation and experiment; in the work of moral development, its object is to explore the inmost recesses of the mind, to collect together those elementary phenomena which reveal to us the great law of duty, and to familiarize us with a knowledge of ourselves.

In science and in art, thinking operates on ideas furnished by the senses and the intellect; in the work of moral education, it excites those emotions or feelings which are associated with, or which naturally flow out of our conceptions of good and which constitute the immediate springs of action.

Thinking, indeed, may be said to be the living principle of wisdom; and if the practice of it be so difficult in the ordinary course of study and familiar only to small number of minds it becomes still more so, and is consequently less practised in reference to moral objects.

In the acquirement of scientific truth, thought is often aided by images of sense, by descriptions and definitions. In moral spoulations these exterior aids do not exist, the mind is thrown upon its own resources, is fed only by its own ailment and maintains itself by its own native strength.

ROYAL MODESTY.

Stoke Fleming, a little village near Dartmouth, England, has the honor of providing the Prince Wales with an eighteen-cent tea every Sunday afternoon. There is a famous lunch shop in this village, where tea, with clotted cream, raspberry jam and rich cakes are served, and the young cadets from Dartmouth College having discovered it now resort to it every week.

Most of them gorge on jam and cakes, but the Prince of Wales takes the wiser course and has a sober tea of bread and butter and cream and one slice of cake. Then while his comrades are busy chalking up their accounts to be paid at some time in the future, the young prince settles his bill and goes home.

So quiet and modest is the future King of England that one of the maids at the shop had served him several Sundays before she discovered that he was the Prince of Wales. When she found it out, she lapsed from a sensible, rosy-cheeked Devonshire lass into a nervous, blundering serving maid who was afraid to carry the prince's tea tray to him lest she drop it in her confusion. She has overcome her shyness now, for she finds this unassuming lad far less trouble to serve than his riotous school-fellows.

NEW YORK'S ELECTION.

There is no mistaking the seriousness with which the leaders of the Republican party in the United States regard the fight for the control of the state of New York, which will be settled in less than a week. Senator Elihu Root, on whom has descended the mantle of all the Republican Elijahs of recent years, is mincing no words in his appeals to the stalwarts of the party to stick to their state leaders lest an unmentionable disaster overtake them. Presumably the disaster in mind is the ousting of the party from control of the national government two years hence. According to Mr. Root, Theodore Roosevelt is the Moses of today, emended, improved and brought up to date. Failing to lead his people out of the house of bondage, he is prepared to break up the house. Students of Mr. Roosevelt's career will have little difficulty in accepting this estimate of him as fairly accurate. The inference is that if Mr. Roosevelt's candidate is elected next Tuesday, the foundation of the abode of corruption will begin to crack in anticipation, the price of food-stuffs will go down, wages will rise and the grand old Republican party will be given four years more in which to revise the tariff downwards, tame the predatory corporations, and generally make it uncomfortable for malefactors of great wealth and other undesirable citizens.

It is almost unique in New York politics that both parties have nominated men for the governorship who appear to be absolutely worthy of that honor. Neither Mr. Stimson, the Republican candidate, nor Mr. Dix, the Democratic, have a flaw in their record against which a strong attack can be directed. Consequently the issue is being largely fought out on national issues, and the chief national issue seems to be Roosevelt. It is interesting, although it may not possess any special significance, to note that the betting by which Wall street connects itself with any election of importance is at the odds of two to one on the Democratic party's chances.

AVIATORS STUDY FALLING

Systems of Various Species Adopted to Save Life and Limb.

The science of falling as a study accessory to the art of flying is now being developed with a zeal unparalleled in the history of man. Up to the last decade falling was an altogether unlooked for and unpremeditated accident, but since men have found the means to go up in the air in ships, falling has become almost accidental to flight, and since even aviators have normal aversions to dropping out of the sky without preparation or protection, the enterprising are now busy devising means by which a man may fall miles with impunity, land on water, plowed fields, or stone piles, and continue to perform his part of the social contract.

By systems of pads, inflations, and various species of armor plating, it is proposed that the bird man will be as safe in his tumbles from the clouds as an able bodied seaman in a duck pond. In fact, it is no longer a mere proposition, for the padding has been invented, the tests made, and the aviators satisfied, and surely they are the ones concerned.

Rudyard Kipling has established his reputation for versatility by providing a man with a padded suit in which he was able to throw himself against a stone wall in all manner of reckless attitudes, defy onslaughts with a sledgehammer, and assert that he had no fear of burling himself from the nearest cliff, all for the benefit of an admiring throng of flyers at Bologne-sur-Mer. It is not recorded that anyone "stumped" him to go through with the cliff act.

These falling suits are simply helmets and complete suits of wadding stuffed with wool, bumpproof as a mattress, and having the resiliency of a coating of fine springs. It is said that if an aviator were to drop a hundred feet in the Kipling device, it would be like rolling into a feather bed.

There is also a similar suit advertised by a French firm, with a heavy felt outer cover and a stuffing of cotton wool, which is likewise guaranteed to preserve the victim of an aerial accident from broken bones and internal injuries. The whole outfit is so light that it could not possibly hamper the man's flight, moreever, weighing in all four pounds or less.

At the same recent exposition at Bologne there were displayed suits designed for the protection of aviator falling into the ocean. One Frenchman with a fibre suit insisted upon being hurled into the sea, where he rode over the waves in this strange attire in smiling triumph. An English competitor produced a waterproof jacket, with all the appearance of an ordinary garment, which is one big hive of tiny air compartments and which will hold air for days and sustain a man in the sea with all his clothes on as long as there is life in him.

Now that foreign war offices are so busily engaged in adapting the aeroplane to military purposes, a third type of suit will doubtless be forthcoming eventually, which will combine the qualities of the padded suit and the inflated suit with those of a bulletproof garment, so that the air man will then be independent of the malice of his fellows as these Bologne flyers would have us believe he is now independent of the elements.

THE PREMIER OF FRANCE.

His Success Has Been Unparalleled In History of Country.

London, Nov. 5.—The success of the present premier of France of recent years has been without parallel in the history of that country.

M. Aristide Briand, the present premier of France, was practically unknown, says the London Daily Mail, which has an interesting estimate of his career and character, until he was elected deputy for Saint Etienne in 1902. Since then his rise to success and power has been phenomenal. In less than seven years he has been successively minister of public instruction, minister of fine arts, minister of justice and premier. M. Briand was born at Nantes in 1862. He studied at the college there and later went to Paris, where he became a barrister. Until very recently he had been an ardent Socialist. For years he lived amongst the workingmen, studied their needs and asserted their rights, and he introduced himself to the Chamber of Deputies when he succeeded M. Clemenceau as the first "Socialist Minister of modern times." Since then, however, his views have slowly but surely tended towards an enterprising, direct and broad-minded conservatism.

The personal appearance of the man is anything but a true indication of his character. He is of average height, slim in build, with weak knees and drooping shoulders. His face is sallow in complexion, with sunken eyes and a drooping black moustache. His whole appearance is insignificant and suggestive of weakness and despondency, whereas he is in reality untiring and optimistic. As a statesman he has often been compared to M. Clemenceau. Both are able and strong men, but their eloquence is wholly different. M. Clemenceau is a more fascinating man to listen to than M. Briand, but M. Briand's style is more terse and logical, and he is never tiring even in the French Parliament, where able orators are numerous.

M. Clemenceau is onclined to be sarcastic and whimsical; his successor is more careful, more polished and more tactful in his methods. M. Clemenceau has a wider knowledge of foreign affairs and a more intimate acquaintance with internal politics than M. Briand has, but the present premier is a statesman of no mean order, as he has already demonstrated in more than one difficult situation, and he has a knowledge of the working classes and of Socialistic organizations and aims equal to that of any man in France. M. Briand, in spite of his rapid rise to fame and power, still remains to hos task and seriously concerned quiet and unassuming. He is devoted to hos task and seriously concerned for the welfare of the whole nation, and so far parliament and public opinion have supported him in no half-hearted manner.

Auto Show Opens in London.

London, Nov. 4.—Eclipsing all of its predecessors in the number and variety of exhibits and also in the amount of interest it has elicited from the general public, London's great annual automobile show, under the auspices of the Society of Motor Manufacturers and Traders, opens at Olympia today and will continue for one week.

The majority of the chasses and cars displayed are British, though foreign productions are well represented. As usual, the gasoline car predominates, its rival being represented by three makes of steam cars.

First Offering

Atlanta Oil Company

Capital Stock $600.000---Par Value $1.00

No Preferred Stock. Leases Runs 40 Years One-Sixth Royalty. No Bonds or Free Stock. All Stock in Treasury for Benefit of Holders. No Bonded Indebtedness Incorporated Under Laws of State of California.

166 acres of absolutely proven oil land on Sulphur Mountain, adjoining and between the Liberty and Puritan Oil Companies' property. Ten miles from Santa Paula, Ventura Co., Calif.

FACTS—The property is absolutely proven territory, lying as it does with the UNION OIL CO. producing on the south, the LIBERTY OIL CO. producing on the west, the HARD OIL CO. producing on the north, which only recently erected its 20th rig, and Puritan Oil Co. to commence drilling on the east. Also it is located in a district of BIG PRODUCING COMPANIES, such as Oil Petroleum, Pyramid Oil Co., Canadian Comet, Capital Crude, Hard Oil and Asphalt Co., and others. THERE'S NO QUESTION ABOUT THE COMPANY GETTING OIL. It is possible that Liberty Oil Company's new well will be a gusher, which would make the ATLANTA OIL COMPANY stock worth par. Mr. Cornell, our Superintendent, knows every foot of the ground, and having had big luck of Liberty property, which adjoins our land, and an experienced OIL MAN and we consider ourselves fortunate in obtaining his services. VENTURA CO. OIL represents the cream of the industry. It is the home of HIGH GRAVITY OIL. VENTURA COUNTY OIL means $1.50 a barrel at well. Costs from 3c to 6c to produce it. THE GREAT UNION OIL CO.—in its start in VENTURA CO. and has paid over twenty-two millions in dividends. These GREAT ASSETS had a small beginning in the WILD CELL GUSHER, within a ... OF ATLANTA OIL CO. property. The demand for refining oil FAR EXCEEDS THE OIL SUPPLY. The oil reserves in California are crying for the product. The eastern high gravity fields are diminishing. The OHIO FIELDS, FOR INSTANCE, have fallen off one-third. The demand is caused by the increased market for gasoline. Throughout the world the number of automobiles and internal combustion engines are forcing up the price of high gravity crude petroleum. Eastern operators are now looking to VENTURA COUNTY, which are said to be the most extensive known. THIS IS THE FIRST ANNOUNCEMENT of ground floor offering of ATLANTA OIL CO., and may be oversubscribed at any time. One day's delay may mean you are too late. ACT NOW. WRITE FOR LATEST NEWS OF VENTURA OIL FIELDS.

The number for the derrick is on the ground and machinery has been ordered. Well No. 1 will be started as soon as drilling is installed. It should not take over six months to complete first well. Well No. 2, by conditions of lease, must be in operation by February 14th, 1911.

ADVANCES TO 20c AUGUST 20th.

CURIOUS CHINESE CHECKS

The ingenuity of the Mongolian is well displayed in the system of accounts and checks in the laundry business, according to the Chicago Record-Herald. If their written language were as scientific and accurate as our own it would be an excellent unknown to the civilized world. There are no characters in Chinese or letters of any such simple variations as Roman and Arabic numerals. It is, therefore, impossible to translate or transliterate into Chinese such common marks as "A1" or "IV.6." In place of this the Chinaman uses the ideographs for the commoner facts of life, such as "house," "moon," "dog," "lion," "bear," "table," "street."

In addition to these he employes the numeral characters from 1 to 100.

A customer comes to a laundry unable to speak Chinese and delivers his wash to a man unable to speak English. He receives in return a check containing two characters. One represents the day of the week or month and the second one of the facts mentioned such as "moon," or "lion." The slip is torn through the middle, upon the principle of the legal indenture. It is impossible to imitate the torn piece so that it will fit the half retained by the laundry. Then upon the day book of the laundry, the proprietor enters under the day of the week or the month the ideograph moon, or lion assigned to the customer and beneath this the articles left to be laundered. He then takes down from the hook a lot of muslin tags, on which are written in indelible ink "moon" or "lion," 1, 2, 3, 4, and so on.

One of these tags are affixed to each article, excepting the collars and cuffs. To these one tag is affixed, and which is fastened by a strong thread or cord tied through the buttonhole in each article. In addition to this they often put a private mark upon the article to be cleaned, although this is not very common. When the goods are washed and ironed they are done up in a package and the day and special character are written on the outside. In addition to this the half ticket is fastened to it with a pin. When the customer enters he gives his ticket up, and if he is known by sight the package is handed over to him. If he is not known, or is suspected of being a confidence operator, his ticket is fitted to the laundry half ticket before the package is handed over.

The day book is often amusing reading. It is difficult to write western names in Chinese characters, and in most cases impossible. The launderer, therefore, writes down some salient feature of his customer. In doing this he manifests quick perception and considerable humor. "Two Gold Tooth" appears on the same page with "Redhead Scar Cheek." "Red Nose Man" follows "Old Woman with White Hair," "Man Who Looks Like a Horse," "Man With Much Long Hair," "Very Tall Thin" and "Man Very Fat Jolly." Often the customer is described by his calling—grocer, butcher, policeman, carriage man or expressman. Doctor and dentist are frequent titles. Upon this system the launderer transacts his business with great smoothness and dispatch. It may be asked if an American would do as well in the flowery kingdom.

SOLVING THE AVITATION PROBLEM.

New York Professor Would Float Huge Steel Ships by Insulating Gravitation.

Prof. Rheinhart Wetzel, of New York City College—the man who invented a machine which weighs the earth and a sunbeam with equal facility—hopes that his machine will now solve the problem of aviation, or rather levitation, for Wetzel's airship, if realized, will not "aviate"—it will float like some soap.

Prof. Wetzel proposed to find a material that will serve as an insulator in respect to the force of gravity, just as silk, glass and rubber are insulators against an electric current. Once found the application of such insulator would be easy. You would only need to put on a suit of it to enable you to jump—over the moon, perhaps—but at least without any fear of coming down right away. And an airship, however heavy, would weigh practically nothing at all if incased in this same insulating substance.

Several years ago, Roy Norton, in a Jules Verne-like novel called "The Vanishing Fleets," solved the problem of aviation to the satisfaction of his readers and the happy winding up of his story, by the use of the insulation idea. Now comes a real scientist, and tells us Norton's seemingly fantastic story was not fantastic at all, but quite within the pale of possibility. Thus the time may come when Norton's floating airships are as commonplace as Jules Verne's submarines are now.

Prof. Wetzel proposes to use his wonderful delicate weighing machine to determine whether or not there is available some substance through which the force of gravitation will not act.

The machine registers the "pull" anybody exerts upon another body. Roughly speaking, the plan is simple to try out an unlimited number of substances by putting a layer of each between two bodies, such as two balls of iron, and to determine by the Wetzel weighing machine, whether or not the interposition of the layer serves to decrease the attraction the balls have for each other.

If ever a layer is found that kills the attraction between the two bodies the substance of which that layer is made will be the insulator sought. Then all that will needs be done to solve all the problems of transportation will be to get hold of enough of that substance to insulate the airship of the world.

Then airships won't have to be built with references to lightness of construction at all. They can be built as heavy and as big as we want 'em.

"We don't know anything about gravitation," said Prof. Wetzel, in discussing the possibilities of insulation. "We know what it does, but we do not know what it is. Does gravitation travel as do rays of light?—I think, sometime we shall prove that it does.

"Is it like electricity? Maybe it is electricity. It may be that all the objects in this world that we know are only forms of electricity."

"Sometimes, however, it seems to me that gravitation is the opposite of electricity. If we place two electrified objects near together, currents of electricity pass out from them, and tend to force the two objects apart. This repellent force of electricity is one of its chief characteristics."

"But, if we place two unelectrified objects near each other, their tendency is to rush together, which is the opposite of the electrical tendency.

"Now notice: If you place a piece of glass between the two electrified objects, the glass prevents the passage of the electrical currents because glass is a non-conductor of electricity.

"If gravitation is the opposite of electricity, it is not impossible that somewhere in the realm of nature, there is a material that, acting like glass or electricity, will prevent the passage of the currents of gravitation. In other words, somewhere there may be a material that will insulate objects so that neither the earth nor other objects can attract them.

"That would mean mastery of the air.

"It is not impossible that in rare soils such a gravitation-insulating material may exist even now. We do not yet know what radium itself is not this very material.

"There are worlds of knowledge yet to be gained about gravitation."

GREATEST HAIR-CUT IN THE WORLD FORESHADOWED BY OFFICIAL EDICT.

Officials to Lead the Way—Representatives of China at Foreign Courts Must Do Without Appendage.

Pekin, Nov. 4.—There was consternation in official circles today when an imperical edict was announced commanding all representatives of China in foreign countries to sever their ques. This means that every consul, or consular agent must obey the order, which states that it is effective "immediately."

The edict is believed only to be the forerunner of another commanding all Chinese to follow suit, entailing such a wholesale hair-cut as the world has never before witnessed.

The origin of the que is not definitely known, qut it is supposed that it was forced on the Southerners, or Chinese, by the Northerners, or Manchus, as a mark of conquest. The Chinese had hitherto worn their hair twisted at the top of their head so the Manchus called them "hair twisters," while the Chinese called their conquerors "que wearers." Finally the wearing of the queue swept all over the empire, and became one of the characteristics of the nation. Every man in the country, except a few who have been educated abroad—from emperor to beggar—wears a queue. The passing of the queue will throw the street barber out of work as heads will not require such constant attention.

Don't wash and scrub, bend and rub over a hot wash tub; sift a little GOLD DUST in the water, loosen the dirt, and save rubbing

Soap is not a bit of cleansing good until it is mixed with water and made into suds. And then it still needs the rub-rub-rub of human muscle.

GOLD DUST works in an entirely different way—instantly and totally dissolves in hot or cold, hard or soft water—and, without any aid from you, starts to cleanse.

GOLD DUST is more than soap—better and more economical. It is a powder of magic power—but rightly directed power, that leaves the wash white, sweet, wholesome.

Use your brains, not your muscle!

Throw away your soap, get GOLD DUST, and simply use it according to the directions on the package.

"Let the GOLD DUST Twins do your work."

Alleged Assailant Out on Bail.

Yesterday morning his Worship, County Magistrate Geo. Edmison held court. Before him appeared Richard Anglessy, who was arrested at the home of his brother, near Young's Point, on a warrant charging him with assaulting Joseph Young of Young's Point. High County Constable Cochrane, and County Constable Archie Moore captured Anglessy, and brought him to the city. Magistrate Edmison allowed the prisoner out on bail of $500, to appear for trial on Monday morning at 11 o'clock. It is claimed that Anglessy hit Mr. Young over the head with a pitchfork on Friday last. Dr. Graham of Lakefield, was called to attend Young.

Good Meet of Philomatheon Society.

The inaugural meeting of the Collegiate Institute Philomatheon Society, largely attended, was held in the assembly hall. The minutes were read by the secretary, Miss Edwards. An address by the president, Mr. J. Harstone followed. A piano solo was very ably given by Miss Hill. The vice-president, Mr. Wallace Armstrong, gave a short address, regarding what the society hoped to do in the future. Miss Margaret Edwards the secretary, thanked the members for her appointment. A piano solo was well rendered by Miss Bernice Giroux. Among the others contributing towards the enjoyment of those present was Miss Bonice Billington, who gave a vocal solo, and Miss Maggie Halpin, whose admirable reading was enjoyed by all present. Mr. Petitt congratulated those contributing towards the program, on their excellent program

Prominent Cavan Resident Dead.

One of the pioneers of Cavan township, Mr. Jas. McLean, died Sunday night at Mount Pleasant, at the venerable age of 85 years. The late Mr. McLean moved from Peterborough in 1838. In 1847 he began business in Mount Pleasant. The deceased was an active member of, and ardent worker for the Presbyterian Church. He received a certificate from the Upper Canada Bible Society in recognition of his 63 years' consecutive work for that association. He also took an active interest in health affairs of his township. Mr. McLean's wife survives him. There are also left to mourn his loss seven children, as follows, Mrs. J. F. Gill, Pembina; W. J. McLean, Toronto; Mrs. W. G. Marsh, Richmond Hill; T. W. McLean, Omemee; H. J. McLean, and Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Greig, Mount Pleasant, and A. P. McLean, Peterborough.

Death of Capt. Crandall.

Captain Freemont Crandell, who is well known on Lindsay waters, died of appoplexy in Alberta on Monday. A despatch says that he was in good health after dinner, and walked two miles to the station. He later complained of some stomach derangement, but thought it nothing serious. However, he became very ill, and unconscious, dying on the train, despite all the skill of two doctors who were on the train with him. He was on his way to Calgary to meet his brother Frank. The body has been sent to Lindsay in charge of Mr. Frank Crandell.

Can You Afford A Weak Link In the Life Chain?

If you are forced to admit that the HEALTH LINK is growing weaker, suppose you look carefully after the cause.

Your own well-being and comfort may suggest determined effort to correct.

Perhaps you will permit a suggestion based upon some wide experience.

There is one particular thing which directly attacks the health of one in every three of the users.

Its work is plain enough. Nerves, heart, stomach and other organs becoming more and more unbalanced, but the real cause is frequently unsuspected.

To demonstrate the real fact as applied to yourself, and for your own satisfaction, it is suggested that coffee be absolutely discontinued for 10 days and observe the results.

If you discover a stronger, better acting heart, steadier nerves and sounder sleep, it will be reasonably clear that your body is offering thanks for relief from the daily drug, caffein—the base of coffee.

When this destructive drug is discontinued, Nature starts to repair the damage.

You will probably receive much benefit from simply leaving off coffee.

It will greatly add to your comfort to have a good, hot cup of well-made Postum each morning and Dame Nature will repair much more rapidly, for Postum contains some elements from the wheat which Nature uses in rebuilding nerve tissue.

VOL. XXXIII NO. 254 PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO THURSDAY NOVEMBER 10 1910 PRICE TWO CENTS

King Manuel's EXile in an English Home

How He Spent the First Day at the Residence of the Duke of Orleans

London, Nov. 10.—The gilded gates of Wood Norton were closed to all comers today, and behind them the king in exile spent his first day with nothing to mar the peace and the serenity of retirement.

"All that his majesty needs is tranquility." These words, which the Marquise de Lavradio said today, sum up the purpose of King Manuel's sojourn here.

That, indeed, is what King Manuel's purpose in Evesham is going to be. He is the king who cannot laugh. His nerves have been tried. He is haunted by horrid memories. It is said that King Manuel will wake sometimes with a cry, gearing in his dreams the echoes of the clamor and din of revolution. At other times he is moody, and broods on what might have happened if he had not fled the country, and the vision of the mighty possibilities of which "if" is a pivot, tortures him until he throws off the memories with a forced laugh, lights a cigarette and pretends that all is well with him.

He is secure enough at Evesham, where with the high hedges and tall elms that secret even the old flag of Portugal from prying eyes, no sound of outside turmoil can reach him. Rest for the young king is here, and here he will remain for a fortnight at least. m

A Worcestershire constable guards the gate, and others are secretly seeing that no harm can come to him. But when the Portuguese republic is formally acknowledged by the powers, King Manuel will become a private gentleman, and there will be no police to guard him except those in his own service.

There were sorrowful meetings, tinged with gladness, at Wood Norton last night, when the Countess of Paris clasped her grandson and her daughter, and the tears came to her eyes. Very little was said—hearts were too full to speak when grandmother, daughter and son met.

King Manuel heard the songs of the birds and the trickling water of the fountain outside his window when he awoke this morning to the peace of the English countryside. He breakfasted simply in his room, attended by his valet—the one personal servant who remained faithful to him—and then he attended to his correspondence, which has become very weighty.

He is still corresponding with Lisbon with the view of settling his personal affairs. All his belongings will doubtless be sent to him at Evesham, and it is no less urgent that Queen Amelie should receive her possessions, for at present she has only one dress—the one she had worn since her flight from Portugal.

Shortly before 11 o'clock the Duke of Orleans, in a blue serge and a yachting cap, called for King Manuel and took him for a stroll in the grounds.

The duke, by the way, having given up his rooms to his guests, is sleeping in an outbuilding which has a room the exact model of his cabin on his yacht La Belgique.

The duke took his nephew's arm, and showed him the famous museum where his huntinb trophies are stored. This is a tall white-painted building at the back of the house—a sort of a Rowland Ward menagerie—where the centrepiece is a great elephant with a wax figure sitting a howdah aiming at and killing a tiger which had leaped to its back with claws piercing the grey hide—an exact model of an adventure which befell the duke himself.

Noon brought lunch time, and a simple meal of hors d'oeuvres, fish cutlets, sweets, with burgundy from the Wood Norton cellars.

Subsequently another stroll was taken by the young king, who is already feeling the influence of the peace of the vale of Evesham. He wore a soft grey hat and a grey suit and, with his hands in his pockets, stood breathing in the keen air in long gasps. "Glorious, glorious!" he said, and the duke smiled and led him to the beatpits.

Here Arctic bears are kept—mementos of the duke's explorations—and King Manuel smiled at their antics. But they could not make him laugh.

"His majesty is very much depressed," the Marquis de Lavradio said. "All that he needs is tranquility." And that is why tomorrow and the next day and for many days to come, King Manuel will do precisely nothing but talk about Wood Norton, where his uncle and those who care for him will try to make him laugh.

THE EAST RISES UP IN PROTEST

AGAINST ANY REMOVING OR LOWERING OF PRESENT DUTIES ON COAL.

Labor Leaders Active—Any Change in Existing Tariff Would Be Fatal to the Industries in the Maritime Provinces.

Sydney, N.S., Nov. 8.—Simultaneously with the opening of preliminary negotiations for reciprocity between Canada and the United States, steps are being taken by the municipalities and Board of Trade in the county of Cape Breton to register an emphatic protest against removing or lowering the duties on coal.

Feeling in Cape Breton, the premier industrial county of the Maritime Provinces is strongly gainst reciprocity, and labor leaders, heads of industrial corporations and men of all political parties are united on opposing any changes in the present tariff which they claim would be fatal to the industries in this portion of Canada.

PUBLIC MEETING CALLED.

At the instance of the sydney Centuey Club, Mayor Gunn has called a public meeting of the citizens of Sydney for Thursday night to deal with the question. Invitations to participate have been sent to all the other towns in Cape Breton county and all the different labor bodies, and all have taken the matter up so vigorously that the meeting which was first called to register the protest of the citizens of Sydney has assumed far wider significance.

COAL OPERATORS ACTIVE.

Some time ago the coal operators waited on the Provincial Government at Halifax and urged them to take the matter up with the Federal authorities. They stated that the removal of the duties would ruin the Nova Scotian industry. This protest of the operators has stirred up the different labor organizations, and they have taken action along similar lines. The Provincial Workmen's Association lodges have nearly all passed resolutions strongly protesting against the removal of any part of the present duties, and while the U.M.W. have taken no official action, leaders of that body have protested through the newspapers against any interference with the present situation of the coal industry.

Canadian Club Dinner Tonight.

Tonight the Canadian Club holds a dinner in the National Hotel, at which Col. George T. Denison of Toronto, will speak on "Canada and Her Future." The Canadian Club of Peterborough, is composed of many of Peterborough's most patriotic and successful citizens who, in joining the club are actuated by a zeal for the promotion of Canada's prosperity. Those desiring tickets can procure the same from Mr. W. R. Morris, Water street, or at the National Hotel.

GOVERNOR HARMON WILL BE CANDIDATE FOR PRESIDENCY

HE WILL RECEIVE THE SUPPORT OF THE STATE DELEGATION.

The Democrats Achieve Great Success in Taft's Own State—Probable That the Entire Ticket Has Been Successful.

Columbus, O., Nov. 9.—Ohio has re-elected Governor Judson Harmon, Democrat, by a majority ranging from fifty to sixty thousand. It is probable that the entire Democratic State ticket has been elected, together with a majority in the State Legislature, which means the selection of a Democratic United States Senator.

In addition to this the Democrats have gained at least four and perhaps five members in the National House of Representatives.

Governor Harmon has, by reason of his re-election, become a candidate for the Democratic Presidential nomination in 1912, and will receive the united support of the delegation from this State. In Ohio it is believed that his nomination will come without serious opposition.

Biggest of all surprises is the Socialistic vote of nearly 11,000 cast in this (Franklin) county for J. L. Bachman for Congress, who ran a close race with Monette, the Democratic candidate. The Socialists carried three wards in Columbus. Thomas Clifford, Socialist candidate for governor, has received approximately 10,000 votes in Franklin county, as against 1,000 cast for the Socialistic candidate two years ago.

Politicians view with alarm the prospect of a Socialistic candidate for mayor next fall.

PLANK FELL ON HIM.

Hamilton Man Badly Injured.

Rueben Atherton, of 367 Ferguson Ave., Hamilton, an employee of the Otis Elevator Co., sustained serious injury while at work. A plank fell from a height on to his right foot, crushing it badly. He was taken home, where Zam-Buk was applied with good results.

Telling his experience of the balm, he said: "After the doctor had dressed the damaged foot with some preparation of his own I was in great pain, and as day after day I seemed to get no relief I left off medical treatment and tried Zam-Buk. From the very first application I traced an improvement. Zam Buk really seemed to act like magic, cleaning all the unhealthy matter from the wounds, drawing out all discoloration, inflammation and soreness, and started healing in quick time. In two weeks the toe and foot were well again. Zam Buk balm is certainly a wonderful healer, and I would not care to be without a box in the house. You can use the above statement in any papers, books or publications, as it may lead some other sufferer to use Zam Buk and get relief as I did."

All workers should keep Zam Buk handy. Applied to a cut or wound, it stops the pain, commences healing, and—what is equally fine—it prevents all possibility of blood poisoning. Zam-Buk is equally good for skin diseases, and cures eczema, itch, ulcers, abscesses, varicose ulcers, scalp sores, blood-poisoning, etc. It heals cold cracks, chapped hands, frost bite; cures piles and all inflamed conditions of the skin and tissue. Fifty cents a box from all druggists and stores, but avoid imitations and substitutes, some of which are highly dangerous, and none are beneficial.

FOR THE FIRST TIME IN SIXTEEN YEARS

MR. SHINN SAYS DEMOCRATS WILL HAVE 47 MAJORITY IN NEW HOUSE.

How Parties Will Stand—For the First Time in Sixteen Years the Democrats Will Have Most Representatives at Washington.

Washington, Nov. 9.—Josiah H. Shinn, statistician of the Democratic National Congressional Committee, who for several days has been in charge of Democratic headquarters here, today claimed a Democratic majority in the House of 47. He said:

"For the first time in sixteen years the next House of Representatives will be Democratic. The present House consists of 174 Democrats and 217 Republicans, or a majority of 43. The sixty-second Congress will consist of at least 219 Democrats and 172 Republicans. The Democratic leeway in the shape of majority will be 47 and probably more. In other words, the status of the parties is about exactly reversed.

Syracuse, Nov. 9.—Chancellor James R. Day today commented on election results as follows:

"I am resigned to the defeat of Mr. Stimson, because I believe that it is the beginning of the end of that infamous demagogic slander of our country which has paralyzed business and humiliated us before the civilized world for the last half-dozen years.

"The people have declared that the old Nationalism is good enough for them. It is not a Democratic victory. Tens of thousands of Republicans have turned to the Democratic party for refuge from the deluge of revolutionary insurgency championed by Roosevelt, which threatened the old foundations of our glorious Republic."

Taft Off for Panama.

Charleston, S.C., Nov. 10.—Saluted by the great guns of the harbor forts, the crack cruiser Tennessee, with President Taft and his party aboard, will sail out of the harbor early this afternoon bound for Panama. The trip will occupy about twelve days, allowing the President four days in the isthmus to inspect the progress of the canal work. The President spent the time between his arrival in the city at 7 o'clock this morning and the hour of his departure as the guest of Mayor Rhett and the Charleston chamber of commerce.

The Problem of Population

A little thought will show that if every married couple had only one child who reached maturity and married, the population of any country would in a generation be only half what it was, because when the married couple die they leave only one child to represent them. If the married couple left two children, who reached maturity and married, the population would remain stationary, because these two children would just fill the places of their father and mother when they died. From this, it will be seen that, in order to have an increase in population, a married couple must have at least three children who reach maturity and marry. Since many children die before marrying, it will be seen that the number of children who reach maturity must be at least three to produce an increase in population, so that the number of births per family must be more than three.

These considerations have led Mr. Beaulieu, editor of the French Economist, to propose a scheme for increasing the population of France. He would give yearly to every family having three children the sum of $100, and a similar sum for every child over three, this money to be used in their education and up bringing. He would also punish the unmarried man and the childless man by preventing him from sitting in parliament or working in Civil Service; the salary of the civil servant would be in proportion to the size of his family. This scheme, it is estimated, would cost the French government $35,000,000 a year.

The population of France has remained nearly stationary for a number of years, while that of Germany, her great rival, has steadily and greatly increased. And there is the other factor to be taken into consideration, that while Germany has sent hundreds of thousands of immigrants into the United States and other countries, France has sent scarcely any. The French people do not care to leave their own country; they have lost the colonization spirit that characterized the race in the sixteenth and eighteenth centuries.

How far Mr. Beaulieu's scheme will succeed, if it is put into operation, remains to be seen. While the French are a hard-working, economical people, among the most thrifty in the world, there is a very important fact to be borne in mind in considering this question of population. The agricultural lands are owned in small holdings by the farmers; there are not many large landed estates. The result is, that when there are more than two children to be provided for these small holdings have to be divided into still smaller holdings, if the children marry and stay on the land, and as has already been pointed out, the Frenchman loves his country too well to leave it. These considerations have greatly influenced the matter of population in France, and as far as the rural population is concerned, it would seem as if it would still continue to influence it.

Austria Aims to Become a Naval Power

ONLY DIFFICULTY IS FINANCIAL ONE.

Nine Ships of the Super-Dreadnought Type Will Be Built in England, and Germany Will Gain a New Ally.

Vienna, Nov. 10.—That Austria intends to become a great naval power is indicated by a public statement made by Admiral Count Montecuccoli, the chief of the Austro-Hungarian naval department, who says that he intends to bring forward a program of seven additional Dreadnoughts, is a portent which the British nation cannot distegard.

These ships will be in addition to the two Dreadnoughts already laid down at Trieste, and in addition to the three Lord Nelsons and three other powerful battleships which the Austrian navy already possesses. The aim is to bring the fighting strength of the Austrian fleet in modern battleships up to fifteen ships nine of which will be Dreadnoughts.

One of the two Dreadnoughts now building for Austria was laid down in May or June of this year, and is to be completed in October, 1912. The second was laid down in September, and is to be completed in March, 1913. Two more are to be laid down next year, if the Austro Hungarian parliaments will vote the money, though it has been estimated that German financiers will provide the amount required in the event of any difficulty arising on that head. Both these ships according to the Neue Freie Presse, will be in commission by March 1914.

Thus Germany at that date (1914) will have in the Mediterranean an ally possessing the third army in Europe and a fleet as follows Dreadnoughts 4, Lord Nelsons 3, other modern battleships 3, armored cruisers 3, scouts 4, destroyers 12, sub marines 8.

The Zeit publishes an article explaining that Admiral Montecuccoli's statement indicates Austria's intention to embark shortly in an extensive naval program. In Admiral Montecuccoli's view, slow building is not in accordance with modern requirements and his wish "to bring the Austrian fleet up to the standard of the sixties and seventies," says the Zeit, signifies the laying down of seven Dreadnoughts in the immediate future, thus giving Austria a fleet of 15 first-class warships.

Austria, adds the Zeit, has now six modern battleships, and two Dreadnoughts have already been laid down. Thus only seven units more are required to realize this program.

The Zeit further adds that the only difficulty is the financial one, and that it is a question whether money will be available to carry out the scheme. "but Admiral Montecuccoli is the man to realize far-reaching plans."

PETITION FOR DR. CRIPPEN

Toronto, Nov. 9.—Miss L. Kann, 407 Brunswick avenue, has drafted a petition for the reprieve of Dr. Crippen, and is asking the citizens of Toronto to affix their signatures. Her notice to the public is as follows:

"Will those opposed to capital punishment and willing to join the petition for Crippen's reprieve send their signature and address to Miss Kann, 407 Brunswick avenue, or call to sign the petition personally. Petition must be mailed Thursday noon at the latest to Solicitor Newton. Car tickets or stamps refunded if desired."

The signed petition will be despatched to London tomorrow, and it is hoped by those interested in the local movement against capital punishment that it will have some effect in commuting the doomed doctor's sentence.

BROTHERHOOD OF BRITISH EMPIRE

SPEECH OF THE DUKE OF CONNAUGHT AT OFFICIAL DINNER AT CAPETOWN.

Measures Against Strikes—Canada's Labor Law Not Pleasing to a Paris Correspondent — Cable News.

London, Nov. 7.—The Duke of Connaught, in his speech at the official dinner at the Government House, Cape Town, said he looked forward with hope and confidence to the happiness and prosperity of the great South African nation, its peoples filled with patriotism akin to the love which Britons in other countries Canadians, Australians, New Zealanders, have for the countries of their birth, and like them, with that wider patriotism which makes us all co-partners in the brotherhood of the British Empire.

MEASURES AGAINST STRIKES.

London, Nov. 7.—The Paris correspondent of the Standard, referring to the measures to be taken by the government against strikes of Government servants, says the Canadian law for the settlement of labor disputes is very generally quoted in favor of the government voew, but as a matter of fact this law only subordinates strikes to months of delay. It is very doubtful if, when one has to deal with the organization of the elements of French trade unionism, it would lead to any satisfactory results unless supplemented by severe penalties against every kind of incitement to strike.

Ed. Jardine Sent Up For Trial---Tom Let Go

Crown Withdrew the Charge Against Thomas Jardine—Edward will be Tried for Murder Next Spring

Goderich, Nov. 9.—Interest in the Lizzie Anderson case since the conclusion of the inquest three weeks ago has not bated, and when Magistrate Butler took his place on the bench this morning at ten o'clock, the little court room in the town hall was crowded to that no seating capacity was left for the witnesses.

This necessitated the clearing of the court room of every spectator to make room for the 34 witnesses who had been subpoenaed to appear.

The commencement has not had a noticeable effect upon Tom Jardine, who is charged as an accessory to the fact. He entered the court room with a smile out of the corner of his mouth. Edward, who is to appear on a murder charge, appears to be laboring under a greater mental strain, and he has lost in flesh.

CONSENTS TO COMMITTAL.

County Crown Attorney Seager announced that he would look after the interests of the Crown, and T. E. Dancy, a well-known local barrister, appeared for the prisoners.

When the information was read by the magistrate, both prisoners pleaded not guilty to the charges laid against them.

The case of Edward Jardine was announced by Mr. Seager to be dealt with first. T. E. Dancy stated that he had been furnished with a copy of the evidence taken at the inquest, and in view of the contradictory nature of the evidence, and the verdict of the jury, he had decided to reserve his defence until a latter date. He was willing that a committal should be made in respect to Edward Jardine.

THOMAS JARDINE LET GO.

Crown Attorney Seager: "I have given the matter serious consideration, and I come to the conclusion that the evidence would not justify me, in behalf of the Crown, to take further proceedings against Thomas Jardine. I am therefore compelled to withdraw the charge against him."

Magistrate Butler: "He is therefore entitled to his liberty for the present."

Edward Jardine was then committed for trial. His case will come up at the Spring Assizes in March next.

Hostility of Canada Admitted by Americans

AT THE MEETING AT OTTAWA DISCUSSION WAS VERY FRANK.

Reciprocity Commissioners From United States Know Our Sentiments.

Ottawa, Nov. 7.—At the meeting of the Reciprocity Commissioners yesterday, the discussion was marked by open frankness, and a determination to arrive at a basis of agreement which would be mutually satisfactory, if it is at all possible to do so.

It is expected that the pulp wood question will figure largely in the negotiations, and that the American Commissioners are desirous of at any rate entering into a reciprocal agreement which will affect coal, pulp, lumber and minerals. But the commissioners state that it has been agreed that none of them will say anything until such a time as they agree to give out a formal statement to the press.

It is understood that in the course of negotiations so far as they have progressed, there has been no lack of disposition on the part of the commissioners to state frankly the difficulties which have to be met with in both countries in the way of reaching a far reaching tariff.

Mr. Fielding and Mr. Paterson, it is understood, frankly stated that they recognize that there is Canada at the present time a great deal of hostility to the negotiations, while that section of the population which is friendly disposed to an agreement having the effect of ameliorating tariff conditions, thinks that caution should be exercised.

This is due in no small measure to the fact that under the existing tariff conditions the balance of trade is largely in favor of the United States.

The United States representatives on their part were free to confess that their own position was not without its difficulties, because of the probability that other countries such as Germany might demand similar concessions to those granted to Canada, and also because of hostility on the part of the manufacturing and other interests of the United States to tariff reductions.

Kaufman Meets Stewart.

New York, Nov. 10.—Al. Kaufman, the California heavyweight, and Jim Stewart of Brooklyn have completed training and appear to be in good fettle for their ten-round bout tomorrow night at the National Sporting Club. It will be the first important meeting between heavyweights that has taken place in New York in some time, and as a consequence the bout has attracted much attention in sporting circles. Kaufman has had more experience than Stewart, but the latter's willingness and gameness are expected to offset this advantage.

JURY RETURNS A TRUE BILL

Hamilton, Nov. 9.—The Grand Jury this morning brought in a true bill of murder against Thomas Finton, charged with the murder of his aged father.

Justice Middleton granted the application of the prisoner's counsel, George Lynch Staunton, K.C., for an adjournment until the January Assizes on the ground that Mrs. A. Spera, a material witness for the defence, is ill.

GILBERT PARKER ON FREE TRADE

TALK OF CANADA GOING BACK TO FREE TRADE IS SILLY IN HIS ESTIMATION.

Says Sir Wilfrid Knows It—Say Government That Proposed It Wouldn't Last a Week—Cable Despatches.

London, Nov. 9.—Sir Gilbert Parker, speaking at Manchester, said: "There is some silly talk of Canada going back to free trade, because a handful of farmers in the West are demanding not free trade as we understand it, but a revised tariff, which would give them a good advantage as the present tariff gives the manufacturers of the country. That is a matter of adjustment, but no candidate dares go to a constituency in Canada offering a system of free imports as England has it. No government would last a week that proposed it. Right well Sir Wilfrid Laurier knows it. His pious reflections about free trade have as much meaning or force behind them as the sentimental reminiscences of an octogenarian over the days of his youth."

GREAT POLITICAL EVENTS.

There is no indispensable person, says a French proverb. There are indispensable policies, however, and there are urgent questions and "indicated" solutions at certain critical periods.

In France, Briand as premier, succeeds Briand as premier simply because no real change in leadership or policy is either desirable or possible. In England the tory-liberal conference is apparently reaching an agreement because sane men feel that another general election would be futile. The situation would remain unchanged, the present policies would be ordered continued, and the Hotspurs would be covered with confusion.

It is reported that the conference will recommend a convention to discuss imperial federation as well as home rule all round. The signs are multiplying that the tories are in a mood to make large concessions to Ireland and to democratic sentiment. In other words, the upper house will be reformed, the land taxes will stand proposed insurance against unemployment and sickness will be encouraged.

What is it that is causing the tories to acquiesce in reforms they have bitterly opposed, and the liberals to moderate and revise some of their more radical demands? Nothing else, nothing less, than the logic of facts and conditions. The time is ripe for certain changes in English politics and givernmental machinery, in taxation, finance, and national economy. All parties—some sooner, some later—bow to necessity; only the fanatics and extremists refuse to face reality. The political genius of the British people has never had a greater opportunity than it has now, and an agreement between the two major parties on the vital issues now outstanding would excite admiration all over the world and give new proof of soundness and strength. The battles of 1890-90 cannot be fought over again in 1910; new needs teach new doctrines, and England's need is more democracy and greater well-being for the masses. Land reform, industrial insurance, home rule and imperial federation are all parts of a great programme that no party can monopolize, that all parties must further.

What is true of England is true of the whole world in some degree. Labels and leaders come and go, platforms are rebuilt and discarded, but grievances create trouble until redressed, and problems remain problems until solved.

SCIENTIST ON SOCIAL PROBLEM.

In commenting on the paradoxes and contortions of Chesterton's book on "What is Wrong with the World" we ventured to suggest that the real trouble with humanity was its youth, its inexperience. Exactly the same view has just been expressed by Sir Oliver Lodge, the eminent English scientist.

In a lecture on life and human development Sir Oliver pointed out that "we were still barely emerging from the ruthlessness of savage competition;" that the earth was still full of darkness and cruelty, and that our civilization is still raw and cruce. Humanity, he was sure, is good enough where it has a chance, and the paramount problem is to give it a chance. "There is room for everybody in a properly organized universe"—room as well as food, comfort, joy. Our business is to organize our little universe, to establish justice and eradicate the survival of savagery.

This business, as evolutionists like Spencer have demonstrated, could not be carried on by nations and societies that regarded war as a normal condition. Peace, industry, commerce, the accumulation of capital, the application of science and art to production and exchange, the abolition of privileges and evils inherited from a dark, military, fuedal past; the realization of equal opportunity, the enactment of laws shackling greed and cunning without discouraging legitimate ambition and enterprise—these are the conditions of future advance. In these lies the hope, the certainty, of humanity.

The problems presented to us by modern industry and modern politics and complex and difficult, but we shall prove equal to them. Corporations will be peopleized, law will be moderized, unfair privileges will be done away with, undeservec pauperism and misery will be prevented through insurance, compensation, pension systems. Political machinery will be simplified and perfected. All we need is time, courage, sympathy and earnest efforts to "get understanding." Happily, being human, we have all of these requisites. The seer, the scientist, the student of history, cannot possibly "land" in pessimistic conclusions.

THE COMING SESSION.

The coming session of parliament which opens on November 17th, is expected to be of more than ordinary interest, says the Ottawa Journal, an independent newspaper, in that there is the possibility that it will be the last before another general election. The opposition, therefore, may be expected to make the most of the chances they will have to harass the administration. The two parties are in the throes of the fight for rpower. The government is weakrr numerically than it has been since 1896, its majority last session having sometimes fallen as low as twenty.

The opposition also is a strong fighting body with young fighting material. It has been said that it is the strongest opposition since confederation.

What will lead especial interest in the coming conflict of parties is the situation in Quebec. Whereas a year ago there was a small outbreak on the part of F. D. Monk on the Conservative side and Colonel McLean on the Liberal side, over the naval policies of their several parties, the outbreak has grown to such large proportions in the government party that actual retention of office is threatened. The Bourassa campaign in Quebec is now of the most serious character to the Liberals, while other incidents which occurred lately have caused the English-speaking supporters of the government to look with suspicion upon its actions.

The ministry hopes to have a short session in view of the imperial conference in May and the coronation in June, both of which Sir Wilfrid laurier will attend.

BRITISH PROCEDURE.

A striking contrast in the proceedings of courts is furnisheh by the trial of Dr. Crippen and Miss Leneve. It took th eEnglish law out a short time to get at the bottom of the Crippen case, to sift evidence that has attracted the entire English-speaking world, to sum up the whole ghastly affair and to announce the punishment that goes to the perpetrator of appalling crimes. Had Crippen been tried in America the legal defence would have been insanity or brain storm, the case would likely have dragged on through the courts for weeks and the outcome in all probability would have been a short sentence in an hospital for the insane, or acquittal on the grounds of insufficient evidence. 6

The insanity plea has been used so much within the last few years that it really has become a subject of ridicule with the public and nearly every man with criminal instincts seems to believe that a clever lawyer can save him from the gallows by attempting to prove him weak mentally.

Lord Alverstone and the London jury have set a good example for Canadian courts.

A "FLORENCE NIGHTINGALE."

Makes an Appeal to Women to Give Up the Bottle Feeding for Babies.

London, Nov. 8.—A second Florence Nightingale is creating much interest in London,

London, Nov. 7.—With a baby's feeding bottle filled with milk, Viscountess Helmsley christened, by the name of "Florence Nightingale" the second caravan of the Women's Imperial Health Association before a numerous company in the Botanic Gardens, Regent's Park.

Prior to the christening ceremony company assembled in an adjoing marquee to witness a novel departure in the shape of a daylight cinematograph display. This was the first occasion on which such a thing had been attempted. It is intended to utilize these pictures in the lectures which are about to be given by the association in several of the London County Council's parks, and as it i snecessary that the lectures should be given in the daytime, lantern manufacturers have made special efforts to perfect a process by which the pictures could be visible in daylight. The subjects are projected through a transparent screen of dark material, on which, it is claimed, they are perfectly visible in a subdued light and at the close of day. On the occasion referred to the sun was shining brightly all through the performance, and the results were disappointing. As however, the lectures are to be given in the parks at 4 p.m., it is anticipated there will be no difficulty in obtaining satisfactory results.

Before inviting Viscountess Helmsley to christian the caravan, Mr. Simson referred to the excellent results which have been achieved by the first caravan, which had started out on its mission on August 20. In the interval it had visited nineteen towns and villages, and as many as 7,000 people had attended the lectures.

Lady Helmsley, in the course of her speech, made an appeal to women of all classes to nurse their own babies, and not, for the sake of convenience, rely upon the "bottles."

A special feature in connection with the new car is that with the exception of one man to look after the horses, all duties, including lecturing and distributing of literature, will be carried out by women, two of whom will live and sleep in the car.

LABOR BACKS FEDERENKO.

Resolution Passed Asking Minister of Justice for His Release.

Toronto, Nov. 8.—The immediate release of Savva Federenko, who is in custody waiting extradition from Winnipeg to Russia, was the request of a resolution passed at a meeting in the Labor Temple yesterday by about one hundred and fifty members of the labor bodies here and the Socialist party. Delegate Hoop, of the Winnipeg Trades and Labor Council, who is lecturing for the Federenko Defence League, was the principal speaker.

Delegate Hoop's story was that of the proclamation issued by the Czar of Russia in 1905, which was ostensibly in favor of freedom. Federenko began to preach the "doctrine of freedom."

Suspected of being a revolutionist, he was watched by the police, found with a comrade in the house of a peasant, and in a fracas which ensued a policeman was shot. Federenko thereupon took to flight, proceeding first to Austria, then to Belgium, afterwards to Brazil and the Argentine, and finally to Canada, where he was traced by Russian spies and arrested in Winnipeg after being four weeks in the city.

That the refugee had taken part in the revolution was not denied. It was claimed, though, that on account of this the murder charge had been trumped up.

The prisoner's story has been investigated by the Winnipeg Trades Council, and its members believe that it is substantially true. They started a defence fund and raised about $1,800 to help Federenko fight extradition.

An appeal for funds was made by Delegate Hoop to help the unfortunate man to fight against extradition. Unless this succeeded he would be dragged back to Russia and executed within forty-eight hours without any trial.

A resolution was passed asking the minister of justice to effect Federenko's immediate release, as he had been guilty only of a political offence.

Taft Starts for Panama.

Washington, D.C., Nov. 9.—President Taft reached the capital this morning on his return from Cincinnati. After a few hours spent with his family and in discussing the results of the elections with some of his most intimate political friends, the President will depart on a special train this afternoon for Charleston, S.C., whence he is to sail tomorrow for Panama to make an inspection of the progress of the work on the isthmian canal.

To Greet the Rainbow.

Victoria, B.C., Nov. 7.—Courageously blotting from her memory for the time being the results of the great fire which recently devastated a large section of the city, Victoria today donned holiday attire and prepared to give a joyous welcome to the cruiser Rainbow, due to arrive at the end of her long trip from England around the Horn. Elaborate entertainment has been prepared for the officers and men of the cruiser, which has been designated as the first ship of the new Canadian navy on the Pacific coast. A number of eminent representatives of the federal and provincial governments are here to join in the demonstration of welcome. As soon as the formalities of greeting are over the Rainbow will go into quarters at Esquimault.
